STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Blood Thinners Used Sparingly

Twenty years ago it seemed essential to administer blood thinners (anticoagulants) to the patient who had just suffered a heart attack (coronary thrombosis).

But some doctors were still not convinced that they were a necessary part of the treatment. They were brave and daring souls, willful men. For many in the profession looked down upon them as "being behind the times." So did patients.

Many would say, "I wonder if I'm being treated right? I have a neighbor who had a heart attack and he is on blood thinners, goes in once a week for blood tests. He definitely says he'll have to take blood thinners for years." There's a fellow at the office, too, who is on blood thinners. But my doctor won't give them to me, he says he isn't convinced they help."

And as they changed doctors, or kept on wondering if they were being mistreated. Gradually, over the past few years, skepticism has given as to the need for anticoagulants in "every case."

Many excellent cardiologists do not prescribe these blood thinners. They believe there is always the danger of such complications as serious bleeding. Rarely, they do not believe that the anticoagulants prolong life, prevent more frequent attacks, or even lessen the likelihood of such complications as thrombosis in the veins or serious conditions like pulmonary embolism (a lung complication due to a plugged blood vessel).

Now years later comes an editorial in the Annals of Internal Medicine (the official magazine of medical specialists) which indicates that anticoagulants may not be used routinely in the treatment of heart attacks. A recent study of about 1,300 patients in England seems to confirm this.

I make these observations today in answer to a short note received yesterday:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've just gotten over an attack of coronary thrombosis. I'm told that I'll have to take blood thinners for the rest of my life. I'd rather die than have needles stuck into me every week for blood tests. — Mr. F.

Comment: Ask for a consultation. Perhaps the doctors may agree that in your case blood thinners aren't necessary.

* * *

For Mrs. F.: Vaginal discharge that persists, even by gentle care such as douching, deserves investigation. You should realize, however, that simple measures don't seem to help. See a gynecologist. He will make certain tests. Perhaps a yeast (or other) infection is present. Only after he discovers exactly what it is, can he prescribe effective medication.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For years I've been smoking cigars a day. I'm still in pretty good health for my age. I'm 79. Shall I quit? — Mr. V.

Comment: No.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm 17 and I think I'm pregnant. I guess I'm already in my fourth month. I haven't told anyone except my cousin. She was going to take me to a doctor but I got my period.

I think I'm starting to get big, but it may only be because I feel so nervous. I'm not dizzy or nauseous. I need your help desperately. I want to die. — Miss X.

Comment: Call your cousin again. Go to the doctor. He can perform a simple test which will tell you whether or not you are pregnant. Although it is possible you are, having your period makes it less likely. Don't do anything rash. Chances are the pregnancy tests will be negative.

Parkin Readily Admits New Group Chauvinistic

TORONTO (CP) — A "chauvinistic" group of prominent Canadian citizens will attempt to define issues for a possible 1972 election but not find candidates, spokesmen for the group said Wednesday.

Jerry Goodis, president of a Toronto advertising firm, said in an interview that the newly-formed Committee for an Independent Canada wants to "stop the sale of the country."

The committee announced its formation Wednesday, with J.G. McClelland and Claude Ryan as spokesmen.

Mr. McClelland is president of the Toronto publishing firm McClelland and Stewart Ltd., and Mr. Ryan is editor and publisher of Montreal Le Devoir.

John C. Parkin, president of an architectural and engineering consultant firm in Toronto, said the group is "unabashedly chauvinistic." Chauvinism is defined as aggressive and exaggerated nationalism.

"We are certainly not anti-American or anti-anything," he said. "We just want to change things, but within the existing framework."

Mr. Goodis said: "I personally hate the absentee-landlordism that's going on, and I hate to see our political policies dictated by anyone, Americans or otherwise."

The sponsoring committee "is still very much in the formative stages," Mr. McClelland said Thursday.

Along with Mr. Goodis, Mr. Parkin and the co-chairmen, it now includes: Professor Abraham Rotstein of the political science department at the University of Toronto; Edwin Goodwin, chairman of the Toronto Conservative national organizing committee; Alvin Hamilton, minister of agriculture in John Diefenbaker's Conservative Cabinet; Peter Newman, editor of the Toronto Star; and Dorothy Petrie, former professor of economics at Dalhousie University, Halifax.

The sponsoring committee is attempting to enlist the support of "about 200 people in all walks of life and from coast to coast," Mr. McClelland said.

"The only people we are consciously excluding are elected politicians. We have adopted, as a basic premise, non-involvement in party politics."

Sydney J. Harris Says

Punishment Is No Cure

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

(During hi vacation, we are reprinting selections from Mr. Harris' latest collection of columns in book form, Leaving the Surface.)

The day that the "Guilty" verdict was brought in by the Speck jury, I overheard a group of people at the luncheon table next to mine discussing the trial and conviction.

"Why does the state go to all the trouble, time and expense?" one asked of another. "He's guilty—everybody knew it long before we got him in the electric chair, or put him away for life and forget it!" Everyone else at the table nodded in strong agreement.

I didn't nod in agreement, even mentally. Doc must recognize that theirs is the attitude of most people, but I happen to think it is a very dangerous, and ignorant attitude. Quite apart from the civil rights involved in the matter—and the blackest villain is entitled to the same civil rights as a cherub, or the law means nothing — there is another equally important consideration: We learn absolutely nothing by sending such a man to the chair, or even by putting him away to rot in prison for a lifetime. If he is mad, we should study the unique course of his madness; if he is bad, we should study the origins and evolution of his badness. If he is a mixture of both — as we might suspect — we should study the relationship between moral character and emotional sickness.

Society hates, fears and resents such men, and wants to obliterate them. But such obliteration does not deter or prevent similar occurrences, nor does it help us to detect, in the early stages, the behavior patterns of other men who might do likewise.

It seems painfully obvious to me that if we understood more about such matters, not only might the eight nurses be alive today, but also the young soldier who committed mass murder from his tower in Texas could have been spotted as a potentially mean long before that dreadful day. Such actions are almost always prefigured in early behavior — if we are alert to the deeper meaning of such behavior.

\'t Acts of what we call "senseless violence" are increasing enormously in this age. But though such acts may seem senseless to us, they make a kind of insane sense to the persons who perpetrate them; and if we obtained a better grasp of their convoluted mental processes, it might help us prevent incidents of this tragic kind — just as an improved knowledge of symptoms enables us to prevent physical illness from worsening to the incurable stage.

What is a "waste" is not the long and cumbersome trial, but the fact that after the trial little is done to probe the psychic secrets of such men. Simply to execute them or shut them away is the surest guarantee that future tragedies will be neither prevented nor anticipated. If we handled disease the same way, who would be alive?

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

* For September 19

Your birthday today: This year you must get directly to fundamental issues. There is just enough resistance to provoke your better qualities, combined with feelings that will be made factors in your success will be your continued effort to keep your life pattern uncomplicated. Today's natives have an abiding interest in literature. Many have distinguished themselves as writers.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Expect added expenses today as plans go awry, schedules slip. Do your share, promptly. A personal project is finished that has been long hanging fire.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Even in activities which need little co-operation, you still encounter delays. Tact and persistence bring success, after all.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Double - check facts and figures for today's use of those times you can really mix things up. Odd conditions provide both amusement and alibi — don't get yourself tangled up.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your own problems are not all that critical — sympathy leads you to worry about others' as well. Do what is possible: in the final truth, however, everybody must carry his own.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Don't force issues. People need time to decide upon a thing of importance. Family life conflicts with career matters. Your financial position improves later in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The concerns of older people may weigh on your mind. Forbearance where you least feel like extending it helps the most. Be clear, and direct in what you say.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Caution and definite action are indicated in financial matters today. Unusual expenses, strange estimates are to be expected. Keeping things in balance will attract support.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You see some natural limitations. Much can be accomplished once you adjust to this reality, but put in a complete day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): While you attend others, reflect on your world of people, strive for an optimistic outlook. Some of your worries are needless. Evening hours bring cheerful news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): It seems easier to deal with strangers over large issues than with familiar people over trifles. Older people pose a question, briefly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your pace has to fit the limitations of people around you. However, some facts can be established...settled. Then the errors for conflict are transferred. Seek clarity, peace.

Cadieux Quits Defence Post

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Thursday finally confirmed reports that the soldier's friend, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux, will replace Paul Beaulieu as Canadian ambassador to France.

After three years as a calming influence in the fickle defence job, the 63-year-old practical politician leaves this weekend for Paris and a new diplomatic career.

Mr. Beaulieu, in uncertain health, takes on the less demanding job of ambassador to Portugal, replacing Michael Gauvin, 51, of Quebec City. Mr. Gauvin becomes ambassador to Greece, replacing H. F. Feaver, who is retiring.

The departure of Mr. Cadieux confirms half of the widely-reported story making the rounds that Mr. Cadieux's move would permit Donald Macdonald, president of the privy council, to move up to the defence portfolio.

It is still expected that Mr. Macdonald, who is also government House leader, will get the promotion. He is close to Prime Minister Trudeau and played a key role in the latter's successful bid to succeed Lester Pearson as Liberal leader and prime minister in 1968.

The defence department, particularly the military crowd, are sure to miss Mr. Cadieux, who fought hard against budget and manpower cutbacks with mixed success.

Despite his efforts, the size of the Canadian NATO force in Europe is being halved. Meanwhile, total manpower is to be reduced to 82,000 by 1973 from last year's strength of 88,000.

The long salt of the shabby, grey-haired Cadieux has been his friendly affability and undoubted talent of hurling aside crisis criticism with a deft touch. He did not antagonize people.

Even without the trying military de-emphasis by the Trudeau government, he would have required these qualities after taking over the defence portfolio from Paul Hellyer.

The department was still vibrating unsteadily from the Hellyer-forced unification program when the new man took over after 2½ years as associate defence minister. He became a steadying influence.

His potential successor, Mr. Macdonald, is far younger and crustier, and more in the aggressive, do-it-now Hellyer tradition. He has proven a magnet for opposition criticism in Parliament, particularly for his determined pursuit of the Trudeau government's goal of exerting more control over parliamentary procedure.

Pitman Doubts Voters Angry

HAMILTON (CP) — The two contenders for the leadership of the Ontario New Democratic Party clashed Thursday night for the first time in their series of public debates, with each charging the other of mistaking the mood of the Ontario voter.

Stephen Lewis, member of the legislature for Toronto Scarborough West, said the Ontario electorate is restless and ready for change.

The party needs to "stimulate the electorate a little" with an appeal to "commitment, vigor and without equivocation," he said.

His leadership rival, Walter Pitman, member for Peterborough, called for a moderate approach, saying Mr. Lewis's strategy "might well drive them (voters) off."

Mr. Lewis said he was not comfortable with the policy of moderation.

"This is not a time to become over-obsessed with caution."

Mr. Pitman said he rejects the theory that the voter is angry and frustrated.

Teachers Said Selfish

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian School Trustees' Association estimated Thursday that implementation of the government's white paper on unemployment insurance will result in an additional $6 million in school costs annually.

Association representatives appeared before the Commons labor committee which is examining the policy paper.

Eugene Whelan (L—Essex) said it was "one of the most selfish things I have ever heard of" that teachers would want to be exempt from payments.

That, he said, was like saying people who don't have children shouldn't have to pay taxes for education.

will conduct a Massive

SHOE SHINERAMA

In Downtown Belleville & Trenton

ON

SATURDAY, SEPT. 19

Come downtown on Saturday . . . Have the best Shoe Shine ever and help a worthy cause.

WHAT'S CYSTIC FIBROSIS?

Cystic Fibrosis hits young children in the lungs and in the digestive system — claims many victims than polio ever did at its pre-vaccine worst.

In the lungs, thick, gluey mucus clings to the lungs' walls, reducing the oxygen they get from the air they breathe.

"HOW YOUR SHOE SHINE MONEY WILL HELP"

The Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation organizes projects like this one to earn money to help care for these children — but more important — with the aid of these public spirited people — its nationally recognized Medical Advisory Board uses the money to aid research projects

— to find a cure or control for Cystic Fibrosis

You'll be Helping 'C/F' Children Right Here in this Area!

'Final Ultimatum' Given Palestinian Guerrillas

Meir Won't Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Golda Meir of Israel has inflicted a heavy blow on United States hopes that the Middle East peace talks could be resumed in the near future.

Mrs. Meir told President Nixon there can be no peace talks until Egypt removes the missiles Israel says were implanted along the Suez canal in violation of a military standstill agreement.

Nixon and State Secretary William P. Rogers tried Friday but failed to persuade the 72-year-old Israeli leader that talks under United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring provide the only avenue to peace.

In principle, Mrs. Meir agreed. But, she asked, why should Israel negotiate a peace treaty with a country which violated a lesser ceasefire agreement virtually the same day it agreed to observe it?

President Nixon and Rogers are reported to have understood Mrs. Meir's argument although they would not agree with her conclusion.

The Nixon administration considered itself with the conclusion that because of the Jordan situation the question of resumption of political talks is hypothetical anyway.

Yield Today Or Die

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — The Jordanian commander-in-chief today issued a "final ultimatum" to Palestine guerrillas to surrender by 4 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT) as the army mounted what appeared to be a final all-out effort to crush resistance.

The Middle East news agency and a broadcast by Cairo radio said President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt had proposed to Hussein that he and the guerrillas accept a 24-hour ceasefire. The news agency said Hussein accepted.

However, the official Iraqi news agency quoted a Palestinian commando representative in Baghdad as saying the guerrillas would not accept a ceasefire in Jordan.

The Egyptian ceasefire initiative was carried to Amman Friday by Lt.-Gen. Mohammed Ahmed Sadek, a Nasser envoy. Sadek met with Hussein for three hours Friday and conferred with him again today.

Cairo radio said Sadek then went into conference with Yasser Arafat, over-all leader of the guerrilla movement, and other officials of the central committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Majali's announcement made no mention of the Egyptian initiative. He stressed that the ultimatum was imposed under the martial law decreed by Hussein at the start of the fighting Thursday.

Majali's proclamation said: "This is the last warning to the fedayeen.

"All guerrillas must lay down their arms and surrender by 4 p.m. Anyone who resists the royal forces after this time limit will be treated as an outlaw and killed or arrested and tried by Courts-martial as a traitor to armed mutiny against the authorities.

"This crime is punishable by death."

Majali repeated earlier assurances that guerrillas wishing to surrender would not be harmed.

Majali's proclamation said those who wanted to surrender should raise white flags and advance toward the nearest army unit.

The Iraqi news agency said guerrilla spokesmen in Baghdad denounced Nasser's efforts as an "affront to the dignity of the Arab nation."

They Hail Old Chief

Among the guests, besides Mr. Trudeau, was former prime minister L. B. Pearson. Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Pearson flanked Mr. Diefenbaker on the platform as the Conservative member for Prince Albert was presented with gifts.

"I can't say how deeply touched I am," said Mr. Diefenbaker, as he was applauded to the microphones.

Mr. Pearson presented him with a card which said, "Dear John, how I miss you."

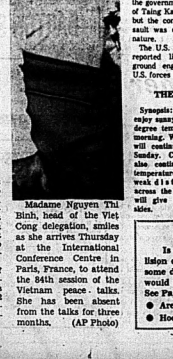
From Mr. Trudeau he received a copy of a letter written by a "Montreal Liberal" to Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister.

Brig. Michael Wardell, publisher of the Fredericton Gleaner, presented Mr. Diefenbaker with a portrait of himself. Brig. Wardell said that in the Maritimes, there is for Mr. Diefenbaker "a real true devotion and gratitude which will never die."

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was at the party to wish Mr. Diefenbaker a happy birthday, but he had to leave for another appointment before the presentations had been completed.

Cambodians Expect Massive Air Support

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian military command plans a big assault to smash through a Communist stronghold that has stalled the government's largest offensive of the war there for nearly a week.



Limited United States air strikes already have been carried out in preliminary attempts to dislodge an estimated 1,000 North Vietnamese troops dug in at the village of Taing Kauk, 47 miles north of Phnom Penh.

Officers at the operation's rear headquarters in Skoun, 45 miles north of Phnom Penh, said today they were not sure when the assault against the North Vietnamese would start, but added they had been told by the high command that the attack would be preceded by huge U.S. air strikes against the village.

The operation, stalled in front of Taing Kauk since Monday, is aimed at reopening Route 6 to Kompong Thom, a provincial capital and reclaiming an important section of Cambodia's heartland from Communist control.

Communist troops attacked the government task force south of Taing Kauk during the night, but the command said the assault was only of a harassing nature.

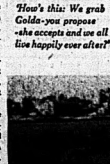
No Demand For Sunday Supermarts

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says the Ontario Law Reform Commission will recommend a revamping of the federal Lord's Day Act but Sunday retailing will not go much beyond the current level.

Quoting "informed sources," the newspaper says the recommended changes would permit corner and small variety stores to stay open on Sundays which they now do illegally.

However, the newspaper says the commission "is likely to say" there is no demand for a major expansion of Sunday retailing and "that there isn't much we can or should do about Sunday manufacturing but that we need to do a lot more to open up Sunday recreation — even if it's commercial."

H. Allan Leal, chairman of the commission, has not commented on its recommendations based on public hearings in 12 Ontario cities and a massive telephone survey taken this summer.



Allegheny Jet Flown To Havana

MIAMI (AP) — A young man armed with dynamite, gasoline and a gun hijacked an Allegheny Airlines jet shortly before it landed in Philadelphia today, ordered 90 passengers off, then took the plane on to Cuba with eight crew members aboard, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The Boeing 727 landed at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 4:32 a.m. EDT, the FAA said, after leaving Philadelphia at 1:46 a.m.

FAA officials said the plane carried three flight crew members, three stewardesses and two men believed to be FAA inspectors or airline employees.

The plane was bound from Pittsburgh to Boston with a stop in Philadelphia when the hijacker took over, the FAA said.

France Makes Strong Bid To Get UN Seat for China

NEW YORK (CP) — France made a strong bid Friday to have Communist China brought into the United Nations and into negotiations to end the Indo-China conflict.

In calling for this before the 125-country General Assembly and in a later news conference, Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France indicated that China would welcome an invitation to join the world organization it has scorned for many years.

And he added to speculation here about the possible early and successful conclusion of China-Canada recognition talks by saying it is his understanding that the negotiations in Stockholm are going "rather well and in rather an encouraging way."

He added to Canadian reporters, however, that he did not have definite information that the talks are nearing a successful conclusion. And he said his information did not come from Canadian sources.

Schumann said France, which has an embassy in Peking, has the "impression that China certainly is not inclined to disregard the importance of joining the UN."

In an apparent acknowledgement that China has no hope of membership this year, he expressed hope the annual vote on admission will "get near to a vote in favor of admission."

In this connection he told Canadian reporters later that the efforts of Canada and Italy, particularly, to recognize Peking are important.

The Canadian vote on China will change from abstention to support after recognition.

Dec. 5 Fun Date

Parade Ready...If Volunteers Arrive

There are more than (6) more days to Christmas, but, already, a band of Bald-eli-Bers are shopping around for Santa's helpers.

The group is the Santa Claus parade committee, now voluntarily back in business for another year, and this time for Sat. Dec. 5 deadline.

That's the date of the 1976 Santa Claus parade, the big gala event which annually heralds the arrival of the Christmas season in the city.

The committee now is swinging into action after an initial organization meeting this week which produced the core of its work corps.

However, more citizens are needed to fill out the ranks and get the parade organization on the road, says committee chairman Frank R. Foley.

The parade, once the biggest happening of its kind between Toronto and Montreal, has become a Quinte Christmas tradition. However, its very success, as one point almost threatened its existence.

The inspiration of city firefighters in the early 1950s, it continued to sprout spectacularly in size and organizational complexity. In recent years, the firemen found it increasingly difficult to continue the leading role. Commitments, one however, was lacking, despite repeated warnings about the parade's future.

The crunch came last year when the fire department found it impossible to continue building and housing floats in city firehalls, and the public at-large momentarily failed to pick up the options.

Rescue came when Don Foster, a talented Bellevillian involved in equipping parades around Eastern Ontario, stepped in the breach and organized last - minute work parties to produce the 1975 event.

After that success, came the parade organization now is being rebuilt with an eye to its future security.

"What we're trying to do is establish the parade in such a manner that it's going to carry on through the years," says Mr., Foley.

"The firefighters did fantastic jobs but the parade swelled to the point where they could not be directly involved. Then, when it was dropped in the citizens' laps the whole thing nearly collapsed.

"Now, we can see no reason why the parade shouldn't be a big success this year — and carry on for years to come."

However, new organizational patterns also have produced new problems.

In the past, the firefighters donated much free labor in the construction of floats and mobile exhibits.

...Now, says Mr. Foley, some of this effort will have to be replaced with paid labor.

"So we find we're going to need strong financial assistance from the Intermunicipal.

The committee is setting a budget of "close to $5,000" to cover all expenses of the b i g show, says Mr. Foley.

"So, somewhere, we have some hard work to do," he adds.

Already, however, some funds have become available. The Bellville Downtown Association already is matching a city grant of $500. And the parade committee is holding its annual tag day in the city Nov. 13-14.

There also are new trends involving parade participation.

This year, for the first times entries are being divided into classes and the committee will award trophies to the top display in each division, says Mr. Foley.

The grand champion will receive the overall Warpy O'Brien award — named after the late veteran firefighter who was one of the parade's originators in the 1950s.

The award was donated the committee by Mr. Foster and will be presented for the "most spectacular", Gost to the parade.

For the Winner!

Frank Foley, chairman of city's 1970 Santa Claus parade committee, surveys trophy to be awarded most spectacular float in this year's event. The award, donated by Bellevillian Donald Foster, is tribute for former firefighter Warpy O'Brien, one of the parade's founders.

Frankford Man Faces Three Driving Charges

A Frankford man has been charged with dangerous driving, driving while having too much alcohol in his system, and driving while under suspension, the result of a high speed chase early this morning.

According to Belleville City Police, Arnold Bruce Thompson, 33, of RR3, Frankford, will appear in court Tuesday to answer to the charges.

Police said that the chase began near Moira Secondary School at approximately four this morning.

From there, cars sped to Station Street, in and out of parking lots near the CN Station and through the northwest part of Belleville.

The chase then left the city and Belleville OPP became involved sending cruisers after the fleeing vehicle as well.

Near Frankford, two city police cruisers were crammed by the vehicle when they blocked its path. Damage was major.

The chase finally ended minutes later in Frankford after approximately an hour of high speed driving.

Rickard On Leave

Belleville General Hospital administrator Phillip Rickard has been granted a year's leave of absence to take a master's course in public administration at Queen's University.

In the interim, he will act in a consulting capacity to the hospital, Rev. J. P. Sullivan, chairman of the BGH board of governors, announced today.

Meantime, assistant administrator John Kunetsky has been appointed acting administrator, said Msg. Sullivan.

Three Hurt In Crash

A Bellville man, his wife and a child were taken to Belleville General Hospital late yesterday afternoon following a two-vehicle collision on the Redeserville Road near Redmerrsville.

The hospital is Victor Wood, 21, of Prepper Ave. Mr. Wood sustained back injuries. His wife, Linda Wood was treated and released. A child, Tina Sweet, also of Pepper Ave. was also treated and released.

Driver of the other vehicle was David Ernest Hennessey, 29, of RR3, Carrying Place. Mr. Hennessey was uninjured.

Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at $1,400.

Man Dies In Hotel

Local police, called to investigate at 1:25 a.m., found no sign of foul play and that the name of the man would be withheld until next-of-kin were notified.

Alternative Price Said Higher

City council Monday will be asked to finally decide on a construction contract for the proposed new westend ice rink.

The meeting will follow arrival yesterday of an alternate cost estimate on the project — which proved higher than the original tender.

The second estimate, requested from Dominion Steel Co. Ltd., by Mayor Russell Scott, is "considerably" higher than the original $282,953 bid submitted by Carr-Brainton Construction of Belleville, said a city alderman.

The exact amount of the Dominion Steel estimate was not made public.

However, said recreation chairman Ald. Donald Soulter today, "it was considerably higher than the Carr-Beaint tender."

Council decision on the Carr-Brainton bid, the only total tender on the project, was delayed Monday when Mayor Scott revealed he had approached Dominion Steel for an alternate estimate. The mayor said he took the action because of concern for "the taxpayers' money."

A special council meeting was set for next Monday to discuss the situation.

Ald. Soulter, who has recommended acceptance of the Carr-Braint tender, said today his committee is "confident that its six-month study (of the rink project) would result in an ice surface which would be functional, efficient and could be maintained as economically as possible in this type of structure."

"The decision now is one of whether council wishes to approve an arena and its cost of construction".

Group Wants Plan Published

PICTON (Staff) — An anonymous body, calling itself "a group of ratepayers", on Wednesday placed a half-page advertisement in the Picton Gazette demanding that the county plan for Prince Edward be published on Oct. 2 as scheduled.

Directed to Ross Benway, a Hillier township councillor appointed chairman of the county planning board, the advertisement urged: "Don't be afraid — let us have the plan now. Don't let anyone scare you with big talk about millions. Those people should know that ratepayers' money be bought. And that county people are behind you."

The Gazette advertisement commends Mr. Benway and his planning board on "a good job of looking into the future for us". It refers to the county's contract with the firm of Marshall, Macklin and Monaghan, to produce a county plan. It concludes: "We are all prepared to listen to reasonable proposals."

A Fast Farewell

Harry and Edythe Fast last night were honored at a Belleville railroad staff leave-taking banquet at Club Canara. Former manager of CN's Rideau area is leaving for assignment with Zambia national railroad. During five years in Belleville, the Fasts also became prominently active in community

Challenges Anticipated By Former CN Head Here

Veteran railroad executive Harry Fast received a nostalgic helping hand packing his bags for a new and challenging career last night.

The former manager of the Canadian National's Rideau area is off to Zambia later this month to supervise operations of the African nation's railroad system.

He assumes his appointment after a four-month on-the-spot study of the Zambian national railroad from which he temporarily returned last weeks ago.

To formally mark the event, CN Rideau employees feted Mr. Fast and his wife Edythe at a farewell banquet at Club Canara last night.

Some 130 people — workers and their wives — assembled for the farewell to a man who, [illegible] five years as area chief of operations stationed [illegible]ville, also became an [illegible]ty figure.

"It's almost a new career," he said last night. "Of all the projects I've been involved with, this could be classed as the biggest."

Mr. Fast's assignment is the result of CN consulting services being available on an international basis. They have been used by several nations — including several African countries and Mexico, he said.

In May, he was despatched to Zambia which is contemplating patterning its national railroad system along the Crown - corporation CN lines.

He returned on completion of preliminary studies. Negotiations now are under way for official completion of the contract between CN and Zambia that will see him return in an overall managerial capacity for several years.

At the moment he describes the duration of his stay as "two years definite — and beyond that, indefinite."

The task presents new problems in a new environment but his initial encounters were impressive, Mr. Fast says.

He was particularly struck by the progressiveness and intelligence with which the country is being developed, he added.

He also was impressed with the tools of his assignment. The nationally-owned railroad is a modern, $40-million annual operation that is being rapidly dieselized.

Fundamental to his task will be, adaptation of Western commercial principles in a different culture.

He must "intelligently" make such principles fit the Zambian way of life — not vice versa, Mr. Fast says.

"You can't take a blueprint of North America and apply it there — and I wouldn't want to," he says. "After all, we have many problems here — and they shouldn't be exported."

Local Man Publishes Poetry

Three volumes of poetry by a Belleville man have made their appearance in local book stores.

They represent over 25 years of effort by D. V. Dumble, who writes after the form of Japanese verse.

Haiku Poetry, consisting of only three lines, and Tanka, five lines, with the number of syllables strictly limited, expresses the essentials of a thought or scene, often symbolically. Longer variations of both forms can also be used.

The third volume of poems is illustrated by the author's wife, Mercedes.

All three volumes were printed by the author in Belleville.

Mr. Duminie was born and educated in Belleville and is a graduate of St. Michael's High School and Albert College. He is a member of the Belleville Businessmen's Association and chairman of the Parking Authority.

Good Year in PE

Operators Suggest Tourism Commissioner

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — It was a very good year for tourism in Prince Edward County according to several summer resort operators appraising their season's trade. William West, president of the Lake Ontario Regional Tourist Council, described tourism as "very good" with the exception of Labour Day weekend when few vacationers visited his West Lake resort.

He explained that cool, damp weather during the week prior to the holiday weekend prompted many persons to forego plans for a Labor Day trip. "Otherwise it was a bumper year," observed Mr. West.

He added that the tourist industry this year thrived on better weather than summer '76 offered to vacationers.

William Smith, manager of Waupoos Lodge noted that tourism this year increased over last season's trade for him and commented : on a slightly lengthened season. He referred to July and August as tourism's "peak months" remarking that resort operators who combine fishing with their summer accommodations can extend their seasons.

President of the Quinte Isles Tourist Association, R. A. Owen, offered a different view of Prince Edward's tourism emphasizing a "tight money" situation. Operator of Bayerest Lodge and Marina, Big Island, Mr. Owen felt that more holidayers are camping to save money. He also observed a decrease in boat sales although boating remains a popular pastime.

Because of "tight money" Mr. Owen suggested a number of people are purchasing used boats or reconditioning their old ones. He pointed out, however, that his marina boasted summer trade for him this year. Mr. Owen is gradually making the change from a holiday resort locality to the American plan to a lodge offering housekeeping cottages in an effort to move with the present demands of the tourist industry.

He rapped the "mercury pollution scare" as a further detriment to tourism in the county this summer. Although it has been proven conclusively that there is no mercury pollution in Bay of Quinte waters Mr. Owen commented that some skeptical fishermen feel that all waters are contaminated.

Effects of the mercury threat on local tourism also were marked by William Smith who said that he personally lost one customer because of the publicity surrounding it. "Its still being talked about and there has been, I feel, some adverse publicity without any real communication from any government department. This area has a clean slate so far but tests are still continuing," he said.

Mr. Owen said that the absence of county places for boats to pump out their holding tanks also influenced tourism to some degree in his opinion. He has installed pump out facilities at his marina for use this fall.

Talk of the advantages of a tourist commissioner for Prince Edward springing from meetings of the county's Pollution Threatened committee has gained favor with many tourist operators. "A tourist commissioner is the ultimate answer but can the county stand the cost?" asked Mr. Owen.

He suggested that an ambitious tourist commissioner could make the county the centre of a winter sports program...extending the tourist season and providing constructive employment. The resort operator remarked that the county can offer little assistance in this direction and indicated that county officials, many of them farmers, seem unaware of Prince Edward's potential as a tourist area.

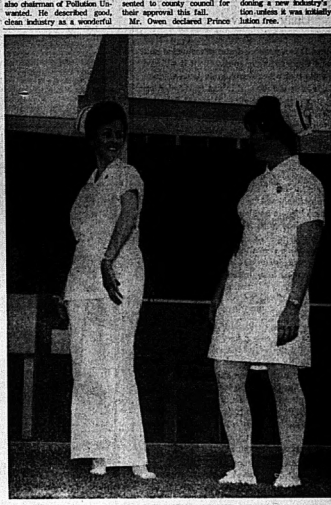
"The town and the county get most of the tourist's dollar. It's a proven government statistic that the tourist operator gets 17 cents on the dollar," said Mr. Owen. The balance of the dollar is fed back to the local farmers and merchants making tourism a profitable industry for everyone.

Mr. Smith thinks local officials may be "overlooking" a good point in their failure to hire a tourist commissioner. He stressed that he was not criticizing anyone but felt that a tourist commissioner could be beneficial to the industry. He emphasized the need for resort operators to assist saying: "We have to step up our own ideas too."

Location of large motel units in Prince Edward County possibly could be profitably introduced by a tourist commissioner in Mr. West's opinion. A tourist commissioner could induce these complexes to settle here it would be said adding "competition is the spice of the trade," he added. Mr. West admitted, however, that this type of venture involves the investment of "a vast amount of capital for a short season."

The proposal for a kraft paper mill in Hillier township could have far reaching effects on local tourism in the opinion of the three major resort operators.

Mr. Smith remarked that a pulp mill would spend "a lot of money" but added that county residents must project ahead for 20 years. "What about commercial fishing then!" he demanded. He said that it made little sense to provide about 250 jobs which might take away many other jobs over a long time period.



"The tourist operators are not against industry, just pollution," said Mr. West, who is also chairman of Pollution Unwanted. He described good, clean industry as a wonderful asset. "The long range potential of Prince Edward County is immense. It is located conveniently at Highway 401 yet it is almost an island. It is also near Toronto and Montreal." Mr. West felt that a plan is important to the county's proper growth and advocated zoning which he admitted was expensive in view of its "limited resources." He described the county plan recently prepared by a Toronto consulting firm as the first step in such a program. It will be presented to county council for their approval this fall.

Mr. Owen declared Prince Edward County could become "a disaster area for tourism" if a pulp mill located here. He did not agree that tourism is compatible with major industry and observed: "We are contemplating the destruction of our natural heritage — we are going to make this a disaster area for tourism." The tourist operator said that he could understand the OWRC's demands that existing plants adopt the necessary controls to become pollution free but could not imagine them condoning a new industry's location unless it was totally pollution free.

Unity and Involvement

Church unity of necessity is a slow process. It is a growing trend nevertheless and if and when it finally comes about it will be through the presence of evolution. Change though is in the air and it was manifested by the presence in Belleville in recent days of representatives of the Anglican and United Church communities.

Few in the climate of change existing in our society would challenge the statement of Dr. Robert Craig, the United Church's commissioner on unity. He told the audience of 200 in St. Thomas Parish Hall that denominationalism "is no longer adequate in our time." There had been too much emphasis, he suggested, with the buildings used as churches, for people were the church. There was a lack of concern too on the part of clergy and laity with issues outside local involvement. This extended to countless citizens seeking fulfillment through "meaningless" pursuits from drugs to horoscopes.

The events of the past year or more nonetheless have demonstrated that the churches are becoming very much more concerned with not only the social ills of the community, the problems of youth and so on, but also with the international scene. This was demonstrated during the Nigeria - Biafra civil war when the churches were prominent with aid for the starving. And it is interesting to note that while much has been achieved since the end of the conflict to restore life to normal, hardships remain.

For instance while today there is no evidence of widespread starvation, malnutrition is acute according to the Rev. R. E. Kendall, Africa secretary of the Conference of British Missionary Societies. In a report received by the Presbyterian Church in Canada he tells of a visit he made only a couple of months ago to the former war areas. Townships and villages have been destroyed and he adds: "The havoc of war lies on all sides. Residences, schools, colleges, hospitals, institutions are derelict, roofless and battered by gunfire. In the middle of it all, the population is generally penniless. Both their wartime currency and their pre-war balances are useless . . . One person's wage is sustaining twenty people, and the only way to start up small - scale trading." The churches themselves face many difficulties. They too are short of funds and clergy are living in damaged and looted manses.

Thus it may be seen that the world at large, and specific areas like Nigeria, offer a fruitful field for continuing relief by the churches here, whether or not church unity becomes a fact in our time. As Dr. Craig emphasized in his Belleville address, there must be humanitarian involvement in the problems of the outside world.

Jordanian Conflict

Death and destruction are everywhere today in Amman, capital of Jordan now wracked by civil war. The heaviest casualties are said to be among the civilian population caught in cross - fire and artillery barrages between government forces loyal to King Hussein and the Palestinian guerrillas.

It is the price being paid for the divisive political strain in this area of the Middle East. Clearly, King Hussein could no longer tolerate the growing influence of the dissident guerrillas, their Marxist sympathies and their occupation of areas of the capital as well as the country at large.

The recent hijackings of United States, Swiss and British aircraft by Arab activists who directed the planes to a desert airfield some 40 miles from Amman, then held the passengers hostage, were further embarrassments for Hussein. Some 50 hostages are still in guerrilla hands.

With their superior numbers and fire-power the government forces appear to be gaining the upper hand, though as has been noted this has been achieved only after civilian deaths and civic destruction of tragic proportions.

King Hussein meanwhile looks very much alive and well in the latest pictures released of him visiting troops "somewhere in Jordan." The 35-year-old monarch is accustomed to political turmoil and armed conflict and he has survived half-a-dozen attempts on his life into the bargain. One of the more moderate and enduring figures of Middle East politics, we hope he remains that way.

Trade and Commerce 'Commissioners' Main Target

Ideas Man Ralph Stewart Prods Ottawa on Exports

BY RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — As Liberals go, Ralph Stewart of the Northern Ontario constituency of Cochrane is a most unusual MP.

He has ideas.

Which is not to say that most Liberal parliamentarians are dum - dums. But if they, too sometimes have ideas, they keep mum about them.

The thinking seems to be that it is safer to keep a low parliamentary profile since there can be only so much charisma in the Commons, and you never know, the politician generally credited with inventing it might not any? infringement of his copyright.

While there are a few bold spirits like Vancouver-Quadra's Grant Deachman, York West's Philip Givens and Eugene Whelan of Essex, who still manage to do some original thinking, none of them makes waves like Ralph Stewart.

It has not got him anywhere, really, yet — either into the outer fringes of the charmed circle of Trudeau power or into Pierre's doghouse — but he keeps trying.

Initially he made it into the news. In a large way in some newspapers, with a host of anglish about the government going broke on their $18,000-plus "allotment," he seemed to consider it, and a you-will-be-sorry threat to refuse another term in the Commons unless they get that pay increase.

Then he made it to Page One again with the bright idea that parliamentarians should be appointed to the boards of the Government's great agglomerate of Crown Corporations and other quasi commercial agencies as paid directors.

The way he saw it, the proposal would help the parliamentary pay squeeze and clue the corporations in politically.

It made sense, but not in the grade with the Government.

But Ralph Stewart kept trying.

Just the other day he popped with the proposition that in the interests of economy and efficiency, the federal Cabinet — biggest and most expensive ever — be cut from 29 to 11.

It would involve a merging of many already-overlapping departments, at least check if not stop the steady rise in staffing in the Civil Service and perhaps bring the ever-expanding bureaucracy under control.

(What a dreamer, Ralph Stewart.)

If anyone in the Prime Minister's office or the Cabinet heard him, there was no sign of it.

But think of the money it would have saved the taxpayers. Only 11 Cabinet Ministers at $25,000 each drawing down a total of $285,000 instead of 29 getting $1,015,000.

And all those executive and special assistants and their executive and special assistants and assorted ministerial incense burners who suddenly would be surplus.

Or would they?

There might be ideas down, but Ralph Stewart out?

Not this MP.

He has stamina. And ideas. Some of which could be calculated to win any popularity contests in High Places here in the Federal Capital.

Out of a bureaucratic background — Ralph Stewart was once a federal civil servant himself. In the old Trade and Commerce Department — he has been blasting his former bosses.

Drawing a verbal bead on the gently combined Trade and Commerce Department, he sniffs that it is staffed by "mushrooms, blunderbirds . . . and the-sleeve dandies who are "ashamed to be known as salesmen" and that they are not "common peddlers" but commissioners.

Commissioner, my dear, is so much more dignified.

Well, if Ralph Stewart is right, things certainly have changed, and drastically, since that old Commerce "Go-Go-Guy" George Hees was cracking the Trade and Commerce Department like it was the old Toronto Argo football team.

George Hees as Trade Minister made all those commissioners and other high-fallutin' bureaucrats wear those pansy tin hats and cutthroat bearing the cryptic message: "YOBSOYA.

Which, translated, or spelled out, means: "You Better Do Business Sitting on Your Ass."

And that, insists ex-Trade and Commerce staffer Stewart, is what the Department's commissioners are doing: just sitting.

Instead of selling such potentially "hot" Canadian exports as Rye whiskey in Africa, wheat for pasta in Italy — and those are only two items on a big world shopping list he is convinced Canada could be pushing.

Back from a market survey abroad, Ralph Stewart reports American Bourbon, after Scotch is the big seller in Africa, and he wants to know how come when Canadian Rye is world famous.

And in Italy he found 87 million people consuming huge hankiesful of pasta daily — "think of the market there for wheat."

Today In History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

September 19, 1970 . . .

William Joyce, Lord Haw Haw, was sentenced to death for treason 25 years ago today—in 1945—after spending the years of the Second World War in Nazi Germany, broadcasting propaganda against Britain. Joyce was born in the United States but lived 18 years in Britain and in 1933, by declaring himself a British subject, obtained a British passport. This he renewed in 1939 and a year later was employed by the German government, despite an appeal to the House of Lords, Joyce was executed.

1955—Juan Peron's military dictatorship in Argentina came to an end when he resigned in the face of military pressure. Peron had been president since 1946, three years after he had played a leading role in the coup d'etat that overthrew Roman Castillo's government.

Letters to the Editor

Where Are Representatives Of 'Forgotten Majority' In Government Today?

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Reading the newspapers these days, one cannot help but note the increasing disenchantment of the public with all levels of government, be it federal, provincial, or municipal.

This opposition calls the government incompetent, indifferent, callous and even corrupt. Ministers become the target of abuse, criticism, and often suffer a great deal of irresponsible harassment, especially when it suits the objectives of their detractors.

Charges and counter charges fly in the Houses of Parliament, and in municipal council chambers while the protagonists, engrossed in their personal differences, leave the business of government to take care of itself.

The party in office, especially when it has a healthy majority, sits back and basks in that security of numbers while the opposition turns the country or province upside down until they force an election — then the whole ridiculous procedure gets going again, and we arrive back where we started from.

Every opposition accuses the government of wasting millions of dollars, and when re-elected to office, promptly proceeds to waste more money than their predecessors.

The urbane Mr. George Hees, fielding questions on a recent cross-Canada open line radio program frequently heard callers intimate they were unable to distinguish any difference between the major parties.

The Conservatives and Liberals have a preponderence of lawyers, doctors, industrialists and businessmen, while the NDP seem top heavy with professors, educationists, social reformers and "deep thinkers". As Canada's population is made up of average men or women, and we live in a democracy, which means government by the people, it's about time we had a better representation from Mr and Mrs. Canada.

Until we get a truer representation of the people in our governments, we must resign ourselves to electorial tension, muddle, waste and party rivalry ruining the progress of the country.

There is no guarantee that the man in the street would do any better than the present bunch of professional men, but the system should allow much easier opportunity for him to run for public office. It ought not to be necessary to have access to unlimited funds with which to persuade the voter via the media as to one's suitability for office. We ask for all sorts of qualifications from people seeking jobs, and yet, for the most important duty of guiding our country or province, wealth is still the asset most utilized.

That something has to be done quickly was evident from the recent meeting of the heads of federal and provincial governments. It was clearly revealed that we still are in squabbling separate entities instead of a united country.

When it becomes necessary for a band of concerned Canadians to form a committee to call attention of the government to the fact that we object to seeing the wealth of our land in the hands of another country, then it is time some seats were found on legislative benches for the forgotten majority.

Jap Courtesy Slipping ?

Peterborough Examiner

Thanks to the Japanese there is still some hope left for improving Canada's image abroad. Not because the legendary American tourist actually goes out of his way to behave, shall we say, more in accordance with established local standards, but because the number of Japanese tourists is rising rapidly and so is the number of Japanese tourists.

According to a Tokyo Times Weekly, about one million Japanese will have gone abroad by the end of coked "Tarzan" and some of them behave rather badly and, considering the strict code of Japanese conduct more than just a little surprisingly.

One Japanese tourist jumped in a Bangkok swimming pool in his under shorts, while others in a fire set off a distant Chinese noodles" on a German train.

Tourism and Public Housing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Not only is the NDP's Walter Pitman interested in expropriating industry for social reasons, but now he is proposing to enter the tourist business by providing government lodges on a break - even basis and, of course, with the taxpayer to pay the deficits.

There is enough welfare public housing in the cities financed by the working class now without muscling into the country to provide further welfare to those unfortunate souls who find themselves in cement - walled welfare housing units in the cities.

Structure Updated Since

Original Bay Bridge Dates from 1891

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your editorial of today re Bay Bridge you lead the readers to believe the Bay Bridge of today is the same as when constructed April 15, 1891.

The first bridge was all steel work. Reasonors to within several hundred feet of Bushy Island. Reasonore side of the first span 60 feet, swing span 238 feet, next two spans 148 feet and the balance of 13 spans of 98 feet each, or approximately 2,640 feet of steel. This was also a fixed operated swing which needed two men to open it.

Now the present bridge is no part of the first bridge, being a big wider and new steel and the greater portion filled in in a concrete and was completed 1 belive in the years 1927-28.

Many people do not think the town's conditions are as in the bridge is opened any worse than many of the city streets at times. This condition is only during July and August in the boating season.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Our editorial should have noted that 1891 was the date of the original structure.

Quinte Drum Corps Seeks Support

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

How are hopes and goals achieved if one person or a body of people does not have the backing or moral support of its own fellow citizens? The answer may be to go beyond our own hard work and move to another area where people are more eager to aid the youth in fulfilling a worthwhile and purposeful goal. This may be achieved by personal donations, booster sales, or by business or service club sponsorship, etc.

To start something new in Belleville does not only seem remote but impossible. To my knowledge in this area there are no prospects of aid from any service club or organizations to help fulfill the hopes of a group of young people here in Belleville in form a drum and bugle corps.

In Belleville there is no spirit, the result being that an idea dies, not through the lack of interest in the members but in Belleville society, where ideas blossom for a moment then stagnate. Belleville seems to be too much to ask: time is too precious. In a society where a little progresses leisure hours increase, where lies the excuse for non-involvement?

In certain aspects a stimulus or type of involvement can be found whether it be in sports or other small clubs. But the subject of drum and bugle corps is mentioned you receive a blank look, there are queries, uncertainties and suspicion. The remainder of our members is kept only by the few money-making projects for instruments, the many Drum Corps above we see in Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston, Lindsay or the Northern United States. There is also a bond of friendship in the members that has kept us going.

In some communities the size of Belleville or smaller, at least two corps can function without any great difficulty, e.g. Carleton Place, Kingston, Peterborough. We have the facilities and clubs in the city but to no avail.

If we have had no support for the last year we shall remain confident for the future. If there are those who would like to submit ideas of any kind, proposals or donations, they will be answered promptly and thanked gratefully. We need membership, ideas, and funds if we are to continue.

Seventh-day Adventist Church Radio Broadcasts Away Out

NEW YORK (AP) — It's on the wild side, sponsors admit. But the teen-agers dig it. And they're sending it in and calling for more.

"You don't catch fish with cement," says Pastor Harold M. S. Richards of Glendale, Calif., director of the broadcasting arm of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, and in charge of the new program.

It's called "The Way Out."

It enlists the way-out styles of youngsters—their hard rock sounds, their flashy psychedelic colors and their monosyllable hip lingo—to hook them on the truths of Jesus instead of drugs, astrology, vibrations and license.

He "knows where it's at . . . about love and peace and digging life and each other," says one brochure. "He was on a permissive love trip without the use of artificial stimulants or religious coverups."

The program, developed by the Voice of Prophecy, the Adventists' 42-year-old broadcasting operation, was spot tested from February to June on eight of about 60 top rock 'n' roll stations in the United States and drew heavy response.

"Really wild it," wrote one teen-ager, among more than 60,000 responding. Other comments: "Far out and fabulous." "You really know how to tell it like it is." "Neat and groovy." "Yes, it's stuck in my thoughts." "Wow!"

In mid-summer, the program started expanding to a countrywide basis.

"We want to blanket North America with it," said a spokesman, Herbert Ford.

It relies on brief breezy messages, aired on paid time of leading rock-music stations, offering free books and items, produced in the same hip fashion.

These stations have the ear of 85 per cent of teen-agers who listen to radio, a survey showed.

"This made us fully aware that we would be talking to this age unless we used rock 'n' roll stations to carry our appeal," Pastor Richards said.

To meet the requirements of those particular stations, the broadcasts will be heard in snappy hip language, against backgrounds of cool music. The almost moral, pitch-hipster and cool talk, prevails in the literature offered free to listeners.

SCOHARIE — Ben Chapman is reported quite ill in Kingston General Hospital following major surgery.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster have returned home after a two week holiday in the Maritimes. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Everett Doherty, in New Brunswick, then crossed over to Prince Edward Island. Upon return they spent the weekend at Sherwood Forest Park, Nova Scotia where there was a large motorcycle meet. Many members of the Belleville Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Foster visited their daughter Mrs. Duke Doherty and Mr. Doherty in Kingston, Nova Scotia and returned home via Boston and Maine.

Theologians Want Laymen To Help Select Pope

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A congress of leading Roman Catholic theologians called on the church Thursday to let laymen share in the choice of a pope, a bishop or a priest.

This guideline was approved by a vote of 169 to 20, with seven abstentions and two invalid ballots.

A total of 220 theologians, nearly all of them priests and from many countries, took part in the six-day meeting on the future of the Church.

Christian communities, they said, must seek actively to free the oppressed, whether victims of racial discrimination, industrial societies or totalitarian governments.

The vote on this point was 158 to 19, with three abstentions.

The theologians did not reach agreement on the method by which laymen should take part in electing church leaders.

Children's Letters To God

Acts Aren't Influenced By Professed Beliefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Surveys turn up some curious sidelights on religion, including a recent finding that what people say they believe doesn't actually have much bearing on the way they act toward others.

This was the general conclusion of a study by Dr. Milton Rokeach, psychology professor at Michigan State University.

The results "suggest a pervasive social outlook among the professed religionists that seems to be incompatible and often opposite to the compassion taught in the Sermon on the Mount," he reports in the journal, Psychology Today.

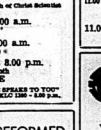
He says the results in six tests show "religious values serve more as standards for condemning others or as standards to rationalize one's own self-pursuit than as standards to judge oneself by or to guide one's own conduct."

Among Roman Catholics surveyed, he says, religious values seem "more or less irrelevant as guides to compassionate social action."

Among Protestants, there was an actual "negative relationship" between the two factors; this is, the most devout showed the least social compassion.

Commenting on the result, Rev. Dennis J. Geaney, a Roman Catholic theologian, writes in his own publication, agrees that they constitute a "devastating blast at organized religion," and reflect the tendency of many clergymen to disregard the social implications of the gospel.

A Southern Baptist poll, conducted out of the denomination's headquarters in Nashville, Tenn., found that 78.8 per cent of pastors and 75.2 per cent of Sunday school teachers "definitely disapprove" of big universities permitting their clubs to dispense contraceptive pills or devices to unmarried co-eds.



A Massachusetts survey, involving the first attempt to poll only those religious institutions that spend their money, found 2,427 Massachusetts churches spend more than $85.6 million annually on goods and services, the bulk of it for utilities such as heat and electricity.

MR. AND MRS. FLOYD BARTLETT

Couple Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

On the Sunday before their 50th wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bartlett, Stirling, celebrated with a turkey dinner at Sun Luck Gardens. Many friends and neighbors called at their home on Sept. 1, the day of their anniversary. They received many cards and presents, including a tea service from the Stirling Women's Institute of which Mrs. Bartlett is a member. They also had telegrams from John Robarts, Clarke Rollins, MLA George Hees, MP for Prince Edward, Lee Grills, MP for Hastings and Robert Stanfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett were married at Wallbridge at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mills with Rev. Thomas Wallace officiating. They are members of the United Church.

Mr. Bartlett farmed for a number of years in the Foxboro area before coming to Stirling where he operated a grocery and egg-grading business before retiring.

They have two daughters, Mrs. Gordon (Marie) Garrison, Frankford, Mrs. Douglas (Phyllis) Campbell, Stirling and five grandchildren.

Pressed Glass Originally Imitation of Cut Glass

Most glass collectors are currently interested in pressed glass rather than cut glass. Originally, pressed glass was made as an imitation of cut glass and was considerably cheaper.

In spite of the fact that cut glass is more valuable it does not command as high a price now as many pieces of pressed glass. Cut glass has a tendency to chip and fracture more than pressed glass. It is particularly sensitive to changes in temperature. Cut glass stored over a long period in a cupboard with one side against a cold outside wall and the other in a heated room will almost invariably develop internal cracks. Tumblers with heavy cutting, thick bottoms and thin sides as well as cut glass bowls of the "Brilliant" period, 1880–1910, are particularly liable to this kind of internal fracture.

The piece illustrated is early cut glass, among the first to be manufactured in North America. In 1808, Bakewell and Co., later to become Bakewell, Pears and Co., was established in Pittsburgh. The Bakewell Co. achieved a very high standard in their cut glass. Imported workers from England and Ireland put Bakewell products on a par with English and Irish glass of the period.

The pattern shown, strawberry-diamond and fan, is typical of the early 1800's. The Bakewell Co. achieved an excellent reputation, although their success was not complete in their own country. They sold in the area between Pittsburgh and the Indian frontier. The area stretched north to Canada and south to the Caribbean. They seem to have done a considerable export trade, however American on the eastern seaboard of the United States continued to import crystal from England and Ireland.

During Jarves, the man who started the pressed glass industry, visited the Bakewell factory in 1824, shortly after the illustrated piece is thought to have been made. The pressed glass industry got its impetus when Jarves took out his patent in 1828. Bakewell anticipated his invention and applied for a patent to make pressed glass knobs in 1825.

Early cut glass is usually rather shallow in cutting and not as heavy in weight or thickness as later cut glass. In the '80s and '90s, glass blanks were made very thick so cutting could be deeply facetted to reflect more light.

25 Years Of Marriage Celebrated

MARMORA — To mark their 25th wedding anniversary, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barker, Forsyth Street, Marmora, were feted at a surprise party by their family, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Barker of Scarborough and Jack and Tommy Barker. On the previous evening a family dinner was held for them at the Sun Valley Motel in Belleville.

Married in Guildford, England, September 13, 1945, Sunday's celebration for the Barkers was attended by their best man, Mervin McConnell, now of Whitby. A telegram was received from bridesmaid, Mrs. Harry Spratt of Victoria, Vancouver Island, whom Mr. and Mrs. Barker had visited on holidays this year.

Close relatives present for the occasion were Eleanor's parents and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Green and Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. Max Green of Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Green, Lake Shore, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McManus (nee Lucille Green) of Scarborough, Miss Gretta Green, Whitby.

Mrs. Barker's room-mate while training at Nuffield Dies Hospital, Kingston, Mrs. Harry French, Reg. N. (nee Helen Gold) also arrived on Sunday for the celebration.

The festivities were arranged by their daughter-in-law, Marilyn, Mrs. Lew Barker.

Views Slides Of Alaska

The Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies Club resumed meetings for the fall season at the Recreation Centre with an attendance of 28 members and six visitors — three of whom are prospective members.

President Mrs. F. Henderson was in charge and opened the meeting in the usual manner after which she welcomed everyone back following the summer recess. Minutes of the last meeting in June were read by the secretary Mrs. A. Mitchell. Mrs. L. Fox gave the financial report, and Mrs. O. White corresponding secretary read a number of cards of thanks. Mrs. Bedell expressed thanks for cards and cups and saucers received on their 50th wedding anniversary.

A dinner is planned for the group on Oct. 15 at Maple Inn Bloomfield. Members are requested to meet at the Recreation Centre at 3 p.m.

Mrs. Bedell was in charge of the program and introduced the speaker Mrs. Mac Wallbridge who gave an interesting travelogue of their recent trip to Alaska. She was amazed that during the summer there were only three hours of darkness which lent to good garden crops. Pictures were shown of the new Imperial mine at Whitehorse where some of the equipment there had been made at Stephens-Adamson Co. of Belleville. A number of other interesting slides were shown.

Mrs. Wallbridge was presented with a gift on behalf of the members.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Bedell's and Mrs. L. Sharpe's group and a social time enjoyed.

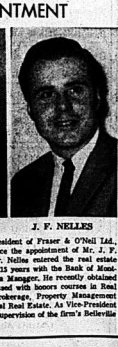
Before her marriage, Mrs. G. B. Woodbeck (nee Gail Thompson) was honored at several events including miscellaneous showers at the home of Mrs. Gordon Foster in Roslin; at the home of Mrs. Barbara Pitman in Stirling and at the home of Mrs. Robert Sludgett in Peterborough. A trousseau tea was given by the bride's mother and the bridal party was entertained by the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Woodbeck.



Hair Transplants

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. S. Herlich says "baldness could easily become a thing of the past now that we have mastered the simple operation of hair transplanting." Dr. Herlich, who says he has done hundreds of transplants, explains the operation is short and painless. "Hair can be transplanted from anywhere to everywhere on one person's body and the procedure works for men and women alike."

APPOINTMENT

HUGH F. O'NEIL

J. F. NELLES

Mr. Hugh F. O'Neil, President of Fraser & O'Neil Ltd., Realtor is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. J. F. Nelles as Vice-President. Mr. Nelles entered the real estate profession in May 1969 after 15 years with the Bank of Montreal including four years as a Manager. As Vice-President his duties will include direct supervision of the firm's Belleville Office.

Club Activities

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

Gamma Mu Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi held its first meeting since June, at the home of Mrs. E. Deacon. The host ess introduced Mrs. B. Owen whose program for the evening was "Definition of Happiness".

Guest speaker was Mrs. C. Young from XI Alpha Mu Chapter. Mrs. Young is Beta Sigma Phi's representative to the Quinte Arts Council. She put forth several suggestions for sorority participation in Quinte Arts Council which could lead to the mutual satisfaction of both organizations.

Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Young were thanked for the program by Mrs. G. Bailey.

The business meeting which followed was highlighted by each member giving a brief summary of her activities during the summer recess. The evening was completed with refreshments served by the hostess, Mrs. E. Deacon and the co-hostess, Mrs. G. Bailey. The chapter also held a coffee party, in the home of Mrs. R. Vaughan, at which 11 rushees were the honored guests of present chapter members.

Refreshments were provided by the hostess and the co-hostesses, Mrs. A. Grey and Mrs. R. Owen. Many new friendships were formed in the two hours of conversation which followed. The next meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter will be held on Tuesday, September 22, 1970.

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH WIGLEY

Wigley – Whitman

King Street United Church, Trenton, was the scene of the wedding of Bonnie Rosenta Whitman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitman of Trenton and of Kenneth Walter Wigley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wigley also of Trenton. The ceremony which took place on September 12 at 2 p.m. was conducted by Rev. William McDowell. Organ music was provided by Mr. Vance.

Wedding Gift In Poor Taste

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is being married in a few weeks. A wedding gift arrived this morning from a relative. On the bottom of the gift was a price sticker — at least [redacted] been taken off something else. The gift was beautifully wrapped by the city's largest department store. On the inside was a slip which read, "Sender's Own."

I didn't need to see the slip. I knew it was the "sender's own" — probably something she had brought down from the attic. When this relative's daughter was married, we spent more money than we should have because we wanted to give her something special. And now our daughter gets this piece of second-hand junk. Should I say something to her? — INSULTED UNLIMITED.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR D.U.: Say nothing. You've gotten rid of most of your anger by writing to me. By the time this letter appears in print you might even be able to laugh about it. T hope so.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Nineteen months ago my sister fell and broke her hip. She had been widowed the year before and we felt sorry for her. My aunt's wife suggested that we invite Nellie to recuperate in our home.

Nellie to recuperate in our home.

add one word about moving out. She sublet her own apartment when she was hospitalized. The people are still in it and Nellie is still a "guest" in our home. I don't want to sound petty but Nellie has not paid a penny for room and board while she collects $130 a month from her tenants and makes a nice salary.

I'm sick of having a permanent, non-paying boarder and so is my wife. On three occasions I've started to speak to Nellie about moving but my wife interrupts and changes the subject. She is low on funds and cared for our own good. What's more my wife has developed migraine headaches because she keeps everything bottled up. Please Ann, tell me what to do. — BESIDE MYSELF.

* * *

DEAR BESIDE YOURSELF: It's up to you to tell Nellie she must give her tenants notice because you're moving back to her own place. If your aged wife tries to change the subject, don't allow it, keep talking. The barnacle. I mean guest, is your sister and it's up to you to get rid of her.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 22-year-old daughter, Rosemary, is engaged to a fine young man. Religion has always meant a great deal in our family and we are unhappy that Barney is not of our faith.

We have never mentioned one word to Barney about accepting our religion. I'm sorry I can't say the same about his parents. They have been working up Rosemary from the day they met her. She now worships at both places — one week she goes with us, the next week, with Barney and his folks. My husband believes Barney should do the same. He wants to discuss it with him. I say no. What do you say? — PLAIN-FIELD TUG OF WAR.

* * *

DEAR TUG: I'm with you. Barney would have volunteered to worship with you if he had wanted to. It's bad enough that your daughter is being pressured by his parents. Don't add to the problem by pressuring him.

FOR THE LOVE OF WORDS

"Perhaps the most exciting thing about English is its wealth of words." — from Junior Thesaurus.

* * *

Do you recall the old story, ever nearly new, of the mother saying:

"Elbert, there are two words I don't want you to use: one is 'swell' and the other is 'lousy'.

"OH, Mom," answered Elbert, "What are they?"

This we relate by way of reporting the fact that a Junior Thesaurus is just off the press, for young readers nine to 13, which contains more than 2,000 entry words, synonyms and antonyms.

Should Elbert wish to search for a substitute for "swell' he will find under the entry "swell" nine synonyms ranging from "agreeable" to "enchanting". And, as a better word for "lousy' he will note eight antonyms of "pleasant" ranging from "bad' to "repulsive."

Each synonym is briefly defined and illustrated in a sentence. Junior The Saurus, written by W. Cahell Grut, William A. Jenkins and Andrew Schuller is published by Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Co., and may be ordered from local book stores.

It is said that a command of a wealth of words has elicited creative people into the advertising business: a business in which one may command lucrative $50,000 incomes. Interestingly enough, this includes such advertisements on TV that are a one-line slogan, such as the well known Coca-Cola line: "It's the real thing". Such "gems" we learn are extremely hard to come by and are said to be the sound of today's TV advertising. Millions of dollars are spent to make such lines "memorable".

Ironically, the best creative people do go into TV commercials advertising, yet they confess: "It is a mini-talent and not a lasting pride. We are fearful of losing it, however much despised."

So important is the role of a rich vocabulary considered in today's modern age, a Manpower Education Institute in co-operation with a university are putting on color TV programs designed to strengthen vocabularies. The president of the Institute, Mr. J. J. McFadden, states:

"A lack of a good vocabulary hampers an individual in his education and job advancements. It decreases confidence in himself and tends to handicap the impression he makes on others. This is a roadblock for far too many young people."

Words, says Morris Bishop, of a living language are like creatures: they are alive. Each word has a physical character, a look and a personality, an ancestry, an expectation of life and death, a hope of posterity." It is our use of them that determines the quality of our language. "Let us," he urges, "try to make good choices and guard and praise our lovely language and try to be worthy of her."

Successful Living

Teenager Is Forced Into Job She Hates

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Next summer I will be 16. But this year, although I have my social security card, I cannot get a job without my mother's permission. She works at a mushroom plant, and would only allow me to work there.

I hate it there, as pickers (all female) wear old slacks and work in total darkness, light supplied by a light worn on a hard hat.

The mushrooms are grown in horse manure covered by peat moss, and at times the stench is (to me anyway) unbearable.

High school students are casual help only, and of three months of holidays, I worked nine days.

Next summer she expects me to work there again, and on my weekends during school months. I want to get a job as a waitress or mother's helper. I have tried to refuse working at the plant outright but she then makes life miserable. — In Rebellion.

Dear In Rebellion: It does not sound like much fun.

Why not start now to live up the job you want? A restaurant might just be looking for weekend help during the fall.

Waitresses are scarce during summer season and if the work promised to be steady next holiday time, this would be a valuable asset.

If mother holds out, get another sympathetic adult to intercede for you — aunt, or father, or minister. Even at 15 you have some rights.

Dear Doris: I read a recent article entitled The Return of the Hat. I valued every word.

It warms my heart to see many ladies still wearing hats to church and a few little girls wearing white hats which look so sweet and "Sunday-fied".

Sunday is a special day, set apart from the other six. Many regret the loss of the valuable tradition and hate to see women come into God's house hatless. There is even a verse in Corinthians which says, "Every woman who prayeth with her head uncovered dishonoreth her head." — All For Hats.

Dear All: Yet there are some religions in which the requirement is for men, not women, to have their heads covered. A visitor to the Vatican is required, not to wear a hat, but to cover her shoulders.

The disturbing thing is to hear wife sustain. At the time ago I myself would have been uncomfortable to enter church hatless, but when I see our young choristers with their pretty hair-dos showing and their lips singing God's praises, I can't believe that the Supreme Being will hold out for fancy headgear.

Any other readers want to comment?

Confidential to Fall Wedding: No. Your clergyman does not receive an engraved invitation to the reception unless he is a close personal friend. For one thing, this relieves him of the obligation to send a gift, which would be a real imposition, considering the number of weddings he officiates at.

The courteous thing is for the bride's mother to write a personal note to his wife inviting them both.

Special guests can be introduced spontaneously by the Master of Ceremonis, if his his job to create a relaxed and happy atmosphere, to make people feel welcome and special.

Couple Mark 60th Wedding Anniversary

On September 6, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Empey received 150 guests at their home on the occasion of their 60th wedding anniversary.

Presiding at the tea table that afternoon were Mrs. Ken Bateman, Mrs. Frank O'Connor, Mrs. Lynn McCoy, Mrs. Gordon Cummings, Mrs. Arthur Parks and Mrs. Edwin Gates.

The guests enjoyed a specially decorated cake, presented to the couple by the ladies of St. John the Baptist ACW. Mr. and Mrs. Empey received a commemorative plaque from Mr. Clarke T. Rollins of the Ontario government and Mrs. Rollins. Many friends and relatives congratulated them with flowers, telephone messages and cards.

On Sept. 5, they had an anniversary dinner with their immediate family at the Sun Luck Gardens, Belleville.

The Empeys enjoy good health which enables them to carry on their gardening and the maintenance of their spacious home on Durham Street, Madoc.

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lafferty opened their home for the September meeting of St. James' Catholic Women's League, preceding which Father McGarvey celebrated Mass.

A request was received for donations to sponsor a walker in a "Walk-a-Leago" which was held Sept. 16 in Toronto during the national convention. Proceeds will be donated to the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace.

A schedule for monthly meetings was drawn up. As Father McGarvey will be absent for the next month on a study course, the October meeting will not be held.

Arrangements were made to order the necessary Sunday School text books. Members were asked to co-operate in catering to a livestock sale at the Stirling Arena.

At the close of the meeting the hostess provided lunch, assisted by Mrs. J. Finnigan.

Points for Parents

Becky: "This is my new doll. You can't play with it. You always break your dolls."

Mother: "Becky, I'm ashamed to hear you talk like that. Let Jenny play with your doll, too. Why must you be so selfish?"

Some of the child's possessions may be too important to her to share with a playmate, especially if she has learned by experience that the toys may be damaged. Instead of scolding, suggest an alternative action beforehand if you anticipate friction.

Mother: "I know Jenny is rough on toys, and if you don't want her to play with your doll, why don't we put it up on the shelf for the afternoon. When she is a little older, she'll be more careful."

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Cake for School Lunch Boxes

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: Early this summer you gave us a recipe for Lazy Day Cake and I thought at the time what a good cake it would be for my husband's lunchbox because the topping would not stick to its wrapping. I've lost the recipe but am hoping you will not mind repeating it for it is a good cake for school lunch boxes too. — Wilhelmena J.

ANSWER: You win. Yours is reason enough for a repeat so soon. I think the batter is strikingly like a sponge cake and especially good when fresh.

LAZY DAY CAKE

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ cup scalded milk
1 tbsp. margarine (melted in the hot milk)

Topping:

3 tbsps. margarine
3 tbsps. light brown sugar
2 tbsps. milk
½ cup desiccated coconut (or chopped nuts)

In beater bowl beat eggs with sugar and vanilla until pale and fluffy. Remove beaters. Sift the sifted flour, baking powder and salt over the egg-sugar mixture and fold in alternately with scalded milk in which the margarine has been melted. Beat until batter is smooth. Pour into well buttered Teflin-lined 8¾ x 8¾ x 2" pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. on centre rack in oven for 25-30 min.

Meantime while cake is baking blend and heat in a small pot all of the topping ingredients, except the coconut, until melted. Remove from heat and add coconut. When cake is baked carefully spread all over top and broil about 5" from burner until topping bubbles. Remove from broiler at once and cool in pan standing on rack.

NOTE: This cake is usually cut in squares in pan but if Teflon pan is used you can loosen it and lift it from pan, top side up, with two broad lifters.

Newspaperman May Face Jail Over Source of Duke Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — Reporter Gerald McAuliffe of the Hamilton Spectator has the weekend to decide whether he will disclose in a provincial inquiry the names of his informants about George Clinton Duke's relationships with police and with persons alleged to be known criminals.

If he does not do so when the inquiry resumes at 10 a.m. EDT Monday he faces a possible contempt citation. Under the terms of the inquiry he could be held in jail until he consents to the identification.

Mr. McAuliffe, 31, chief of The Spectator's Burlington, Ont., news bureau, told the inquiry Friday members of the provincial police and of the Burlington force gave him the information.

He told Mr. Justice Campbell Grant he felt morally bound by a guarantee to his sources that he would not identify them.

The justice said he would defer ruling the newspaper man in contempt until the inquiry resumes.

Mr. Justice Grant said he did not want to hear from any more witnesses until he is satisfied that Mr. McAuliffe has presented all the relevant information in possession.

Before the hearings resume, inquiry counsel J. J. Robinette will confer with the reporter and Spectator lawyer J. F. Howard.

Lawyers acting for Mr. Duke, an Oakville, Ont., millionaire businessman, and for other persons named in the inquiry insisted that the names were needed in order to give them an opportunity to cross-examine the informants.

Benson Won't Peg Dollar Now

BRUSSELS (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson, arriving from Canada for next week's world bankers meeting in Copenhagen, said Friday the Canadian government does not intend to peg the Canadian dollar at its current high international exchange value.

Benson told reporters that Canada will adhere for the present to its announced policy of letting the dollar float, as it has since June 1, above its nominal peg rate of 92.5 cents in United States funds. The Canadian dollar reached 99.375 cents in international markets Friday.

The dollar will be pegged when it has reached "an appropriate level," Benson said, but he would not define what that level might be. Asked whether it could be presumed that the "appropriate level" would be less than its current high value, Benson said: "It says it."

He indicated at a news conference for Canadian reporters that he does not like the high rate, and did not relish it reaching such a level when the government broke with International Monetary Fund precedences last spring to let the dollar float. Some reports in the financial community said the Canadian government would repeg the dollar this weekend, in advance of next week's IMF meeting in Copenhagen, at which Canada can expect some strong criticism.

Benson denied such reports, saying he does not intend to repeg the dollar this weekend, nor in the immediate future.

"No decision has been made," he said.

Some observers have expressed concern that Canada's floating dollar might be taken as a precedent for other countries in exchange difficulties to duck out from the IMF's regimen that currencies should be kept within one per cent of their peg rate.

Greene Okays Uranium Transfer

TORONTO (CP) — The manager of Gulf Minerals Co. of Toronto said Friday an announcement by Energy Minister J. J. Greene clearing the way for his company to sell uranium holdings to foreign interests came as no surprise.

"It simply confirms our November, 1969, deal," N. M. Edger said.

In a statement released at Ottawa Friday, Mr. Greene said four foreign-owned companies — Gulf, Brinex Ltd., Consolidated Canadian Faraday Corp. and Kerr-McGee Canada — can go ahead with a transfer of interests in Canadian uranium properties to foreign owners.

Mr. Greene said he made the announcement to clarify the position of the four companies, which were awaiting promised government regulations on foreign ownership of uranium resources.

The four began negotiations for transfers before restrictions were imposed on major transactions by a government policy statement March 2.

Mr. Greene said the forthcoming legislation has not been cast in its final form but will incorporate rules proclaimed in March that no more than one-third of uranium - producing property should be foreign owned.

The ownership issue came to a head early this year when Denison announced plans to sell controlling interest in its Elliot Lake, Ont., uranium property to Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co., a U.S. - controlled firm.

The sale was blocked by the March policy statement. Stephen Roman, Denison president, said Friday he would not comment before reading the government statement, but a spokesman for Denison said: "We are shocked."

He said the minister appeared to be making different sets of rules for foreign and domestic companies.

SIGN OF THE TIMES — Earl Johnson will be opening his new Highway 2 Belleville Golf and Country Club to the public next May, but he's already in the swing of the district sporting scene. Today Johnson was formally announced as the new sponsor of Belleville's Junior "B" entry in the six-team Eastern Ontario Hockey group. General manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews discusses golf and hockey plans with Johnson.

Junior 'B' Backers Hope Their Fairways Not Too Green

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville Junior "B" hockey manager Jim Matthews hopes success is contagious.

Matthews was listening as Earl Johnson — developer of the Belleville Golf and Country Club east of the city on Highway 2 — described his only previous venture as a sport sponsor.

"It was in Pickering, and my golf course neighbour, Don Park — sponsored a peewee softball team that my son David played on.

"They won the championship," Johnson chortled.

The 1970-71 B's — who start training camp in a week — will be known as the Belleville Fairways, a stinging advertisement for Johnson's 6,600-yard 18-hole golf layout near Marysville. It will be open to the public next spring.

Johnson has plans for combining hockey and golf for interests.

"We hope to organize a tournament for hockey players in the area — and maybe get some big names like Al Balding to participate. All proceeds would go to some Belleville charity."

Johnson says his boosting of junior sports will be reflected in his golf operations as well as his new hockey investment.

"We're going to provide free group lessons for junior golfers at our club," he informed. "They won't have to be members. We also want to organize golf tournaments for both boys and girls. They're the game's future."

The affable landscape architect, who has moved his family to the country side from Burlington, will have all winter to watch his hockey investments in action while his golf investment sprouts beneath the snow.

Monday will mark a milestone in the development of the new course as the greens will be cut for the first time. "And the fairways are showing some signs of grass already," beamed an eager Johnson.

Meanwhile manager Matthews and coach Floyd Crawford hope that their Fairways will have nearly a full month to gell before they open their 30-game schedule at home Sunday, Oct. 25 against Oshawa Crushmen.

Lakers Trying to Avoid Costly Short-handed Goals

NEWWESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — With their backs to the wall, Peterborough Lakers will be trying to avoid costly penalties in tonight's third game of the Canadian senior lacrosse final.

Penalties were the difference in the earlier games as New Westminster Salmonbellies collected nine power-play goals in 11 attempts on the way to 16-12 and 16-8 victories.

And despite Thursday's convincing win in which they scored 12 consecutive goals, the Salmonbellies are not likely to relax. Last year, New Westminster won the first two games but wound up losing the Mann Cup in seven games to the same Peterborough club.

"Their power play hurt us— particularly in the second period," Peterborough coach Bobby Allan said Friday.

New Westminster scored six straight goals in that period to wipe out a 6-4 deficit. The western champions scored three power-play goals in the second period and five in the game.

Allan said the lakers through a full workout Friday, and although he would not commit himself, it appeared there may be some lineup changes for the third game.

"I'll have to see how's he's feeling," Allan said when asked if regular goalie Pat Baker would start tonight.

Baker has not lived up to his rating as Canada's top lacrosse goalie. He is still recovering from the effects of a virus infection. And he hasn't had much protection from the loose-checking Peterborough defence.

Offensively, the big guns for Peterborough to date have been John Allan and Joe Todd. Allan scored four goals in the opener, but New Westminster held him to two Thursday. Todd scored four times in the second game.

Allan would likely bounce off linemates Jim Higgs and Cy Coombes could get untracked. Higgs, recruited from Huntsville, has yet to score while Coombes, who scored 66 times in the regular season, was blanked Thursday after getting two goals in the opener.

Peterborough's Larry Ferguson, who scored 52 goals this season, has yet to score in this series.

CHANCE JOINS METS

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets purchased veteran right-hander Dean Chance from Cleveland Indians Friday for an undisclosed amount of cash. Chance, 29, had a 9-8 record and a 4.21 earned-run average with the Indians this season and had only one complete game.

EXPO SCOUT PROMOTED

MONTREAL (CP) — Andre Pratte, 37, of Montreal has been promoted by Montreal Expos to chief area scout for Quebec, upstate New York, New Hampshire and Vermont, upper Maine and the province of New Brunswick, general manager Jim Fanning of the Expos announced Friday. Pratte has worked as a part-time scout in southern Quebec.

Belleville and District Fish and Game Club president Tom Helm helps fellow member Fred Clarke check his artillery for the club's Sunday turkey shoot. Competitions will be held in the .22 calibres and 12-gauge shotgun classes as well as a horseshoe pitching contest.

Game Club Talks Turkey

Local sportsmen are sharpening their shooting eyes for the Belleville and District Fish and Game Club's turkey shoot Sunday.

The shoot will take place on the third concession of Sidney township and directional signs will be posted at the junction of 401 Highway and the Wallbridge Road.

Competitors will be firing at standard 12 gauge targets from a distance of 30 yards and must use .22 calibre sports rifles with open sights or 12-gauge shotguns. A fee of $1.00 per person will be charged and the top marksmen in each group of ten shooters will win a turkey.

Winners in the rifle section will be those who get the best grouping on three shots, while the most pellets in the target will determine the top scattergun shots. Shells will be supplied by the fish and game club.

"We're hoping to get more of our people out in the field", says president Tom Helm, "and we feel that this is one way we can accomplish it. If this shoot proves successful we'll hold another one in October.

As well as the marksmenship competition, some of the ten - pound turkeys will be awarded to the top horseshoe pitchers.

The shoot will get under way at 10 a.m. and finish at four o'clock Sunday afternoon.

No Slowpokes!

Members of the Belleville Ladies' Softball League are one group of women who who don't be accused of dawdling.

The league's championship series between Dairy Queen and Coq Grill is being run off as quickly as possible with cooler September air making evening softball a chilling experience.

Tonight sees the fifth game in the best - of - seven final series scheduled to get underway at the Cheese Producers' Field at 5 p.m.

Bowerman Savors 68

Former Duke University golf star Rich Bassett of Miami led the Classic with a 67 - under - par 62, followed by ten pros, including Toronto's George Knudson, at 67, and eight, including Bowerman, grouped at 68.

Weather permitting, the second round was to be completed today with a 36-hole windup planned for Sunday in the chase for the $20,000 first prize.

Club System Debated At Tuesday Soccer Meet

Minor soccer will be at the crossroads Tuesday night at a special general meeting of the Belleville Association in Quinte Secondary School's room 123.

The 8 p.m. meeting has been called by minor soccer organizers to discuss the ramifications of the proposed "club system".

The meeting will hear a proposal that would create six clubs by area, each having a "parent" team participating in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association.

Belleville United would be the Northern club, the Junior Falcons the western club, the Eagles the eastern, and the Parsons the Central designate, with Whitley Travellers and Quinte Transport heading up Trenton clubs.

Under the system, a club may consist of teams from the youngest atom age group right up to the parent men's team.

Clubs would form their own executive, maintain their home field and obtain their own sponsorship and equipment, duties previously the responsibility of the parent association.

Tennis Team Has Remedy

The 14-member Quinte Tennis Club team for the annual Doug Grant Trophy competition think they have a winning prescription.

As the Belleville contingent carries a 14-8 lead into Sunday's completion of the annual home - and - home series with Kingston, three of their players came from the medical Bellamy family.

Joining Dr. R. E. "Buck" Bellamy are Dr. Ray Bellamy, and 13 - year - old Alan, one of the Belleville club's strongest junior players.

Sunday's play in Kingston will consist of 14 men's singles and seven men's doubles matches, with each team totaling up one point for each match won.

Hamilton in Swing

City bowler Glenn Hamilton didn't take long to get into the swing of the new five-pin season.

Bowling Thursday in the second night of Man's Major league action at the Bowl - O - Drome, Hamilton missed a perfect 450 game by a second - frame comedown in the second game of his three - game series.

Hamilton spared, and rolled ten strikes to record a 438 game, then started his next game with three straight strikes for good measure.

Patchwork Attack Keeps Pirates in Front of Eastern Pack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Danny Murtaugh's Pittsburgh repair shop keeps turning out spare baseball parts on demand for the next two weeks, Sparky Anderson will have to repeat his Big Red Machine in Cincinnati for the National League pennant playoff.

Murtaugh, who used Pagan's seventh inning home run followed a five-run homer by Bob Robertson Friday night and gave Murtaugh's patched-up Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-3 victory over New York Mets in a showdown between two of the three contenders for the east-division championship.

The loss, coupled with Chicago Cubs' 2-1, 5-4 doubleheader sweep at Montreal, dropped the Mets to third place in the stretch race . . . a few hours after Cincinnati manager Anderson picked the Mets as the most likely foes for his West Division champs in the final confrontation.

"I'm guessing . . . and it's strictly a guess . . . that the Mets will win it," Anderson said before the Reds, who had secured the west title the previous night without lifting a bat, swamped Atlanta Braves 11-4.

In other National League games Los Angeles Dodgers nipped Houston Astros 3-2; San Francisco Giants edged San Diego Padres 3-2 in 10 innings and Philadelphia Phillies outscored St. Louis Cardinals 9-7.

"Pittsburgh and Chicago are right up there with Baltimore when it comes to hitting," Anderson said when pressed for a prediction of the outcome in the east. "The Mets have the pitching."

Jim McAndrew, the Mets' most effective pitcher in recent weeks, battled Pittsburgh's Steve Blass through six scoreless innings at New York before Willie Stargell beat out an infield hit in the seventh and Robertson slammed his 27th homer.

Pagan, filling in at third base for ailing Richie Hebner, then hit his sixth homer and the Pirates hung on in win with Dave Giusti registering his 25th save in relief of Blass.

"I didn't even know I was going to play until 45 minutes before the game," said Pagan.

"It's my job to stay ready."

Murtaugh put Pagan in the lineup after Hebner was stricken with the flu. The Pirates, playing without injured Roberto Clemente and Al Oliver, also lost Robertson in the eighth inning when he fouled a pitch off his left ankle.

Despite the run of injuries, the Pirates now lead the Cubs by 1½ games and are 1½ ahead of the Mets.

"I don't think there's any question we're going to win it," said Giusti, who received Blass during a two-run New York rally in the eighth.

Fergusen Jenkins launched the Cubs' sweep by tossing a five-hitter in the opener to become a 20-game winner for the fourth consecutive season. Ron Santo won the nightcap with a run-scoring single in the 10th inning.

Billy Williams hit his 40th and 41st homers for the Cubs, who capitalized on a third-strike passed ball by John Bateman for the deciding pair of unearned runs in the opener, then overcame a 3-0 deficit in the second game.

Johnny Bench drove in four runs with a single and his 45th homer. Tom Hall drilled a three-run double and Dave Concepcion poked four hits as the Reds mauled Atlanta before adding a backup Wilson-clinching celebration.

Second-place Los Angeles, mathematically eliminated with a 10-5 loss to Houston while the Reds were idle Thursday, bounced back to trim the Astros with a two-run rally in the seventh.

Ken Henderson broke a 3-3 tie at San Diego with a run-scoring double in the 10th, enabling the Giants to remain just one-half game behind the Dodgers in their battle for the runner-up spot.

Larry Bowa extended his hitting streak to 15 games with a run-scoring double in the eighth that carried the Phillies past St. Louis. Vic Davalillo stopped a run-scoring pinch single for the Cardinals, setting a National League mark of 22 pinch hits in one season.

Twenty Not News

MONTREAL (CP) — Ferguson Jenkins, ace righthander with Chicago Cubs never thinks about records when he faces opposing batters.

However, it seems every time the star from Chatham, Ont. steps out on the mound he delights in driving league and team statisticians crazy.

Friday night, for example, Jenkins stymied Montreal Expos with a masterful five-hit, pitching Chicago to a 3-2 win in the first game of a National League doubleheader for his 20th win of the season.

It is the fourth straight time that Jenkins (20-15) has won 20 or more games, a feat shared by only one other active National League hurler, Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants who used the trick from 1963 through 1966.

The last Cubs' pitcher to register such a streak was Mordecai (Three Fingers) Brown, who put together six straight seasons of 20 or more wins from 1906 through 1911.

Yankees in Wrong League

The three best records in baseball belong, logically enough, to Cincinnati Reds, who have clinched the National League west-division race; Baltimore Orioles, champions of the American League east, and Minnesota Twins, who are closing in on the American League west crown.

The fourth-best record in baseball belongs, somewhat illogically, to New York Yankees, who are 13½ games behind Baltimore and, of course, have been eliminated from any race this season.

The Yankees, who have the poor luck to be playing in the right division but the wrong league, won their 84th game of the season Friday night, blanking Detroit 5-0 on Ron Klimkowski's three-hitter. If they were in the National League east instead of American League east, their record would be good enough not only for first place but for a four-game lead as well.

The 84 victories are the most the Yankees have won since 1964 when they captured the pennant with 99 victories.

Elsewhere in the American League Friday night, Baltimore edged Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 11 innings, Minnesota trimmed Chicago White Sox 5-4, Milwaukee Brewers took Kansas City Royals 4-3 and Oakland Athletics edged California Angels 3-2. Washington's game at Boston was postponed by rain.

Klimkowski, making his first start for the Yankees since May 8, ran his record to 6-7 with his first complete game. He didn't allow a hit until Dalton Jones doubled in the fifth.

By then, the Yankees had all their runs. New York got four in the first, three of them on John Ellis' seventh-home run of year, and added another on Thurman Munson's RBI-double in the second.

The hero was Dave Baylor, who singled two runs home in his first major league at bat, and then drove home the winning run with another single in the 11th. Rookie Roger Freed walked to open the decisive 11th and pinch-runner Paul Blair stole second and reached third on an error before Baylor delivered his hit.

Jim Hok's two-run triple keyed a three-run fourth-inning burst for the Twins and then George Mitterwald singled two more runs home in the third following three walks.

Milwaukee jumped on Kansas City for four runs in the first inning and then hung on to beat the Royals for Al Downing's first victory since July 28. Roberto Pena singled home two runs in the big first inning.

Rosburg Borrows Palmer Touch

Rosburg, using a putter he picked up in Palmer's basement, moved into second place Friday one stroke behind Australian Bruce Devlin in the "Alcan Golfer of the Year" Tournament.

Rosburg, from Winthrop, Me., shot a six-under par 66 Friday for a two-day total of 141. Devlin had a two-round score of 140, including Friday's 71.

The field of 75 went into the third round today, shooting for a first prize of $53,625.

"I was using a putter that I happened to collect when I raided Palmer's basement," said Rosburg, the 1959 American PGA title holder.

Rosburg used the putter on each of the last 11 holes and sank one from 30 feet with Arnie's putter at the eighth.

Rosburg, who has twice finished second in the U.S. Open, losing by only a single shot in the 1958 and 1969 championships said:

"Maybe this putter of Palmer's is going to do me a lot of good this time.

Middle-heavyweight Field 100 Pounds Behind Kolotov

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vasily Kolotov, 28-year-old Soviet laborer, established two unofficial world records Friday and easily won the middle-heavyweight crown in the world weightlifting championships here.

Kolotov claimed records in the clean-and-jerk with a lift of 440½ pounds and his combined total of 1184½ pounds was also good for another world mark.

Both efforts broke records he had established earlier this year in the European championships.

He clean and jerked 201 kilos, 443 pounds, and had a total lift of 537.5 kilos, or 1,175½ pounds, in the European championships.

He was 11th in the press with 361; 10th in snatch with 275½ and 12th with 258 in clean and jerk.

Ferrari Car to Beat

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (CP) — Final qualifying for Sunday's Canadian Grand Prix began today with Ferrari established as the car to beat for the pole position after Belgian Jacky Ickx set a qualifying record Friday over the 2.65-mile Le Circuit track.

Ickx turned a lap in 1:31.6, or 104.15 miles an hour, to cut one-tenth of a second of the previous best time set by the late Bruce McLaren in a Group 7 sports-racing car in June, 1969.

The second fastest competitor in Friday's practice was Ickx' team-mate Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland who chalked up a time of 1:31.8.

The Ferrari duo has won both of the last two Grand Prix, Ickx the Austrian event and Regazzoni the Italian race. Both have a mathematical chance to win the world championship for Formula 1 drivers.

The 45-point total accumulated by the late Jochen Rindt of Austria is the mark to beat for the world championship and five drivers in Sunday's race still have a chance for the title.

Scotland's Jackie Stewart, reigning world champion, and former title holder Jack Brabham of Australia have 25 points each for second place but neither has been within a second of Ickx' best time at Le Circuit.

Abendschan's Last-second 47-Yarder Makes Eagle Ecstatic

REGINA (CP) — Eagle Keys fan't a man to wear his heart on his sleeve at a football game, but when Jack Abendschan booted a game-winning field goal on the last play Friday night, the Saskatchewan Roughriders' head coach just couldn't contain his joy.

"It wasn't, that I had any doubts as to whether Jack would make that field goal, but when he did I just had to run out there and jump on him," Keys said after Roughriders defeated British Columbia Lions 23-22 in a Western Football Conference clash here.

The 47-yard boot strengthened Saskatchewan's hold on top spot in the Western and boited Lions' attempt to break out of a second-place deadlock with Calgary Stampeders. Roughriders have 16 points on eight wins and two losses, while B.C. and Calgary have 8-4 records and 16 points each.

The fourth-place Edmonton Eskimos, with a 3-6 performance to date, travel to Winnipeg for a match at 2:30 p.m. CDT Sunday against the Blue Bombers. The game will be broadcast on the CTV west network. Edmonton head coach Ray Jenkins doesn't plan any lineup changes against cellar-dwelling Winnipeg.

Abendschan, in addition to booting the game-winning field goal, contributed two others from 43 and 14 yards out and converted touchdowns scored by fullback George Reed and flanker Gordon Barwell.

For Lions, Jim Young got two touchdowns on 81-yard and 34-yard passes from Paul Brothers, while Vic Washington snared another throw for a major. Ted Gerela kicked three converts and got a single on a field goal try that went wide.

"We beat the daylights out of those guys and still came up losers," said Parker. He was pleased with the defensive effort that resulted in four interceptions of Lancaster pass attempts.

Lancaster, who played the whole game despite a sprained throwing arm that has been sore all season, earned the unenviable record of top career interception-tosser in the Canadian Football League. His 202 in 11 seasons surpassed the 201 mark set by Bernie Faloney in 12 seasons.

Two of the interceptions were by Jerry Bradley, while Greenard Poles and Bill Whisler got one each. Brothers had the passes intercepted and conyards gained, compared with Lancaster's 12 of 25 and 208 yards.

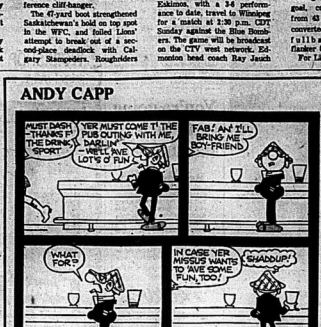
Als To Face Big Ed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ed Harrington will be back at his offensive-end position for Toronto Argonauts when they entertain Montreal Alouettes in an Eastern Football Conference fixture Sunday.

And he has no qualms about the 10 play in Ottawa two weeks ago when he was ousted from the game, suspended for another game and fined $200 after knocking Gary Wood, the Rough Ride quarterback, senseless.

"I'm not going to change my style of play," says Harrington, all-Canadian at his position in 1969. "I wouldn't know how to play any other way.



"I don't play dirty. The quarterback is the guy who can kill you and my job is to get him. . . . That's what I'm expected to do."

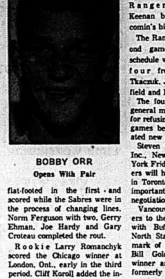
A win for either Toronto or Montreal will move them into first place in the EFC. They now share that position with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, each with eight points. Ottawa trails with four.

The Toronto-Montreal game will be seen on the CTV's eastern network starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

Ottawa, meanwhile, has a chance to close ground on the leaders today when they take on Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference at home, a game that will be televised nationally by the CBC starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

Montreal bolstered its lineup for Sunday's game with Wally Highsmith, a six-foot-four 250-pounder from Pittsburgh Steelers of the Eastern League, at offensive guard. He has two seasons of pro experience with Denver Broncos.

Hawks Dump Boston 7-5 After Three Days' Training



"It wasn't super hockey," said Frank Selke Jr., general manager of Oakland Seals, but "from our performance tonight I would say we are definitely going to be an improved club."

He was talking Friday night after the Seals bombed Buffalo Sabres 6-0 in one of four National Hockey League exhibition games.

In other games, Chicago Black Hawks, after only three days at camp, took the Stanley-Cup-champion Boston Bruins 7-5, New York Rangers trounced St. Louis Blues 5-1 and Minnesota North Stars needed a late-game effort to subdue Vancouver Canucks 3-1 in the Canucks' NHL debut.

flat-footed in the first and scored while the Sabres were in the process of changing lines. Norm Ferguson with two, Gerry Ehman, Joe Hardy and Gary Croteau completed the rout.

Rookie Larry Romanchyk scored the Chicago winner at London, Ont., early in the third period. Cliff Koroll added the insurance marker with 17 seconds remaining and Boston goalie Ed Johnston out of the net in favor of a sixth attacker.

Bobby Hull, Dennis Hull, Chico Maki, Pit Martin and Doug Jarrett tallied the earlier Black Hawk goals. Bobby Orr, with two, Phil Esposito, Ed Westfall and Reg Leach scored for the Bruins.

Daniel Bouchard started in goal for the defending champions but gave way to the veteran Johnson after Chicago had scored four first-period goals.

Syl Apps Jr., son of Hockey Hall-of-Famer Syl Apps, former Toronto Maple Leaf great now a member of the Ontario legislature, and veteran Dave Balon each scored twice in the New York victory.

The Rangers played their second game of the exhibition schedule without the services of four frontline players—Walt Tkaczuk, Jean Ratelle, Vic Hadfield and Brad Park.

The four were suspended by general manager Emile Francis for refusing to play in exhibition games before they had negotiated new contracts.

Steven Arnold of Pro Sports Inc., New York, said in New York Friday night the four players will hold a news conference in Toronto Monday to "discuss important developments in their negotiations."

Vancouver Canucks, newcomers to the NHL this year along with Buffalo, held Minnesota North Stars 1-1 until the 17:01 mark of the third period when Bill Goldsworthy scored the winner and Marshall Johnston, formerly with Canada's national team, adding the insurance marker about a minute later.

Len Lunde gave the Canucks a 1-0 lead in the first period until Joe Johnston got the equalizer for Minnesota at Edmonton

Philadelphia Flyers had their first full-scale game at Quebec City and centre Jim Johnson and winger Bill Sutherland scored two each in the Flyers' 7-1 victory over Quebec Aces, the American League farm club.

Simon Nolet, Andre Lacroix and Lew Morrison completed the Flyers' scoring while Bill Clement, with two, Keith Wright and Dick Sarazzin replied for Quebec.

Tonight Buffalo plays Detroit Red Wings at Port Huron Mich., Philadelphia will be in Montreal against the Canadiens Oakland and Pittsburgh Penguins meet at Brantford, Ont., and the Minnesotaa-Vancouver weekend series continues at Calgary.

Rangers Tops in Holdouts

NEW YORK (AP) — A number of first-line National Hockey League players remained unsigned Friday with negotiations between agents for the athletes and general managers stalled on several fronts.

The most serious problem exists in the New York Ranger camp where general manager-coach Emile Francis has suspended four stars for refusing to play in a pre-season exhibition game before signing their contracts.

All four—centres Walter Tkaczuk, the Rangers' leading scorer last year, and Jean Ratelle, all-star defenceman Brad Park and left winger Vic Hadfield—have gone home to await the next step in negotiations between Francis and their collective agents, Pro Sports Inc., a New York-based firm representing many athletes.

Francis suspended the quartet Thursday when they refused to play in the Rangers' exhibition game against Buffalo Sabres.

In past years, hockey players have routinely trained and performed in exhibition games while their contracts were being negotiated. But many have assumed a new, tougher stance this year.

Pro Sports Inc., also encountering contract problems with Minnesota North Stars and Oakland Seals, insists the Ranger players are not negotiating as a group.

A similar situation exists with Boston Bruins and centre Derek Sanderson and goalie Gerry Cheevers, both unsigned and both refusing to play any exhibitions until they have contracts.

Pro Sports Inc., claims it can't even get Minnesota general manager Wren Blair to negotiate a contract for Murray Oliver, acquired by the North Stars from Toronto Maple Leafs during the summer.

Pro Sports is also handling negotiations for Carol Vadnais and Harry Howell with Oakland and reports an impasse on that front too. Charles O. Finley, new owner of the Seals, has taken a hard line in salary discussions with all the Seals.

Chicago's Stan Mikita, a three-time scoring champion, is also unsigned and has refused to play in exhibitions until he has a contract.

Rams Rout Cards in NFL Opener

A 60 will mark the 1970 debut of professional football tonight when Chicago Bears play New York Giants.

A sellout crowd of 62,000 is assured for the game in New York, the only scheduled Saturday action in the National Football League, and it will mark the 60th consecutive capacity crowd to watch the Giants at Yankee Stadium, dating back to 1962.

The NFL season was launched Friday night when Los Angeles Rams, unbeaten during the exhibition season, routed St. Louis Cardinals 34-13.

Roman Gabriel threw for three touchdowns and Alvin Haymond scooted 96 yards with the second half kickoff for another score as the Rams, a favorite to get into the Super Bowl, got off on the right foot.

HITS A 16

Gabriel hit 16 of 26 passes for 185 yards and Haymond contributed another 50-yard kickoff return to set up another score. Meanwhile, the defence held the Cardinals to only two field goals until the final period.

The other NFL teams will be in action Sunday except for New York Jets and Cleveland Browns, who will play in Cleveland Monday night in a nationally-televised game.

Sunday, Denver is at Buffalo, Houston at Pittsburgh, Baltimore at San Diego, Miami at Boston, Oakland at Cincinnati, Atlanta at New Orleans, Dallas at Philadelphia, Detroit at Green Bay, Washington at San Francisco and Kansas City at Minnesota.

Gale Sayers, held to limited action in pre-season play, launched the defence of his rushing title in a bid to lead the Bears back from a disastrous 1-13 record in 1969.

Fog Frustrates Intrepid

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Gretel II lifted eyebrows and raised Australian spirits Friday but it was all lost in the fog.

The second America's Cup race was called on the fourth leg of the six-leg race, with Intrepid slightly in front.

Jim Hardy had his Australian challenger flying as he took on Intrepid and skipper Bill Picker at their own game—windward sailing—in the second of the best-of-seven America's Cup series. Intrepid leads 1-0.

Gretel II led at the first two marks—the first time a challenger has done so since Britain's Endeavor in 1934.

Picker slipped by on the third leg, but Hardy was back at him when they rounded the third mark and started tacking upwind again. As he was climbing right up on the American, the New York Yacht Club Race Committee ruled it too dangerous to keep sailing and shot off three rounds on the committee boat canon. It was the most exciting Cup racing since Weatherly-Gretel in 1962.

By the time Gretel II rounded the first mark with a one-minute, 54-second edge, the fog blanketed the spectacle from view. At the end visibility was down to 300 yards.

"I Am a Dead Horse"

Three students training at Belleville General Hospital as lab technologists lie on the sidewalk beside the Bank of Montreal on Front Street, chanting "I am a dead horse." The exercise was part of the initiation for 12 students who will study for two years.

Expropriation Costly,

Expropriation proceedings by municipalities or government agencies which require property for road widening or other purposes can be involved under the new expropriations act.

According to the regulations if the required property cannot be acquired through negotiations with the owner, three advertisements, one each week for three consecutive weeks, must be run for each of the properties to be expropriated.

The owner then has the right to ask for an inquiry into whether the taking of such land "is fair, sound and reasonably necessary". If an inquiry is desired, notification must be given the municipality within 30 days after the publication of the first notice.

At the inquiry, all parties must be given the opportunity to present evidence and cross-examine witnesses. Also the inquiry officer may recommend that the party to the inquiry be reimbursed up to $200 for the costs.

If the expropriation is deemed to be "fair, sound and reasonably necessary," then an arbitration board sitting is necessary to determine the amount of the compensation to be received by the owner.

Just what the requirements of the new regulations entail is being experienced by the city in acquiring property for the reconstruction of Dundas Street West, which is now under way.

Parts of about 20 properties were required for the road widening, all of which — with the exception of two — were acquired by negotiation with the owners.

However, the city has found it necessary to start expropriation proceedings for parts of two vacant lots, one at the south end of Front Street and the other at the corner of Dundas and Mary.

Canadian Stock Prices Up Despite Auto Strike

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets moved upward this week, despite an absence of optimistic news or economic developments.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's industrial index, the broadest indicator of share prices, was up .39 to 163.05 at the end of the five-day trading period.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up .57 to 161.62.

Performance on Canada markets contrasted with price activity on Wall Street. At the New York Stock Exchange, the Dow-Jones industrial average of key rail and transportation issues dropped 2.25 points to 758.6.

Main reason for the weakness on Wall Street, analysts said, was the United Auto Workers' strike against General Motors Corp. which acted as a catalyst to bring together other negative factors influencing prices.

Canadian markets moved higher on three of the five trading sessions.

Observers suggested that domestic stock prices were not affected by as many of the negative influences which plagued Wall Street.

In addition, oil index advanced 5.94 points to 183.72. The index was unchanged at the end of four days of trading but made a sharp advance of more than five points on Friday.

Biggest movers during the week included the three major auto manufacturing stocks.

General Motors Corp. was down ¾ to $72.

However, Ford of Canada rose 3¾ to $65¾ and Chrysler Corp. 3¾ to $27. The two companies were ruled out as strike targets by the UAW.

One analyst also suggested that investors are now examining Chrysler's 1971 earnings potential, instead of its record thus far in 1979.

There were indications during the week that the shares of companies which rely on the auto industry for business will suffer as a result of the strike.

On index at Toronto, golds were down 6.29 to 159.41 and to base metals .66 to 96.15.

Losses outnumbered gains to 351 with 223 issues unchanged.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Each Must Seek Insomnia Cure

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For all who suffer from insomnia I have the answer. It is no mystery when we discover the cause. The answer lies in your diet and your habits. If you keep on guard from early afternoon until bedtime, you will sleep well.

I used to have insomnia too, but at 71 I sleep like a baby. I discovered that I could not take any of the following food or drink later than 1 p.m.: eggs, ice cream, lettuce, apples, cheese, Jello, tea, coffee or cocoa. I gave up smoking, too.

Whenever I have forgotten and have taken one or more of those "forbidden fruits" I have stayed awake half the night. So I say if people will watch what they eat and drink, they will no longer suffer from insomnia. — Mr. L.

* * *

Comment: Two years ago I published a book on sleep which contained scores of similar suggestions from readers who have overcome their insomnia by personal experimentation. Some with special diets, others with elimination diets, and still others by rearrangement of their sleeping habits.

What it all seems to add up to is that insomnia has to be overcome by frank attack rather than by frontal assault. Each one of us needs to discover his "personal" antidote against insomnia.

What you suggest, Mr. L., works nicely for you, but is not a specific remedy for everyone's insomnia. Nevertheless, you make a point. Each one must seek and find.

I recall many insomniacs who got over their tribulations of sleep - loss by taking the attitude of "not caring" whether they slept or not. Miraculously, this apparent disdain so infuriated insomnia that it disappeared — never to return. (This is what I mean when I say "overcoming insomnia by flank attack.")

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In reply to the letter from Mrs. R. regarding sex education in the schools, the purpose is to instruct children in healthy attitudes toward sex. I, for one, trust our teachers to do that, supplemented by our own teaching as parents in the home.

It's barely possible that the sex attitudes of some of our teachers may be even healthier than our own. I find comfort in the thought that the children who associate with my children will have been instructed in healthy attitudes towards sex.

My only concern is that there may be, in the classroom, too much emphasis placed on the mechanical aspect of sex, and not enough on the emotional. — (Another Mrs. R.)

For Mr. U.: At 65, and a "deteriorating eye condition" gambling with your sight by procrastination? Why are you afraid to see your eye specialist?

Your "deteriorating sight" may possibly be only due to the need for a change of glasses. On the other hand, if it is due to glaucoma, cataract, detached retina, trouble in the retina — or to something else — don't you see how important it is to be examined as soon as you can?

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 20

Your birthday today: This year is to be your fresh start in all departments of life. You must start with what you are and what you have. Changing conditions give you freedom to evolve, more chances to be effective. Sentimental interests respond to the same transformations. Many poignant moments are promised. Today's natives busy themselves busy, often with unrealistic projects, occasionally practical ideas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This Sunday should really be reserved for rest and contemplation of faith. Travel is delayed. People are generally caught up in their own concerns and not very communicative.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Take a quiet sensitive approach to discussions, as squabbles deteriorate easily into serious quarrels. Seek diversion in intellectual pastimes.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You are likely to miss the point, or substitute your point in discussions. Try to do a better job of listening. If possible, spend the day in solitude. The evening is easier.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your impulse is generous hospitality and showing off would lead to expensive layout expectation and still not achieve the results. Social activities are better left simple.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Use care and consideration in all you do. Formality and ritual now give people some relief from conflict and uncomfortable pressures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The temptation is to overdo, in physical exercise, games, exercise. Old issues re-appear and may precipitate much discussion, argument. Take it easy!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your tendency is to be forthright in your statements—more than people expect — so you present yourself more strongly than you plan. Reflect on the situation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Sometimes the best thing is simple co-operation, deferring questions until later. Such a time is this direction-switching day. Later hours for relaxation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You are tempted to take sides, but where your group is already well organized, perhaps more uncommitted people are needed to bridge the gap. Think before you plunge in.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Allow extra space for the general impatience of others today. Where conditions permit, take plenty of time off for your favorite pastimes.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): What happens today brings you mixed feelings. Wait for the full story. You feel eventually that nobody was completely right, nobody entirely wrong.

For September 21

Your birthday today: Restlessness is your key to happiness in the coming year. Everything must be worked out in meticulous detail — there is no shortcut or compromise likely. Perseverance provokes you to build up greater energy, more pressure. Emotional experience brings difficult choices, revelations of situations until you learn to avoid confusion. Today's natives like to travel in order to learn, and often show deep interest in the occult.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Care is essential in driving, use of tools. Don't blurt out your emotional reaction to someone. Even routines are hectic. The less acrimony you offer, the less mending you'll have to do later.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Just when you are waiting for some signal from special advisers, there seems to be none. Rely on your own knowledge, rather than unchecked information. Mediation brings you guidance.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You inevitably will bicker over something today, so pick as little as you can handle well. Home distracting you from pet projects.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): New secret deals are not to be considered today. Protect personal matters from discussion. Be brief in your negotiations. Home life is favored this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your friends mistake your position and capabilities now. Sensibly revise your ideas before you go on with them. Later hours are well spent in serious study.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Courtesy and tact avert obstacles today. Personal projects wait until you work out tangled business problems. Evening brings unexpectedly swift progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Stick with what is known for the moment despite attractive tales from strangers. Give yourself time to check facts and figures. Travel should be postponed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Conditions do not favor extensive rearrangements, particularly of money matters. You are unable to hold an objective view of ventures by your friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You seem bound to continue close co-operation with associates. Forceful issues creates arguments, ties up the whole venture — don't complicate things this way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Expect interruptions; prepare alternatives so that you are not upset at being stopped. No special favors are indicated. Depend on your own.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Group money comes in for critical review, perhaps temptation today. Urgent demands from outside needn't be answered immediately. Reflection brings better perspective.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Partnership and marital ties range from inconvenient to difficult. People in authority are apt to react quickly. Tact makes all programs easier.

Rail Strike Blocked

Acting under provisions of the Railway Labor Act, Nixon created a five-member fact-finding board to look into the dispute between four unions and some 160 rail lines.

If settlements are not arranged at the end of 60 days, the unions would be free to strike — unless Congress should enact emergency legislation in the interim.

The four unions involved represent about 400,000 rail employees — about 70 per cent of all those employed by the industry.

Canada Wants Bilateral Action

U.S. Would Halt Flights If Hijackers Aided

MONTREAL (CP) — Proposals to stop air piracy by suspending air services to nations which aid or harbor hijackers were postponed Friday for discussion Sept. 30 by the governing council of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

John A. Volpe, United States secretary of transport representing President Nixon, had called for the "new and drastic action" of a multilateral boycott of any state that:

—Detains for "international blackmail purposes" passengers and crew of any aircraft that has been unlawfully seized;

—Or failure to extradite or prosecute persons responsible for such a seizure for international blackmail.

And Canada resurrected a proposal, turned down at ICAO in June by the U.S. and other countries, urging similar action on a bilateral level of agreements between various nations rather than through a treaty binding on many nations.

But several delegates on the 27-member council said their governments had not yet authorized them to act on the proposals and the council agreed to the Sept. 29 meeting at ICAO's Montreal headquarters.

Mr. Volpe told a news conference immediately after the council meeting he was "happy" that ICAO has moved speedily on the proposals but warned that the U.S. reserved "the right to take unilateral action."

He said he hoped for an ICAO decision Sept. 29 and the U.S. would not take "any arbitrary action" before ICAO has a chance to do something.

Friday's meeting had been urgently requested by President Nixon in the wake of hijackings by Palestinian commandos who blew up four planes and held nearly 300 passengers hostage for a time as ransom for the release of arrested Arab hijackers.

ICAO is a technical and legal organization with 119 member nations of which 27 are chosen to sit on the council for three-year terms.

Observers at Friday's meeting came from Israel, Switzerland and Algeria, all non-members of the council as well as the International Federation of Air Line Pilots Associations, the International Air Transport Association representing airlines, and the International Transport Workers Federation.

The U.S. wants to have the boycott proposals included as clauses in international treaties.

A draft ICAO treaty on "unlawful seizure" is to be discussed by diplomatic conference at The Hague in December and possibly opened for signing by nations.

ICAO legal experts are also scheduled to meet in London at the end of this month to discuss and prepare a second treaty on sabotage and armed attacks, which, if ready in time, could also go before The Hague conference.

But the inclusion of sanctions in international treaties is rare.

Andre Bisson'ette, Canadian assistant deputy minister for external affairs, explained to a news conference that some countries do not want to be bound in an international treaty with other nations.

He said the Canadian proposal might avoid this problem by depending on negotiated bilateral agreements rather than multilateral treaties.

He also strongly denied suggestions that the Canadian proposal was intended to sidetrack the U.S. boycott idea which, if it were ever tried, could seriously disrupt airline traffic.

Besides the political problems of a boycott, planes would have to detour around several thousand square miles because navigation, meteorological and ground services would not be available in the area and perhaps not even in nearby areas not included in the boycott.

Policy Aims at Reality

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday night Canadian foreign policy is aimed at shattering illusions of false greatness and using real power to its fullest.

In a hard-hitting defence of the government's recent review of foreign policy, Mr. Sharp told a teach-in on international aid at the University of Toronto that Canadians must realize that Canada's post-war strength has been replaced by a substantially different kind of power.

In the late 1940s and early 1950s, Canada enjoyed an intoxicating sense of economic strength, primarily because the economies of most other countries were weakened from war.

"Our brief day of prominence in a world devastated by war may be over, but we are coming of age in the world of today, we are taking our place and playing our part in the world as it is," Mr. Sharp said.

To develop an effective foreign policy, Canada had to find roles other that that of "international fixer" in a world plagued by disputes that in most cases could only be settled by the great powers.

To do this, the government decided that its priorities abroad should conform to those at home. These were: Fostering economic growth; protecting sovereignty and independence; promoting peace and social justice; improving the quality of life and protecting the environment.

Anti-Liberal Reaction Yet to Come Says Douglas

OTTAWA (CP) — "The reaction is yet to come," predicted T.C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, as he talked about the government holding its own in the public opinion polls despite "the economic morass."

The latest polls, showing the Liberal government higher than at the last general election, were obviously much in mind Friday when the federal council of the NDP opened a two-day meeting here.

But Mr. Douglas told the delegates it was not a discouraging picture although "there must be some concern about the apparent continued support for Trudeaumania."

The reaction would come, Canadian are slow reactions. They are not volatile, they are not hysterical."

"I find there is a growing disillusionment with the government, and Trudeaumania seems to be receding in some parts of the country."

The challenge for the NDP, he said, is to get out and take the initiative and "get it across to the public that the government has done nothing."

"Never was there a better case to be presented to the Canadian people—this is a do-nothing government."

Syrian Tanks Occupy Northern Jordan City

U.S. Assumes Waiting Policy

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The United States took a watch-and-wait stance on the Jordan situation today, apparently having decided to concentrate for the present on diplomacy rather than military action to bring about a halt to the internal strife there.

State Secretary William Rogers Sunday termed as "irresponsible and imprudent" Israeli intervention by tanks forces from Syria in the Jordan crisis and warned that such action posed the danger of broadening the conflict.

"We call upon the Syrian government to end immediately this intervention in Jordan," he said, "and we urge all other concerned governments to impress upon the government of Syria the necessity of withdrawing the forces which have invaded Jordan."

The Nixon administration's initial reaction took the form of the flagrant denunciation and warning and a direct request to the Soviet government, plus diplomatic appeals to other governments, to put pressure on Syria to end its intervention.

The state department did not say what other countries in addition to Russia were being asked to join in putting pressure on Syria.

Amid denouncing concern here over the safety of more than 400 Americans in Jordan, President Nixon and senior officials were expected to continue high level meetings on the Middle East.

But officials insisted no decision had been made to send U.S. troops into Jordan, even for the limited purpose of evacuating Americans.

Informed sources pictured the administration as extremely reluctant to mount a rescue mission for Americans or to intervene militarily in the Jordanian strife.

Secondly, the administration still is weighing conflicting claims as to the identity of the outside forces which Rogers charged had invaded Jordan.

Another major factor in U.S. restraint, the sources said, is the U.S. desire to avoid making a bad situation worse or to endanger American lives by intervening.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the radical guerrilla group which hijacked three planes to Jordan Sept. 6 and 7, has threatened to take action against American lives and interests if the U.S. intervenes.

Hussein Orders Ceasefire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters) — King Hussein tonight ordered his army to cease fire immediately against the Palestine Arab guerrillas, an Amman radio announcement said.

The king's order said: "I here by order you to abide scrupulously by a ceasefire as from this moment."

It was addressed to all units of the army, security forces and militia.

Desert Battle Fought

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Guerrilla tanks, crossing the border from Syria, were reported to have penetrated the northern Jordan capital of Irbid today, taking up battle positions in the city after a series of desert clashes with a Jordanian armored colum.

A Reuters correspondent who watched the fighting said the tanks carried the markings and the crews were the uniforms of the Palestine Liberation Army, the regular armed units of the Arab Palestine resistance movement.

But sources in Tel Aviv said the tanks and their crews were in fact regular Syrian army units disguised with PLA markings. The sources said about 200 Syrian tanks had thrust into Jordan.

Jordan's military government said flatly that Syrian tanks had invaded the country and given a new dimension to the civil war, now in its fifth day.

The Jordanian government's Radio Amman said that Jordanian and Syrian tanks battled each other at Irbid today, and indicted the forces loyal to Jordan's King Hussein were outnumbered and suffering heavy casualties.

Amman radio said at least two brigades of Syrian tanks invaded Jordan Sunday and converging on Irbid, the country's second largest city with a population of 200,000, in support of the Palestinian guerrillas holding the city's centre.

The government radio implored Jordanian forces to "hold fast and teach the heretic rulers of Syria a lesson in heroism."

It was the second invasion by Syria claimed over the Jordanian radio. Syria's President Nureddin Atassi has denied that his country's forces moved into Jordan.

But a spokesman for the main guerrilla group, Al Fatah, based

Curb Urged On Health, School Cost

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians must put the brakes on rocketing costs for health care and higher education by insisting on efficiency, says the Economic Council of Canada.

In its seventh anual review of the economy, published today, the national advisory body suggests interrest fees for health services and higher tuition fees at universities to help stem the drain on taxpayer funds.

But efficiency and cost-conscious management are the keys to containing runaway costs that the country will be unable to sustain for long, says the council, a federal agency with members from business, labor, farm and consumer groups, plus full-time economists.

The review suggests costly inefficiency might be found in current practices ranging from restrictive licensing of doctors and dentists to budget-padding by universities.

The council also renews an annual appeal for policies that would inject more productive vigor into Canadian enterprises generally. It suggests scaling down import tariffs, subsidies and other programs that tend to insulate some industries and services from competition.

Parley Planned With Russians

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis says Canada one day will assert coastal jurisdiction over continental shelves extending 400 miles or more offshore.

In the meantime, he said on the CTV program Question Period, declaration of exclusive Canadian fishing rights in major bays and gulfs could come in a matter of weeks

Immediate plans designed to protect Canadian coastal fisheries include an Ottawa meeting starting Wednesday with Soviet fisheries officials.

Arab State Heads To Meet in Cairo

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Syria and Jordan have agreed to attend an Arab summit meeting in Cairo Tuesday to discuss the Jordan crisis and guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat also is expected to attend, Cairo radio announced today.

The radio did not say whether the warring parties in Jordan—King Hussein's troops, the Palestine guerrillas and the Syrian-based armored force which struck into north Jordan at the weekend—would cease firing while the heads of state sought to solve the crisis.

Observers here said the summit meeting—the sixth held by the 14 member states of the Arab League—would face enormous difficulties in reconciling the warring parties.

Maudling Would Oust Red Rudi

LONDON (AP) — A sharp controversy has flared over the decision by Home Secretary Reginald Maudling compelling Rudi Dutschke, a former leader of left-wing students in West Germany, to leave Britain before Sept. 30.

Dutschke, shot in the head in an assassination attempt on April 11, 1968, came to Britain eight months later and was ultimately allowed to stay provided he avoided political activity and any paid employment.

Friends say he has scrupulously abided by this ruling, although he is reported to have been visited by West Germans sympathetic to the revolutionary views he championed in the street demonstrations that shook the federal republic prior to the attempt on his life.

Dutschke now has been given leave to appeal Maudling's expulsion decision, which is being attacked as everything from "political" to a move ill-advised on tactical grounds.

At least one opponent of the expulsion order, asserting that Dutschke"still suffers from the affects of the assassination attempt, said that Canada, France, Belgium and the United States all have refused to give the West German sanctuary.

A Swinging Time Was Had By All

The swinging flourishes of square dance routines filled Belleville's Memorial Arena Saturday night, as Ontario and New York clubs sent members to Quinte Twirlers' jamboree. More than 500 are estimated to have attended the event, the fourth of its kind staged by one of the Quinte area's most actively-involved community groups. For details, see page 3.

Wallbridge Road Shelter Could Serve Big Area

The Ontario Humane Society's Quinte branch shelter near Belleville could be the operations centre for a regional animal service.

Facilities at the Wallbridge Road shelter are unmatched in Canada and the society soon will discuss its regional potential with Quinte district municipalities, Y e n Hughes, OHS general manager said yesterday.

Mr. Hughes was among OHS officials visiting the facility during a Sunday afternoon open-house staged by their Quinte branch. The event also gave the general public a view of the centre's facilities. More than 800 were estimated drawn to a program of tours and special events.

Mr. Hughes, associated with humane societies across Canada for 30 years, said a regional animal control service could easily be operated from the Wallbridge Road shelter, about 200 dogs alone, he estimated.

The shelter could house about 200 dogs alone, he estimated.

(The shelter, once a livestock artificial breeding centre, regularly houses farm and other animals taken in care by the society around Eastern Ontario.)

"Its facilities are unmatched anywhere in Canada. I know; I built most of them in the last 30 years," said Mr. Hughes.

A regional service based on the centre could be augmented by mobile units and holding shelters strategically located throughout the district, he believed.

"With this centre we're in a position where we can offer (animal control) services to municipalities which can't operate centres themselves because it's not economical or reasonable to do so," he said.

The proposal will be discussed with municipalities in Hastings and Prince Edward counties Sept. 30. A similar meeting will be held for Lennox and Addington municipalities in Napanee Oct. 1.

"A number of municipalities have already indicated they are willing to come in with us," he said.

CFB Trenton Honors Battle of Britain Dead

TRENTON (Special) — The Protestant padre at CFB Trenton believes the new generation, however indifferent, would not change the minds of airmen who turned the tide for the Allies in World War II.

Capt. G. W. Yates, speaking at the Battle of Britain commemoration service here yesterday, paid tribute to the pilots and aircrews who stood off the Nazi air armadas over England 30 years ago.

It was the first time personnel from the Trenton station observed the historic event at the cenotaph in Centennial Park. From the turnout it appeared local residents showed more interest in the annual ceremony. The onlookers were favored by perfect weather and impressive looking military representatives marching to the martial music of two bands.

The wreath in honor of the servicemen who died in battle was placed on the cenotaph by base commander Col. W. G. Paisley.

Capt. Yates asked: "If those who made the supreme sacrifice, could suddenly be made alive in our world today, would they understand it? Would they still think that honor and freedom and justice are w o r t h fighting for and — if necessary dying for?"

"There is no doubt in my mind they would," he said, adding they would know that behind the terminology, man is still composed of sins and weaknesses and evasions and hopes and aspirations.

Hitler, they would remind us, did his own thing. They would tell us that the n e w morality is not really new and that men through the a g e s have used all sorts of slogans to cover up irresponsible behavior.

The Battle of Britain has been set by historians as a period of 69 days from August 8 to October 31 in 1940.

Some idea of the drama in the skies over England can be realized from the number of aircraft destroyed on b o t h sides in the period — 2,142 German and 491 Allied. Pilots lied side number 1,695. 47 were Canadians.

Square Dancing Is Plain Fun

Despite appearances of a sophisticated society up to the ears in complex problems, uncomplicated fun is still in style, Bellevillians were shown Saturday night.

The dancers streamed to Belleville from 45 different clubs in Ontario and New York State — to flourish their paces under the guidance of seven square-dance callers.

The program marked a community involvement more active than may be realized, said its Belleville organizers.

About 400 adults and 300 youngsters actively pursue square dancing as a pastime in the Belleville area.

The activities gain encouragement from the Hastings County board of education, which allocates school quarters as "prime" clubs through the city's recreation committee.

The association also is active in community affairs — participating in Santa Claus parades, and winter carnivals, entertaining at municipal and nursing homes for the aged. Some 90 per cent of the youngsters enrolled in the city's school for the mentally retarded also are given instruction in square dancing.

The square dance movement is organized on the basis of experience, members moving up through its groups as they qualify.

Popularity in square - dancing is widespread.

So much so, expert callers for a jamboree like the Belleville event, must be booked from three to four years in advance, said a Quinte Twirlers' organizer.

Saturday night's jamboree was the fourth of its kind for the Twirlers'. Launched as a Centennial year project in 1967, it proved so popular it's been an anual event ever since.

Tender Call Postponed On NE Sanitary Sewer

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Tenders for the construction of the proposed new million-dollar sanitary sewer up the bed of the Moira River will not be called by the Ontario Water Resources Commission until November.

This means that the riverbed section of the sewer from Dundas Street to College will not be commenced this year, although the Canifton Road section could conceivably be started this fall with construction continuing during the winter.

At one time it was hoped that the entire sewer could be completed by the end of this year.

Construction of the riverbed sanitary sewer has been in the planning stage for more than two years.

Originally it was to be a 100 per cent city project to provide sewer service for the city's northeast industrial park area and for Hillcrest.

But then the Ontario Water Resources Commission ruled that sewer service should also be provided for parts of Thurlow township immediately north of the city.

This called for provision of a larger capacity sewer than was planned by the city and the OWRC offered to build the sewer and recover costs on a use basis, charged to the two municipalities.

The OWRC already owns and operates the city's Foster Ward sewage treatment plant, where an addition and secondary treatment facilities are being provided at a cost of close to $2 million. Sewage from the river trunk sewer would be treated at the Foster Ward plant on the city's bay front.

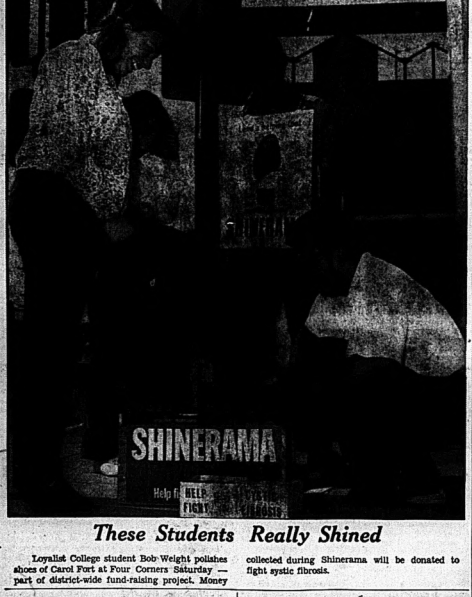
Plans call for a 42-inch sewer up the river from Dundas Street to College where it will leave the riverbed and continue north along Canniffon Road to Adam Street and eventually under Highway 401 into Thurlow township.

It is the section from College Street to Adam Street on which construction work could be continued during the winter months. Construction of the riverbed section would commence next spring.

The city has awarded a contract for the construction of the sanitary sewer from Canniffon Road along Adam Street. This sewer will be the connecting link between the Canniffon Road trunk sewer and the industrial park area.

A storm sewer will be provided along Adam Street with both pipes to be buried in the same trench.

But the delay in awarding the contract for the riverbed trunk sewer has necessitated a design change for the outlet at Dundas Street.



Originally it was the intention to bring the sewer out of the river just north of the new Dundas Street bridge and run it to the Front Street pumping station beneath the eastern approach to the bridge.

But with the sewer contract not to be let until November this would hold up work on the bridge approach which is now under way.

So that the Dundas Street reconstruction would not be held up, the OWRC authorized the city to call separate tenders for the section of the outlet sewer which was to go under the bridge approach.

But contractors' bids were nearly four times the estimated cost and the sewer will be redesigned to continue underneath the new Dundas bridge.

In this way the bridge approach can be completed this fall as scheduled and the riverbed sewer can later be constructed under one contract.

Fishermen Drown In Trent Canal

Police say no inquest will be held into the deaths of two Toronto men who drowned Saturday when their small boat tipped over in the Trent Canal at Glen Ross.

Police conjecture that both men may have made repeated attempts to scramble up a wall fronting the canal near the Glen Ross lock, but were unable to find a hold on its smooth cement surface.

Both men had been spending the weekend near the Trent River — Mr. Hardy and his wife Linda, with relatives at Glen Ross and Mr. Unger at his cottage near Campbellford.

Police say the men set out fishing about 6.30 p.m. in a 12-foot aluminum boat, powered by a six-horsepower motor.

Shirley Towes, Glen Ross lockmaster, said when both men failed to return after dark, Mr. Hardy's father-in-law Herbert Payne went searching for them along the river.

About 11.30 p.m. he called on Mr. Towes for help and both men spotted the upturned boat near the lock almost immediately after.

Provincial police sent skin-divers to comb the canal bed at daybreak and the bodies were discovered shortly after.

A Final Farewell

Servicemen staged a farewell tribute to former defence minister Leo Cadieux at CFB Trenton Sunday night as he departed Canada as ambassador to France. Mr. Cadieux, his son Fabrice in background — strode to waiting jet transport between guard of honor after presentation of gifts by Gen. F. R. Sharp, chief of defence staff.

Trenton Bids Adieu to Cadieux

TRENTON (Staff) — For a brief few moments last night Canada's armed forces were betrayed into revealing the sentimental side of the services.

The contrast with the military image of guarded aloofness came with the departure of former defence minister Leo Cadieux as he embarked here for Europe — and his post of Canadian ambassador to France.

To bid farewell to their former chief, the services marshalled an event that combined the personal touch with the military ritual.

On his arrival shortly after 8 p.m. aboard an executive jet from Ottawa, Mr. Cadieux was met by Gen. F. R. Sharp, chief of defence staff.

In an informal ceremony the general presented Mr. Cadieux with a silver tray, engraved with crests of all Canadian services commands, and a framed scroll.

The gifts, Gen. Sharp told him, were a gesture of "sincere thanks for everything you have done for us."

Mr. Cadieux called the presentations the "most moving memories" he had ever received — reminders of "so many movements we have had in the last five years together."

Mr. Cadieux was a government defence spokesman during a period of revolutionary change for the armed forces. He was associate minister for two years before becoming defence minister in September 1967.

Unification and a de-emphasis of Canada's NATO role were among the controversial issues involving the armed services during that time.

Mr. Cadieux referred indirectly to those years when he noted they were sometimes tough and difficult.

But, he added, "I believe out of all this the forces have come out stronger, more unified, if possible more dedicated to the tasks that have been assigned to them by the Canadian government."

The armed forces, he said, are a "community that is at times misunderstood by the outside world, but one in which one is very privileged to serve."

Following the presentations, Mr. Cadieux, his wife, and eight - year - old son Fabrice, were escorted to the base tarmac to board a regular Transport Command jet, flying service personnel to Lahr, West Germany.

Assembled before the aircraft were the base band and a guard of honor.

The band struck up Auld Lang Syne as Mr. Cadieux and his family strode between the servicemen to board the waiting jet.

As yet, no defence ministry replacement has been named for him. C. M. Drury, treasury board president, is handling defence duties in the interim.

LUCKY THIRTEEN
IF YOU do your bit, the 13 AGENCIES who combine in the Belleville and District United Appeal are going to be lucky. They are going to receive enough to carry on.
IF THEY are very lucky, they may even get enough to do a first class job
BUT THIS will depend on you.
TO SERVE the community fully, they need at least 18% more.
THE THIRTEEN AGENCIES don't trouble you thirteen times by having thirteen campaigns. They only have one. And this is it.
BUT REMEMBER, each dollar you give has to be split thirteen ways — that's only seven cents apiece.
DON'T LET them be an unlucky thirteen.
GIVE THEM AT LEAST TEN PER CENT MORE THIS YEAR.
IF YOU DON'T DO IT, IT WON'T GET DONE!

Quebec Renews Claim to Special Link with France

A Nation's Spirit

In Canada, as everywhere else, you can be sure of death and taxes. On top of these, however, Canada can boast of its swinging Prime Minister, its federal-provincial conferences and its interminable concern over the Constitution.

Now there are many of course who find it difficult to get excited about either Mr. Diefenbaker or his policies, but you have to admit he is a determined sort of fellow, a man of both grit and charm. And he is going to worry that constitution issue to the very end. Too much time and energy, he said at the conclusion of last week's conference, has gone into the constitutional review in the last three years to give it up now.

Alas, it only other aspects of our national policy in recent years had been accorded such promise of permanence. Remember the Arrow jet fighters that ended on the flying line, the Bomarc missiles, now of dubious effectiveness from a defence standpoint, and more recently the wild extravagance heaped on the aircraft-carrier Bonaventure only for it to be declared surplus to the country's needs and sold for scrap for less than a million dollars. But then, those were tangibles — and expendable, while a Constitution, well now, that is something we always have around, intangible though it may seem.

We shall always have it to play with, maybe even when all the members of the present government have passed on to another place. Meanwhile it is typical of our materialist mentality that, to quote the Canadian Press: "Practically all the other subjects discussed by the political leaders were closely related to money, including Ottawa's proposed changes in the Income Tax Act."

Typically, it is left to John Diefenbaker to call the nation, if not to arms, then to something above the tiresome matters of everyday life, above the materialist and non-intellectualism and the rush and the hustle and the alienation, to something of the spirit of it all.

Still looking forward at 75 — and we may expect some fireworks from the former Conservative chief when Parliament reopens in October — Mr. Diefenbaker said he'd want to see a committee of the House bring about a declaration of national goals — something to uplift the spirit of our young people, something to state the kind of life which the nation stands for . . . I fear more than anything else that our people are becoming crestfallen and are losing the sense of adventure to make this a great nation."

Well ahem . . . sense of adventure. Does it exist to any extent among Canadians these days? Adventure to those of us not on the picket line or not faced with the anti-war people, is often a comfortable chair in front of the television set. Yes, we would agree though, the country needs a greater sense of adventure and inspiration.

Still Active

Retirement nowadays is becoming something of a dirty word. People are living longer and the tragedy of many who do retire, giving up a lifetime's work in the process, is that they lose the vital interest and motivation that sustained them in the preceding years.

But more and more the skills of professional men are being recognized as a valuable asset in the community. Many are putting their knowledge and skill into further productive use in the Canadian Executive Service Overseas (CESO), and heading for India is CESO's service in Bombay, director Fred Beeby. A veteran of 43 years with Northern, Mr. Beeby has been personnel services manager of the Belleville plant since 1952, retiring from the position just last year. On October 1 he leaves for Hyderabad where he will advise the Allywn Metalworks Company, on methods of boosting production. The firm, which employs 8,000 workers, produces such items from refrigerators to steel furniture. Mrs. Beeby will accompany her husband and assist with secretarial duties.

By coincidence, while browsing through a 20 years ago column from this newspaper we found an item noting that Mr. Beeby had supervised installation of a new inter - communication system in the Bell Canada school. Since for reasons of space this item had to be left out of our Looking Backward column, we can make amends here.

Mr. Beeby will be officially "retired," but on completion of his mission to Hyderabad he may accept another CESO posting. He also hopes eventually to return to teaching here.

Working with the Beebys in India will be Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown. Mr. Brown is a former tool designer for Northern. What with the Beebys and the Browns and Canadian National Railways area manager Harry Fast, who has embarked on an advisory mission to Zambia, the Quinte area is well represented in these overseas fields.

Visitor Finds Ulster Quiet

Letter to Hamilton Spectator

Having recently spent a week of my vacation in the North of Ireland, I would like to put forward an impartial view of the conditions there.

I spent four days in Belfast and drove through the city at least six times. I also drove through five of the counties during my stay. In Belfast I saw only three soldiers in uniform, and an army Land Rover and two military trucks in County Down and met two on a road in County Fermanagh. At no time was I stopped by either police or military, and life in the city and country was going on as usual, with no evidence of religious warfare.

Imagine my surprise and anger when, waiting at the airport in Belfast for a return flight to Manchester, I read a front page article in the London Daily Telegraph in which the reporter described Belfast as a city of siege with barbed wire barricades and soldiers everywhere, and listed cities and districts everywhere." Nothing could have been further from the truth.

NDP's 'Waffle Group' Under Fire

Peterborough Examiner

As if the Ontario New Democratic Party did not have enough problems with the party's, or its present and future leaders' image, it seems that it is going to have more.

The present provincial party leader, Donald MacDonald, has no image at all. Stephen Lewis, one of the leadership candidates, has the image of a hotheaded reformer. Walter Pitman, the other leadership candidate, is known as a moderate.

General policy is a bit hazy, too. The two leadership candidates couldn't even get into a stimulating discussion about it in convince their own delegates about their own worth.

Now they have the Waffle Group, which is building up an image quickly. The only problem with it is that is the kind of image that the NDP can do without.

The Waffle Group is a faction within the party which is militant, socialist and nationalist and which, if it ever came to power, would nationalize just about everything.

Representatives of this group held a rally in Toronto last Sunday at which two speakers tried to convince a crowd of about 1,000 that they represent our real future. One was Hal Watkins, author of the well-known Watkins report on foreign ownership, the other was Cy Gonick a New Democratic Party MLA from Manitoba.

They provided the perfect example of how to cause controversy for controversy's sake. Or is it for the sake of the socialist cause?

They used the so-called Canada — U.S. energy deal as a pretext for showering their hitherto slight or non-existent slogans and for predicting a horrible future for all of us — unless we heed their advice.

Mr. Gonick called the government's natural resources policy a "boon job". United States a "resource glutton" and threatened that Canada will be unable to develop its own economy because we will be too busy supplying the U.S. with our resources. And of course he couldn't finish without mentioning the U.S. military-industrial establishment."

Mr. Watkins promised more "clarity" and declared that they "should fill every Canadian's dream."

They sound more like a nightmare.

This is the kind of sheer demagoguery that we can do without. This group, like many others, thinks Canadians can be synonymous with anti-Americanism. Instead of something positive, they use a lot of scare words and make dire predictions about American domination.

Today in History

Sept. 21, 1970 . . .

The loss of the Canadian destroyer Ottawa was announced 20 years ago today —in 1942—after a German submarine attack on an Atlantic convoy. The toll was 113 officers and men dead or missing. Also announced lost that week were the corvette Charlottetown with able seaman Leonard Pritchard Raccoon with 37 dead. The Ottawa was one of the six modern destroyers with which Canada entered the Second World War. She was one of the escort destroyers when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth crossed from Vancouver to Victoria during the 1939 royal tour.

Conservative Decline?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Political Parties representing a body of people should take into existence as a means of influencing the governing power. Too often the policy loses sight of its objectives in order to gain votes and then ends up out of existence. The Conservative party is a classic example.

The Federal Conservatives under Diefenbaker maintained a one nation idea. A split appeared to gain votes out of Quebec but in the process lost sight of its goal. Thus by trying to capture Liberal votes in Quebec the federal Conservatives became identified with the Lib-erals. The result was a resounding Conservative defeat on the Federal scene.

The provincial Conservatives under Leslie Frost are following a similar path. They are offering the citizens of Ontario variations of NDP and Liberal philosophies and we can likewise watch for the fall of the Ontario Conservative Party.

ROSS BAKER

Provinces at Issue on Trade

Winnipeg Free Press

While Canada's prime minister and premiers were engaged in a constitutional conference which reportedly got nowhere, a series of interprovincial trade blocks was threatening a breakdown of Canadian economic union that could seriously affect political union which was the conference concern. The trade war first at the moment affects only chickens and eggs, but if it is not dealt with promptly, it could affect other products also.

It started last spring when Quebec set up an egg-marketing board to encourage egg production in that province and maintain stable prices. The immediate result was to stop the flow of eggs into Quebec from other provinces, notably from Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia, all large exporters of eggs. The next step was the flooding of the Canadian market by Quebec broilers, sold at prices (in Manitoba, for example) that discriminated so that Manitoba producers out of business. But, since action taken by one province could be neglected by others, the issue has not been allowed to rest there. What has happened since is depressing.

A number of Quebec producers challenged the original action in a Quebec court, without success, and the issue will probably end up before the Supreme Court of Canada. Faced with this stalemate and a flood of Quebec broilers, B.C. retaliated by introducing permits for imported broilers — a move that reduced the inflow of broilers not only from Quebec but from other provinces and has had a particularly serious effect on Alberta. Alberta, in turn, asked Ottawa for Supreme Court ruling, but was told that this was impossible because the matter was before the Quebec courts. A week later Ontario introduced a plan similar to B.C.'s. Now, the Nova Scotia marketing board has recommended to the provincial government that the same type of action be taken there. Manitoba so far has taken no such extreme step but Premier Schreyer has written to Prime Minister Trudeau asking that the issue be dealt with by the Supreme Court without delay.

Obviously some action must be taken before the situation gets completely out of hand. This type of warfare can lead only to the economic balkanization of the country and is at odds with Section 121 of the British North America Act which stipulates that "all articles of growth, produce or manufacture of any one province shall . . . be admitted free into each of the other provinces."

Bantu Development

News from South Africa

Potentially all the Bantu peoples in the Republic and the native nations in South West Africa had an unobstructed road to self - rule before them, the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. M. C. Botha, said last week.

The minister, who was addressing the second Congress of the South African Bureau for Racial Affairs (SABRA), dealt with the institution of self-government in the Bantu homelands in the republic and in Ovamboland and said: The machinery of self-government is available to all, and the successful use of it depends on how effectively those concerned learn and are assisted to operate," he added.

The establishment of a political authoritative body and machinery for each Bantu population group had made it possible to institute a separate citizenship for each of these various political authoritative bodies and homelands so that citizenship could now be granted to every individual to identify himself as a Xhosa, Zulu, Venda, Shangaan or whatever the case might be.

This meant that the Government had succeeded in a relatively short time in building into effect machinery which not only extended a specific citizenship to everyone of the approximately 13-million Bantu people in the Republic, but also provided a framework to at least eight different future states within which they could fully develop.

With the establishment of bigger cities and townships in the Bantu homelands, the Department had taken the lead in reorganizing the required community facilities, recreation, sports clubs, library committees, creches, welfare organizations, etc. In this regard, Bantu authorities were closely incorporated in the whole process. As soon as the necessary machinery was in full force, the Department of Community Affairs of the various Bantu Territorial Authorities, would play an increasingly important role and would gradually perform more and more of these duties independently.

Joan Baez In UK

The Cult of Protest

Christian Science Monitor

"I don't think they understand that we have to face the cost of place tickets, somebody to look after the baby and all that sort of thing."

These were the words of Joan Baez, folk singer with a snippet of a voice and an outsized following, explaining back in trailer palatine and largely unconvincing circumstances, her tax exile and the honors of evasion. She was protesting the inconsiderateness of gaolcrashers, and of motorcycle cadres who made the closing of the Isle of Wight pop festival have something of a free-for-all. Here fee for her appearance was £26,000.

Miss Baez's remark about having to earn enough "to look after the baby" is characteristic of much of the unreality of the mass folk festival phenomenon. "Baby," most of the time, is the microphone and the big-earning performer, who would proclaim through such festivals the virtues of "the people" and simplicity, if not poverty, then utterly egalitarian sharing.

At the Isle of Wight festival off Southampton, England, was at least as big as last year's Woodstock in America. And for the most part, it was as peaceful.

What it proved again, with a quarter of a million in attendance, is that the festival's drawing power is matched by the magnitude of their vulnerability to manipulations for money, to drug associations, and even to vandals' vagaries, and to general disillusion.

"After our present trials will assuredly come victory," said His Majesty King George in broadcasting to the four corners of the world a message, reviewing the first year of the war. Speaking before a microphone in an underground shelter in a London Buckingham Palace while London was under an air raid alarm, His Majesty commended the people of a "new mark of honor for men and women in all walks of civilian life. They will be known as the George Cross. It will rank next to the Victoria Cross, which is unchanged, the warrior's valor which can be bestowed on men and women in civil life. The King disclosed that he had instituted a George Medal for gallantry, also representing a special word of gratitude to the men and women of the air raid precautionary services.

Old Soldiers Here on Weekend

In his 82nd year, Egerton Hiroock will be driving himself home to British Columbia from Belleville.

The round trip to Ontario is an excursion he's made frequently in the last 16 years.

But, he doesn't see it as an outstanding achievement.

The reason?

"I'm an old soldier," he says.

Now a retired Presbyterian clergyman, Rev. Hiroock also is a special brand of old soldier — a member of the 21st Battalion.

Over the weekend, Bellevillians had opportunities to catch a fleeting glimpse of the 21st's style of veteran warrior, as its members assembled in the city for their annual reunion.

In all, a total of 7,500 volunteers served with the 21st, formed in Eastern Ontario to help fight World War I.

Time has thinned the ranks of the men who survived the conflict, but, not apparently, their unique spirit.

Demobilized at the end of hostilities more than a half-century ago, they've been holding annual reunions since that time.

The Belleville event was their 53rd reunion and close to 100 of them mustered for the three-day program — an event which also provided occasions for comment on unique qualities that still bind the old soldiers in camaraderie.

"A toastmaster — and a veteran of World War II at the highlight banquet Saturday night — Ben Hoscher auditorium put it succinctly.

"It made have been a bloody good war," he told the surviving veterans of the 21st.

Guest speaker Lt. Col Adjun Duffy, also a World War II veteran, reminded the old soldiers that their battles generations ago were a watershed in Canadian history.

"You created Canada to establish its identity as a freedom-loving country, prepared to pay the price for freedom if necessary."

But fittingly enough, it was Rev. Hiroock, as one of the old warriors himself, who had among the last words.

"Age," he told a Sunday morning church service outside the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's armory, "is only relative. If you think you're young, you can be young."

Crowds Large

Members of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans, and of the Royal Canadian Legion paraded from the Cemetery gates to assemble in front of the Mausoleum where the address was given by Padre C. H. White, Base Chaplain (P) at CFB Trenton.

Veterans must continue an interest in the world about them, said Rev. Hiroock, who served in the 21st with his four brothers.

There is too much hate in a modern society in which people compete to "get ahead — regardless of whom they trample on," he said.

The church service was one of two public events in which the unit participated during the weekend. Saturday, they marshalled at the city cenotaph to lay a wreath in memory of the dead of both world wars.

The reunion was sponsored by the men and women of Belleville's Canadian Legion organizations — Branch 59 and the Col. Ponton Wills Branch 527.

Syrian Tanks Invade Jordan

in Beirut said it was Palestinian Liberation Army tanks which rolled into Irbid after completely liberating northern areas of Jordan.

The armored advance brought reinforcements to guerrillas already inside Irbid, with its narrow streets and white-stone buildings. Although much smaller than Amman, its capture last week gave the guerrillas a tremendous psychological boost.

Fierce fighting has been reported in the last few days as the guerrillas and the Jordanian army struggled for control of the strategic Irbid-Ramtha area through which the guerrillas funnel men and material to the south.

Smoke still hung over the Jordanian capital in Amman today as guerrillas and government soldiers continued to struggle for control of the city.

A pooled dispatch from foreign correspondents cooped up since Thursday in the Intercontinental Hotel in downtown Amman said King Hussein's army appeared to be winning the battle for the national capital.

But the guerrillas were still holding out defiantly, apparently hoping for Syrian intervention, the correspondents reported.

He reported the two tank forces were fighting at point-blank range, shooting over open sights and firing hundreds of shells in the 36-hour desert battle.

Hussaini, who watched the clash through binoculars a short distance away, said opposing tanks wheeled and lumbered through clouds of dust with both sides apparently inflicting heavy casualties.

The heat-exchanger is located between the combustion chamber and the chimney outlet. Hot waste gases from the combustion chamber pass through the heat-exchanger making it hot.

Cold room air passes over the heat exchanger on its way into the furnace and is pre-warmed. Because room air is now warmer, it takes less fuel to heat it again.

How much will you save?

That depends on how good or bad your old furnace is and the efficiency of the rest of the system. But experience has shown that a 15 year old furnace for example, runs at 65 to 70% efficiency. A new Shell Furnace can reach an efficiency of 80% in an ideal heating system. That means, that for each dollar you spend on oil for your old furnace, a new Shell Furnace can save you up to 18¢!

Now's the time to do something about your furnace.

That's right. Now that the heating season is over you should have your heating system checked by your local Shell Agent. If it's ready for replacement, he can arrange for installation during the warm weather without discomfort to your family. Call him today.

A new Shell Oil Furnace with the exclusive heat-exchanger is the best way to lower your heating costs and improve your winter comfort.

WEDDINGS

MR. AND MRS. JOHN POUND

Pound — Williamson

Peggy Williamson of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Williamson of White Fish Falls, was recently married to John Stanley Pound son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Casey of RR8, Belleville at St. Leonard's Anglican Church, Toronto.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Heather Rose as matron of honor and Mrs. Sharon Watson and Mrs. Ann Pyzer as bridesmaids. Best man was Donald Hopkins of Toronto and the ushers were Jim Kenny and Donald Shaver, also of Toronto. A reception was held at Fantasy Farms, Toronto. The couple will reside at Dixon Road, Toronto.

COCKING — IRVINE

A wedding of local interest took place in the setting of the Yonge lounge, Brock University, St. Catharines, Ontario, when Kellie Rose Irvine, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Irvine, of Otonawa became the bride of Mr. Ralph Roger Cocking, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ronald Cocking, of Flaherville, Ontario. The ceremony which took place at 8 p.m., was performed by the Reverend E. Anderson of Dundas, and the bride and bridegroom, were given in marriage by their respective parents.

The bride was attired in a sleeveless heavy white crepe dress, with a V neckline, the waist was fitted and accented with an inset of nylon shear, encrusted with crystals and white beads. She chose a white picture hat of mohair trimmed with a spray of orange blossoms and a froth of tulle veiling falling down the back to the hemline. Her nosegay was centred with a gardenia, surrounded with gladioli petals and sprigs of stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Rebecca Irvine, sister of the bride was junior bridesmaid. Her dress was of nylon shear in pale yellow, the bodice having a scoop neck of white embossed flowers. The skirt was accordion pleated, featuring a large matching bow. Her headdress was a bow of yellow corded ribbon with streamers trimmed with marguerites and her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

The reception was held in the dining room of the Guardsman Pen Centre, where the bride's mother greeted by the mother of the bride, wearing a coral ensemble of a sheath dress and coat, the stand up collar and front panels were trimmed with matching lace, and her corsage was a gardenia.

After a brief honeymoon, the couple will resume their studies at Brock University, in September.

HAMILTON — ARBUCKLE

Rev. G.W. B. Wheeler officiated at the ceremony in St. Nicholas Church, Scarborough recently when Anna Teresa Arbuckle, daughter of Mr. Arthur Arbuckle of Scarborough, and the late Mrs. A. Arbuckle was united in marriage to Garnet William Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hamilton, Trenton RR 5, Organist was Mrs. Marjorie Blair, who also accompanied the soloist David Taylor.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full-length sleeveless gown of white peau de sole enhanced with lace appliques with the bodice featuring a lace jacket. A flowing train extended from the back of the empire waistline. Her finger-tip veil was caught to floral headdress encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white shasta daisies.

William Marshall attended the bridegroom and the ushers were James Arbuckle, brother of the bride and Gordon Hamilton, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception at the Taylor O'Shea Golf and Country Club, the bride's aunt, Mrs. Lois Shorey was receiving mother who greeted the guests wearing an indigo blue dress with matching hat and a corsage of yellow roses and white carnations. Assisting, the mother of the bridegroom wore a royal blue suit with matching hat and a corsage of pink roses and white carnations.

Leaving on the wedding trip to points north the bride chose a white pique suit with vest top and long puffed sleeves, a loose pink floral design.

The couple will reside at 675 Stewart Street, Peterborough where both are attending the Peterborough Teachers' College.

MR. AND MRS. CARL VANSLYKE

Vanslyke — Shorey

Donna Rae Shorey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shorey of RR 2, Frankford became the bride of Carl Gordon Vanslyke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Vanslyke of RR 2, Stirling on September 5 at College Hill United Church. Rev. R. Vessey conducted the ceremony and Miss Marilyn Shorey of Mt. Zion was soloist accompanied by Mrs. Shirley Fisher, soloist provided music for the occasion.

The bride's floor-length gown of silk lagoda featured a wedding band collar and long puffed sleeves with a border of Alencon lace adnies accented with Alencon lace embroidery and daisies. The back of the bodice and the sides of the chapel train falling from the waistline featured two rows of daisies. Her four-tiered veil was of silk illusion and her headpiece of seamen bonvalis and seed pearls. She carried a crescent cascade of Woburn Abbey, sweetheart roses and ivy. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Maria Heasman as maid of honor wore a mint green gown of nylon chiffon over taffeta with an overnise lace around the stand-up collar, waistline and cuffs of the long, full sleeves. On her head was a cluster of mint green roses and seed pearls with a matching two-tiered silk illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of Woburn Abbey sweetheart roses.

Miss Eleanor Seaborn, Miss Sheila Kellar and Miss Marlene Tufts as bridesmaids were dressed identically to the maid of honor. Flower girl Miss Lisa Radford wore a gown identical to that of the maid of honor. Louis of Woburn Abbey ribbon adorned her hair and she carried a basket of Woburn Abbey sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Christel, Civil Defense convener read an interesting article regarding the preparation China is making in the event of a nuclear attack.

Mrs. Bristol also announced that Lt. Col. A. B. Duffy EMO co-ordinator will be the guest speaker at the October meeting.

The members voted to continue with the scholarships on the same basis as in previous years. Mrs. J. K. Bradford, the education convener will contact the schools.

Mrs. Kokesh announced that the semi-annual IODE convention will be held from Sept. 30-Oct. 1 at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa.

The Chapter is hosting a tea on Saturday, September 26 as part of the 60th anniversary celebrations at the home of Mrs. J. K. Bradford, 91 Victoria Ave. from 2-5 p.m. Tickets are available from members or at the door.

Women's Institutes

QUINTE WI

After partaking of a tasty dinner, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, the president conducted a short business period. There were 23 members and three visitors present. It was announced two wedding anniversaries during the past month of two of the members, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills, 55th anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedell's 50th Anniversary. She announced a district tea at Gilead Hall later in September also a euchre to be held in Memorial Hall in October.

Mrs. Mitchell closed the meeting and all visited Belleville's new industry the Constellation Canada Limited.

Members were welcomed by the staff after which they were divided into two groups and were guided through the plant and were shown in detail, the operation of the tremendous equipment. He explained and showed the washing and dyeing process and the stamping of all the different patterns and color on the large rolls of carpet going through the machines.

Mrs. John Hunter (nee Monica Sine) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edison Sine of Frankford graduated from St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu, Kingston. Prior to that, she graduated from Quinte Secondary School, Belleville.

Argyll Chapter IODE To Hold District Dinner

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter IODE was held last Wednesday in the Officers' Mess, Belleville Armoury with the Regent Mrs. H. L. Kokesh presiding.

The Regent opened the meeting and welcomed the members following their summer vacations.

A letter was read by the secretary Mrs. A. Gray from Mrs. Craik's secretary confirming her as the guest speaker at the Chapter's annual district dinner to be held in October, Mrs. Craik is the IODE Provincial President.

A substantial balance was reported by the treasurer Mrs. J. Sherry.

The Veterans Committee of Belleville has asked the Chapter to help in the transportation of Senior citizens on Decoration Day Sunday September 20. Several of the members volunteered to drive.

Mrs. A. B. Duffy reported that the next blood donor clinic would be held in October.

Raisin Salad

Youngsters usually like a salad made from grated raisins and apples. Let the raisins stand in boiling water for a few minutes to soften, the drain well and use.

Ann Landers

Reader Describes Pipe As 'Executive Nipple'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You've stated your opinion of clods who are forever blowing smoke into the faces of non-smokers. How do you feel about pipe smokers? Do they annoy you also?

My friend, a psychology major, claims pipe smokers are a unique breed, and they follow a definite personality pattern. She says they are basically insecure and in need of continuing reassurance — the result of not having been adequately loved by their mothers. She calls a pipe the "executive nipple." Will you venture an opinion on the subject? — SKEPTICAL IN COLORADO SPRINGS.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR SKEP: Pipe smokers do not annoy me. In fact, I find the aroma of most blends quite pleasant. As for the allegation that a pipe is "the executive nipple," both my Freudian and non-Freudian friends agree that a man who must have something in his mouth several hours a day, — be it a cigaret, a cigar or a pipe is substituting same for his thumb.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm another mother who also had "rotten luck" with a colicky child who later was classified in school, etc. The poor woman is probably guilt ridden and frantic. Maybe I can help her.

My son was just as bad as hers, maybe worse. He, too, was super-energetic, uncontrollable, impossible to handle. I had to do something because he was making a nervous wreck out of me and having a terrible effect on our other children.

I went to my doctor for help. He laughingly said, "You have a very peppy child on your hands," and gave me a book. It on discipline. I began to read everything I could find on hyperactive children. What I learned convinced me that my son's hyperactivity was a medical problem and I wasn't such a lousy mother after all.

I now know that hyperkinetic children have immature nerve endings within the brain which cause excessive and misdirected activity. Foods can be a great help. Pediatricians have also discovered that some hyperkinetic children are often highly allergic. In many cases, after the allergies have been pinpointed and shots given, the hyperactivity has disappeared entirely.

I am not ruling out counseling. Even though the root problem is not medical, the personality problems must be dealt with. Today I am confident that my son will grow up to be a normal adult — something I didn't believe possible a few years ago. — A THANKFUL MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: I have discussed hyperkinetic children in this column on several occasions and have repeatedly advised mothers of hyperactive youngsters to have them examined and tested by a specialist. The authorities with whom I consult say there is no clinical or laboratory evidence that the nerve endings in hyperkinetic children are abnormal. Nor do these children tend to be more allergic than other children. The brain of the hyperkinetic child can be compared to a revved up motor. All the parts are good, but the motor needs to be readjusted. These children often respond well to drugs. And you are right about counseling. Therapy is strongly recommended for most hyperkinetic children. They need emotional reassurance to cope with the transition from hyperactivity to normality. Thank you for writing and good luck to you and the boy.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RIVER VALLEY W.I.

RIVER VALLEY — Mrs. Stanley Irvin was hostess for the September meeting of River Valley Women's Institute with 28 in attendance. Mrs. Roy Tucker presided and various reports were given. Mrs. Norman Rosebush and Mrs. Ernest Carr were appointed leaders for the senior training class featuring "Desserts".

The 90th anniversary of the Women's Institute will be observed with a supper on Monday evening October 16 at 7 p.m. The River Valley W. I. has purchased a 50 piece set of dishes with name and crest to be used for special occasions. Mrs. Roy Bush donated the money to pay for the crests on the dishes. Mrs. Sheldon Mitchell will be hostess for the curator's meeting in October.

Mrs. Ross Bush convened the program and selections were read by Mrs. Gerald Brooks and Mrs. Alex Bush. Mrs. Phillip Conley provided piano music. A paper on the motto was prepared by Mrs. Donohoe and read by Mrs. George Grills.

President of Hastings West District Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey gave a message pertaining to the generation gap. She was introduced by Mrs. Vernon Harry, and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe voiced thanks and presented the speaker with a small gift.

Miss Jane Bush who attended the girls' conference at Guelph in July gave an interesting report of that meeting.

The hostess was presented with a birthday cake and the lunch committee served refreshments.

Successful Living

Young Woman Should Speak Up for Herself

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I met a young lady through a friend and since then we have gone out. She is one young lady who can't get along in drinking and we both get a little wasted. We have been staying together and then I went back home the next morning. You can figure what happened.

Then she was worried about what to tell these people where she was staying and we ended up going to see her parents.

The problem is I love her and asked for her hand, but these other people keep stepping in the way telling her what to say. Now she is pregnant and I'm not the type to run off.

I want a happy home with her and it won't be long before she will be out of work and no money. What should I do, if anything, to help her or to get us together? — Weary Jon

Dear Weary: Ask her point blank if she loves you. If she does, arrange to tie the knot as soon as possible. Never mind what others say or think. You are both of age.

If she herself honestly does not want to marry you, give up and let her solve her problem her own way. You don't want an unwilling bride.

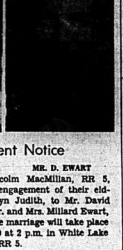
* * *

Dear Doris: Could you tell me if there is any way you can be sure before you marry, or is there always a certain amount of uncertainty?

I'm a person who is about to marry sometimes worries about finding someone else during his married life, does this indicate a lack of love? — Engaged.

Dear Engaged: So much enters into really knowing your own mind. A girl whose important decisions have been made for her by loving but too-protective parents may have trouble identifying love when it comes her way.

The truth is saints are very seldom sour; most of them are happy with a deep inner joy. I have seen many with radiant joyful faces. Occasionally they are sad. (They too are humans.) Laughter caused by a joke or by a professional entertainer is short-lived, but the joy of the soul is real and lasting.



And why should I not want to be a saint? Do you know that in the New Testament all true believers are called saints! May I say, I believe you are fair enough to admit your mistakes openly, publicly. — Joyful Reader

Dear Joyful: Couldn't agree more. I don't think the writer of that prayer meant to confuse a saint with a sour person. When he said that some saints are hard to live with, I believe he was thinking of a sort of pseudo-saint, who is proud of his own virtues and fails to make allowances for the human lacks of others.

Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that a stamped envelope!

The marriage will take place on Saturday, October 10 at 2 p.m. in White Lake United Church, Madoc, RR 5.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Peach Marmalade Stocks Jam Shelves

By MARY MOORE

Eleven 8-oz. jars of Peach Marmalade are glowing on our kitchen window sill made by my happy wanderer Marianne.

But the jam session was started by a letter from Isabell C. B., of Welburn, Saskatchewan last February. She had discovered a way to stretch the fruits that are so expensive on the Prairies and that letter has been in my "Try in September" basket ever since.

We have tested it (and how!) and want to thank Isabel C. B. for her ingeniousness. Marianne too, feels it is the beginning of stocking up her fruit shelves in their new home in Kingston.

PEACH MARMALADE
(11 eight-oz. jars)

4 washed, quartered and seeded med. oranges
2 cups water
3 med. carrots
4½ cups peaches scalded, peeled and sliced (7¼ cups)
½ cup lemon juice
8 cups sugar
1 bottle liquid pectin (Certo)

Put through food chopper the quartered oranges and carrots. When they were combined I had three cups of these two ingredients. Turn them into a large (not enamel) kettle, add the water and boil gently while you peel the peaches. Take note of the time the mixture starts boiling. Scald peaches in boiling water and peel and slice and measure. Add to oranges and carrots in kettle along with lemon juice and boil gently stirring until carrots are tender. Ours required 45 min. cooking in all, but the tenderness of the carrots is the test. Have ready your sterilized jam jars with lids and some melted paraffin. Pour marmalade from a pitcher with broad lips to fill jars within ¼" of tops. Cover with ¼" layer of hot new paraffin and put on clean lids. Wash, dry, cool and label.

Serve on toast next winter.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I ran next door for just a few minutes to borrow some sugar while little Danny was taking his nap. He woke up and climbed out of his bed and turned on the stove burners. Scared on half to death."

Statistics show a majority of the children are burned occur when there is no adult in the house.

Never underestimate the ability of young children to get into dangerous situations. An important rule: Never, never leave them alone in the house. They will take advantage of any opportunity to investigate forbidden dangers.

Microwaves Feared

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Microwaves, a major technological tool of modern communications, may be joining oil and mercury as prominent pollutants of the 20th century, says Dr. Robert Doyle, head of the biology department at the University of Windsor.

Dr. Doyle said microwaves have been found to have an effect upon watery tissues of the body, giving an effect similar to a heavy prolonged fever.

Benson Promises Dollar Will Be Pegged in Year

BRUSSELS (CP) — Finance Minister Benson of Canada told finance ministers of nine other leading International finance countries Saturday that Canada will re-peg the dollar, perhaps within one year.

Benson was elected chairman of the so-called Group of Ten. It acts as an informal executive committee for the International Monetary Fund, opening its annual meeting today in Copenhagen, and the 16 stand by to back the IMF substantial sums in times of international money crises.

While Canada is odd-man-out at this IMF meeting, the only nation not now observing a fixed exchange rate for its currency within the international club, Benson was reported by Canadian sources to have told his colleagues Canada will get back into line by the time they meet again next fall.

Canadian authorities want a period of stability in international markets and see new foreign trade trends firmly established before moving back to a pegged currency.

The dollar was pegged at 92.5 cents to United States funds until June 1, when it was set free to float, and it moved close to par last week.

One leading Canadian delegate was reported to have told his counterparts in the other nine countries that Canada has no intention of leaving the dollar floating for another 11 years as it did last time.

Bell Increase Opposed

CHAPLEAU, Ont. (CP) — A bid by Bell Canada to raise its service rates by 6¼ per cent was under fire at a resumed meeting of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves.

Port Hope Mayor Mike Wadyka, association president, said his organization has decided, jointly with the Ontario Municipal Association, to hire legal counsel to fight the Bell rate increase.

He said requests for action had been received from 30 municipalities, representing half the population of Ontario. The association will demand the increase be justified.

Jumbo Jets Tear Sky Apart

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has discovered that wingtips of the new jumbo jets can create tornado-like winds in the sky capable of tearing apart light aircraft and hurling other jetliners toward the ground.

The potential hazards of the funnel-shaped winds spinning off the wings of the Boeing 747s and military C-5As has been underrated, said Federal Aviation Administration officials familiar with a series of flight tests now being concluded.

The tests showed, for example, that the swirling winds trail behind the huge planes for many miles and do not readily dissipate at high altitudes. They disclosed, too, that the invisible turbulence can endanger passenger airliners as well as small planes.

Because of the wind-called wake turbulence or wingtip vortices—the FAA has ordered a five-mile spacing at all times between the giant jets and aircraft weighing less than 300,000 pounds.

There have been no cases reported of planes crashing after flying into the turbulence generated by the jumbo jets.

However, records compiled by the national transportation safety board from 1964 through 1969 reveal 98 cases where wake turbulence generated by smaller jetliners was a cause or contributing factor in crashes of light aircraft.

These crashes caused 38 deaths and 54 serious injuries.

Wingtip vortices have been a recognized phenomenon for years. All planes cause them to some degree. But, said Richard Slff, deputy director of the FAA's flight standards service: "We didn't know the extent of the turbulence until we undertook this testing program. We were fully aware of wake turbulence but we didn't know its intensity."

The tests showed that small aircraft which penetrate the wingtip vortices within three miles of the giant aircraft can be forced into a sudden roll of 75 degrees.

"In other words," said the FAA's William F. Flener, director of air traffic service, "what we're saying is that under certain circumstances a light aircraft would break up structurally."

However, the FAA's chief of regulation and procedures, Robert Martin, said he does not believe that a plane flying into a powerful vortex would break up. But he does foresee a danger of crashing.

SST said: "The plane would be thrown out of the vortex by the outer winds before it would be torn apart."

This is disputed by a safety board official who recalls that as far back as a dozen years a light plane was literally ripped apart in the air over Delaware when it struck the vortices of a jet bomber.

Belch Peewees Better Late Than Never

Belch Construction peewees came back in startling fashion Saturday to square their OASA semi - final series at one game apiece. The Belleville Club came up with five runs in the final inning to wipe out a 7-3 lead by North York and take the win.

The Toronto team had opened the series with an 8-5 victory in Belleville last Saturday.

Belleville's big rally came in the seventh inning as Paul Murray and Brian Roach singled and Al Wall loaded the bases. Ross Lawrenson clobbered a triple and Peter McBride sacrificed, scoring the winning run.

Belleville managed only five hits off a pair of North York hurlers. Lawrenson showed the way with a triple and single, while Murray, Vanchesand McBride collected the other safeties.

Robert Chase worked five innings on the winners' mound, giving up nine hits, fanning one and walking two batters. Paul Wilson finished up, allowing two hits and getting a pair of strikeouts. He didn't walk a man.

The third and deciding game is slated for next Saturday, in Cobourg at 3 p.m.

Good Old Days

Antique gun fancier Reg. Asselstine was the centre of attention Saturday at a turkey shoot at the Sidney Township clubhouse of Belleville 418 Wing, RCAF Association. Asselstine, who is interested in forming a club of fellow muzzle-loading enthusiasts, fired his replica of a Kentucky long rifle of 1830 vintage. The 32-inch barrel for the gun had to be specially purchased in the United States, while Asselstine fashioned the maple stock himself. The demonstration highlighted the event, during which 30 prize turkeys were won, and dozens of barbecued ears of sweet corn and hot dogs were consumed.

Longshots Pay At Fairgrounds

Longshots were in order at the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's Saturday night harness card with a number of lightly - regarded horses finishing in the winner's circle.

Jim Cochrane produced a double win reining Marry Boy to a win in the seventh and taking Tip Cee Chief to the fastest mile of the night in 2:11.3. Norm Edward's Smoker Valley collected his seventh win of the season as he took top spot in race number five.

Wann by Wayside

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Commander Dell, owned by John C. Hayes of Oshawa, Ont., turned in a 2:03 effort to win the 15,000 Invitational Pace at Batavia Downs Saturday night. He paid $8.00.

Driver Serge Dubord took the seven - year - old chestnut gelding to the top at the three-eighths pole and beat Adios Wilbo by 1¾-lengths with T. R. Maynard listed.

R. Yankee Wann, owned by Campbell Wannamaker of Cresaptown, Ont., and winner of the last two Invitationals, finished fourth.

Goyer Having Ball at Plate

Supporters of Kingston's Lakeview Centennials senior baseball entry would like to permanently adopt Belleville recruit Gary Goyer . . . and has bat.

Goyer had a four - for - five day at the plate Saturday as the Centennials downed Ottawa Sooners 8-5 to win their best - of - three Ontario Baseball Association quarter-final series two games to one.

Goyer's two doubles and pair of singles gave him a 10 - for - 14 record in the three games with Ottawa.

He added a pair of doubles in a losing cause Sunday as Kingston dropped a 6-4 decision to Orillia Majors in the opening game of the OBA semi - finals.

The series will be decided in Orillia next Sunday, with a doubleheader to be played if necessary.

Bowerman Paid

Fellow Canadian tour member George Knudson won the $50,000 first prize, beating George Archer in a sudden-death playoff after the two finished the 72 holes tied at 269.

Pattern Broken

Napanee and Campbellford finally broke the marathon pattern of their OASA quarter-final playoff series Saturday as Napanee coming up with a 7-5 win to take the best-of-three series in the deciding game.

Campbellford had won the first game 1-0 in 18 innings, with Napanee rebounding to win 3-1 in a 19 - inning second game.

Napanee now advances to semi-final competition against Merlin, with the first game in Napanee next Saturday at 8 p.m.

Playing Cosy

Cosy Grill battled back with a pair of weekend wins to square their Women's Softball league series at three games apiece.

The Cosy Grill girls hurdled Dairy Queens a 13-7 loss with an 8-2 Sunday win.

Final games of the series will be tomorrow night at the Alemite, beginning at 6 p.m.

Fairways Don't Want Big First-minute Rush

Belleville Fairways' coach Floyd Crawford wants to avoid the first-minute rush of the annual Junior B training camp and has called a registration meeting for Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the Memorial Arena lobby.

"I think we could have more than 40 boys out for our camp and it would be a good idea to find out who they are and what positions they play before they get on skates," Crawford explained.

Boys under 20 years of age by December 31 are eligible to try out for the Junior B's who hope to open training camp within a week. "That would give them almost a full month before they open their 30-game schedule with a Sunday, Oct. 25 game at home against Oshawa Cruikmont.

RON JURY

Crawford plans to break the tryouts up into two squads and start making cuts immediately.

With the exit of overage players and out-of-town residents from last year's fourth-place finishers in the six-strong Eastern Ontario Junior B group, the newly-named Fairways are left with only five holdovers.

"But they're good ones," Crawford pointed out. Goalie Ron Jury, defencemen Kevin Dockriff and John Mahrhill, and forwards Danny Lepenetis and Terry Haughton are still eligible for Junior hockey.

Crawford says the midgets he borrowed during the 1949-50 season "all have a good shot at making the club."

Waterdown's Luck Runs Out

Thurlow's Foster peewees, who had never managed to eliminate Waterdown from OBA playdowns competition, accomplished the feat twice this season.

After the Thurlow team had apparently won their semi - final series on a forfeited game, the OBA upheld a protest by Waterdown and forced Fosters to meet Waterdown Saturday for the second game of their series.

Thurlow left no doubt this time, handing the visitors a 6-3 loss and advancing to the Ontario "C" division finals.

Bruce McConnell was the winning pitcher, getting relief help from Ted Foster. Between them they gave up five hits and fanned six Waterdown batsmen.

McConnell lined two singles for the winners with Bill Arthurs slamming a double. The other hits went to Ted Foster and Farley Vader.

Merchants Sold Out

The Thurlow Merchants were nipped at the wire Saturday in their OBA Bantam C semi - finals series, losing a 4-3 contest to Hagarsville. The winners scored the deciding run with two out in the bottom of the ninth to take the final game of the three-game series.

Hagarsville had opened with a 16-7 victory, while the Merchants scored an 8-4 win in the second contest.

John Masterson allowed nine hits in absorbing the loss. He struck out ten batters and walked four.

David Dent, the Thurlow lead - off batter was responsible for all three Merchant scores.

Masterson added his own cause with a pair of singles, with Dale Tummon getting a triple and Mike Graham a double. Other hits went to Don Peter Tummon and Barry Ray.

Ingram, Jones Win Last Draw

DAVE JONES

Jones shot a 75 Saturday to top the men's field, while Mrs. Ingram's 79 Sunday marked her club tournament win of the season.

The best net round in the top flight went to Max Haggarty with a 69-stroke total. In second spot was Marco Mav (70), while Paul Henderson (71) took third.

Best gross score in "B" flight was Jack Asselstine's 81 with Stan Reston finishing one stroke back. John Coe and Gord Bell trailed Asselstine by a pair of strokes.

Four golfers finished in a tie for the low net as Cliff Dell, Bill Falwell, Gord Graham and Dan Mahovey all recorded 71's.

In "C" flight Harry Hurst captured low gross honors with a round of 88 and Steve Bakey's 72 was good enough to tie Dave Chalmers for the best net round.

Stargell's Haymaker Staggers Mets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

One banner—among the many strung out along the facades of Three Rivers Stadium—told it like it was for the New York Mets.

"Down, but Not Out!" was the brave message.

Then Willie Stargell landed a 450-foot haymaker and Pittsburgh Pirates left baseball's defending world champions reeling in the National League East Division race.

But Stargell's tape-measure homer ignited a four-run explosion in the 10th inning of the nightcap, powering the division leaders to a 9-3 victory that kept the third-place Mets 3½ games off the pace with just nine to play.

Stargell's 21st homer helped account for a two-game split between the Pirates and runner-up Chicago Cubs, who blew a 6-4 decision at Montreal as the Expos stunned the Cubs with a four-run eighth-inning rally keyed by Ron Fairly's disputed double.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies tripped St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 in 10 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Houston Astros 7-6 in 14 and Atlanta Braves ripped Cincinnati Reds 11-2. San Diego Padres and San Francisco Giants were idle.

Pittsburgh nipped New York 2-1 and Chicago downed Montreal 8-4 in games played Saturday. In other action, Philadelphia defeated St. Louis 10-6, Los Angeles tripped Houston 8-5, Cincinnati won 7-4 over Atlanta and San Francisco swamped San Diego 3-0.

Koosman, retired the first 15 batters he faced, gave up a sixth-inning load off homer by Jose Pagan and limited the Pirates to an eighth-inning single by Stargell to end a four-game Mets losing streak.

The Pirates obediently rocked Tom Seaver for nine hits and five runs in the 9 1-3 innings he lasted. The 1969 Cy Young Award winner, who had won just two of 11 starts since Aug. 6, departed to a chorus of jeers from the 4 s o n d i g h Shea crowd of 54,000.

Following Seaver's earliest exit of the season, the Mets carried a 5-3 deficit.

The Cubs, who had won three straight at Montreal, built a 4-2 lead in the nightcap by Billy Williams, Jim Hickman and Joe Pepitone, then folded in the eighth and Randy Hundley was under protest.

After the Expos cuffed Phil Regan for one run on successive singles by Jim Gosger, Rusty Staub and Bob Bailey, Leo Durocher called Ferguson Jenkins, his top starting pitcher from Chatham, Ont., out of the bullpen to hold the line.

The Cubs claimed a ball boy touched Fairly's drive in the right field corner, making it an automatic ground-rule double that would have scored only one run.

"I went after the ball and the kid kicked it," said Cu'e right fielder Johnny Callison.

"I don't think he kicked it," c o u n t e r e d Jimmy Bragan, Montreal's first base coach. "Durocher hasn't a chance of winning the protest. It was an umpire's judgment call."

Jim Hutt's tie-breaking pinch double keyed a three-run flurry in the 10th that sent the Phillies past St. Louis for their fourth straight victory.

Billy Grabarkewitz t r i p l e d home the tying run and scored on Manny Mota's pinch single in the 14th as the Dodgers extended their winning string to three games.

Twins Shrink Magic Number

Minnesota's Bert Blyleven uncorked a three-hitter as the Twins chopped Chicago White Sox 8-1 and outfielder Alex Johnson helped California A's gels cut down Oakland Athletics 4-3 Sunday, reducing the Twins' magic number to two in the American League West Division race.

The 194 innings, the 18-year-old Blyleven, a right-hander, has issued only 41 walks while striking out 132. He's 10-8 on the season.

J o h n s o n, California's bullstrong leftfielder, pounded his 16th homer in the seventh to tie the game 3-3 and then singled and scored the go-ahead run in the Angels' two-run ninth.

Tony Oliver became Baltimore Orioles' third 20-game winner, blanking Cleveland Indians 7-0, homer power pulled Boston Red Sox over Washington Senators 3-1, New York Yankees topped Detroit Tigers 5-1 with the long ball and Milwaukee Brewers squeezed by Kansas City Royals 4-3 in the AL's other Sunday games.

Boston swept a doubleheader from Washington Saturday, 7-3, 11-3, while New York defeated Detroit 7-6, Kansas City downed Milwaukee 4-1, Oakland clipped California 5-1, Cleveland took the measure of Baltimore 4-2 and Minnesota dropped Chicago 8-1.

Belanger singled to launch a two-run first, tripled home two runs in the second, singled in another tally in the fourth and scored his third run after banging a seventh-inning single.

Palmer's success marks the first time in 14 years that one staff has produced three 20-game winners. The last to accomplish the feat were Cleveland's Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Herb Score in 1956.

Phil Roof's squeeze bunt in the sixth sent home pinch-runner Russ Snyder with the deciding run in Milwaukee's victory over Kansas City.

Ickx First at Mont Tremblant, Reluctant to Chase Title

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (CP) — Jacky Ickx, a 26-year-old Belgian who drives for the Italian Ferrari motor-racing team, won the Grand Prix of Canada Sunday and moved a notch closer to a world title he seemed reluctant to chase.

For the first 32 of the 90 laps around twisting, bumpy Le Circuit, Ickx trailed reigning world champion Jackie Stewart whose faster Tyrrell Ford was gaining a second a lap on the Belgian.

Then the Scot's front stub axle broke and Ickx took the lead, never to be headed.

If Ickx wins the remaining two events of the globe-trotting 12-race series for Ferrari sports cars, he can take the world driver's title.

Until his death early this month while practising for the Italian Grand Prize at Monza, German driver Jochen Rindt seemed headed for the title. He had amassed 45 points in nine Grand Prix wins.

Just behind were Stewart and Australian Jack Brabham with 35 points apiece. But Stewart's mechanical trouble and Brabham's failure to finish in a car of his own design shut them both out.

With his Canadian win, Ickx now has 28 points. If he wins the Oct. 4 Grand Prix of United States at Watkins Glen, N.Y., and the Mexico Grand Prix Oct. 25, he can just make it.

Championship points are awarded for the first six drivers in any race on a 9-6-4-3-2-1 basis.

Ickx drove the 238.5-mile race at an average speed of 101.27 miles an hour. He won $20,000 in prize money and the Firestone Award, the second time he has won it after his Grand Prix win last year at Monsport, Ont.

Although the Belgian has a shot at the 1970 world title, he is not keen on the prospects.

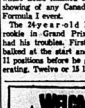
"I'm still saying Jochen Rindt has to be world champion," he said after the race. "I don't want to think about winning the next two races."

It was a big day for Ferrari, coming back now into world contention after nine years in motorsport doldrums. Ickx's Swiss teammate Clay Regazzoni followed him across the finish line in an identical machine just 14.6 seconds later.

Ferrari now has had three straight wins in this season's Formula 1 series.

Regazzoni also set a lap record of one minute, 32.2 seconds around the 2.65-mile track, shattering the 1:32.8 mark set last year by New Zealander Denis Hulme in a McLaren sports-racing car.

Five other drivers also lowered Hulme's mark.



Ickx made it in 1:32.6. Frenchman Francois Cevert in a British BRM, had 1:33.2, and Fifth-place finisher was John Surtees of Britain, clocked at 1:33.6.

The 24-y e a r-o l d Eaton, a rookie in Grand Prix racing, had his troubles. First his car balked at the start and he lost positions before he got it operating. Twelve or 15 laps from the end he was overcome with cramps in both forearms.

The Circuit, whose roughness has been the target of driver complaints this summer, came in for some criticism from the Grand Prix pilots.

Ickx said it was so rough it was "tiring physically." Stewart said his broken stub axle would not have happened "if it hadn't been a bumpy track."

Als Use Legal Aid to Stun Argos, Take Over First Place

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

R George Springate's rookie season in the Quebec national assembly is as successful as his Eastern Football Conference debut, the Montreal lawyer could be provincial premier in short order.

The recently-elected Liberal member for Montreal Ste. Anne's, signed four years ago to cure Montreal's placekicking ailments, kicked 11 points Sunday in the Alouettes' 36-17 victory over Toronto Argonauts.

The former McGill University player and undercover police agent contributed three field goals, two of which came in the first quarter as the Als trailed 7-6 before taking a 13-7 halftime lead.

His third-quarter field goal gave Montreal a 16-7 lead heading into the final 15 minutes of the game.

Springate's two converts gave Montreal a 16-7 lead heading into the final 15 minutes of the game.

Sunday over the 25-36—Ti Crawford County Country Club course, standard in 36-hole weather.

The gangling Archer, without victory since the 1969 Masters, and the gritty Canadian golfer who had not won since taking the Phoenix and Tucson opens in succession in 1968, were in the same threesome for the entire day. And both were victory hungry.

"I've found out what I've been doing wrong since the Bob Hope tournament in February," said Knudson after it was all over. "But I'm not going to say what.

"I've won 10 tournaments in nine years on the tour, and in all but one I've had to come off the pace.

Archer took a three-stroke lead over Knudson with a morning 68 for 202 while Knudson had a 69.

Then Knudson caught fire. He had six birdies on the front side starting the last round, on putts of up to 20 feet, and a 35-foot chip that went in. His 29, to Archer's five 32, tied them at the 63-hole mark.

On the 4-0 playoff 22nd, both were on in regulation. Archer 25 feet away and Knudson 14. Archer three putted, missing from about two feet on his last try. Knudson had a cool par four, and the marathon was done for Archer collected $11,600 for second.

Springate was selected from among several placekicking hopefuls following a special training session after head coach Sam Etcheverry lost faith in Herm Gubbins.

After a slow start, in which his early field-goal efforts were smothered, Springate found the range with two in a 17-13 loss at Hamilton Sept. 7.

Since then, he has been consistent when called upon.

In other EFC weekend action, Ottawa Rough Riders came up with a superb defensive effort Saturday, while defeating the visiting Calgary Stampeders 9-1. The victory kept Ottawa two points back of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto, who trail Montreal by two.

The Calgary loss was their second of an Eastern swing by the Western Football Conference club, leaving it in a second-place tie with British Columbia Lions, six points behind Saskatchewan Roughriders.

At Toronto, running back Dick Smith caught two eight-yard scoring passes from quarterback Sonny Wade, who contributed a single. Springate converted both Smith touchdowns.

Flanker Jim Thorpe came up with two scoring catches on passes, including an electrifying 75-yard play. Quarterback Don Jonas converted both and added a field goal.

"I told you before the season started we had a helluva team," said Montreal flanker Terry Evanshen, held in check during the game by another speedster, Toronto's Jim Tomlin.

Six interceptions added to the excitement at CNE stadium with Montreal's Al Phaneuf, last year's EFC rookie of the year, snaring two Jonas passes, Veteran Gene Gaines and Don Davis also intercepted Toronto aerials while Tom Sutherin and Dick Aldridge did likewise against Wade.

Montreal, which led in first downs 23-19, also had the game's top rusher in Moses Dampson who ran 82 yards on 15 carries. Thorpe topped the pass receivers with 114 yards on four catches.

Montreal's over-all offence was 466 yards to 413 for Toronto.

At Ottawa, before 23,813 fans, the Rough Rider defence contained the Stampeders in such a degree, Calgary coach Jim Duncan commented after the game: "I'll probably go home and get fired."

Jerry Campbell, replacing all-star Ken Lehmann at middle linebacker, contributed an impressive end Joe Vijuk to pressure Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling into several key miscues.

The game's only touchdown was scored by Ottawa's Billy Cooper, who worked himself into the clear for a pass from quarterback Gary Wood. Ivan MacMillan converted and added a single. Bill Van Burkleo's punt single accounted for the other Rough Rider point.

Larry Robinson's wide field-goal effort from 30 yards out was conceded by Ottawa to gain a better field position. It was the only thing the Riders did concede to Calgary in the game.

Herm Harrison, Stampeder's tight end, went over it the third quarter but was called for offensive pass interference. Rough fullback Dave Cranmer snared a Keeling pass in the Ottawa end zone but collided with the goalpost at the same instant and lost the ball.

Devlin Wins Alcan Crown

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland (AP) — Bruce Devlin, 32-year-old Australian golf star, picked up a check for $55,000 today and said: "Well, that's how lucky you can get if you conquer the winds and the rain of Ireland."

Devlin won the prize money over Portmarnock's 7,117-yard, par-72 course by conquering the winds from the Irish Sea and the rain that plagued the Alcan golfer of the year championship.

Bob Rosburg of Winthrop, Mo. finished second with a score of 285—seven strokes behind Devlin. He collected $15,000 for that effort.

Devlin picked up his check with a 72 hole score of 67-71-75-68—281. Lee Trevino, El Paso, Tex., Neil Coles, England, and Peter Oosterhuis, England, all had 287s to win $5,833.

Knudson Survives 40-hole Marathon

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — George Knudson, Hathery 36-year-old Canadian, says his sensational, 11-hour, 40-hole marathon against George Archer to win the $180,000 Robinson Open Golf Classic broke "a seven-month famine of bad golf."

With the second round rained out, the final day of the tournament was packed for 8 holes

Howe on Defence as Wings Win

Detroit Red Wings started their National Hockey League exhibition season during the weekend by beating Punch Imlach's new Buffalo Sabres one night and the veteran New York Rangers the next.

With Gordie Howe playing defence, the Wings throttled the Sabres 7-3 in Port Huron, Mich. as Frank Mahovlich, Fred Speck and Al Karlander scored two goals each.

Nick Beech notched the other Detroit goal while Gerry Meehan and Howie Menard replied for the Sabres. Howe drew assists on Detroit's first three goals.

At New York Sunday, the Rangers fell 5-3 as Mahovlich, Gary Bergman and rookie Tim Wheeler scored second-period goals. Rich McCann and Pete Stemkowski counted Detroit goals in the third period.

Pierre Jarry and Don Blackburn were the New York marksmen as the Rangers played their third pre-season game without four front-line players — Jean Ratelle, Vic Hadfield, Walt Tkaczuk and Brad Park.

The four, suspended last week by general manager Emile Francis for refusing to play exhibition games until their contracts were settled, have called a news conference in Toronto today to announce latest developments in their negotiations.

In other games Saturday, Oakland Seals romped to a 4-1 win over Pittsburgh Penguins in Brantford, Ont., Vancouver Canucks, the other newcomer along with Buffalo, surprised Minnesota North Stars 5-3 in Calgary, and Montreal Canadiens took a 3-2 home-ice win over Philadelphia Flyers.

The Flyers did an about face in Quebec City Sunday, making a 2-0 first period lead stand up for a 4-2 victory over the Canadiens; St. Louis Blues blanked Pittsburgh 6-0 in Ottawa and Minnesota and Vancouver played to a scoreless tie in Winnipeg.

Carol Vadnais, Joe Hardy, Paul Andrea and Hillard Graves were the Oakland scorers in Brantford. Jim Morrison scored in the second period for Pittsburgh.

The Canucks, who had lost 3-1 to Minnesota Friday in their first NHL encounter, were paced by Ed Hatoum who had two goals. Wayne Maki, Garth Rimmer and Mike Corrigan also connected against the North Stars, who got goals from Danny Lawson, Buster Harvey and J. P. Parise.

Defenceman Jean-Claude Tremblay's third-period goal provided Montreal with its win. John Ferguson and Jacques Lemaire scored earlier for the Canadiens against Philadelphia. Bill Sutherland and Serge Bernier were the Flyers' scorers.

The third period developed into a brawl involving Claude Gauthier and Guy Lapointe of Montreal and Philadelphia's Garry Peters and goaltender Doug Favell.

Earl Heiskala and Peters scored first-period goals for the Flyers Sunday. Bobby Clark and Sutherland added third-period goals. Rejean Houle scored for the Canadiens in the second period and Leon Rochefort tallied late in the game.

Gary Sabourin, with two, Ab McDonald, Jim Lorents, George Morrison and Terry Crisp were the St. Louis scorers as Glenn Hall and Ernie Wakely registered the shutout.

Pittsburgh's Nick Harbaruk and Barclay Plager, the Blues' hardrock defenceman, were given game misconducts in the second period when they screwed their earlier fisticuffs in the penalty box.

The Minnesota-Vancouver rivalry at Winnipeg didn't settle anything when the two teams completed their weekend series with a scoreless tie.

Gilles Gilbert, in the Minnesota goal, and Lynn Zimmerman and Dunc Wilson sharing the duties for Vancouver, were unbeatable. Gilbert handled 27 shots, Zimmerman 24 in two periods and Wilson kicked out 18.

Keon Quits Camp

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Keon, Toronto's most consistent scorer in the National Hockey League during the last 10 years, quit the Maple Leafs Sunday citing contract negotiations as his reason.

"My wife's gone were progressing favorably I would have stayed," said the 30-year-old centre after chatting briefly with Leafs' general manager, Jim Gregory, at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"I have no plans," said Keon, "all I know is I won't be at practice tomorrow."

Keon wouldn't comment on the figures Leafs had offered, but Harold Ballard, Gardens' vice-president, has been quoted as saying Keon is seeking $125,000 to play this year. Keon later confirmed the figure.

"He thinks we'll trade him if we don't come up with what he wants," Smythe said recently when asked if he thought Keon was bluffing. "That's what he thinks."

Gretel Has to Beat Yank Yacht Twice

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Australia's Gretel II won a spectacular America's Cup race Sunday.

But she'll have to win it twice as a result of a protest that was only one feature of a mad, mad, day at sea that only Jack London could have written—if he dared.

It was a day that saw:

—Intrepid, the American defender, finish within inches of Gretel II after the Australian challenger collided with her at the starting gun within feet of the race committee that will decide the protest.

—Two dramatic rescues at sea: One was of Intrepid's 17-year-old cockpit tactician, Steve Van Dyke, who went ashore by helicopter suffering from a severe reaction when a bee stung his lip while he was sipping a soda before the start.

The other was of seven people in an outboard which capsized in the wash of the boats of the spectator flotilla.

Van Dyke recovered promptly after treatment ashore and the seven spectators were quickly rescued.

—A nine score: A rusted old globe first identified as a meandering old explosive from World War II was spotted amongst the fleet which immediately took evasive action. Later it turned out to be a fishing buoy.

The protest presumably will be decided today by the race committee of the New York Yacht Club. The committee already has had to handle one protest arising from a near collision in the first race that almost worked when Dee Stephenson was the first to go to the ball but centre Pe Travis gained possession for hi kinsa.

Gabler, who split quarterba chores with starter Ron Jo son, completed a 42-yard pass John Scott at the Edmonton and Hounard ran up the mid on a draw for his second sc with less than a minute rema ing. Lakulak converted both.

Brown Has Day to Remember; Packers Would Rather Forget

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paul Brown would like more than a little shock the first weekend of pro football's second half-century. Phil Bengtson would prefer to forget it.

Brown's Cincinnati Bengals stuck down Oakland Raiders 21-20 while Detroit Lions mauled Bengtson's Green Bay Packers 40-6 Sunday as the National Football League's 51st season exploded in startling fashion.

Jess Phillips bolted 76 yards on a third-period draw play in the deciding touchdown as the Bengals duplicated a 1969 upset.

Brown's station, however, was tempered when he looked ahead to the Bengals' next obstacle.

"Next week we play Detroit," he remembered. "I'm sorry I said that. I wanted to enjoy this one longer."

The Lions pinned Green Bay with its first shutout in 12 years. Mel Farr scoring twice and Errol Mann booting four field goals to lead the attack while a ferocious defensive unit shackled Bart Starr.

"We just made every mistake that a football team could make," Bengtson whispered after the rout.

In Sunday's other openers, Minnesota Vikings whipped Kansas City Chiefs 27-10 to gain some measure of revenge for their Super Bowl loss to the Chiefs; Baltimore Colts nipped San Diego Chargers 16-14; Houston Oilers downed Philadelphia Steelers 19-7; Dallas Cowboys overcame Philadelphia Eagles 17-7; San Francisco 49ers upended Washington Redskins 26-17; Boston Patriots defeated Miami Dolphins 27-14; Atlanta Falcons trimmed New Orleans Saints 14-3 and Denver Broncos thumped Buffalo Bills 25-10.

New York Jets visit Cleveland in a nationally-televised tussle tonight to complete the first-week card.

Cincinnati and Oakland were locked in a 21-21 standoff when Brown ordered the drive for the a third down—and 28 bled with 2¼ minutes remaining in the third period.

Phillips broke the draw for the go-ahead score and Horst Muhlmann's 39-yard field goal capped the shocker. Sam Wyche, directing the Bengals' offence with Greg Cook sidelined for the year, hit Essex Johnson with a 31-yard touchdown pass and scored himself on a five-yard keeper.

The Vikings also took advantage of mistakes, in a reversal of their 23-7 Super Bowl collapse last January, to build a 17-0 halftime lead and then pulled away from the Chiefs in the closing minutes of the game.

Falcons Dig In

Leslie Potter was the goalie for the winners with the others going to Thompson and Vandenwater. Smith replied for the Oddfellows.

Lutheran Laces Lancers 36-7

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks whipped defending champion University of Windsor Lancers 36-7 in one of three games which opened the Central Canada Intercollegiate Football Conference Saturday.

In other games, University of Ottawa Gee-Gees downed Laurentian Voyageurs 34-16 at Sudbury and University of Guelph Gryphons bounced York Yeomen 36-6 at Toronto.

Fullback Tom Walker collected enough points for the Golden Hawks' win with two touchdowns and a two-point conversion. Halfbacks Rick Alcock and Gerry Blacker scored and Terry Harvey each scored one touchdown. Wally Parker kicked three converts and Ted Passmore a single point.

Fullback Jim Wakeman scored the only Windsor touchdown.

Ottawa halfback Ted Evanetz spayked the win over Laurentian with 97 yards rushing and two of the three touchdowns. Barry St. George posted the other on a pass interception as Claude Vallee kicked a field goal, two converts and a single.

Guelph scored all its points in the second half with the winning touchdown against York coming on a 56-yard punt return by Dave Clarke. Steve Stewart ran 25 yards and Wayne Cook caught a 39-yard pass from quarterback Bruce Ravenscroft for the other Gryphons touchdowns. Gerry Organ kicked three converts and one field goal.

Gaels Rebound On Carleton

Queen's University Golden Gaels came from behind a 13-8 halftime deficit to beat Carleton University Ravens 26-13 Saturday while two other teams put on power displays to record easy wins in exhibition intercollegiate football.

The other games saw University of Toronto Blues whip University of Western Ontario Mustangs 38-15 while McGill University Redmen thumped Loyola College Warriors 44-7.

In Kingston, the Gaels, defending champions of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association, collected touchdowns from Keith Kanan, Ron Faulkner and Tom Chow.

City Tennis Team Surprise to Kingston

The Belleville Club, which has only one-third the membership of their opposing number had captured the series only once in seven previous attempts.

The winners dropped a narrow 11-10 verdict in Kingston Saturday, but won easily with a 25-19 overall edge, as a result of their 15-4 win in Belleville the previous weekend.

Smith Nearly Perfect

Perfection wasn't required to win the Quinte Trap and Gun Club Championship Sunday, but Al Smith wasn't far off. The new club champion broke 49 out of 50 targets to edge George Roberts and Doug Scrimshaw, who each had two misses out of 50 shots.

Smith added a win in the handicap shoot to his championship victory by scoring 41 out of 50 to edge runner-up Doug Johnston by one.

The high overall winner was George Roberts of Frankford, whose 120 out of 150 was three better than Doug Johnston.

Bill Poole connected on 88.6 per cent, of his shots to take the 1970 High Average award., while Doug Scrimshaw was the most improved shooter.

Hastings Stars Switch Roles

The top performers of the South Hastings Baseball League were on the receiving end Friday at the annual league banquet at the Melrose United Church Hall.

Canniffon Plane's Concerstency walked off with the lion's share of the league trophies, taking the Harold Griffin Trophy for consistency the regular-season pennant, and the Lee Grills and Burk Pascoe playoff championship trophies.

Read's Gerald Brennan took the league Most Valuable Player award — a donation of Gord Thompson — and Latta standout Scott McLaren was voted the Hap Dunn Memorial trophy as most sports manlike player.

McLaren also shared the Wayside Inn home run trophy with Read's Steve White and Carm Milligan. Each player hit three homers for the season.

Latta's Howard Skelly was named manager of the year and Canniffon received the Doug's Food Trophy.

The banquet was attended by 120, and was followed by a dance at Gilead Hall, Belleville alderman Paul Russell was guest speaker at the dinner.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market moved higher in mid-morning trading today with bank issues leading the advance.

Royal Bank was up ¼ to $23¾, Toronto Dominion Bank ½ to $19¾ and Bank of Nova Scotia ¼ to $19¾.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce was unchanged at $20¼ and Bank of Montreal lost ¼ to $19¾.

Analysts attributed the strength in bank issues to a reduction by Morgan Guaranty Trust, a major U.S. bank, in its minimum lending rate to 7½ per cent from 8 per cent effective immediately.

Paper stocks remained generally unchanged despite an announcement by Abitibi Paper Co. of a $10-a-ton increase in its price of newsprint for both Canadian and United States customers.

Abitibi was unchanged at $7.25, and Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper at $4.75. Consolidated-Bathurst rose ¼ to $11.

Abitibi is the fourth company to announce price increase in pulp and paper prices in recent weeks.

More complete information was not available from the Toronto Stock Exchange due to computer problems.

SUICIDE RATE

TORONTO (CP) — The annual report of this city's board of health disclosed that more people killed themselves in 1969 than were killed in motor vehicle accidents. A record 136 committed suicide, five more than were killed in traffic.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Quality and condition considered slaughter steers and heifers were steady to last week's close at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Cow and bull prices were steady. Veal replacement cattle were steady, good and choice milky veal calf prices were steady and heavy calves were slow and dull to sell. Hog prices were higher.

Hogs 575: Base price 29.25-30.45 currently in Toronto 30.45; stags and boars 18.40.

Quebec Chamber of Commerce Rejects Motion To Make French Province's Working Language

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The French-language Quebec Chamber of Commerce rejected a resolution Saturday calling for the adoption of legislation to make French the working language of Quebec.

Donald N. Byers, newly-elected president of the chamber and the first English-speaking president of the organization since 1933, said he does not think the time has come for language legislation.

The bilingual Montreal lawyer said the language problem will likely diminish over the next decade "as communications and travel have their effect."

Mr. Byers said however he deplores the tendency of English-speaking businessmen in Quebec not to work within French groups.

"A good many of the senior businessmen in Montreal have come from outside the province and never have the need to use French when they come here.

"Language should not be a problem and need not be a problem if we show goodwill on both sides."

Mr. Byers said the Quebec government must give up some of its plans if the province is to survive.

"Whatever share Quebec gets of the federal tax dollar, it still will not be enough to pay for everybody's favorite plan. Somebody has to set priorities and decide what is most important."

A committee report by the chamber said that it is important for the government "to allocate more funds for industrial development without unduly increasing the budget of the province."

The report suggests that the government give more money to its "economically oriented" ministries and less to "the social security system."

The report says the ministry of industry and commerce should have the largest budget, not education as now is the case.

It says funds should be diverted to subsidies which create jobs "although we still accord an important economic role to the ministry of education."

Robert Decoster, deputy minister of industry and commerce, said Quebec must enter a stage of "mongrel investment" if it expects to untangle its economic problems.

Mr. Decoster said business must also get away from the trend of always seeking government aid "and the French-Canadian businessman must develop his sense of entrepreneurial initiative."

He must display daring, originality and make use of all the modern techniques to gain competence in all fields.

Also, if Quebec wants to get out of its economic difficulties, it must avoid all phase of economic frenzy and make a definite forward leap without wasting one minute."

NDP to Seek Debate on Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party will seek a full debate on natural gas exports to the United States when Parliament reassembles Oct. 8, NDP leader T. C. Douglas said Sunday.

Extending the party's opposition to plans to export 9.3 trillion cubic feet of natural gas to the U.S. in the next 20 to 25 years, Mr. Douglas said the sale will drive up natural gas prices in Canada.

Furthermore, he told a news conference, no one knows what Canada's natural gas requirements or reserves are at a time when demand for the non-pollutant fuel may be rising.

Swedish Premier Needs Red Support

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Social Democrats, who have ruled Sweden for 39 years, lost votes to the right and left in Sunday's general election. It appeared they would need Communist support to stay in power.

Final results will not be known for 10 days, when officials finish counting some 675,000 mailed ballots.

Three major non-Socialist parties—Centre, Liberal and Conservative—hoped to gain enough seats to form a coalition government, but they fell short.

Preliminary figures gave Premier Olf Palme's Social Democrats 166 seats, one less than the combined total of the non-Socialist parties. The Communist party held the balance with 17 seats.

Soviet Spaceship Lands on Moon

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's unmanned moon vehicle, Luna 16, made a controlled "soft" landing in the Sea of Fertility Sunday, Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said the craft landed "as part of its flight program."

Luna 16 was launched Sept. 13 and went into lunar orbit Thursday.

Sunday's announcement was the first word on the craft since it began orbiting. Tass said the vehicle touched down at 1:18 a.m. EDT.

Scientists at the Institute for Space Research in Bochum, West Germany, monitored signals from Luna 16 for the landing and reported that it began transmitting pictures of the lunar surface at 3:40 a.m. The pictures were of "excellent quality," said Dr. Heinz Kaminski, Institute director.

The giant telescope at Jodrell Bank, England, reported receiving clear signals for almost three hours after Luna 16 landed.

It was the first lunar landing reported since Apollo 12 carried two Americans to the moon Nov. 11, 1969. No. 9 in Russia's Luna series made history's first soft landing on the lunar surface Feb. 2, 1966. The last successful landing reported by the Russians was Luna 13, Dec. 24, 1966. Luna 15 orbited the moon and crashed about 500 miles from where the American Apollo 11 astronauts had worked on the surface.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Identify Causes Of Your Symptoms

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've had pains in joints for years, but never went to a doctor. Aspirin relieves me. Have taking six to eight tablets a day. Any harm? — Mrs. G.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 64 and have been healthy except I was passing blood in my urine for about a week. I had some pain also and got up a lot nights. All I did was drink a lot of water and from then on the bleeding and pain went away. Is there anything to be concerned about? — Mr. L.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm as healthy as an ox except that I've developed a cough. (Incidentally, I don't smoke.) It's so bad it keeps me from going to the movies or a concert because it upsets people around me. When I think of it I take a cough mixture. Sometimes it helps me. Would you see a doctor? — Mrs. O.

• • •

Comment: Briefly, let's take these notes one by one. In each instance you will find that a diagnostician needs to make what is called a "differential diagnosis." In other words, where there are symptoms — whatever they are — we must try to identify the causes.

• • •

For Mrs. G.: If you can take small doses of aspirin without discomfort or severe reactions (bleeding, heartburn, etc.) I see no reason why they should harm you.

But all you are doing is finding temporary relief without really knowing what is causing your joint pains. Is your trouble osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, rheumatoid arthritis — or due to one of scores and scores of rheumatic pains associated with systemic disease? That's where the harm lies — not knowing.

• • •

Mr. L.: Concern about blood in the urine? Sometimes it may come for a day or two, disappear without treatment, and never return. We don't know the exact cause in such cases. But bleeding which lasts for a week certainly deserves investigation — even after it stops.

Is there a growth or stone in the bladder, or in the ureters (tubes which lead from the kidneys to the bladder), or in the kidneys themselves? Is an infection causing the bleeding? You can see how important it is to have a head start in treating such conditions. Give your doctor a chance to identify the cause of the bleeding.

• • •

Mrs. O.: As you have learned, smoking is the usual reason for coughing. I suggest you stop shopping around for cough mixtures on your own, and have X rays and other tests to "identify" the cough.

Even at the risk of frightening you, I think you should know that any cough that hangs on for no apparent reason (after a virus infection, for example) may be due to tuberculosis, emphysema, cancer, severe allergy — or to one of many other causes.

• • •

Mrs. G., Mr. L. and Mrs. O.: I'll say it again! Have symptoms? Identify the causes.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Every time I climb into my car it's as if I'm girding myself for battle. Unless I take the time to fasten my seat belt, I feel as naked and helpless as the ancient warrior who went into the fray without buckling on his suit of armor.

And believe me, I'm not exaggerating. Without seat belt protection a sudden, unexpected crash can fling you out onto the road and crack your skull. Why am I saying all this? Two weeks ago I was in such a crash and the seat belt saved my life. — Mr. A.

Comment: Hear! Hear! — You naked drivers.

Queen's Feminist Slams Union Stand on Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The labor wing of the New Democratic Party bristled Saturday as Krista Maeots, a party feminist, slammed unions for "joining industry in "forcing women back into the home."

Miss Maeots, a speaker at the NDP council meeting here, said labor has left only verbal support against the interest of women in some cases.

She said no union has ever gone on strike for maternity pay, to plant day care or equal pay. Women had little weight in collective bargaining committees.

About 45 men and 15 women listened. The men included about 15 trade union representatives on the council.

Jim Perma, Canadian director of the glass and ceramic workers union, replied that it is hard to get women to meetings.

Miss Maeots suggested child-care facilities at the meetings. When Mr. Perma asked who would pay, she said the union local should.

Mr. Perma, apparently irritated, said that wherever women have a union office, they are "treated exactly the same as the male."

He asked Miss Maeots and Mary Eady, Winnipeg housewife and former union educational worker, whom they would choose to hire between a man who had to support a family and a woman who didn't.

"The one who could do the job best," Mrs. Eady replied.

Mr. Perma said no one would know at that stage which applicant could be best.

"The female," Miss Maeots said.

"You answered my question," replied Mr. Perma, adding that he didn't know how anyone could chose the woman over the married man.

"I don't know where we're going," he said, stomping back on his seat.

"That's what you wanted to hear," Miss Maeots said coolly.

An attractive blonde about to have her first child, she is married to James Lazo but prefers to use her maiden name.

A research assistant at Queen's University, Kingston, she criticized Queen's for a rule that women are supposed to resign when six months pregnant.

How could there be such a rule at a time when many working women with children were self-supporting?

Your Car

Low Initial Cost of Auto Doesn't Mean It's A Bargain

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"I am about to start a four-year course in a university 30 miles from my home. As there is no public transportation, it will be necessary to purchase a car, for which I have $650.

"To defray costs, a student car pool will be formed which should provide $80 monthly during the school term. Also, I can make money doing delivery work in my spare time.

"Having worked in a service station this summer, I learned enough about cars to do most of my own maintenance work. Obviously, a used car in my price-range will probably need repairs. Could you tell me how to select a car to minimize this cost?

"Since I plan to keep the car for at least four years, would it be better, despite finance charges, to buy a more imported car in the $1,800 range? This way, with proper care, I could still graduate before facing major repair costs.

"I would appreciate your opinion as to which plan would be the most economical."

— J. A., Toronto, Ont.

The chance of locating a used car for $650, or even double this amount, that would not need major repairs immediately, or at least within a short time after purchase, is usually too much to hope for.

Occasionally, we do hear of some lucky person picking up a "little gem" for a few hundred dollars that seems to go on indefinitely without requiring major surgery. But, without a doubt, this is the exception rather than the rule.

Last year, for example, a student I know started a gardening service business and required a vehicle to carry his equipment. He bought a four-year-old V-8 showing 53,000 miles for $900. The going rate for the car was about $1,600 — and he thought he had located a real bargain. Since the car's title had just passed the mechanical fitness test required by the authorities, he did not have it examined by his mechanic before buying it. After finding it was hard starting and doing less than 12 miles on a gallon of fuel, he took it to a garage for a thorough check. To begin with, he had to fork over $90 for a tune-up and ignition repairs. Within the next two months he spent another $300 on new tires and assorted mechanical defects. As well, close inspection revealed some sections of the body panels were rusted to a paper-thin measure.

All these defects could have been detected easily had the vehicle been thoroughly checked before the deal was made.

His business venture grossed him about $800, but the total cost of gasoline, repairs and car insurance premiums amounted to $1,830. All he accomplished other working hard all summer was to wind up owing $230.

To pay off his debts it was necessary to sell the car. By this time, although the car seemed in fair mechanically sound, rust holes had started to appear on the body and his best offer was $900.

Too many students rush out impulsively to buy a used car that appears to be a bargain because the price is much less than the going rate.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Accidents Tied to Emotions

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Despite the best efforts of the police, the preachers and the Safety Council, automobile accidents in America are going to continue to rise each year.

They are going to continue to rise because most accidents have little to do with manual skill; nor are they really "accidents" in the true sense of the word. They are emotional disturbances.

From 20 years of driving experience, I am convinced that most accidents are caused by motorists who should be temperamentally disqualified from owning a loaded weapon like a car.

The accident - causers are generally filled with hostility, frustration, anxiety and deep feelings of inferiority which they take out on other motorists.

Statistics show that almost 80 per cent of all auto accidents involve only 20 per cent of motorists; the same people keep getting into traffic difficulties of one kind or another, and it is not their driving ability that is to blame.

About half the motorists in the country have never taken a driving examination of any kind, but were "frozen in" when their states voted to issue drivers' licenses.

Among this group — apart from those with gross physical defects — are paragons of every type, from the hysterical to the suicidal. Even if they could pass the physical test, they should be debarred from exercising their malevolence on the highway.

It is easier to state this problem than to solve it. Such traits as responsibility, prudence, consideration, cannot be tested en masse by state or local officials with no psychological training. Even the skimpy drivers' examination leaves much to be desired.

It is a generally known fact that more Americans have been killed in auto accidents than in all the wars we have fought since the American Revolution. There is no reason to believe that this rate will decrease in the coming years.

We are at the mercy of any maniac who can afford to buy an automobile and work off his hatred of his wife, his boss, or his looks on innocent bystanders. The longer we stand for this, the fewer of us there will be to stand for it.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 22

Your birthday today: The year ahead offers fulfillment of realistic hopes and dreams, perhaps luck beyond reasonable expectations. There are many dramatic turns of circumstance amenable to constructive use. Romantic ventures thrive, particularly in the latter half of the year. Today's natives frequently collect possessions or obligations to the extent of hindering their freedom.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This lively day lets you clear off recent confusion. Delayed issues are suddenly solved and resolvable. Take home a nice surprise for your loved ones.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Attend to your responsibilities to your family and community. Good results are indicated for your routine efforts and for renewed creative projects.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your creative urges, on the surface for all to see, are perhaps misunderstood temporarily. Keep moving, touch, a lil bases. You can do something dramatic to improve your home.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The actions of family members conflict with your work. Once this situation has been stabilized you can make significant progress on personal ventures. There is good news later.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): List the things you need to know, then put in a full day of investigation. By evening you will have a new understanding of the situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Something you have long desired can come to reality today. Admix friends into your financial arrangements. Important people are favorably disposed to bid for consideration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your business suddenly presents a crisis that you must pay attention to. You get valuable help if you react promptly and cheerfully. Other concerns must wait.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now everything has to be complete and fully visible. Hidden matters are suddenly disclosed — but not all the details. You can make extraordinary progress if you move promptly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your group affairs attract unexpected support. Review insurance and long - range security. Hold new information in confidence until you've decided what to do and have made a start.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Sudden quirks of circumstances bring new problems, cooperation. Be clear and explicit. Revise plans to fit your changing situation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. '18): Move on with the activities you most want to complete. Confer with experts. Clever efforts work out better if you avoid sudden changes and keep everybody briefed.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Creative projects thrive; and do where you present them well, they attract encouragement This promises to be a rather successful day.

NDP Sets Limits On Leadership Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party federal council, also preparing for a general election in 1972, clamped limits Sunday on the amount candidates may spend next year in campaigning for the party leadership.

A main reason for the $10,000 limit is the possible clash, with the election coming, that a rebels-backed contest could put on party resources.

The candidates will be drawing on the same sources of support as the party does, David Lewis, MP for York South and an expected candidate, said.

The major unions, industrial and other unions—are represented on the council and supported the limit.

Ramon Park, a top steelworkers union official, will be chairman of the convention of Ottawa's civic centre next April.

Up to a dozen names have been mentioned as possible candidates to succeed T. C. Douglas, 65, party leader since 1961. However, only Ed Broadbent, 34, MP for Oshawa-Whitby, has declared.

Mr. Broadbent said the $10,000 limit may prove unrealistic. And a candidate wasn't likely to drop out of the race because he had overspent.

Outright opposition came from Manitoba Attorney-General Sidney Green, 41, who suggested the limit is a device by have-not segments to check those with money.

"Oh nuts", interjected Mr. Lewis, saying that disclosure of election expenses has been part of the NDP platform for years.

Both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Greene may be fighting it out for the leadership by the time the convention rolls around.

A move by the party's youth wing to lower the convention registration fee to $15 from $35 for students, pensioners and the unemployed was defeated.

Party Secretary Clifford Scotton said last year's convention in Winnipeg had a $25 fee and a $19,000 deficit.

And the Ottawa convention would be costlier.

Dead in Jordan Put at 10,000

Wheat Sales High

CALGARY (CP) — A number of grain sales to foreign lands will add up to a record wheat shipment for the first five months of a crop year, an official of the Canadian wheat board said during the weekend.

Norman A. Hope of Winnipeg, co-ordinator of transportation, said several sales in the last six weeks could pour as much as $400 million into the Prairie economy by Christmas.

The board, Mr. Hope said, has to fill orders for 403 million bushels of wheat between Aug. 1 and Jan. 1.

The situation is a reversal of the last two years when export orders dwindled, resulting in a slump in the western farm economy and the federal government paying growers about $50 million for not growing wheat. Last year, in the first five months of the crop year, which starts Aug. 1, exports were 188 million bushels.

'Dickie suggests we kick this idea around.'

Arab Leaders Meet

CAIRO (Reuters) — Arab leaders, including those of Egypt, Syria and Jordan, opened talks here today on the crisis in Jordan despite a command statement that guerrilla leaders have decided to boycott the Arab summit meeting.

Egypt's minister of information, Mohamed Heykal, told a news conference "what we are trying to do as a group of interested nations is first to halt the bloodshed in Jordan. Talks on this have already started and are going on now."

In Beirut, the Al Fatah office said guerrilla leaders decided not to attend the meeting. The guerrilla commander-in-chief, Yasser Arafat, who presumably would have headed the delegation, was reported somewhere in the Amman area directing fighting between commandos and the Jordanian army.

Despite a cable from Egyptian President Nasser to Hussein telling him his presence at the conference was "vital and essential," it seemed improbable that the king would leave his country, at least today, to attend the gathering.

Caloil Appeals

MONTREAL (CP) — Caloil Inc. has announced that an application will be made today before Mr. Justice Jacques Dumoulin to review a judgment preventing the company from selling offshore oil products west of the Ottawa Valley demarcation line.

John Newman, chairman of Caloil, said that if the review proves unsuccessful, the company's lawyers will prepare an appeal before the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Exchequer Court upheld the federal government's right to control the movement within Canada of imported petroleum products. The court turned down a bid by Caloil to rule as unconstitutional a National Energy Board regulation governing such imports.

U.S. Is Warned To Stay Clear

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Jordanian and Palestine guerrilla forces battled in Amman and in northern Jordan today in the sixth day of a conflict that Cairo radio declared has cost 10,000 lives.

The Palestine guerrilla leaders warned the United States that all American interests in the Middle East would be destroyed if its troops intervened in Jordan.

A statement by the central committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization broadcast on the Damascus-based guerrilla radio accused the U.S. of masterminding the "Amman bloodbath."

The statement also accused the Americans of having closed their eyes to the massacres "committed by their lackeys in Amman."

Egypt also warned against any American intervention in Jordan as a "hostile action against the whole Arab people."

Information Minister Mohammed Hassanein Heikal told a news conference in Cairo that U.S. action in the midst of the Jordanian strife would have repercussions far beyond the Middle East.

The U.S. 6th Fleet continued to be reinforced in the Mediterranean and warships were on patrol less than 160 miles off the coast of Israel while 10,000 troops were placed on the alert in Europe — and the United States. But Washington was looking for a diplomatic solution of the crisis.

Britain and France were reported opposed to any intervention and Washington declined to say whether Jordan had asked for the United States to intervene.

A "shoot to kill" curfew was reimposed on Amman, with half the Jordanian capital already in ruins and government troops and guerrillas again fighting from street to street.

In the north, Jordanian planes made low-running rocket attacks on guerrilla positions around Irbid, Jordan's second biggest city, the third day in a row that King Hussein's Hawker-Hunters have been reported in action.

Air attacks went on for 10 minutes around the city, still firmly in commando control, said a statement issued in Beirut by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Merry Men of Dundas Forest

Workers on the eastern approach of the new Dundas Street Bridge are surrounded by the evidence of their tree-cutting labors as the underbrush piles up in jungle-forlorn proportions. The trees are being cut down to clear the way for completion of the bridge and its approaches by the middle of November. For story, see page 2.

Tito Plans to Step Down As President of Yugoslavia

BELGRADE (AP)—President Tito has announced that he will step down after ruling Yugoslavia for 25 years and turn the country's government over to a collective leadership.

Tito, 78, did not indicate what his position would be, but it was believed in Belgrade, the capital, that he would be a member of the new body.

"I am quite long in this post and I would like to have more possibilities to work on some other projects," he said in a speech Monday in Zagreb, the country's second largest city.

Tito, who broke from Moscow in 1948 and was named president for life in 1963, said reorganization of the country's Communist government was necessary to preserve Yugoslavia's unity. He gave no timetable for the changeover. But he said speculation on who might succeed him could provoke a crisis, and that to avoid it, governmental restructuring was necessary.

He explained that he initiated the change because "if someone else did, it would look as if they wanted to remove me."

Tito said he would be replaced by a presidium that would be "a form of collective president of Yugoslavia." The body would consist of representatives from the country's six republics and its main social and political organizations, including the Communist party.

Dairy Council Head Denounces Federal Policy

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the National Dairy Council of Canada said Monday federal government agricultural participation is concealed socialism.

D. R. Marshall of Red Deer, Alta., speaking at the annual directors' convention, referred to proposed federal marketing legislation and the appointment of a milk producer, replacing a milk processor who had resigned, to the three-man Canadian Dairy Commission.

The president said present Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Olson is excluding businesses that depend on agriculture from a voice in determining farm policy.

Cement Workers May Cut U.S. Ties

By MARGARET HAYLOCK

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton - based local 387 of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International Union has triggered a move for the independence of its Canadian members.

All Canadian locals have received copies of a resolution filled with the international organization for presentation and vote during the 15th international convention of the UCL and GW in San Diego, California, Oct. 19 through Oct. 22.

The resolution embodies a 14 - point program to establish what would be called the Canadian Cement, Lime, Gypsum and Allied Workers' Union. Its bylaws, goals, and rights for members would essentially follow those of the present international union.

District secretary, Earl Robson of Picton said that the Picton local, representing about 150 workers at Lake Ontario Cement, Ltd., a plant east of here, has responded to increasing public concern over control of Canadian unions by head offices in the United States.

More than 35,000 workers across North America are represented by the international union, approximately 4,500 of them belonging to Canadian locals.

The campaign for an independent union was begun by local 387's membership and was solidly supported by the district council covering the eastern half of Canada — Ontario, Quebec and the maritimes. The majority of the 15 locals within the council in Ontario have offered additional backing as well as one local in the maritimes.

Mr. Robson observed that

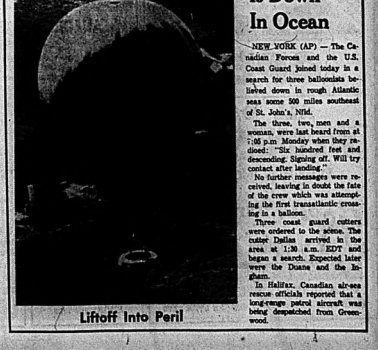
Balloon Is Down In Ocean



NEW YORK (AP) — The Canadian Forces and the U.S. Coast Guard joined today in a search for three balloonists believed down in rough Atlantic seas some 100 miles southeast of St. John's, Nfld.

The three, two men and a woman, were last heard from at 7:56 p.m. Monday when they reported: "Six hundred feet and descending. Signing off. Will try contact after landing."

No further messages were received, leaving in doubt the fate of the crew which was attempting the first transatlantic crossing in a balloon.

Three coast guard cutters were ordered to the scene. The Coast Guard Dallas arrived in the area at 1:30 a.m. EDT and began a search. Expected later were the Duane and the Ingham.

In Halifax, Canadian air-sea rescue officials reported that a long-range patrol aircraft was being despatched from Greenwood.

Liftoff Into Peril

Construction of New Rink Could Begin Within Week

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville and District Ma- Board approval, con- ction of the city's second ice surface could begin within the next week.

The council at a special meeting Monday afternoon gave unanimous approval to the tender of the Carr-Bratist Construction Co. Ltd. of Toronto and the OMB will now be asked for approval of the project.

City officials are optimistic that the necessary approval will be received by the end of the special government board meeting and thus allow a project construction start.

Total cost of the covered rink to be built on Harder Park on the city's west end will be $388,976. This figure includes the tender price together with certain items not on an estimated $52,391 not included in the bid price.

Approval of the Carr-Bratist tender was held up last week on a tabling motion from Mayor J. Russell Rose, who at that time said he was not completely satisfied that the $283,000 figure submitted was the best price available.

Only one tender for the construction of the rink structure has been received by the recreation and arena committee and Mayor Rose said he had started a bid at from Dominion Bridge on an arena structure.

Yesterday council was told that the Dominion Bridge estimate was for $320,000, or nearly $40,000 higher than the Carr-Bratist tender price.

But Mayor Scott said he had an apologies to make for his tabling motion of a week ago.

"I wanted to be satisfied for the benefit of the taxpayers," he said.

Ald. Eoss David, however, was still not convinced that the rink could not be built for less than the $283,000 tender price.

Last spring, he said, council had voted $175,000 for the new rink yet the recreation and arena committee had gone ahead with plans for a structure which now was costing $300,000.

He moved an amendment that council meet with Mr. Carr - Bratist to discuss a change in the rink deal. He felt a smaller sized ice surface could be but's at a cost to him of $40,000 not yet available.

Alderman Ben Corke however called for approval of the Carr - Bratist tender. He said he had had the plans checked by a professional engineer and after talking with builders said he believed Mr. Carr-Bratist had offered the city an excellent building at a very fair price.

The net cost of the rink to the city after grants would be $246,000, he said. The additional cost over the estimate would amount to only one-quarter to one-third of a mill on the tax rate.

"Nobody seems to say anything about the cost of a new hospital addition or the new Bayside School," he said. "But we (city council) seem to get involved in something costing about a per capita."

Ald. Jack Ireland, a member for Ald. David's amendment, resented the way the rink matter had been handled, and said he felt as though he was being high pressured into acceptance of the rink tender.

Council, he said, should have been informed about the merits of different sizes of rinks. He objected to having to pay $300,000. When council had only budgeted for $200,000.

But he agreed that council had no alternative but to go ahead with the rink.

Ald. Donald Sootter said the rink size had been thoroughly gone into by his committee which had decided that the regulation 85-by-200-foot surface was the most desirable and tenders had been called on this basis.

He admitted that Kingston had built two rinks with 75-by - 175 - foot surfaces but pointed out this city had other areas and thus could afford to build smaller rinks for specific uses.

The committee had also considered alternative structures to the concrete building decided upon.

He said there was no question that the committee could sit down with Mr. Carr-Bratist and produce a building costing less money.

But if this was done it would be at the loss of desirable features such as special lighting and condensing equipment which would result in a $5,400 annual saving in water costs.

Like Mayor Scott, Ald. Eoss Orr said he had no apology for supporting last week's tabling motion.

"I was not convinced that we were getting value for our money," he said.

Now, however, he was convinced. He did not approve the suggestion that a smaller rink be built and said he was happy that all necessary items for the rink were being provided.

When it appeared that the majority of council favored acceptance of the Carr-Bratist tender, Ald. David withdrew his amendment to have council confer with the contractor for provision of a less costly building.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey discussed Ald. Ireland's feeling that council was being pressured by the recreation and arena committee regarding the type of structure to be built.

"I had the same feeling two years ago," she admitted.

The alderman said the recreation and arena committee had already discussed the type of building required and had presented their decision to council.

Included in the $305,600 total cost of the rink but not covered in the $283,000 tender price are such items as metal partitions, heating during construction, painting of the interior, sidewalks and landscaping.

In voting to accept the Carr-Bratist tender, council also decided on the net financial cost of the rink would be financed.

Last spring the city provided $175,000 in the capital works budget for the rink; also available is the $30,000 raised by the Quinte Action Centre Committee through its walkathon last year; a community centre grant of $20,000, together with $12,400 estimated as rink operating costs for 1970 and a special contingency fund of $10,000.

The balance of the funds necessary will be raised through a special levy on next year's tax bill. A special bylaw will allow the present council to commit next year's council for the additional cost.

One More Step for UCS

At a dinner meeting of UCS and business representatives, Alderman Ben Corke, chairman of the 1970 United Appeal, outlines further plans for the upcoming campaign. Residential canvassing will begin on Oct. 5.

UCS Organizers Promise Hard-driving Fund Drive

The 1970 United Appeal campaign is going to be "a sledgehammer campaign to accomplish a goal of $128,600".

This statement came from Isidore Cooperman, executive director of the United Community Services, at last night's dinner gathering of UCS agency representatives and local businessmen at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club. Methods being employed for this year's appeal were outlined.

Mr. Cooperman indicated that only once in the history of the Belleville and district United Appeal, had the goal been achieved.

"Unfortunately, people don't learn from the heart," he said.

Both he and Ben Corke, chairman of the 1970 campaign, identified the most efficient method of receiving donations as that of payroll deduction.

Mr. Corke explained that a person was usually more willing to donate a certain amount from his pay cheque every payday than to donate the same at one time.

The UCS has been approaching local business and industry prior to the residential blitz campaign which has been delayed one week, to start on Oct. 5.

This delay will enable full plant participation to be concluded.

The bulk of the residential campaign is to be handled by high school students, supervised by adult volunteers.

Jim Leearns, UCS treasurer, announced that "for government purposes, tax receipts will be issued through the appeal offices, with an interim receipt issued by the canvasser."

This method will ensure complete and final receipts and an accurate record.

Although the chief slogan of this year's campaign is "give at least 10 per cent more", numerous others are being used.

One rather abrupt but meaningful one is the following:

Concluding, Mr. Corke said, "If everybody gives, nobody gets hurt; if everybody does his part, no one suffers."

Drop-in Centre For Frankford

FRANKFORD (Staff) — A drop-in centre will be opening here within the next two weeks for the village's young people, Reeve William Rose said today.

Representatives of the Lions Club, Royal Canadian Legion, and the Frankford Recreation Committee, met with the Rovers, a senior affiliate of the Boy Scouts, here last night to discuss the matter.

Decision to open this facility was prompted by a brief to village council on Thursday by the Rovers, in which recommendation was made that such a gathering place be established.

More than 75 demonstrators, many bearing placards, moved through the streets here Friday, milling for a time in front of the Trent St. Hardware Store, operated by Reeve Rose.

The Reeve listened to the demands of the young people at that time and told The Intelligencer yesterday that the group wanted a drop-in centre in the village similar to the one in Belleville.

Mr. Rose said today that the Rovers will take charge of the Frankford drop-in centre to be located in the Centennial Room in the arena building.

City to Donate $200 to Sudbury

The city of Belleville will contribute $200 to he Sudbury disaster fund.

City council voted the donation yesterday at he suggestion of Mayor J. Russell Rose who said that any donation Belleville might give would be very acceptable by Sudbury.

Mayor Scott said that approximately 1,500 contributions had been made to the Northern Ontario area where heavy damage resulted from a tornado which ripped through the district some weeks ago.

Contributions to the fund are matched by donations from the province of Ontario.

Bridge-opening Target

Drivers -- Be Patient Until Nov. 18

Rush hour traffic tie-ups in the city's lower downtown area could be greatly alleviated in approximately two months!

Members of the city council were told yesterday that with good weather conditions prevailing, the new bridge over the Moira River and the West Dundas Street reconstruction area could be in use by November 18.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell told the committee that although the Dundas Street reconstruction would not be entirely completed this fall, it was expected the bridge would be in use and also two traffic lanes up the "Devil's Elbow" hill would be ready this fall.

The contractor will close down work on the project some time in December and will complete the roadway next spring.

The new Dundas Street bridge and reconstruction of West Dundas Street will allow through traffic on Highway 2 to bypass the city's downtown district.

Traffic lights will be installed at the bridge and also at the intersection of Dundas Street and the Bay Bridge Road.

Fill for the western approach to the new bridge is now in place and work on the eastern approach is expected to get under way this week.

Yesterday Public Utilities Commission linemen were doing preliminary work for the changing of hydro lines in this area and workmen were scheduled to commence cutting the trees in the old Fireman's Park area to allow placement of fill for the eastern bridge approach.

Still another development this fall is expected to further speed rush hour traffic throughout he city.

Work started this year placed $20,000 in the budget for the purchase of the control system and traffic committee members have made arrangements to go to Georgetown to see available systems in operation and choose the one which they feel would be best suited for Belleville.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said he hoped the new traffic control system could be in operation shortly after the new Dundas Street bridge was opened to traffic.

PUC Workers To Need Letter

TRENTON (Staff) — Public Works Dept. employees here will be required to have a letter of permission from town engineer Arthur Campbell if they intend to secure contractors doing work for the city or carrying out subdivisors' agreements ratified by council.

Council passed the resolution, last night in regular session to end what councillors referred to as conflicts of interest. Town employees have been "moonlighting", particularly on Saturdays by working in various capacities for construction contractors.

Problem arises when mistakes are made on a job in which the town may be involved. Contractors occasionally blame faulty aspects of their work on public works employees and it is difficult to decide whether the person employed by the town or the contractor at the time mistakes were made, engineer Campbell said.

Only one councillor, Neil Robertson, opposed the by-law. Basis for his dissent was a restraint of personal freedom that he said is inherent in the council action.

"I am opposed to regulations like this because every day our personal freedoms are being restricted more and more," he said.

Education Board's Accounting Now Completely Computerized

The financial aspects of education in Hastings county became computerized permanently last night.

Trustees voted to buy computer services from one of North America's two largest computers for a cost of $35,000 for the remainder of the year.

The cost in 1971 is $42,000 to have the board's financial affairs completely automated for total control and accountability.

The board has been "on computer" since June, but the arrangement was a pilot project undertaken by ACT Financial Accounting and Control System in Toronto. It chose Hastings as one of three counties in which to test a new approach to computerized accounting using a system called GEMS — Generalized Educational Management System.

Other counties chosen to test the GEMS approach were York and Simcoe. York has already accepted the system permanently; Simcoe still has the matter under consideration.

To assist in developing the most sophisticated modern method of data processing, for education, has been the department of education gave grants to the three counties to pay for setting up the system.

Hastings county's share of the grant money was $33,000.

Last night, trustees of the county board were called together for a meeting also called a special session to receive a report and evaluation of GEMS.

They were given a crash course in computer science, and its application to education. The lesson, whose programming was in simple order, was taught by the board's chief super - teacher, Eric Runacres, director of education.

Special consultants for the class were Alan R. Emerging-ham, manager of Education Management Systems of AGT, and Brenda Wirtele, also of ACT consultant who has supervised the installation and operation of the computer terminal in the board office since June.

The computer system gives the board control over every transaction of the board and administration, trustees were told.

"This board has a large number of individual purchases of $50 to $100 making up its $17,504.70 operating costs this year," Mr. Wirtele said. "The number of transactions has increased three times since the setting up of county boards and subsequent new accounting procedures demanded by the department of education."

Handling this mass of documents cannot be done manually, the trustees were told, at least not with any degree of speed. Keeping up with the department of education's information demands is about all a board limited only by size can manage under a manual system.

With the computer, every financial transaction since Jan. 1, 1970 is recorded, and an accounting of the board's complete financial standing up to 5 p.m. the previous day can be obtained at 10 a.m. the next morning.

"I have never had this information at my disposal before, nor has any other board," commented M. Runacres.

The GEMS system is essentially new, he explained, but school principal empowered to order his own supplies.

Yesterday, the principal tried to keep a running tally of his expenditures on the backs of envelopes," he said the tendency was to overspend by five to 10 per cent a year. Now he has an instant accounting of how much he has spent, how much is on order, and how much of his budget he has left."

If a principal, or school officer, orders $1,000 worth of material, and there is only $100 left in his budget for that department, the computer will reject the purchase order and send out a warning, the board was told.

By purchasing the GEMS system, the board gained the use of three highly specialized facilities — the use of the Ontario-based Systems Dimensions Ltd. computer for about two hours a day, the Bell Telephone hook-up between Belleville and Ottawa and the terminal in the board office, and the programming services of AGT's computer technicians and consultants in Toronto.

The computer is a twin of the one in Houston, Texas, and is the second in the American space program.

The terminal in the board office is manned by two accounting clerks, trained since the computer arrived. Once they have completed their two hours on computer operations, it is available for general accounting duties.

The AGT personnel, headed by Mr. Empringham, translates the board's financial operations into computer language, arranges the details of running it through the big machine and has daily reports turned out to meet the board's requirements.

Mr. Empringham told the teen, following prodding from board his company had spent $100,000 to develop the system for the department of education.

Mr. Runacres and Seaton Chapman, director of the York county board.

A department of education report on the pilot project in the three counties is due in October, and if satisfactory the board can opt out of GEMS, Mr. Runacres said.

"We own all the material programmed into the Ottawa computer," he said. "If a better system comes along, or becomes available, we can lift all our material and transfer it to another computer."

"The computer-operated financial system will not eliminate staff," trustees were told.

"For more than 15 months, I have put a lid on the number of staff hired," Mr. Runacres said. "We never got the financial information we required until this computer service was installed. To get the money saving the computer provides, we would have to triple our business administration staff."

Mr. Vivian told the board that the budget control part of the system will be set up in the annual cost of GEMS.

"Under the conventional accounting system much of the staff's time is spent on keeping things running and preparing back. With the computer, personnel has time to do accounting management," he said.

Business administrator Kenneth Wormald indicated that computerized financing allows the board's academic staff "to expend its energy on academic pursuits".

Mr. Empringham said the department of education wants to implement a uniform code of accounts across the province "as it can compare apples with apples in every board's operations."

"At present, there are only three boards in the province which can compare apples," he said, referring to Hastings, York and Simcoe.

"The GEMS system is a uniform accounting method that permits individual boards to program to their individual differences," summed up assistant business administrator Ian Munroe.

The board decided, after the morning session which included a demonstration of the way the terminal operates, to keep the system for the remainder of the year.

It also empowered the administration and the AGT company to explore applications of the system to payroll, payroll, transportation, plant and other board operations.

This morning, Mr. Runacres said the use of the computer at Loyalist College was investigated when he first began his search for a computerized accounting system.

However, he said, the on-site computer installed at the college "has not the capability to do a data-based program".

"It is what Moody York has had for years!" he said, adding that as a superintendent at North Hastings he had used a similar computer, and found it inadequate to process the large mass of documents now required by the department of education.

Teachers and pupils in the county system are using, and will continue to use, the Loyalist computer for training," he said.

He added that college-based computers across the province will probably be used in the future for "hands-on" computer science training, and the larger computers such as the one at Ottawa will be rented for short daily periods to do the more complex accounting needed by institutions handling large annual budgets.

Initial Steps Taken For East End High-rise

City council yesterday gave approval to two bylaws which could open the way for a construction start on a new high-rise apartment complex in the city's east end.

Council passed a rezoning bylaw for the area and approved a construction bylaw with the proviso that they not be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval until a subdivision agreement between the city and the development firm is signed.

Principals in the development firm are former mayor J. R. Ellis, Belleville businessman W. H. Wills and Lee Grills, MP for Hastings.

Today Mr. Wills told The Intelligencer that pending the necessary financing arrangements, it was hoped that construction of the first apartment-building could be commenced this fall.

Plans for the initial structure call for a building from 10 to 12 storeys in height with 80 or more units.

Ultimately two or three apartment structures are planned.

The location is on land east of the Belleville Plaza and north of the Unemployment Insurance Commission office.

A 66-foot roadway from Dundas Street to Bridge Street will run through the property.

Tenants Must Vacate

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council decided here last night that tenants of municipally - owned houses on Bay St. should receive notice to vacate.

The Town of Trenton acquired six houses along Bay St. near Centennial Park and three to tear them down. Property on which they stand will be used to supplement the land area of the park.

One of the homes was gutted by fire before the town purchased it and a second has recently been vacated.

However, five families are living in the remaining three homes and council will ask them to vacate by October 31 as originally planned.

It was the consensus of council that the town should not be involved in "the landlord business".

Mayor Duncan McDonald opposed the move to give notice to the Bay St. families now because of the housing situation in Trenton and because the park plans have to be extended until next spring.

Houses Stay Put, Addresses Change

Two city householders in the Dundas Street west end of Parker Street are going to get a change of address without moving out of their present homes.

The change of address is being brought about by the current reconstruction of West Dundas Street which within the next few weeks will see Highland Ave. become a dead-end street.

Rock excavation at the top of the "Devil's Elbow" hill will lower Dundas Street at least eight feet where it now intersects with Highland Ave., and two householders west of Parker will no longer have access onto Dundas Street.

Members of the city traffic committee approved of the change of address at their meeting yesterday.

If you like it in all other ways, then it depends on whether the price is right.

We've specialized for the case of a home with a wet basement — a sure drawback to any property and a sure-fire fault to turn off the enthusiasm of otherwise ardent buyers.

In this instance, the buyer was able to purchase the property for two-to-three thousand dollars less than it otherwise would have sold for if the basement had been repaired by the owner.

The cost to the purchaser of repairs? Less than $1000 for the installation of drain tiles that made the basement absolutely dry.

Your most reliable guide, if you are considering a home with a significant defect, is the counsel of a conscientious Realtor who has had long hands-on property management experience can guide you to an economically-wise decision.

U.S. Tie May Be Cut

the move toward independence has been greeted with a solid front of support. The sympathetic local has suggested in its written declaration of agreement that, should the resolution fail on the convention floor, Canadian members should seriously think of withdrawing to form an independent union.

The union's head office in Chicago has answered opposition to international union solidarity with bulletins forwarded to all locals by senior UCL and GW officials in a drive to block moves toward an independent Canadian union.

Two members of local 387 — presidents Andrew Martin, and district secretary, Earl Robson, will attend the upcoming convention in California.

Reasons for seeking independence named in the resolution to go before the convention include emphasis on Canada's identity. "The best interests and welfare of the Canadian members of the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International Union must be considered because of their pride in being Canadians, Canada being a sovereign country with its own customs, laws, English and French languages and heritages that make us truly Canadian."

It is pointed out that 25 years have passed since the first local union was formed by the UCL and GW union in Canada, and fledgling unions have reached maturity. "We believe to obtain, through approval of this resolution in a democratic and peaceful way, the right to govern and run our own affairs as Canadians."

A further statement incorporated with the resolution reminds the union' "American brothers" that in "a much smaller country to the south", the Mexican Cement, Lime, Gypsum and Allied Workers Union is running its own affairs.

Yachting Season Closes with Impressive Show

An impressive sail past officially ended CFB Trenton Yacht Club's activities for the summer season. Under beautiful skies Sunday club officials watched 50 power and sailing craft take part in the homeward procession. Trophies and prizes were presented by base commander Col. W. G. Paisley.

'Deserter' in Jail One Month

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

One month after detaining a teen-age, self-proclaimed United States army deserter, immigration authorities in Belleville still are awaiting verification of his American citizenship status.

Peter Ostrykovic, 18, remains in Hastings County jail where he was first lodged Aug. 22 after being picked up by provincial police.

A hearing to decide whether Ostrykovic will remain in Canada or be deported still awaits a report from U.S. authorities clarifying the youth's citizenship, an immigration official said today.

"We've done absolutely everything we can," said immigration officer Myles Tilston.

At the time of Ostrykovic's detention, an immigration official was hopeful that authorities could quickly hold a hearing on his case.

However, the hearing was stalled by unexpected technicalities.

Ostrykovic, said immigration authorities, was apparently born in Austria and came to the U.S. with his parents as a three-month old infant.

His citizenship had to be determined in the event he is deported.

One possibility is that his father became a U.S. citizen — and included his son in the process. However, the alder Ostrykovic is now dead.

The U.S. embassy in Ottawa was asked to search Ostrykovic's background five days after he was detained.

In turn, the embassy had to transfer the case to authorities in Washington for a search of citizenship records.

A check also had to be made of U.S. immigration records in New York — which Ostrykovic gave as the port of entry when his family came to North America.

What is required by Canadian immigration authorities is recognition of Ostrykovic as a legal U.S. resident, said Mr. Tilotson.

"We're doing it absolutely legally," he added.

He said he was "hoping daily" for the necessary information to arrive.

Had Ostrykovic been able to post a bond and show visible means of support he might have been released after he was first detained, said the official.

"But the poor boy was destitute — and we just couldn't let him roam around," he added.

Ostrykovic was first detained by provincial police while he was hitchhiking on Highway 7.

Police said he told them he was drafted into the U.S. army but deserted after his brother was killed in Viet Nam. He entered Canada illegally 10 weeks earlier near Vancouver and hitch-hiked to a Windsor border crossing.

Immigration authorities said Ostrykovich had been turned back by U.S. border officers because he could not establish proof of citizenship. In his return to the Canadian side of the border he escaped while being questioned by customs officials.

All persons detained by immigration authorities are advised that they may retain a lawyer, said Mr. Tilotson.

Ostrykovic was told he could seek free legal aid in Ontario and was given the name of the district legal aid director.

Ostrykovic's reply was that "all I want is to go home," said the official.

September Perks Up

After a singularly dismal start the month of September is beginning to resemble the fabled, ageless scene of yore. We have had a weekend of sunshine and a fair degree of warmth and these are qualities we expect of September. One region of Ontario which will welcome such a bright scene is the Niagara peninsula, for the Niagara Grape and Wine Festival is now under way. This is always a pleasant occasion, extending over ten days or so, when the focus is on Canada's vineyards and their excellent products and there is folk dancing by ethnic groups and other attractions.

This region boasts 22,000 acres of vineyards with upwards of 500,000 new vines being planted each spring. Last year, according to R. K. Maitlin, secretary of the Ontario Grape Growers Marketing Board, produced 61,500 tons of grapes worth $8,900,000.

In the past 25 years growers have concentrated on producing hybrid grapes developed for quality wine production and are now cultivating commercially more than 40 varieties.

This multiplicity of growth, as we noted once before in connection with this theme, has nurtured a fine assortment of wines which have won international recognition.

Down around Niagara and St. Catharines then, there is a happening, or series of happenings if you like, which brings people together in a spirit of lively interest and friendship. It is one of those get - togethers which enliven the declining days of the year and of the kind too which ordinarily do not pose any great problem for the police.

Away from It All

A British company which is big in the ocean liner travel and cruise business has come up with a neat advertisement which tells a lot about people and the state of the world.

There is a snapshot of a happy group of seven vacationers aboard ship. They appear to be real passengers, not just professional models and it's around the shoulders and the countenance of each of them about a life on the ocean wave.

Here is what the seven are quoted as saying: "I was going to call the office as soon as we got to Panama. But when we got there, I said the hell with it. It's nice to be able to forget the whole world for awhile (a businessman) . . . When I got back, Ralph Usina, my doctor, said my blood pressure had dropped 16 points (a grey - haired gentleman) . . . Everybody talks about riots and pollution and noise and LSD. They ought to go out into the middle of the ocean for a few days (a woman traveller) . . . It is the first time Alan and I danced in 12 years . . . I wish I'd made my husband take a cruise with me while he was still alive. He might still be alive now. He never took a vacation in his whole life . . . I don't know men know how to relax anymore . . . I brought along a lot of books I was going to read. But I never found the time (male passenger about 25 years of age) . . . It's the first vacation I ever took where I didn't come back exhausted. Everything took on a new perspective. It sounds funny to say it, but maybe the Red Sea and the Panama Canal mess should take a two-week cruise. I mean it (wife of previous speaker) . . . I was surprised at all the airline pilots that take cruises when they take a vacation (woman passenger)."

Well, a fellow does get a new perspective when he gets away from it all, and we think the above quotes say a lot in this context. It was just a simple, unsophisticated advertisement, but it was all the more potentially effective for its simple, direct approach.

New York Cyclists

It must have looked more like Copenhagen or Dublin . . . at least bicycles. About 1,000 people rode their two - wheeled machines down Fifth Avenue in New York the other day.

It was Mayor John Lindsay's Bike for a Better City Day and it was from the foot of Central Park to the tip of Manhattan. Villain of the piece, which led to this little demonstration, was air pollution by cars.

Well, we know what it is like in Toronto, not to mention downtown Belleville; and New York has enough problems — a fearsome incidence of crime for one thing — without encouraging all sorts of health ailments from pollution into the bargain.

The trouble with bikes though, supposing a great many more citizens get into the act then we can envisage some dandy tie-ups. At least, if a fellow gets knocked down by one he should at least come up breathing cleaner air

Focus on the Outdoors

Australia—Where Sport Is King

From The Globe and Mail

Few countries can equal Australia in public enthusiasm for sport. The climate of course, has much to do with this being almost perfect for outdoor recreation. In the six state capitals, where 60 per cent of Australians live, the average is 6.9 hours of sunshine daily throughout the year, and it never is cold enough for snow. Nevertheless, there is skiing in some mountain regions, including Tasmania.

The tourist cannot help but be impressed by the Australian accent on the outdoors, and has ample opportunity to participate if he is so inclined. In Sydney alone there are 30 sailing beaches within the city limits, 65 golf courses, 300 lawn bowling clubs, five race courses, scores of cricket and football fields, hundreds of public swimming pools, and literally thousands of tennis courts. On weekends especially, the magnificent harbor with its many bays is a blizzard of sails.

As a matter of fact, participation in at least one summer and one winter sport is compulsory in every Australian school.

Only relatively recently has golf become big in Australia. Fifteen years ago it had little wide appeal, was regarded as mainly a game for the rich and leisured. Today, as in Canada, golf is everyman's game, and in many schools it is part of the curriculum.

Skiing has also boomed. In 1949, a hydro-electric project began in the Snowy Mountains that lie between Sydney and Melbourne. Roads pushed deep into the mountains and thousands of workers poured in, most of them Europeans who quickly recognized the region's potential for snow sports. So it has come about that within the past seven years skiing has jumped in popularity from 17th to 6th place among Australian sports. Only 12 years ago all of Australia's ski resorts could accommodate only about 500 people. Now Snowy Mountain resorts alone can house 12,000 at one time.

Throughout Australia there is mass participation in swimming, sailing, water skiing, skin diving, angling and boating of all kinds. Moreover, large areas have been set aside as parkland and public recreation reserves. For instance, nearly a quarter of central Melbourne — as pretty a city as one will see anywhere — is parkland, and Sydney has 120,000 acres of public reserves within its greater metropolitan area.

Outdoor recreation facilities are far from being limited to urban areas, but are mushrooming well off the beaten track. Within a 2,500 - mile sweep from Adelaide in the south to Cairns north of the Tropic of Capricorn, fine ocean beaches occupy almost the entire coastline. In recent years motels and resort hotels have sprung up along the way and there has been a great increase in bus and boat sightseeing services.

The Great Barrier Reef fringes the tropical coast for 1,200 miles, and dotted more than 600 islands, a score of which have been developed as resorts.

Inland in the wide open spaces the emphasis is on riding trails with aboriginal guides, visiting cattle stations with the flying Postman, and wildlife photo safaris in four-wheel-drive vehicles.

Sir Philip Sidney, one of the great figures of Elizabethan England, died of wounds 364 years ago today —18 days—after the battle of Zutphen, Holland. In his first 32 years of life he wrote some of the finest sonnets known and the first English criticism of poetry. He applied to join Drake's cruise in 1585 but was sent instead to the Low Countries. It is said that while dying he refused water and gave it to an ordinary soldier saying, "Thy need is greater than mine."

Public Monies Stolen

Victoria Daily Times

In a recent issue of Weekend Magazine a number of incidents extracted from the Auditor General's reports over the years were recalled — a sorry tale of deliberate theft of government property and money, misuse of public funds, sloppy judgment, and callous disregard for the public interest.

The conclusion of anyone reading the magazine article on the Auditor General's reports is that at any given time, regardless of the government in power, a certain percentage of the people employed in civil or military positions by the government are incompetent, dishonest or both. They are a disgrace to the service they represent, an affront to the vast majority of honest, diligent public servants, and a standing reproach to any administration which permits them to flourish, conceals their depredations or fails to expel them from the public payrolls and exact all possible recompense.

Bid to Reunite Families Separated During Last War

German Protests

BONN, Germany — Of 3.6 million ethnic Germans living in east Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia, a total of 600,000 have officially requested permission to emigrate to west Germany.

In 336,000 cases the reasons given for wanting to leave humanitarian, such as the wish to rejoin relatives living in the west.

During the past 15 years, 22,000 ethnic Germans have been given permission to leave the Soviet Union to live in west Germany according to German Red Cross figures.

The question of speeding up reunification of families played a role in west German-Soviet negotiations on a joint reexamination of force treaty signed in Moscow last August 12.

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin is also said to have promised west German Chancellor Willy Brandt that he would consider Brandt's suggestion to form a joint group to solve the problem of separated family members.

Currently, the Red Cross Organizations of both countries handle the problem. So far, for example, the Russians have supplied information on 300,000 of the 1,500,000 children reported missing in World War II.

Bell Canada Employed 1500 Students This Year

Bell Canada

Late last fall — as a pledge by Canada's leaders — from coast to coast — Bell Canada President R. C. Scrivener laid down a challenge to employ the summer jobs for university and college students in 1979, hopefully to number 2,500.

Given the economic plight of the country then, and what could have been a disastrous shortage of summer jobs ahead in the coming spring and summer, it was a task of monumental dimensions for the nation's businesses, many of which have been forced to endure rigorous belt - tightening. Final national figures were not known at press time. But: Bell itself hired more than 2,500 students, 15 per cent more than the summer of '69. They represent almost 4 percent of all our employees.

We did some things with students we had employed previously, learned some things (for instance, we found that that fearful "gap" is more an example of weary verbal posturing than anything else) and have hope, in your dealings with them, you like them. We do and we hope you will be back next year. With some of their friends. One of them may even prepare an essay on "Life Among Elves. Which would hardly surprise, since a summer student prepared the issue you are now reading.

How Times Have Changed!

The 'Idle and Indolent' were Unwelcome in Pioneer Days

Beverly Gray in . . .

The Globe and Mail

In 1832, Rev. Isaac Fidler of Black Creek, Upper Canada, said sternly: "Persons of idle and indolent habits, of weak or delicate constitutions, of wavering or unstable minds, and such as are addicted to intemperance, ought never to enter Canada."

Visitors to Black Creek Pioneer Village will see why this Scotch immigrant who ignored the warning would rue the day he ever set foot in the country.

Among the early settlers in the Black Creek area of Upper Canada were a few United Empire Loyalists, some British, and many Pennsylvania Dutch. The Pennsylvania Dutch were German (Deutsch, which became Dutch in the New World) Mennonites who left Germany in the Seventeenth Century because of religious persecution, and settled in Pennsylvania. The first of them came to Canada at the invitation of Governor John Graves Simcoe, who admired their industry, honesty and sobriety, recognizing them as solid citizens.

Many of them came in Conestoga wagons, boat - shaped, canvas - covered. The big wagons were drawn by teams of four or six horses, or often oxen, which were slower, but tireless and intemperamental. They hauled loads weighing up to eight tons; the wagons as freight trains.

The restored Pioneer Village, which opened in 1960, is typical of those in South Central Ontario, 1793-1867. All the 23 buildings are original; five of them, including the handsome cantilevered barn, were buildings on the Stong farm, site of the village. Some buildings were brought from other communities, like Riddle's Mill, which was built in 1842 at Amelia-burg. All furnishings are authentic, and all date from before 1867.

Life in the village goes on much as it did in such centres 100 years ago. There are pigs in the piggery, sheep in the pasture. A farmer (there is a staff of about 40 in the Village) is plowing a field. A young woman is at a loom, wooden clothes outside the kitchen door, using a wooden hub, home-made soap and a scrubbing board. Another woman makes butter in a churn. Still another bakes bread from flour ground at the mill. (Visitors can buy it—a loaf of bread for 35 cents if they get there early; it is snatched up almost as fast as "it comes out of the stone oven.)

There are two main centres of social life in the early villages, the general store (emporium) where customers and storekeeper traded goods, service and gossip, and the inn.

The Half Way House of Pioneer Village was a stagecoach stop on the Yonge Street road, providing meals and accommodation for travellers and boarders; as many as 40 might be served at one meal.

On the wall of the Half Way House were these Rules of This Tavern: «I pence a night; 6 pence with pot luck; no more than 2 to sleep in one bed (when the inn was crowded, strangers often had to share a bed); no beds to be worn in bed; no peddlers or tinkers taken in; no dogs allowed in the kitchen; Organ Grinders to sleep in the wash house.

In fall and spring, conventions are usually presented only on weekends, but during the summer, the Village is a busy place. You can watch the blacksmith at work, and some of the things he makes, such as fire-place sets and hook ends, are sold at gift shop. He also shoes horses and the oxen on the farm. Oxen are harder to shoe than horses. Because of their small feet, they cannot support their great weight (those on the farm weigh about 1,800 pounds) on three legs, and must be lifted off the ground. This causes severe shock and trauma to the animals and possibly to the blacksmith as well.

The village is open to visitors April 30 until Nov. 12, and activities vary with the season. Spring brings sheep shearing, wool dyeing, flax pulling, candle dipping, plowing, harrowing, seeding. In June there is spinning, weaving, rug hooking, quilting, embroidery. September brings weekend demonstrations of country cooking, and baking in black iron pots on the hearth. In October, there are weekend demonstrations of harvesting, flailing, winnowing, preserving, apple pacing. November weekends are devoted to Christmas preparations, baking cookies, cakes, mince meat, making hot mulled cider.

Mrs. Gough in Receiving Line

A Teacher 48 Years, Keitha Gough Honored

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — School days were recalled in Bloomfield last Saturday night for Keitha Gough, a retired teacher who this June completed more than 48 years in her profession. About 400 persons flocked to an open house held in her honor at Pinecrest School where she finished her final year of teaching.

A graduate of Bloomfield public school and Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Mrs. Gough earned her teacher's degree at Peterborough Normal College in 1926. She returned to Prince Edward County to teach her first class in Bloomfield public school where the county board of education offices now are located. Throughout her entire career Mrs. Gough taught pupils in grades one and two. She recalled that her first class was a large one of about 46 students, a sharp contrast with today's preferred maximum of 25 pupils in each class.

"Readin', writin' and 'rithmitic" have undergone marked changes since Mrs. Gough stood before her first grade pupils almost half a century ago. She commented that one of the biggest innovations has been the introduction of a wide range of teaching aids such as television, tape recorders, overhead projectors, record players and films. Mrs. Gough also mentioned the improved ratio of teaching consultants to the schools to discuss subjects in the curriculum.

Changes in student supervision during the past 48 years were noted by Mrs. Gough. She commented that at schools like Pinecrest, with an enrolment of 700 pupils, supervision is constant. Boys and girls remain under teachers' supervision in the halls and on the playground. When Mrs. Gough accepted her first teaching position at the 150 students attended Bloomfield Public School; all of them from the immediate district. Dwarfed by today's sprawling schools, the old Bloomfield elementary school had only three classrooms in 1920. Two new classrooms eventually were added before the school was closed and its pupils transferred to the new Pinecrest Memorial school.

Mrs. Gough continued her teaching duties at Pinecrest, when her first school was closed along with the other "little red schoolhouses" in Prince Edward County. Last year she instructed a grade one class, retiring at the close of the spring term.

The open house conducted Saturday evening was organized for Mrs. Gough by Bloomfield village residents eager to honor her contribution to education. Former students co-operating with the faculty of Pinecrest school planned a special "thank you" to Mrs. Gough beginning with a reception line at her former classroom.

Mrs. Gough was congratulated by scores of former pupils before being ushered into the auditorium for a presentation ceremony. Three former principals of Bloomfield public school and Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Mrs. Gough earned her teacher's degree at Peterborough Normal College in 1926. She returned to Prince Edward County to teach her first class in Bloomfield public school where the county board of education offices now are located. Throughout her entire career Mrs. Gough taught pupils in grades one and two. She recalled that her first class was a large one of about 46 students, a sharp contrast with today's preferred maximum of 25 pupils in each class.

"Readin', writin' and 'rithmitic" have undergone marked changes since Mrs. Gough stood before her first grade pupils almost half a century ago. She commented that one of the biggest innovations has been the introduction of a wide range of teaching aids such as television, tape recorders, overhead projectors, record players and films. Mrs. Gough also mentioned the improved ratio of teaching consultants to the schools to discuss subjects in the curriculum.

the township of Hallowell." Mrs. Gough also received an envelope containing copies of the school register from 1920 to 1970, recording the names of all of her pupils. Letters and telegrams arrived from former colleagues and students unable to be present. Among them was a telegram from Morris Foster, liberal member for Algoma East riding. His wire reminded Mrs. Gough that during her teaching career she instructed boys and girls who later entered all walks of life. "There were doctors, lawyers, politicians, nurses and farmers," she mused.

Although she has officially retired, Mrs. Gough remains actively interested in the teaching profession. She hopes to visit Queen Elizabeth Public School in Picton soon to observe the open team teaching system in operation. Her description of almost 50 years on the frontier of education? "I enjoyed it from the first year to the last," declared Keitha Gough.

Health Unit to Vaccinate Against German Measles

A program to rid the next generation of German measles will get under way here soon.

Through the Ontario Department of Health, the Hastings County health unit is receiving a campaign against the disease that has given cripples of unborn babies.

Although the disease is mild and harmless, it can damage unborn babies, especially if the mother contracts it in the early stages of pregnancy.

"We have been waiting 100 years for this vaccine," said medical officer of health Dr. C. R. Lash.

His unit will soon begin vaccination of all school children in grades 1 through 8.

The object of health departments is to extinguish the disease completely, to create a new generation as resistant it will never pass the disease on to a pregnant woman," said the physician.

Tests have proved that a vaccinated child cannot pass the virus on to a non-vaccinated pregnant woman, so health departments across Canada have given the green light to a preventive vaccination program.

The disease can be contracted only once in a lifetime in most cases, and scientists are hopeful the vaccine also will be a "one shot" affair.

However, the vaccine has been in use for so short a time that the period of its effectiveness has not been determined.

Dr. Lash predicts that the vaccination program will become an annual event in schools, and will be extended to other grades.

Credit Counselling Service Set Up with UCS Support

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

A credit counselling service is being established in Belleville under the auspices of the United Community Services and the chairmanship of Orval Wagar, who is head of the field auditing group of the department of National Revenue (Taxation Division) in the city.

For some years Mr. Wagar has been rendering such a service to the community on a voluntary basis and commentes that well over half those who consulted him have been helped to a successful conclusion. The former United Church minister turned civil servant said he had entertained the idea for such a service in his retirement years' and it seemed almost like "divine guidance" when last June a delegation consisting of the Rev. Laurie Sutherland and Mrs. Harry Fast, representing the United Community Services, advised him that subject to his acceptance he had been named chairman of a committee to form a credit counselling division for the city of Belleville and district.

Mr. Wagar told the Rotary Club yesterday that such a service would be of benefit both to those who use credit counselling, which is designed to guide them into wise use of credit, and to get those in difficulties back into control of their affairs; and also to creditors in improving their chances of getting in slow and doubtful accounts.

Not only do consumers get into financial difficulties by using credit beyond their means to repay, said Mr. Wagar, but also by business and professional men and financial institutions giving credit too freely, in order to promote sales or business or because "that's the custom."

Many financial institutions should not always blame the consumer who abuses the use of credit if is unable to pay his accounts. Always remember that "you encouraged him to buy and permitted them to buy on credit or to borrow for that purpose."

Mr. Wagar said he was well aware that such persons had entered into a verbal or written contract to pay in installments over a period of time, and added: "When I make a proposal to creditors I always do so after a thorough analysis and as impartially as possible to all creditors. At least half of my interview will help result from creditors who do not accept my suggestions or even answer my letters. However, as my work has become better known I am finding increasing acceptance of my proposals.

Briefly, he said financial counselling consists of a confidential analysis of a client's income, expenses, living requirements and debt position, then working out a budget based on the facts of each situation. Since many people, he went on, are hampered either by training or inclination of keeping a budget he had worked out a simplified plan which most of them could follow.

Mr. Wagar said he intends to co-ordinate his work as far as possible with the Diocesan Court, the Credit Bureau, Welfare and any other similar service.

The policy of similar service bureaus, he said, is to provide service without charge and it is hoped that in the kind stages volunteers will be found to do the work. Some of the expenses such as postage and stationery would have to come from the United Community Services or from donations from interested persons or businesses.

The provincial government would provide an annual grant of 50 per cent of expenses raised locally up to a maximum of $5,000 per year. Representatives are now being sought for increased financial assistance to Family Service Bureaus either branch or in co-ordination with welfare programs.

Mr. Wagar pointed out that for several years on had been giving financial counselling to persons in financial difficulties, sometimes on the request of both husband and wife and sometimes by monthly interviews over periods extending up to two years. In some circumstances he had given them guidance in handling their finances even when it seemed advisable had handled their funds through a trust account.

In the early stages of the service, for which he had not yet charged, Mr. Wagar added that he might assist three or four families each year. However with the opening within Lifeline in Belleville in 1967 he had been listed as a referral person with this organization for family financial counselling and had handled from one to three new cills a month all on a volunteer basis.

In the last few months he had had two families consult him for financial advice on recommendation of local projects before committing themselves to the project, to see whether their plans were sound financially. One of these was the proprietor of a business on Front Street.

Committal services and interment will take place to morrow at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Toronto.

Dogcatcher On Phone

TRENTON (Staff) — Town residents will now be able to call their dogcatcher without paying long-distance toll charges.

Council decided in Monday's session to establish a Zenith toll-free telephone line to the animal control officer's residence.

Mayor Duncan McDonald advocated this procedure at the council meeting on Sept. 8 when the activities of the dogcatcher, Donald Tucker, were subject of considerable discussion.

Mr. Tucker lives in Stirling and could not be reached that night that Trenton residents should not have to foot the bill merely for trying to get in touch with him.

One Break-in, One Attempt

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that $111 worth of tools were stolen from a storage room sometime between Friday night and Monday morning.

He said that thieves entered the room by breaking a window and its frame.

A break-in at a residence at 311 Dundas Street East sometime between nine a.m. and five p.m. yesterday, was avoided thanks to the loyalty of a canine watcher.

Chief Crosbie said that glass was broken in a basement window on the west side of the house but police suspect that a dog at the residence scared the intruder away.

Spellbound

Students and Children Enjoy Live Theatre

"Children are the most maligned and abused of the species, the most neglected citizens on earth," says the 26-year-old Beaf-not-born director.

Mr. Crothers teaches English and drama at the college and formed the company to give both students and children a taste of live theatre.

The 10-man company made their own flats, sets and costumes. This, Mr. Crothers says, cut down on expenses, and the students also got a summer course credit.

"These students are not just actors. We explained, they learn everything about setting, sets, script analysis from both the actor's and director's point of view—everything. We combine theory and practice."

As an added incentive, company members were guaranteed a flat rate of $250 for the 42 North York performances.

"North York provides the facilities (a city's gymnasium) and the advertising while we get the take," he said. Since admission tickets were only 35 cents, the take wasn't much.

In plays such as Brian Way's The Mirrorman, Mr. Crothers made one important stipulation: "No nightmares, that's our policy."

"Children get involved physically, mentally and emotionally and we make a point of disabusing them of their illusions. We don't want to manipulate them."

At times the wicked witch in The Mirrorman, grotesque and menacing in flowing black robes and blacked-out teeth and with a ghastly cackle, so horrified youngsters that Crothers let them take off their makeup to see the person underneath.

Of course some children react differently. "Once on our tour of the inner-city schools they began chasing me," recalls Pat Bardsley, the 21-year-old Seneca student who played the witch.

Crothers remembers the incident. "We actually had to rescue her. They were shouting 'Kill the witch' and were ready to take her apart."

Mr. Crothers compares his troupe's plays to Dionysus 69, a risque Toronto play. Since Dionysus has nudity and scenes which show shocked misery, the comparison seems strained.

"Dionysus uses the same technique as children's shows. It's not dirty. Kids and children are not stupid. They know it's a play. But Dionysus asks the audience to participate, and to do that you must be like children. You have to accept the rules of the game."

MR. AND MRS. RONALD JAMES LING

Ling – Fitzgerald

Christ Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony when Doris Catherine Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Fitzgerald of Belleville became the bride of Ronald James Ling, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ling, Belleville. Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright officiated at the service and wedding music was provided by John Withers at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length empire styled gown of sculptured satin featuring a Victorian style collar and long sleeves with ruffle trim. Her headdress of matching material was caught to a two-tier veil and she carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Mrs. Norma Pointer as matron of honor wore a floor-length gown of flowered polyester georgette in shades of green and yellow. The bodice featured short ruffled "little girl" sleeves. She wore a pale green picture hat and carried a bouquet of white and yellow shasta daisies. Bridesmaids Mrs. Patricia DeLong and Mrs. Suzanne Jones, both sisters of the bride, were attired identically to the matron of honor.

Tom Jones attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Paul Ford and Steve Ling, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the Tartan Lounge at the AV and AF Hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a peach colored crimpilene dress with overlay of beige lace, beige accessories and a corsage of white and peach tinted carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a blue crimpilene dress with blue and white accessories and a corsage of blue and white carnations.

Doctors Advise

Pregnant Women to Avoid Aspirin

They found that the babies of mothers who took this household drug were more apt to develop bleeding problems than those of mothers who did not take it.

The doctors, Werner A. Bleyer and Robert T. Breckenridge, studied the effects of aspirin at the University of Rochester (N.Y.) School of Medicine and Dentistry.

Bleyer and Breckenridge noted that "studies in normal adults have demonstrated that a single, small dose of aspirin" can cause blood clotting abnormalities for as long as seven days after it is taken.

They said aspirin-induced reduction in clotting ability may be clinically relevant, particularly during difficult deliveries or in the presence of diseases affecting blood flow, such as hemophilia.

Mrs. Doris Ogbourne, organist and William Hurst, soloist provided wedding music. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long empire-style gown of lagoda fabric with puffed bell sleeves and a mandarin collar trimmed with lace applique. The A-line skirt had a lace trimmed front panel and the overskirt gave a coat effect. A lapelle train trimmed with matching lace fell from the shoulders. The four-tiered shoulder-length silk illusion veil was caught to silk organza morning glories trimmed with crystals. She carried a cascade of red roses and lilies of the valley.

Matron of honor Mrs. Francis Oliver, the bride's cousin, wore a long mauve silk chiffon gown with an empire waist, short puffed sleeves and an A-line skirt with lace dalsies trimming the neckline. She carried a colonial bouquet of lilies of the valley, carnations and roses of mauve, pink and yellow. Mauve flowers adorned her hair.

Bridesmaids Evelyn and Carol Deshane, sisters of the bride, wore long pink and yellow crepe dresses with boat necklines, puffed sleeves and softly gathered straight skirts. White daisies and lace trimmed the sleeves, waists and necklines. They wore pink and yellow flowers in their hair and carried bouquets identical to that of the matron of honor. Flower girl Sherry Pickell wore a long, mauve empire-waisted gown of georgette chiffon with an A-line skirt and short, puffed sleeves. She carried a small rainbow colored bouquet of roses and carnations and wore mauve flowers in her hair.

Best man was Phillip Oliver a cousin of the bride and the ushers were Joseph Deshane Jr., the bride's brother and Henry Hann. Ring bearer was Ricky Pickell.

For the reception held at Kiwanis Centre the bride's mother wore a tunic dress of mauve chiffon with matching accessories and a corsage of mauve and white roses and lily of the valley. The bridegroom's mother chose a two-piece mint green boucle knit suit with matching accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride left in a red plaid pleated skirt with a matching safari jacket and matching accessories. Upon return the newlyweds will live in Mississauga.

Panel Talks On Growth Of Flowers

MARMORA —A panel discussion chaired by Mr. A. M. Jones at Tuesday's meeting of Marmora Horticultural Society, brought out many points in the growing of garden flowers especially peonies, African violets and cockscombs. Dried flower arrangements easily assembled this season for winter use, was also discussed.

Those taking part were Miss Gertrude Mahoney, Mrs. Clarence Rogers and Mrs. Manley Lavender. Miss Mahoney dwelt on the subject of peonies and showed the care needed to produce a fine bloom, while Mrs. Rogers gave the fine points in preparing the assembly of dried flowers to make attractive winter bouquets.

Specimens of cockscomb from her garden were displayed by Mrs. Lavender, who told how they could be used successfully both fresh and dried in arrangements. Other topics, including African violets were discussed by the panelists.

Another feature of the program was the exhibit of many good blooms, as well as the exchange of slips and plants. Seeds of annuals and peren[illegible] were also distributed The making of winter bouquets using soap to form a filler to hold and arrange a bouquet was discussed.

Two new books on horticulture have been purchased for the secretary, Mrs. Mary Bedore one to be kept in the library and one for use of members.

An interest in tulip bulbs was shown and enquiries made for the purchase of bulbs in quantity for members in the Society.

Those who travelled to Ham Bloan in the summer on a tour of gardens reported an enjoyable day. Contest to be made with Stirling Horticultural Society to attend the District Annual meeting on Saturday in Gananoque.

Mrs. George Madgett report ed a substantial balance in the treasury. In the absence of the president, Frank Foster, the meeting was presided over by Miss Mahoney. At next month's meeting a film is to be shown, and a panel discussion by another group of members.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD LADNER

Ladner – Johnson

Mount Pleasant United Church was the scene of the Sept. 5 wedding of Nancy Marian Johnson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Johnson of Stirling to Donald Joseph Ladner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Ladner of Streetsville. Rev. H. C. Cox conducted the ceremony and Mrs. Harry Brown played the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie with an overlay of imported lace. An empire waistline, scalloped neckline and sleeves, and a self train. A tiered veil fell from her petal burst head dress and she carried a cascade of red and white roses.

For the reception held at the bride's home, the bride's mother wore a navy forzrel knit dress with long sleeves and a self - pleated skirt. Black and white accessories and a corsage of pink and white mums completed her outfit.

The bridegroom's mother chose a semi - fitted dress of raspberry lace over crepe with long sleeves. She had matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

It Is Useless to Worry; But Many Do

By DORIS CLARE

Why worry? If the money was stolen, it will probably be back. If you can't get Hubby to wear his rubbers on a rainy day, if the stock market goes down — is worry going to help anything? Anything at all?

It is human to let these things alarm us, since we dislike the idea of going broke, raising a rebellious child, having a sick husband, or losing that money we squander on margin. Human, yes, but useless.

Worry can cause worse things to happen. Worry about the first piece. Worry can cause fatigue, headaches, stomach troubles, pushdown several times over, and decreased in immunity, these ailments bring on some more headaches, stomach ulcers and worse.

Worry is a habit, one that any one of us can get over. Action helps. If nothing can be done about your particular worry, change what you are doing, relax and await on the good things.

Most of the time you see your troubles fade into thin air if we give them a chance.

Dear Doris: A few weeks ago while walking downtown, I suddenly confronted to this that something pleasant was happening all around me.

I had passed a couple of small children and they looked right past me without hailing an eyeball. They had not laughed, snickered or pointed fingers with a grin. They had actually thought me quite ordinary. None did the usual double take, as they first set eyes on me.

A year ago this certainly would not have been the case, because on January 27th, 1969, I joined Canadian Calorie Counters and weighed in at about 213 pounds. I say "about" because the bravest scales only register up to 200 pounds and for the first two weeks I used two bathroom scales — one foot on each and adding the two.

Meade H.

Dear Maude: In 12 months you lost 101 pounds, and you are still! at it. It wasn't easy, but the rewards are terrific — like being able to wear nylons, or to cross your legs, or go into a store and actually find something to fit.

More power to you!

Dear Doris: It's person owes another money, and instead of paying back, buys merchandise that he can and has in use, is he not making use of the money twice? — Bewildered.

Dear Bewildered: I was bewildered too, until I decided that you meant he bought the merchandise from the per son to whom he owed the money. If he thought that performing his creditor's stocks and feeding him cash for goods was paying him back, he needs his head read.

Your friend should be paid back in kind — cash for cash.

Talking it over helps. Write to Doris for help with your dilemma, care of this newspaper.

Crumbed Eggplant

By MARY MOORE

Some sort of a platter had been reached when every one of the kiddies had said they liked crumbed eggplant.

Many of you mothers know that's a good way to introduce an unknown flavor — especially if it is a vegetable.

I like eggplant with the seat of a missionary prepared and served it to my visitors and was treated to consequences. "Gram this stuff is good. What is it called?" I had won a friend for life, others chipped in too with "Mmm, delicious" so I thought you could, perchance, w i n some converts to this exotic vegetable. It did, right too.

CRUMBED EGGPLANT

(Serves 4)

1 large eggplant (or 2 med.)
1 egg
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. water
About 1¼ cups soft bread crumbs

Cut large eggplant in ¼" thick slices and pare it. Cut each slice in half crosswise. (If you are using two medium eggplant, slices do not need to be cut in halves). Parboil 5 min., covered. Drain well. In shallow bowl beat egg with salt and water to mix. Dip eggplant slices in egg then in crumbs on a plate. (If you have time let them rest to dry and set a little before frying.) Melt about 3 tbsps. margarine or butter in large frying pan and fry over med. heat crumbed eggplant until golden on bottom then turn over and brown other side.

NOTE 1: Crumbed eggplant can be refrigerated before frying or can be fried in advance and reheated in oven, but the flavor is best just before serving.

NOTE 2: On the subject of vegetables: I have just discovered a new kabob combination for barbecue enthusiasts. Arrange alternately 1½" cubes of fresh pork shoulder, 1" slices of zucchini and 1" pieces of underripe banana. Let everyone barbecue his own kabob to his desired stage of doneness.

NOTE: The recipe for Peach Marmalade as given yesterday should read:

Put through food chopper the quartered oranges and carrots. When they were combined I had three cups of these two ingredients. Turn them into a large (not enamel) kettle, add the water and boil gently while you peel the peaches. Take note of the time the mixture starts boiling. Scald peaches in boiling water and peel and slice and measure. Add to oranges and carrots in kettle along with the lemon juice and boil gently, stirring until carrots are tender. Ours required 45 min. cooking in all but the tenderness of the carrots is the test. Add Certo, remove from heat, stir and skim 5 min. Have ready your sterilized jam jars with lids and some melted paraffin. Pour with broad lip to fill jars within ¼" of tops. Cover with ¼-in. layer of hot wax paraffin and put on clean lids. Wash dry, cool and label.

Serve on toast next winter.

Ann Landers

Gripe Giving Her Nervous Indigestion

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My gripe is giving me nervous indigestion. The kids are bothered by it, too. Maybe you can come up with a solution.

Everything runs like clockwork around our home. My husband is a nut about scheduling. (Herb used to be a Master Sergeant). Well, dammit, at our place it is at six o'clock sharp. You can set your watch by it. So every night, promptly at 6:05, the telephone rings. It's my mother-in-law. She talks (or I should say listens) for at least 15 minutes — sometimes 20. In fact, he had a long card on the phone so he can talk to her from the dinner table. He cradles the phone between his ear and shoulder and says, "Yes, Ma. No, Ma. Really, Ma." She tells him all the family garbage; he could care less) and reads him parts of letters from relatives as well as items from the church bulletin. Now and then she starts to read him a letter from your column. When she does this he says, "I saw it, Ma."

I have asked Herb a dozen times to please ask his mother to call a half hour later. He says, "I wouldn't hurt her for the world." In the meantime every night our dinner is interrupted. The kids and I hate it. What's the answer? — A GRIPE FROM GUAM.

DEAR GRIPER: The answer is so obvious I'm surprised you haven't thought of it. What's so sacred about six o'clock? Get the short cord back on the telephone and reschedule chow for 6:30.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is from a bewildered dad who needs a level-headed woman's point of view.

Recently I moved my family from Richmond, Virginia, to Southern California. As we were leaving Richmond, Virginia I happened to walk through my 16-year-old daughter's bedroom. She was in the process of dressing and was wearing only a pair of panties and a bra. My daughter is very conservative and immediately grabbed her kimona. I was very pleased with her modesty.

Three months later this same girl walked into our living room while guests were present. She was wearing a bikini which exposed half of her bottom. If she had leaned over she'd have been stark naked.

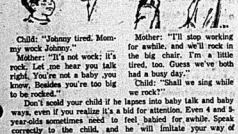
I kept my daughter for an explanation of her sudden absence of modesty. She said, "It's just a matter of fashion. Daddy are ill. Everybody's wearing them." Is this change in her dress to peer pressure, or the wish to be accepted, or generally be or what? — POP-EYED.

* * *

DEAR POP: You cannot carry her back to 'Ol' Virginia'. Unfortunately, 16-year-olds are also wearing bikinis in California, so you insist that the girl wear a World War I bathing suit. Heaven forbid! But you do have the right to expect your 16-year-old daughter to wear clothes in the living room, unless, of course, that's where the swimming pool is which in California is not unheard of.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What does a 22-year-old, slightly overweight, but meticulous girl do about a kind, considerate, faithful boy friend whose idea of a compliment is as follows: "You sweat less than any fat girl I know." — FRANKLY NETTLED.



DEAR NET: Accept the fact that your boyfriend is no poet and settle for kindness, consideration and fidelity. You could do worse. Many girls who write to me have.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "Johnny tired. Mommy rock Johnny."

Mother: "It's not work: it's rock. Let me hear you talk right. You're not a baby you know. Besides you're too big to be rocked."

Don't scold your child if he lapses into baby talk and baby ways, even if you realize it's a bid for attention. Even 4 and 5-year-olds sometimes need to feel babied for awhile. Speak correctly to the child, and he will imitate your way of speaking.

Church Groups

CWL

MARMORA — Evening Mass, with Mrs. Charles Brady giving the spiritual readings, was celebrated for members by Father T. G. Scanlan before the September meeting of the CWL in Marmora.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Joe O'Neill. On the resignation of the secretary, Mrs. Tom Brady, a new appointment to this office will be made by the president and director.

Convener of 'Family Life' committee, Mrs. Joe Maloney, read a fine article "Family Night Builds Unity" which recommended a weekly family night and formation of a family council for discussions and activities, to break down communication barriers and increase good family spirit.

Social action convener, Mrs. Breen O'Connor, spoke of the walkathon being undertaken by diocesan executive at the National Convention in Toronto this week, and a motion was passed that Marmora CWL would sponsor Mrs. O'Connor in her three-mile endeavor for the Canadian Catholic Organization of Development and Peace. Donations were also made by individual members.

In new business, a donation will also be sent to the diocesan treasurer for the newly established Hope Fund, created to assist in worthy projects in the diocese.

Members were invited to attend the regional meeting in Batawa on October 4.

Catering for the warden's banquet on November 21 was discussed, as well as preparations for the annual parish bazaar October 20 and 21.

Maritime Artist's Work To Be Shown at Library

The works of a Saint John, New Brunswick artist, Andrew V. Olsen will be featured at an exhibition of paintings at the Public Library gallery commencing Monday September 29.

Mrs. D. G. Anderson will be present with the art exhibition shown from 3 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Sundays until October 13, to represent Mr. Olsen.

The artist was born in Denmark where he spent his early years sailing. He came to Canada in the 30s, served overseas with the Canadian Engineers during the Second World War and upon his return became absorbed in Nature and found expression in paintings.

He has a most unusual style and his work is beautiful and warmly received wherever it is shown. The paintings have found a ready market amongst art lovers and have been shown at various galleries including the Beaverbrook in Fredericton. He was awarded a first at the Atlantic National Exhibition in 1967.

From his studio overlooking the sea Mr. Olsen has produced realisms, modified and total abstracts, which he prefers to think of as impressions, and compositions of many varieties — but always an "original" in the final analysis.

It happens tomorrow...

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1970

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

It's only fitting that this year's opening of National Hockey League training camps coincided with a strike by 300,000 auto workers.

A few years back, hockey bofts would be sitting up their necks listening to the latest word of bribed rookie prospects. But now when training camp time rolls around it's a new sort of guessing game.

It's no longer how many goals you think Dave Keon is going to get, but how many more C-notes he can pry from the Smythe family till.

Hockey, of course, doesn't have a monopoly on North American sport's galloping commercialism. Within the past 12 months we've seen professional football and baseball players south of the border threaten strikes, something unheard of before the migration into pro sport of a new breed of bird, known in its hockey habitat as the Double - breasted Eagleson.

It depends on how one looks at it. On the surface, you think, nobody should get $100,000 for playing a game when we're only paying prime ministers half that for running the country. (A natural alternative would be to hire a prime minister with a good slapshot.)

But on the other hand, you ask, if Bobby Hulls and Bortons weren't punching the big cash registers would be reaping the benefits of the ever - surging spectator interest in sport?

The Canadian in the street — unless it's Ray — tends to lean towards a richer Orr than a richer Smythe or Molson. It's a complex phenomenon known as the Rocket Richard theory of economic redistribution.

After all, the reasoning goes, isn't it the aspect of an Orr, Hull or Mahovlich that fill the rinks and make all these cigar - smoking owners rich?

All this ignores the fact that some fairly talented hockey players do not engage in pre - season shinny bickering.

Gordon Hiene of Floral, Saskatchewan is a hockey player of sorts, I can't ever recall him holding out, although he makes enough to pay his rent. Old Gord is a bit of a square; he hasn't ever had his salary published on the front page of Hockey News!

The Montreal Canadiens have been known to win the Stanley Cup despite having the singular habit of signing all their players before training camp opens.

The annual pre - season player - management hassle is taking the edge off Joe fan's enjoyment of hockey.

Last week in Peterborough, Buffalo Sabres' protege Gil Perreault was holding out for greener circles at centre ice, not looking much like the superstar Punch Imlach wants him to be.

Geared by experience of the salary wars to recognize a potential holdout when he saw one, a jaded supporter yelled: "I hope your cheque bounces!"

That's about all we can say for sure. General-manager Robert Temple says he has nothing to whet Belleville's senior hockey appetite, although the season opener against Owen Sound is only 16 days distant.

Training camp cannot begin until ice is in the Memorial Arena, which should be by Sunday or Monday. The Mo-Hawks had a tentative exhibition game with Kingston planned for this week.

Meanwhile, rumors grew more persistent about a Peterborough Senior A entry, but OHA business manager Bill Hanley assures there has been no formal application made or discussions held on the matter.

Mo-Hawk net mainstay Steve Rexe returned Saturday from Minnesota North Stars' training camp with a lucrative offer to play for Minnesota's Clinton affiliate in the Eastern League.

"I had the best camp I've ever had," beamed Rexe. "I'm down to 167 pounds and I finished up last season over 180."

Belleville junior hockey lost the services of one of its best supporters last night when Tom "Red" Mavety announced he was leaving the B's organization after ten years' association with Jim "Snipe" Matthews.

Red's resignation was prompted by business commitments as "sole brother number one."

As for the newly - named Fairways B's, coach Floyd Crawford wants all prospective players to sign in at as 8 p.m. Memorial Arena meeting Wednesday night to avoid the usual opening - night confusion of training camp.

City visits by both the Montreal Canadiens and NHL Oldtimers' hockey attractions are both in the planning stages at the moment.

The Montreal visit, featuring "the Rocket", of course, is a project of the city firefighters for their underprivileged children's Christmas fund.

The Junior B Fairways and the minor hockey all - stars are hoping to get Bob Goldham, Sid Smith, Bob Hildebrand, and the other Toronto - based oldtimers for an exhibition game sometime after the New Year.

Tonight's special general meeting of the Belleville and District Minor Soccer Association is of vital concern, not only to parents and coaches of soccer - playing children, but to all concerned with minor sports in the city.

Under debate will be the proposed adoption of the European - style "club system", which would group all soccer teams in the city and Trenton into six club organizations. This is quite a departure from this "every-team-for-itself" concept of house league minor sport participation.

Adoption of the club system could mean a parting of the ways between minor soccer and the parent Belleville Minor Sports Association.

Passage of by-law 8324 by city council Monday made a second city ice rink more of a reality than it has ever been.

Trojan Coach Looking for Offensive Manners

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Moira Secondary School teacher Dan Lietzer is hoping to associate with some really offensive people, this year. Not that the coach of the senior football Trojans is in favor of good manners but not on the gridiron.

"For once I'm hoping that we can put together an offence that can survive the ball down the field," declared Lietzer. "Last year's offence was pretty good, but they were on the field 75 per cent of the time because the offence couldn't move the ball."

Last year's Trojans could manage only 32 points for the entire season and the season's scoring output put them right to the bottom of the eight-team Bay of Quinte high school league.

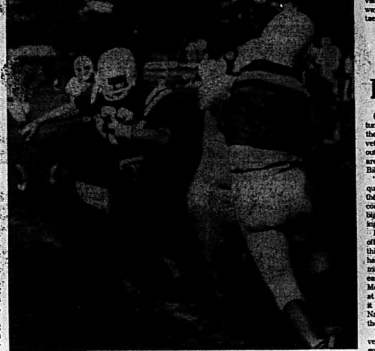
The Moira seniors have therefore been stressing offensive skills in their pre-season workouts, particularly blocking, fundamentally. "Blocking is the key to any offence. If you can open the holes then you can make the ball," says Lietzer.

Providing the seniors list this year's team will be eight holdovers from 1969, along with a number of graduates from last year's Junior COSSA champions.

The battle for starting quarterback is still wide open with no less than four candidates vying for the number one spot. Right now it appears as though either Rob Mathews, who saw action as a senior pivot last year, or Brian Cousins will open at quarterback.

The strength of the Trojan's straight - T attack appears to be in the backfield. The addition of halfback Jim Lennox should give the ground game as considerable boost as the former Brockville standout combines the size and speed to go inside or around the end.

Another strongpoint should be fullback Peter Hart, returning from last year's team, while halfback Tim Yohn rounds out a solid starting backfield.



The Trojan's offensive output will rise or fall on the performance of their offensive line, where tackle Dan Coulson appears to be the only pre-season standout.

The defence, which was on a par with all but two of the league entries last year (allowing 114 points) should again be a Trojan strongpoint. They'll have the advantage of only playing one way, in most cases, as Lietzer is attempting to go with separate offensive and defensive platoons.

Spearheading the defence will be scrappy end Dick Spencer and safety Dave Smith.

Trojan Horsepower

Moira halfback Jim Lennox powers his way into the line in a pre-season scrimmage for the senior Trojans. Moira will be looking for an increased offensive output when they open their Bay of Quinte schedule against BCI Wednesday. Game time will be 3 p.m. at the fairgrounds.

Collegians Suffer From Talent Drain

(Staff) — BCI football fortunes have taken a turn for the better lately as a few veteran players have turned out for practice, but things are still far from rosy for Bill Miller's Collegians.

"We're hurting. There's no question about that," says the senior Collegians' head coach, "sometimes I think our biggest problem will be fielding 22 players."

Despite the apparent drop-off in talent from last year's third - place team, BCI still has retained enough to remain a force in the league's eastern section. "It looks like Moira has a pretty good shot at first," admits Miller, "and it should be a battle between Napanee, Picton and us for the final play-off spot."

With a strong defence, a veteran offensive line and a good breakaway runner in the person of Mike Scarlett, the Collegians can still provide trouble for any of the league's top teams.

The offensive line will be the strong point of the BCI attack with veterans Paul Haggis, Dave Doherty and Mark Lucas providing effective blocking for the BCI backs.

The offensive backfield is still unsettled, although the coaching staff is thinking of converting Scarlett from half-back to the quarterback position.

If Scarlett returns to his running back position then first - year man Peter Scott will probably direct the offence.

Because of the lack of experience BCI will operate out of a straight - T formation and according to their coach, "run pretty much the basic straight-T plays."

Defensively Miller hopes to field a strong starting 12, and while he hopes to field two separate units, he head coach feels that, "there just may not be enough talent."

Bolstering the defence will be the four - man linebacking crew of John Robin, Dave Bailey, Ron Huner and Dave Foran.

Up front, Rod Wyatt leads a strong first line of defence. The only unsettled spot seems to be the defensive backfield, where lack of experience could create problems.

Quinte League at the Post

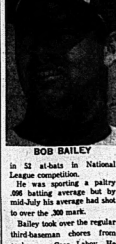
The Quinte Hockey League isn't letting any grass grow under its skates as team officials held their first meeting, last night.

Three of the four entries from last year's loop were on hand as Stephen Piercy, Centralia Taxi and Stinson Construction were all represented.

The lone absentee was Alnwick/Haldimand which has folded.

Piercy's only major development was the appointment of Don Gavey as referee - in - chief for the upcoming season.

The next meeting is slated for Monday, October 5, in the Amber Room at 7 p.m.



Expos Glad Bob Stuck

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Bailey would not have been very surprised if Montreal Expos had sent him to the minors in June.

Bailey, a 27-year-old infielder from Long Beach, Calif., had a horrible beginning to the 1970 baseball season, managing only five hits for Maury Wills. Bailey never got untracked with the West Coast team, hitting only .227 both seasons.

The Expos purchased him Oct. 16, 1968, two days after the National League expansion draft. He started out the 1969 season at first base for Montreal but suffered a hairline fracture of his right ankle in Philadelphia April 17, the night Bill Stoneman tossed a no-hitter for the Expos.

He came back in mid-June and finished the season with a .265 batting average with nine homers and 53 runs batted in.

BOB BAILEY

is 52 at-bats in National League competition.

He was credited a paltry .096 batting average but by mid-July his average had shot to over the .300 mark.

Bailey took over the regular third-baseman chores from sophomore Coco Laboy. He credits friendly Jerry Park in Montreal as one reason he's hitting well.

Bailey received a reported $135 000 to sign with Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League in 1961. He spent 1962 with Asheville, Ga., in the Sally League and in 1963 he moved up to Columbus Jets, the Pirates' International League affiliate.

He also played 14 games with the Pirates towards the end of the 1963 season, and from 1963 to 1968 he played steadily with the Pirates. His best year was 1964 when he hit .291.

The Pirates traded him along with Gene Michael to Los Angeles Dodgers in 1966 for Willie Crawford, Bob Miller and Lee Maye.

Oakland's Blue No-hits Twins 18 Days After Leaving Minors

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Monday night Blue tried it and did it. He stopped Minnesota Twins without a hit, giving up only two walks, as fourth losing pass to Harmon Killebrew on a 3-1 pitch in missing a perfect game.

Oakland won the game 6-0 as Bert Campaneris scored their first run in the opening inning after reaching a triple and then drilled a three-run homer in the eighth off loser Jim Perry 23-12.

In other American League action, Baltimore's Dave Boswell beat Detroit Tigers 4-3 in 12 innings, Boston, Red Sox edged Cleveland Indians 3-1, New York Yankees stopped Washington Senators 5-3, California Angels assigned Milwaukee Brewers 7-4 and Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Royals split a doubleheader, the White Sox winning 8-4 before losing 5-2.

In the National League, Cincinnati Reds blanked Houston Astros 2-0 and San Francisco Giants trounced Los Angeles Dodgers 7-0.

Blue, a six-foot, 187-pounder from Mansfield, La., tossed a one-hitter only 18 days ago, beating Kansas City 3-0. He had a no-hitter for 7 2-3 innings before the Royals' Pat Kelly stroked the only hit.

After that game, Blue, now 2-0, after his fourth start for the Athletics this season, said:

"You don't try for a no-hitter. If you did, you'd be second guessing yourself. You'd be shaking off pitches you ought to throw."

Apparently he didn't learn his lesson, as he struck out nine Twins, including the first two batters in the ninth before getting Cesar Tovar for the last out on a foul pop to first. He became the first rookie since Dave Wilson of Houston did it in 1967.

A crowd of 4,394 was on hand in Oakland as Blue's masterpiece prolonged the West Division clinching for the Twins, who need only a victory over Oakland to win their second successive crown.

"Pitching a no-hitter is lucky," said the youngster, who was 12-3 at Des Moines of the American Association.

He was more than lucky Monday as the Twins managed only three balls to the outfield and the closest Minnesota came to a base hit was in the fifth when catcher George Mitterwald lined to shortstop Campaneris, who made a leaping, backhanded catch.

Other no-hit games this year were thrown by Clyde Wright of California Angels in the American League and Bill Singer of Los Angeles and Dock Ellis of Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League.

Blue's best pitch is his blazing fast ball but, "his breaking ball comes along good this year," said manager John McNamara. "He's got a chance to be a real outstanding pitcher."

Rookie John Gates cracked a leadoff triple in the 12th inning and scored on Mark Belanger's single as the Orioles and the Tigers to their fifth straight loss. Carl Yastrzemski and Rico Petrocelli drilled homers in the Red Sox' victory over their ninth consecutive victory. It was Yastrzemski's 40th and Petrocelli's 39th of the season.

Hadfield Blames Ranger Holdouts On Horton's Salary

TORONTO (CP) — Two wrongs never made a right, said Maple Blackhawk one of the legal advisers who spoke during a news conference Monday for four suspended New York Ranger players.

The four—all-star defenceman Reid Park, Walt Tkaczuk, Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield—were suspended last week by Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the National Hockey League club, for "refusing to go to arbitration or play exhibition games."

Blackman, legal partner Steve Arnold, and their four clients met to explain the situation to reporters in a downtown hotel.

"We believe the suspensions to be arbitrary," said Blackman.

"Suspensions carry a taint," explained Arnold, "like Paul Hornung being banished from football for gambling or Denny McLain being thrown out of baseball for carrying a gun and throwing water on baseball writers; or Joe Namath having to close his bar because of hoodlum connections.

"But to our knowledge, this is the first time players have been suspended merely for not agreeing to contractual terms."

Hadfield, who said he was seeking a 75-per-cent increase which would bring him to an estimated $50,000 a year, said defenceman Tim Horton's arrival in New York last year with an $85,000 annual price tag had prompted the sleep negotiations with management.

"There wasn't anyone else on the club within $40,000 of what we heard Tim was getting," said Hadfield.

Tkaczuk, fifth in NHL scoring last year as a sophomore, did not disclose what he wants while Ratelle, just one scoring notch back, said he earned $25,000 plus bonuses last year as a nine-year veteran.

Park, second to Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr in the all-star voting, refused, without mentioning figures, that he's prepared to sign for 20 per cent more than he made last year, estimated to be about $115,000.

Francis has suggested NHL president Clarence Campbell or Alan Eagleson, the NHL Players' Association executive director, act as arbiters.

Both names have been rejected by agents Blackman and Arnold who have proposed Marvin Miller, executive director of major league baseball's player association, as their choice.

"But we don't feel arbitration is in the best interests of our clients," said Blackman. "We feel the NHL forces arbitration on the players.

"We're going to keep all avenues open. We'll arbitrate if that's the best way. What we really want to do is negotiate with Francis face-to-face."

Meanwhile, goaltender Ken Dryden said in Montreal Monday he has had enough of college hockey.

The second-year law student at McGill, who signed with Montreal Canadiens recently after an outstanding university career in the U.S. and with Canada's national team, may get his chance with the professionals tonight.

The Canadiens, who split with Philadelphia Flyers in weekend games, play in Halifax tonight and Wednesday against Chicago Black Hawks in exhibition play.

A spokesman for the club said coach Claude Ruel was not entirely pleased with the efforts put forward during the weekend by Montreal goalies.

In other games tonight, St. Louis Blues and Boston Bruins clash at London, Ont., in a renewal of their Stanley Cup final last spring, and Buffalo Sabres meet Pittsburgh Penguins at North Bay, Ont.

Selby Doubtful Starter

TORONTO (CP) — Rick Ley and Brit Selby were listed as doubtful starters and Dave Keon and Jim Dorey as definite misses when Toronto Maple Leafs play Minnesota North Stars in NHL exhibition Wednesday night.

Defencemen Ley and winger Selby skated Monday after the Leafs' regular scrimmage. Ley is mending from a torn chest muscle and Selby from a groin injury.

Keon is in a self-imposed exile because negotiations in his contract dispute have not been progressing as favorably as he deems necessary.

Dorey is suffering from epididymitis, an inflammation that causes considerable pain when skating.

Frazier Fights Foster Next

Frazier, who will make the first defence of the title he won in June, 1969, signed for the title match with Foster Monday.

The newly formed Twenty-First Century Promotions, Inc., of Detroit is staging fight at the Cobo Arena. The fight contract carried no research clause.

Foster has had 42 fights, with 39 wins by knockout or decisions and only four losses.

Foster, who won his title in May, 1968, said that after his four successful defences of his laurels he figured it was time to move up.

His most serious injury of recent years came in April of this year when he broke a small bone in his right leg when he fell while doing his song-and-dance act at Las Vegas.

The contract called for Frazier to get the top money—his choice of a $150,000 guarantee or 40 per cent of the live gate and 35% per cent of the ancillary gate, including television rights.

Foster settled for a straight 22½ per cent of everything.

Lakers Lose 4 Straight

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—New Westminster won the Canadian senior lacrosse championship Monday night for the second time in three years but today they are without a coach.

After reaching the national final in each of his three years as a coach, Cliff Sepka stepped down minutes after New Westminster took the Mann Cup with a 14-8 win over Peterborough Lakers.

"After 20 years of the game I want to devote a little more time to my home life," said Sepka.

Monday's win before 3,900 fans gave the Salmonbellies the best-of-seven final in straight games. They were beaten by the same Lakers in last year's seven-game finals.

Bob Sepka and Peterborough coach Bobby Allan agreed that New Westminster forward Paul Parnell was one of the big differences in the series.

Parnell scored five goals Monday and finished as the series' top scorer with 12 goals and 12 assists. He was later named most valuable player of the series.

The Salmonbellies had their power play working in the series, scoring 17 goals with Peterborough players in the penalty box.

Peterborough scored seven power-play goals but did not get as many opportunities as the Salmonbellies.

Gretel Loses in Committee Room

But they'll be down 2-0 to the U.S. boat Intrepid instead of deadlocked 1-1 because the New York Club race committee disqualified Gretel II Monday, making the Australian entry the loser instead of the winner of Sunday's brilliant match.

Officially, the Aussies kept their upper lips stiff. Sir Frank Packer, head of the Gretel II syndicate, said he was "disappointed with the decision. But the best thing to do is to go out and win four straight."

A 15-25 knot southwest wind is predicted, giving Gretel II a chance to see if she can take her rival in heavy air as well as light.

Both yachts had protested following a collision at the start of the second race. The committee upheld Intrepid and ruled Gretel II had fouled her.

Privately some Australians, noting that the race committee's judge and jury for a race it was running, called the ruling "a hometown decision". *

Gretel II's loss of a race she had initially won to the race committee's judgment was the first such incident in America's Cup racing since 1895.

Cleveland Utilizes Breaks In 31-21 Win Over Jets

The officiating crew called 21 penalties for a total of 207 yards, more than the yardage gained by the Browns in winning their opener in the American Conference of the NFL.

The most damaging penalties were assessed against the Jets, who were tagged for 13 infractions for 101 yards—a club record.

The Jets amassed 455 yards offensively—290 in the air, as quarterback Joe Namath completed 19 of 31 passes. But among their penalties were three for pass interference, three for holding and one for piling on.

There were also three interceptions of Namath passes, a fumble by running back Matt Snell and a mistake in judgment by return specialist Mike Battle.

Pass interference penalties by Jim Hudson and rookie Steve Tensen in the first quarter enabled the Browns to score their second touchdown for a 14-0 lead. Then, after the Jets made it 14-7, holding penalties on John Schmitt and Randy Rasmussen blunted a drive that culminated only with Walt Sweeney's interception at the five.

After Homer Jones made it 21-7 for Cleveland by taking the second-half kickoff 94 yards for a touchdown, the Jets closed again with a touchdown before Paul Crane's piling-on penalty contributed to a Cleveland drive that resulted in Don Cockroft's 36-yard field goal.

The penalties stopped at that point, and the Jets took it the rest of the way. Snell fumbled on the seven-yard line to kill one drive but Namath still closed the gap to 24-21 with a 35-yard touchdown pass to George Sauer.

Then the Jets got another opportunity when Cleveland was forced to punt. Battle, however, fouled up grab itself on the New York 30. It bounced past him and he was downed at the four, whereupon Namath tried to get something started.

One completion brought the ball to the 18, but a second went into the arms of linebacker Mike Andrews, who returned 25 yards for the final touchdown on a dejected Namath stood at the five-yard line.

Coffey Still Hot In CFL Scoring

Hamilton visits British Columbia Lions Wednesday, then calls on Edmonton Eskimos Saturday and, while wickedly over the Western Conference clubs would help the Ticats' quest for first place in the East, Tommy Joe can add to his personal records.

Coffey already holds the individual career records for most points scored and most passes caught, but he is within five points of becoming the first player in the Canadian Football League to amass 800 scoring points.

Coffey could reach his 800 points in the B.C. and Edmonton games—and if he runs wild can eclipse Patterson's passyardage mark.

Coffey is leading the EFC scoring statistics so far this year with 61 points, two ahead of runner-up rookie Ivan MacMillan of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Out West, where they have played more games, Ted Gerela's soccer-style kicking has him atop the scoring list with 75 points, eight up on kicker Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan Roughriders. Gerela, of B.C., also leads both conferences in field goals.

Dave Ramsey and Bill Symons of Toronto Argonauts are heading the EFC rushing leadership—Ramsey with 571 yards on 83 carries for a 6.8 average and not touchdowns, Symons with 546 yards on 109 carries and a 5.0 average and five touchdowns.

Jim Evenson of B.C. is the leading rusher in the WFC, 683 yards on 104 carries for a 5.3-yard average and five touchdowns.

In passing, it's Jim Thorpe of Toronto and Herm Ilam (Hamilton) Harrison of Calgary. Thorpe has six touchdowns off 87 receptions and 681 yards for a 16.3-yard average, while Harrison has gathered in 46 passes, carried them 699 yards for a 15-yard average, and six touchdowns.

But look further back in the pack—Ron Oldham of Ottawa Rough Riders has only caught 25 passes, but he has ridden them a total of 619 yards for a 24.8-yard average and seven touchdowns.

In passing, the leaders are Gary Wood of Ottawa in the East and Jerry Keeling of Calgary Stampeders. Wood completed 109 of the 185 he threw for 1,734 yards, a completion percentage of .313 and 12 touchdowns.

Wood had 14 intercepted, Keeling 19.

Tiger-Cats Hit With Attack of Mumps

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton Tiger-Cat Eastern Football Conference club has apparently been struck by mumps on the eve of departure for a two-game Western Canada trip.

Bill Danychuk appears to be the ailing victim—serious enough in a man of 27.

"We tested him Sunday and sent him home," said Restic. "They'll do some further checking, but it looks as though he has the mumps."

The Ticats leave today for Vancouver and a game against British Columbia Lions Wednesday. They play Saturday in Edmonton against the Eskimos.

Also missing the Hamilton trip will be punt return specialist Bryan Dehlarski, injured last Thursday in a car accident.

Restic said De Marchi has been cleared medically, but there's some question whether he suffered a concussion in the mishap and the Hamilton coach can't get a doctor's report.

Henley Stars on Defence Despite Offensive Hopes

Back last December Garney Henley reviewed the list of defensive backfielder and sighed:

Then he went on to predict that, this season, he would be running with the ball.

"I'd like to have someone chasing me for a change."

Well, things didn't quite work out the way he wanted them. He still spends most of his time in the defensive backfield for Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, but he's also chased plenty.

At the moment, with half the season to go for Ticats, Henley has taken the lead in the category headed "most yards on interception returns—career" in the CFL record book.

Henley went into this season with third place in the interceptions-yards standing, behind Joe Poirier of Ottawa Rough Riders and injured Dick Thornton of Toronto Argonauts. Wydarney was away down in seventh.

In this year, Henley has intercepted four passes for 67 yards to take that 11-yard lead over Wydarney.

However, the Eskimos star has picked off nine interceptions in 10 games for 128 yards. He has six games left in which to get the three that will give him the single-season record.

Wydarney tied Toronto's Doug Sutherin in that department, last season equalling the record of 11 set in 1961 when Sutherin was with Hamilton.

In the team interceptions department, it's B.C. British Columbia Lions have an over-all edge.

The Lions have intercepted 24 passes and gained them back for a total of 320 yards, while having only 10 of their own picked off for a niggling 65 yards.

Ottawa and Winnipeg Blue Bombers have picked off 21 each and gained 323 and 226 yards respectively. The count is 17 for Edmonton, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Hamilton and Calgary Stampeders.

Toronto's Argonauts have 15 and Montreal and Winnipeg 14 each for 99 and 149 yards each.

Going the other way, Edmonton has lost 34 for 457 yards and each of four teams has had 20 or more—Calgary, Saskatchewan, Winnipeg and Toronto—for 444, 336, 316 and 145.

Next to B.C., Hamilton has yielded only 18, for 81 yards while the worst will be 13 for 99 Montreal and 14 for 111 for Ottawa.

But getting back to Henley. Chances are he'll continue to get the odd call offensively.

But in the meantime, people are still chasing the 34-year-old university instructor and he still is running with the ball"—even if he has to steal it.

Springate Advises Athletic Independence

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University must find its own means of maintaining its intercollegiate sports program next year, George Springate, Liberal member of the Quebec legislature for the Montreal riding of Ste. Anne, said Monday.

Springate, 33, is a former McGill football player and now is a place-kicking specialist with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference. He graduated two years ago.

He spoke at a news conference called by the McGill athletic department, at which athletic director Hank Hargitay outlined steps he hopes to take to keep McGill football, hockey and basketball teams in the intercollegiate competition during the 1971-72 seasons.

Griffiths said the main step would be for major intercollegiate sports coaches to voluntarily and means of voluntarily curtailing their own budgets.

The hibbled coaches would be various other activities, some of which are held outside the academic year, could be dropped.

The combined hands and nordic ski teams as such sports.

Griffiths said the Quebec government recently granted the university $3 million, while the school with a $6 million deficit, which in turn the university administration has to find from $2,500,000.

The seaside and board of governors meet later this week to decide just what cuts will be made in the budget program to save $200,000. It currently costs McGill $90,000 annually to operate its football team in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association.

Springate said the only way the university can save money on its football program is "to play more games in a single Montreal league."

He also heeded is investigation of some means of gate equalization with other C-QAA teams and a share of the revenue received by the league for television coverage of games played in Ontario.

Canadian Ski Team Leaves for Europe

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian ski team leaves today for Europe and three months of extensive training.

"I understand the French have not spent more than eight days without skiing this summer," said team coach Bernard Shepherd of Waskesiu, Sask., Monday night.

"We have to catch up."

The departure is the earliest ever for a Canadian team which usually leaves in November or December and remains in Europe until February.

This time, however, the trip is more of a training exercise and only eight skiers will be selected in December.

"We're being pushed more and more into a year-around business," said Al Raine, head coach of the team. "Everybody is doing it and we have to keep up if we want to win."

The 14-member team will accompany the 36-member group which will start workouts in Tignes, France, then to Kaprun, Austria and then likely to Cervinia, Italy for downhill training.

The A team will be chosen just before the start of the World Cup races at the beginning of December.

Five men and five women will make up the A team with the Vancouver and a game against British Columbia Lions Wednesday. They play Saturday in Edmonton against the Eskimos.

Also missing the Hamilton trip will be punt return specialist Bryan Dehlarski, injured last Thursday in a car accident.

Restic said De Marchi has been cleared medically, but there's some question whether he suffered a concussion in the mishap and the Hamilton coach can't get a doctor's report.

THE EXPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1968-69
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO EXPROPRIATE LAND

IN THE MATTER of an application by the Corporation of the City of Belleville for approval to expropriate land being part of Lot 17, Haslett's Plan, filed in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of the County of Hastings, lying and being in the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, for the purpose of widening and reconstructing a section of Dundas Street in the City of Belleville.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the land described as follows :

ALL AND SINGULAR that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate lying and being in the City of Belleville, County of Hastings, and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of Lot 17, Haslett's Plan, for the said City of Belleville, and being designated as Part 7, on a plan of survey deposited in the Registry Office for the Registry Division of the County of Hastings as HSR Plan No. 272.

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the achievement of the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing,

(a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, when he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

The approving authority is

The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville,
City Hall,
Belleville,
Ontario.

THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.
E. M. DAFOE, Deputy Clerk.
(For) ADAM S. STALKER, Clerk.

NOTES :

1. The Expropriations Act, 1968-1969 provides that,
   (a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
   (b) the inquiry officer
      (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his counsel or agent, and
      (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200, and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.
2. "owner" and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows :
   "owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a person entitled to a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;
   "registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is specified in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant of land on the last revised assessment roll.
3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he desires a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Critic Not Public's Mirror

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who occupies a position of considerable substance in the newspaper business, is now also a part-time playing to me about drama critics the other day.

In this, my friend is correct; the drama critic often likes what the public ignores, and dislikes what the public enjoys. The question, as Humpty Dumpty said, is "Who is to be master?"

If the public is to be master — as my friend apparently thinks — then not only should we do away with drama, literary and music critics, and replace them with a kind of Gallup Poll of audience-reaction, but we should not libel our mobacracy to the field of the arts.

On the same grounds, my friend ought to abolish all political commentators, editorial writers, and specialists on social problems — simply permitting his newspaper to drift with the tide of public opinion provided by the readers.

But a newspaper presumes — and rightly, I think, — to suggest to its readers the proper attitudes for them to take on public issues.

A newspaper that forsook its own standards and beliefs and merely catered to mass opinion in politics would be a weak and cowardly organ; and yet, my friend, who would admit this, fails to see a similar betrayal of integrity in "giving the public what it wants" in the arts.

Bernard Shaw once remarked that "if more than 16 per cent of the public enjoys something, it is almost sure to be bad." While this percentage is unjust, there is a core of truth in his cynical observation.

The function of a critic is didactic: his job is not to tell the public what it will like, but what it should like. All the greatest critics have done this, and have won respectful audiences for it.

The plays, books and music that are ignored by the public this year may become the proudest treasures of the next generation; while today's popular hit is soon as dead as the public who supported it. The critic who goes with the tide is eventually carried out to sea and drowned.

Business Leaders Told to Speak Out to Public Themselves

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Montreal business leader told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce today that business leaders should stop hiding behind hired hands and tell their own story to the public.

Robert C. Scrivener, president of Bell Canada, Montreal, told the chamber's annual convention that the impact of business communications makes it necessary for business spokesmen to take a new look at their role in informing the public.

"Let's stop insulting ourselves," Mr. Scrivener said. "Let's appear more often before critical audiences and let's gain the experience we need to better put before the public the cases for the private business property needs to perform effectively to the benefit of the whole Canadian community."

He said business could not delegate this responsibility to subordinates or professionals hired for the job.

"Businessmen have, to a large extent, developed negative attitudes towards the news media and its reporters and this has tended to widen the communication gap.

"It is the business leader him self who has to personally break out of the defensive formations we have created."

Mr. Scrivener also referred to what he called a Canadian attempt to play ostrich in the "excessively chauvinistic attitudes toward foreign capital."

"This is simply protectionism in another guise," he said, "and as such suffers from all its defects to say nothing of being an historical anachronism."

A key Mr. Scrivener's speech was made available to the press in advance of delivery.

In sessions Monday, the chamber in the second day of its four-day annual convention heard its retiring president warn that Canada has become one of the most socialistic countries in the western world.

J. Allyn Taylor, president of Canada Trust-Huron and Erie of London, Ont., said federal government policies put the emphasis on redistribution of wealth rather than on incentives for creation of wealth and on spending rather than on saving.

"Canada cannot afford the disincentives," he said. "If Canada is to provide jobs for the two million young people who will come on the labor market during the '70s, we must maintain a climate that will encourage capital investment."

Gerard Levesque, Quebec minister of industry and commerce, told a luncheon meeting that his province wants the "unquestionable right to be different and to be both recognized and respected."

"We want to be ourselves, to be individual, to be respected," he said.

"At the same time, as members of the Canadian confederation, we want to contribute to a common goal with a common purpose . . . to make our country a better place in which to live."

Nuclear Sewage Disposal Plant

Radiation Turns Sewage Into Drinking Water

FISHEATING CREEK, Fla. (AP) — Dr. David D. Woodbridge lifted a glass of water to his lips and drank it dry. Hours earlier, the water had been raw sewage from this south Florida campground.

"It's clean and it's good," he said.

The sewage had been transformed into pure, odorless water—like slightly warm distilled water—by gamma radiation at the first commercial nuclear sewage disposal plant built in the United States, perhaps the world.

The $87,000 plant essentially treats sewage in the usual way until just before final filtering, the effluent is bombarded with rays from radioactive cobalt-60.

The process is flexible. Water can be treated to such pureness it can be drunk, or it can receive lesser treatments for use in irrigation.

Irradiation with cobalt does more than rid the sewage of disease-causing viruses and bacteria. It also breaks up deadly pesticides and reduces by up to one-third the quantity of phosphates and other nutrients in the water.

The plant has been in commercial operation for more than six months, treating sewage from trailers, bath houses, toilets and laundry machines at the Fisheating Creek campground west of Lake Okeechobee.

Some 10,000 gallons are treated daily, with as much as 22,000 gallons on peak weekend days.

The plant is the brainchild of Woodbridge and his colleagues at Florida Institute of Technology in Melbourne. Woodbridge heads the agricultural department and is research director.

There is no radioactive material in the outflowing water, and it is perfectly safe to the surrounding area."

Woodbridge said the treated water is not used for drinking at the camp because there is plentiful nonsaline supply.

Allowing for evaporation, Woodbridge said a municipality could save 80 per cent of its water by recycling it any number of times.

Quebec Bishops Act

Marriage to Be Made Difficult So as to Cut Divorce Rate

QUEBEC (CP) — Roman Catholic bishops of Quebec province, alarmed at the increase in the number of divorces, marriage failures and broken homes, have launched a drive to try to make marriage a truly indissoluble union of two people.

Saying that applications for divorce are increasing at a rate of more than 500 a month in this predominantly Roman Catholic province, the bishops called on church authorities, the state, social welfare organizations and individuals to help make the family a more durable entity.

The views of the bishops on marriage problems were outlined in a document made public following closed meetings at Quebec City Sept. 17-18.

The document disclosed that the church in Quebec, which since dissolved marriages in the rarest of circumstances, will be more lenient in granting dissolution of hopelessly broken marriages, marriages which investigation shows should not have been performed in the first place.

It also disclosed that priests will launch tough, new marriage preparation courses in an effort to prevent marriages that appear doomed from the outset. The church will remove from the right to refuse to conduct what it considers a "marriage marked for failure in advance."

The bishops blamed the high divorce rate on federal legislation which has made it one of the grounds for divorce and which established divorce courts in Quebec province for the first time. They also blamed federal legislation which permitted civil marriages.

The policy declaration in the document applies only to the territory under the jurisdiction of Quebec bishops. Those in other provinces are free to adopt their own regulations.

The document was made public at a news conference by Maurice Cardinal Roy, Archbishop of Quebec and Primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada.

While the bishops stressed the positive steps aimed at making marriages permanent, a good deal of public attention focussed on the decision to ease marriage annulments.

Cardinal Roy made it clear that dissolution will be granted as a last resort when all efforts at conciliation have failed. The aim would be to lift the yoke from those trapped in a hopelessly broken marriage, but whose faith prevented them from seeking divorce.

The church has never approved of divorce. Roman Catholics who have obtained divorces may remain in the church, but are barred from remarrying and receiving sacraments.

In cases of dissolution, the church considers that vows never to have taken place. The separated couple remains within the church and may receive the sacraments. Either party or both can remarry if investigation shows that marriage to a new partner has a good chance of being permanent.

The new opening for allowing annulment in marriage lies in the doctrine of indissolubility which the document says is a necessary part of marriage, but which rests in the hands of the couple.

It says that if the necessary requirement of the spirit of indissolubility is not present at the marriage, the marriage will be considered never to have existed and an annulment will thus be granted. Some persons lacking this necessary requirement will be refused permission to marry.

The church would make use of advances in psychology and other sciences to determine if acceptance of indissolubility was part of the marriage at the time of the ceremony.

"Psychological nuances" now will aid the church to determine whether the marriage failed because the mentality of the spouses at the time was not sufficient to understand the requirements of indissolubility "at the very moment of the marriage."

Annulment now will be permitted where it was not before because, said Cardinal Roy, "we simply did not have the necessary proof to make the union invalid."

Examples cited of a non-existent marriage cited by Cardinal Roy were that if the spouses were too young at the time of marriage, or one or the other was mentally ill, or forced into marriage "then there really was no marriage.

Stanfield Opposes Higher Tuition Fees

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday any proposal to increase university tuition fees to help pay mounting education costs must be accompanied by more aid to needy students.

He said governments are not providing enough student assistance and higher tuition might bear too heavily on lower-income students.

He was commenting at a news conference on the Economic Council of Canada's seventh annual review of the economy, published Monday. It said costs of education and health care are each growing at be rate of nine per cent a year.

The report said education's drain on public revenues could be curtailed if students paid a higher proportion of actual expenses after university but that special assistance should be provided for deserving students.

Mr. Stanfield also disagreed with the council's recommendation that deterrent fees be imposed for medical care to discourage excessive demands. He said he was not convinced this was the best way to cut costs.

Mr. Stanfield was winding up a two-day visit to Toronto and Oshawa.

Linking of Costs to Layoff Record Opposed

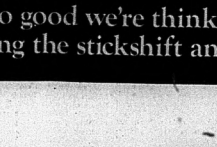
OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of both labor and industry voiced opposition Monday to a government white paper proposal which would assess employers' contributions to unemployment insurance on the basis of their employee layoff records.

Peter Carew of Ottawa, executive secretary of the Canadian Railway Labour Association, told the Commons finance committee that the proposal would result in the establishment of the right of management to arbitrarily reduce its work force at a nominal fee.

S. Eric Johnson of Mississauga, Ont., president of the National House Builders Association, said that charging employers with layoff records more in contributions towards their employees' unemployment insurance benefits would be unfair because layoffs were usually beyond their control.

The proposal, contained in the government's white paper on unemployment insurance tabled in the Commons last June, has captured more attention than any other in the first three days of presentations on the paper before the committee.

Employers with payrolls of more than $78,000 who didn't lay off any employees over a preceding period would contribute equally with their employees, as all employers currently do.



But any employer who laid off employees would pay more, up to a maximum of twice the employees' contributions, with an average rate estimated at 1.4 times that of the employees.

Jack Cullen (L—Sarnia) observed that the construction industry as a whole has removed 22.29 in unemployment insurance benefits for every dollar it has contributed.

The association also opposed today the payment of 13 weeks of benefits for off-the-job sickness and pregnancy, maintaining such payments should be handled by a welfare scheme rather than insurance.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Penicillin Stops Rheumatic Fever

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 25 years old and had rheumatic fever when I was 8 years old. At that time I had a heart complication. My parents were told it became enlarged. About a year ago, after an examination, the doctor gave me an OK on my heart.

But last week I had some aching pains in my joints and a sore throat. The doctor says I'm having another attack of rheumatic fever. He advises that I take penicillin as a precaution to save my heart. As I'm afraid of penicillin, I really don't know what to do. I'll appreciate your advice. — Mrs. O.

* * *

Comment: All I can do is guess about your physical condition. I don't know whether or not you have any residual heart complications after your first attack at the age of 8. Neither do I know if the present attack of streptococcal infection is threatening your heart. All I can do is assume that your doctor's diagnosis is correct.

If so, then I believe he is giving you good advice in recommending penicillin therapy. Some children outgrow their rheumatic fever patients especially when there is heart involvement) take a monthly protective dose of penicillin administered by hypodermic. Others take daily doses taken by mouth.

In either case, this antibiotic needs to be taken for years in those patients susceptible to strep infections of the throat which cause rheumatic joint pains such as your's. If you still insist that you will not take penicillin, then perhaps your doctor will substitute sulfa drugs instead. Whichever drug is decided upon, consider it important to protect your heart from damage.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I was happy to read that you believe doctors should help when it comes to the miseries of menopause. I've consulted doctors who wouldn't help. And then I took the advice of those who would prescribe tranquilizers — and I'm darned glad I did.

I am 55 now and the misery started 10 years ago. For five years I put up with all the nonsense, all of which, to me at least, was like meeting the devil at 4 o'clock with teeth - chattering chills, explosive hot flashes, which left me dripping wet and dishcloth limp.

Then there were the sleepless nights and the whole bit. Being the kind, treadmiller in the family made it twice as tough to bear.

That's when I decided to make use of the help being offered women like me by hormones and tranquilizers. I hate to think of where I'd be today if I hadn't. I hope you don't mind my signing myself — Your Faithful Fan.

Comment: I am happy for you. And I'm glad you didn't sign yourself Old Faithful. You seem much younger in spirit than 55.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: After reading your column on DATA (strange eating obsessions like eating starch, clay, etc.) I thought I'd tell you about mine. I am the mother of 11 children. During each one of my pregnancies I was obsessed with eating book matches — everything except the lead and the striking part. I cannot explain this.

I saved the matches and took covers all through pregnancy and until the babies were two years old. I would buy a whole box of matches at a time (50 striking matches to the box) and they would last about a week. When I went to the hospital I would put them into my suitcase.

Since reading about pica, I tell people about this habit I used-to-have (until five years ago) and they look at me as if I have two heads. No more babies, no more match chewing! People are funny. Right? — Mrs. B.

Comment: Right.

Jordan Drives Out Invaders from Syria

Russia Curbs Syria?

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Nixon administration is looking to Russian and Arab diplomatic moves today to curb the civil war in Jordan and reduce chances of possible American intervention in the conflict.

U.S. officials said they were encouraged by word that the Soviet government is in touch with the Syrians, who have allegedly sent tanks and troops into the fighting on the side of the guerrillas—a charge the Syrian government has denied.

Hussein Seeks Hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuters) — King Hussein has ordered his elite special forces to search for the 54 hijacked airline passengers held hostage by the guerrillas, a British journalist just back from Amman said here today.

London Daily Telegraph photographer Tony Marshall said an army officer told him the hostages were believed to be still somewhere in the Amman area as captives of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Greece Gets Arms

ATHENS (Reuters) — The Nixon administration's decision to abandon its embargo on heavy arms shipments to Greece has undoubtedly consolidated the position of the Greek military regime, diplomatic observers said Tuesday night.

Today's Chuckle

Anybody who thinks that this is a man's world probably doesn't understand a lot of other things either.

Massive Air Attack Made Upon Tanks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Jordanian troops supported by artillery and war planes launched a drive in northern Jordan today and drove invaders from Syria out of the country, Amman radio said.

A communique from Jordan's military governor, Field Marshal Habis Majali, said the withdrawal to Syria began at noon "and by 2.15 p.m. the last Syrian soldier left Jordanian soil."

He said Jordanian forces were in complete control of Irbid, the country's second largest city, 50 miles north of Amman.

If true, the possibility of United States intervention would be lessened. It was the invasion from Syria on Sunday that touched off talk that the U.S. might intervene.

As fierce fighting went into its seventh day in Amman, the Jordanian capital, King Hussein and the captured No. 2 man of the Palestinian Arab guerrilla movement announced a four-point agreement to end the conflict.

The central committee of the Palestine resistance movement, however, rejected the plan. It announced in a broadcast from Iraq that it would fight to the last man.

A massive Jordanian bombing raid against the tanks retreating into Syria was reported this afternoon by Israeli observers in Nahal Golan, a part of Syria occupied by the Israelis after the 1967 war. The observers, quoted by Reuters, said flames from exploding napalm bombs were clearly visible.

The forces from Syria, backed by 200 tanks, inflicted heavy casualties on the Jordanian 40th Armored Brigade in fighting Monday and Tuesday. But as the situation apparently improved in the rest of the country, Majali was able to move up two tank regiments for the counter-attack.

"The entire sector between Irbid and Ramtha has been cleared of the invaders," Majali said.

Majali declared that the casualties of the war have been exaggerated. He reported there were between 1,300 and 1,800 deaths, citing figures obtained by the Jordanian public health ministry, the armed forces and the International Red Cross Committee in Amman.

Previous Jordanian reports spoke of 5,000 dead and thousands wounded. Guerrilla leaders usually even larger death totals.

King Hussein was on record as saying that an attempt to destroy Jordan had been foiled. A relayed dispatch from Amman quoted him to this effect, and expressing confidence "the worst of the problem was over in Amman" although guerrillas still held strongpoints.

Observers in Israel reported the retreat of the forces from Syria. They said about 70 tanks had pulled back into Syria but it was not yet clear whether this was the beginning of a planned Syrian withdrawal.

Jordan authorities said 91 Syrian tanks had been destroyed so far, with 26 of them knocked out in the last two days of fighting.

The roar of gunfire sounded through Amman during the night and throughout the morning.

Casualties ran into the thousands, with a high proportion of them civilians.

A broadcast from Baghdad said the guerrilla leader, Abu Ayad, had completed the agreement while a captive "and isolated from the state of affairs in Amman."

The agreement was announced over Amman radio by Hussein and Ayad, who was captured four days ago.

Palestinian commandos claimed Jordanian forces were attacking two refugee camps in Amman today with tanks and heavy guns and said their forces scored a "major victory" over Hussein's troops north of the capital.

The claims came as a four-man peace mission sent by the Arab heads of state in Cairo was preparing to meet Hussein and commando leader Yasser Arafat to end the bloody fighting.

Quebec Hospitals Warned Against Backing Doctors

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec health department has sent a telegram to hospitals in the province warning that they will be placed under trusteeship if they close their doors during a possible strike by medical specialists.

The telegram, signed by Dr. Jacques Brunet, deputy minister of health, says such action will be taken under the Hospitals Act if hospitals close or deny public access as a gesture of solidarity with the specialists.

Members of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists have voted to strike if they are not satisfied with arrangements for a medical care insurance plan for the province.

Tuesday, an informed source said medical specialists in Quebec City are prepared to strike immediately if negotiations on the medical care plan break down.

The specialists were "ready to walk out on an hour's notice if the mediation of Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit fails through."

Dr. Brunet said in his telegram that the decision to place hospitals under trusteeship in event of a shutdown of services was taken in agreement with the Association of Hospitals of Quebec.

Spokesmen for hospitals, however, said the association has not met recently.

U. S. Rail Strike Is Likely

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Nixon administration worked today to head off a country-wide railway strike scheduled for 12:01 a.m. Thursday, but there were signs the government was bracing to let whether the United States could stand a rail shutdown.

Nixon has intervened three times this year under the Railway Labor Act to impose 60-day strike delays. His only recourse in the current dispute would be to ask Congress for a special law.

Prince Edward Council Backs Mill in Hillier

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON—Members of Prince Edward County Council last night voted unanimously to support location of a proposed kraft paper mill at Huyck's Point in Hillier township.

The motion, introduced by Hallowell Reeve George Vincent and seconded by Wellington reeve Douglas Marvin, mentioned "misinformation" and "exaggerations" circulated concerning the paper mill.

It was noted that council is satisfied that all government departments involved with air and water pollution will act with the county's best interests in mind.

A further statement in the motion declared "that this Council feels it is in the best interests of the county that the industry locate here."

Earlier in the council meeting a resolution from Hillier township council endorsing the mill's location at Huyck's Point was read.

Copies of these county endorsements of the kraft mill location will be sent to officials of Canadian International Paper Company, Ontario government departments of energy and resources, lands and forests, and agriculture and food, George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, and other concerned government departments and individuals.

Hallowell Reeve George Vincent observed that if some of the information recently published about the mill had been released a month sooner there would have been much less public furor about pollution.

Amman City of Agony

By PATRICK MASSEY

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — After six days and six nights of battle, Amman is a city of ruin, death and agony —laid waste by the soldiers of King Hussein.

The rattle of gunfire still echoed around the shattered streets as I flew out of the capital this morning with the first party of correspondents to escape from Jordan since the holocaust began.

Palestinian commandos claimed Jordanian forces were attacking two refugee camps in Amman today with tanks and heavy guns and said their forces scored a "major victory" over Hussein's troops north of the capital.

The claims came as a four-man peace mission sent by the Arab heads of state in Cairo was preparing to meet Hussein and commando leader Yasser Arafat to end the bloody fighting.

The commandos looked fresh and well stocked with ammunition. Many were Arab headcloths around their faces to ward off the ever growing stench of the dead.

Bodies, many black and bloated in the sun, lay everywhere. Among them wounded people feebly called for aid.

To count the casualties would be impossible. Estimates of 15,000 dead could well be true.

Walked down toward the city centre it seemed that barely a house was untouched by the merciless bombardment.

Walls had gaping holes, doors hung crazily askew inside the shells of once prosperous houses could be seen scorched living rooms and still smouldering furniture.

Houses, schools and offices all bore scars of the battle.

Flimsier structures were just flattened.

But it was clear the army suffered, too. Around the town armored vehicles could be seen twisted and burned out.

The commandos held true to the guerrillas' doctrine of seeking safety from attack by merging into a background of ordinary people.

Their strongpoints and sniper posts were sited in hospitals, on top of occupied houses, and in front gardens —places where flushing them out would endanger the people around them.

But the army went ahead and attacked with full force. And the people around the commandos were slaughtered in their thousands.

Indians Seek Voice in Policy

TORONTO (CP) —The president of the Union of Ontario Indians said Tuesday he and three other Indian leaders will go to Ottawa Thursday to discuss formation of a committee to serve Indian needs.

Fred Plain said in an interview the committee would be composed of cabinet ministers and Indian representatives. It would help gather and disseminate information about Indian policies being discussed by the government.

"In this way, government policy would not be discussed or even implemented before the Indian people know about it," he said.

Accompanying him to Ottawa will be Harold Cardinal, president of the Alberta Indian Brotherhood; David Courchene, president of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood; and Andrew Delisle, president of the Quebec Indian Brotherhood.

Paper Mill Backed By PE Council

"I concluded that we should have faith in our senior levels of government," he said.

He added these governmental departments will enforce their rules and regulations regarding water and air pollution, safeguarding this area.

Reeve Vincent noted that existing industries have been forced to adopt pollution control.

"This county with its financial burdens cannot exist without a lot of help from somebody, unless we get something," he said.

"We have no alternative but to help any move for economic betterment."

Although he supported the motion, South Marysburg reeve Allan Ralley remarked that it could be — in effect — jumping the gun.

He backed this comment with the contention that the county plan prepared by planning consultants had not been presented yet.

He suggested the land site proposed for the mill could be designated in the county plan as a prime recreation area.

It was noted by county warden Gordon Lloyd that the suggested mill site had not been designated for recreational use.

Enthusiastic about council's motion supporting the mill's location, Sophisburg reeve George Foster declared: "You made no statement until you found some facts. It's very typical for areas to welcome a paper mill built today, comparing it with one built 40 or 50 years ago. I'm sure both the federal and provincial levels of government are prepared to see air and water pollution kept at the lowest possible levels."

Allen Anderson, reeve of Bloomfield, and a Picton merchant, observed: "We should encourage some of these industries when they start to roll. You'll see more happy faces. I don't like to cry the blues but I try to run a decent business and it's kind of a fight at times.

"You can't take $50 men and their families off the hill and not expect it to affect our economy."

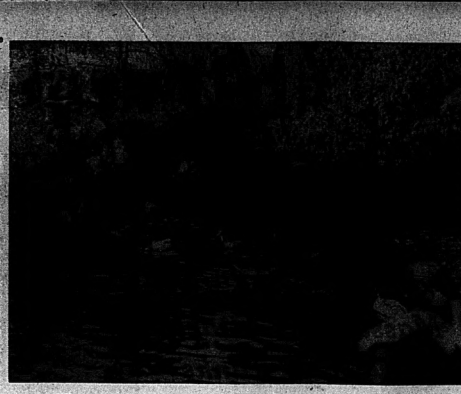
Ameliasburg reeve Russell Thompson interjected: "It's the valuable men we want to lose if it's possible to retain it; We'll endorse it from our end of the country."

Mayor H. J. McFarland, a spectator at the council, applauded the decision, saying: "I feel industry is what is going to make this county, and with today's government looking after everyone's interests I feel we're all in good hands."

He emphasized the kraft mill would not mean continuation of the railroad in Prince Edward County. The railroad now serves two county industries — Lake Ontario Cement and Marmoreton Mining Company.

He supported the kraft mill as a boon to future generations in Prince Edward County.

Boys Scolded



Three juveniles, who had to leap for safety from the CN's crack Corktown, have been placed on good behavior by the courts.

The trio, respectively aged 13, 14 and 15, were charged by CN police with trespassing on railway property after their split - second escape on a bridge spanning the Trent Canal at Trenton Aug. 28.

Two of the youths avoided injury by throwing themselves down on a track opposite the line bearing the non-stop Turbo train.

The third jumped in the canal and was rescued by a transport department employee at a nearby lock.

The latter boys were fined $10 and $5 according to age when they appeared at Trenton Monday.

Takes A Lot of Bread to Keep Ducks

Although a busy doctor, Dr. D. C. McVicker still finds time to feed his flock of 75 ducks a total of 30 loaves of fresh bread and 100 pounds of cut corn per week. In his man-made pond, the doctor provides a sanctuary for a mixed variety of ducks, which, although free to return to the wild, remain with him the year round.

Doctor's Sanctuary Just Ducky

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Slightly north of this town, in the shadow of the water tower, is more than an acre of land which the doctor purchased in 1955. Since 1960 he has used this land to create a tiny park inhabited today by 75 ducks, a number of competitive blue jays, one cat-hunting squirrel and two squirrel - hunting cats.

Together with an accumulation of maple, plum, willow and scores of other trees, a virtual sanctuary for creatures of the wild exists on the edge of a residential community.

From a meagre beginning with two ducks purchased from a local Indian resident, Dr. McVicker has been able to raise a flock of wild ducks which he keeps unclipped, free to leave. During the winter, Lard, a 5 - year old female, leads the winged community to the warmth and safety of winter quarters, a small shed near the man-made pond.

The other animals and wildlife cavort throughout the small sanctuary with animosity towards none, although in the past, certain visitors have caused the doctor and his wife much concern.

In deadly earnest, the doctor explained that he feared and has used a small rifle to deter antagonistic canine visitors. "I don't go quite that far to protect my pets from the humans that steal or kill my ducks, but they are the ones who have. In the past, caused my greatest concern."

Dr. McVicker has been lucky this year, free from too much bother, but it's a constant concern to keep his pets safe.

"It's a pity that more people, from a very young age, aren't exposed to animals, especially having the chance to have them as pets.

"They'd have more appreciation for people, let alone nature," he noted.

"I still hunt a bit, mostly deer, but my interest in wildlife keeps me from going hunting too often."

He continued, saying that his interest in hunting is from a strictly sportsman's angle. One deer, and absolutely no ducks, is his limit.

Hearing Packed, Venue Moved

TRENTON (Staff) — Arbitration proceedings to settle the wage and benefit package for the town's police force finished before they started here this morning.

Crowd turnout for the arbitration session so packed the council chambers at the Municipal Office Building that decision was made to shift the meeting to magistrate's court in Belleville, where there is a large spectators' gallery.

40-Year Oversight

Mary St. Crossing Opening Requested

City council traffic committee wants the Mary Street crossing over the CPR to remain open — despite the fact that it has been officially closed for the past 40 years.

Notice that the Mary Street crossing, used regularly by employees going to and from work at Ritchie Manufacturing Ltd. was officially closed, was received recently by the city in a communication from the Canadian Transport Commission. The letter had been sent to the CPR with a copy forwarded to Bellleville.

Just how the crossing stayed open when it was officially closed was not indicated.

Yesterday the city traffic committee directed City Clerk Adam Stalker to forward a letter to the CTC pointing out that the crossing is needed to provide access to the Morch plant and that provision be made for improvement of the crossing during the current reconstruction of Dundas Street.

Council Concerned Over Sewage Leak

PICTON (Staff) — An excessive amount of sewage being pumped into the sanitary sewage system from the Prince Edward County Home sewage line, has been investigated, revealing possible cracks in the sewage pipes.

Excavation of the sewage line for a distance from 150 - 200 feet will be necessary to replace the damaged sections.

County council expressed alarm about what one councillor called "a fair chunk of change" required to repair the sewage line. The cost of repairs, estimated by one member of council at $5,000 to $10,000 prompted others to question what is responsible for payment.

County engineer Donald Clark pointed out that the McFarland Construction Company dug up the sewage line and repaired it. He reported that the mayor admits nothing about a "poor job" but the break is apparently at approximately the same place.

He described excavation of the sewage line as a two or three - day job using proper equipment and three or four workmen.

"I don't see why it should drag out to an $8,000 or $10,000 expenditure," he remphasized.

Mr. Clark added that the leak occurred following blasting for the curbed gutter job on Highway 49. The curb and gutter drainage system crosses the sewage system.

County Warden Gordon Lloyd said that the leak must be fixed since the home has a problem in handling the extra sewage flow.

"We'll have to do it, then try to recover (the costs) if possible," he added.

Reeve of Hallowell, George Vincent, felt that if the DHO had not been so concerned with "monkeyed up the system that was working properly," it is doubtful whether the break would occur.

Mr. Lloyd observed that there is no way of proving such blasting caused the leakage.

George Foster, Reeve of Sophisburg, termed it, "a matter of unknown circumstances."

Cost recovery on the project concerned Picton Reeve Bernard Hepburn, who asked "will we get that 70 per cent from our great white father in Toronto."

Warden Lloyd reported approximately $2,000 for the county budget for this project.

Council agreed that the excavation should be delayed and will be carried out with the co - operation from the town.

Mayor McFarland has assured council that if the construction company is discovered to be at fault for the leak, he will "take care of it."

Queen Vic Activities Will Resume Oct. 6

Queen Victoria School's community school program will get under way again for the winter on Oct. 6.

The successful program involving opening the school at night for community recreational activities operated for the first time last year. It is under the direction of Queen Victoria's vice-principal, Murray Workman.

A women's activity hour begins from 7 to 8 p.m. Oct. 6 in the school, and a similar program for teen-aged girls will operate from 7 to 8.30 p.m. the same night.

A painting class will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. and ceramics classes for 8-to-13-year-olds will be held from 4 to 5.30 p.m. the same night.

These activities will be held weekly, every Tuesday night at the same hours.

Wednesday nights will see the school used for physical activity hours for men and teen-aged boys. The men's activity hour starts Oct. 7 at 7 p.m. The boys' activities continue from 7 to 9.30 p.m. and begin the same night.

Teen-aged activity hour for both boys and girls will be held every Thursday, starting Oct. 8. The time for this program is 7 to 9.30 p.m.

Square dancing for married couples will be held in the school every Monday evening from 8 to 10.30 p.m. starting Sept. 28.

More activities will be added to the community school program throughout the year as needs are expressed by the people living in the Queen Victoria School neighborhood.

Tweed C of C Plans Ahead

TWEED (Special) — Summer activities of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce were reviewed by the directors at their regular monthly meeting held at Hotel Tweedsmuir, Tuesday. President Keith Cotton presided.

The operation of the tourist information booth was considered highly successful, with a record number of persons signing the register. An increasing number of persons looked for accommodation at tent and trailer parks, and also there was an increase in the number of inquiries regarding lots for the erection of cottages in the Highlands of Hastings and the Land O' Lakes Tourist Regions, the directors were told.

A new trend this season was the number of inquiries from boat owners to haul boats overland from the Rideau Canal System to the Trent Canal System. Most of these inquiries concerned persons who removed their boats from the Rideau system at Westport and wished to put the boats on the water somewhere along the Trent system. The boat owners were advised to go to Trent River, south of Havelock, or to Frankford. George Ellsworth, Manager of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Region, Trenton, plans to make inquiries about this route and have information available for next season.

A committee was appointed to obtain a suitable gift for Miss Dianne Gunning, to mark her winning the Ontario Dairy Princess Competition at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Plans for the annual winter carnival on February 13 and 14, 1971, were discussed. A special meeting of all directors and interested persons will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, September 29, at Hotel Tweedsmuir.

The entire program of the winter carnival will be reviewed at this meeting. The competition among communities sponsoring winter carnivals is becoming quite keen, and there are more carnivals being organized each year, according to Barry Hunter, who has been closely associated with carnivals and snowmobile racing during the past five or six years. Last year's winter carnival failed to make money, consequently, the directors feel that this year's carnival will have to be planned with great care.

President Keith Cotton expressed the hope that there would be a good attendance at the September 29 meeting, with the public invited to take part in planning the annual winter carnival.

Tops in Canada In Organ Exams

James William Noakes of 16 Lewis Street has achieved the highest mark in Canada in the 1970 Royal Conservatory of Music examinations in organ.

Mr. Noakes received his gold medal after obtaining a standing of more than 80 per cent in the practical examination and an average of at least 70 per cent in prescribed theoretical examinations.

Gold medals are given annually to candidates who pass the practical and theoretical examinations in piano, singing, speech arts, drama, organ or string instruments.

Mr. Noakes' teacher is John Sidgwick of Toronto.

Cast to Be Caretakers

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — "Barefoot in the Park" cast members of the Quinte Island Theatre will brace their feet firmly against unruliness in Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, during the November performance of their production.

A small group of adults has been recruited to act in "Barefoot," the theatre association's first "grown-up" play but janitorial fees for the school auditorium threatened to halt production plans. A letter received from the Prince Edward County board of education informed the QIT that a caretaker's fee of $45 would be required for use of the collegiate auditorium on Nov. 11, 17, and 18.

The thespians replied in a letter to the board that they had used the school's facilities free of charge in the past and could not afford to pay the requested $45 for its use this fall. The members of the QIT appealed for special consideration, stressing that financial gain is not one of their primary aims.

Taylor attended last night's meeting of county school trustees to further explain the board members that cast members of the QIT would willingly act as janitors if school facilities could then be made available without charge. Trustees to further explain the term use of the auditorium free of cost for their upcoming performance of Barefoot in the Park.

Air Service Proposed

We have not kept count of the number of occasions on which has been mentioned the possibility of an air service being established to link Belleville with other centres. Certainly the subject does come up from time to time and we have been among the advocates of such a service.

Now there is word that a Belleville company, Quinte Ltd., proposes a charter link between this area and northeast U.S. centres. According to Quinte Air Services committee chairman Donald Rodgers the service would have the committee's approval.

Meanwhile, the committee is reported still seeking a scheduled airline which would serve this area on a regular basis. We think Belleville is growing sufficiently to warrant such a service. Freight traffic alone, from new and established businesses, should keep a local airline busy, if not daily then two or three times a week.

Tourism should benefit too. Lake Ontario creates a barrier to closer ties with northern New York for example. It would be a distinct advantage to be able to fly to such centres as Rochester and Syracuse, not to mention the Niagara Peninsula. Right now Niagara and St. Catharines are humming with the activities of the Niagara Grape and Wine Festival. Such an attraction would be all the more accessible if one could fly there.

Boat travel, once a factor on the lakes with services to Rochester and Oswego, is long since defunct; but one wonders why more modern vehicles suitable for lake travel, hovercraft and hydrofoils for example, have not been introduced.

There is word from Peterborough that the city is renewing its bid for the new international airport mooted in the Toronto area. Mayor Joseph Csunnik has cited lower land costs in the Peterborough area as compared with the more highly-developed Malton area which appears to have high priority.

The Quinte area meanwhile is moving slowly in this vital area of communications. There has been a great deal of talk but no action on an air service. If and when a service, by charter or on a scheduled basis, gets under way, it should give this area another boost.

Strikes In NZ

New Zealand, for long a country of almost full employment and absence of labor strife, has been slipping on both these counts of late. First there was the recession that hit the country a couple of years ago to set a slump in the price of wool which is one of the country's prime exports. And now that the country is recovering from this situation it is being beset by a wave of industrial unrest.

Delegates to the National Party Conference in Rotorua had first - hand experience of this recently. Six hundred delegates and observers including 120 Young Nationals, had to cook their own breakfasts and make their own beds because of a walkout by hotel workers.

The strike, which began in the capital, Wellington, and spread to Auckland, Christchurch and Rotorua, affected all hotel staff except office workers. They demanded a 30 per cent interim pay raise.

Wellington's bus service also came to a halt with a walkout by drivers. This was followed by a stoppage by Christchurch tram workers and 1,800 general delivery workers in Auckland.

The teaching profession in New Zealand is also in a state of ferment and a remark by the Minister of Education, Mr. Talboys, caused a storm of protest. Teachers, he said in an interview, were not badly off as they had long holidays. The minister does sound a little naive and it is not surprising that this remark resulted in angry meetings at several schools; in some cases pupils were sent home early. Telegrams and letters of protest were sent to Mr. Talboys and Prime Minister, Sir Keith Holyoake.

New Zealand then is picking up some of the more troublesome aspects of society in our own part of the world. It is true that wages are not high down there, so it is clear that the work force is looking to strike action to effect a better deal. Whether the country can afford it of course is another matter.

How to Mix Business and Pleasure

PM Tops Susy K's List of World's Most Eligible

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Ever thought of it this way?

The romantically roguish role this Prime Minister so often plays as "Trudeau the Traveller" is itself another reflection of the glittering image of "Mr. Magnificent".

The economy might be a bit hazy-ier, the armed forces in a meaningless muddle, the word "service" as in the federal public service taking on a new and different meaning, but in the Charisma Department, the PM still has to be doing everything right.

Contemplate his new international homage!

She conducts the coronation in the current issue of Ladies' Home Journal, fattest, richest women's magazine in the west-ern world, putting our PET at the head of her list of the globe's most fascinatingly fetching male animals.

Nonsense, you snort!

Well, maybe . . . except that somehow, somebody fiendishly clever in his part of public relations has put the whole glittering image to work for him.

He is here and there and everywhere . . . Tahiti, Kuala Lumpur, on a yacht in the Med, coral reefing in the Bahamas, skiing down British Columbian mountainsides, night-clubbing in Manhattan.

Stick a pin in a travel folder, or a map of Faraway Places and Pierre, like Kilroy of yesteryear's battlefronts, has been there.

Makes the job of Prime Ministering seem so simple.

Like attempting to fit in an afternoon stopover on Parliament Hill in between Great Abaco in the Caribbean and the isle of Capri in the Mediterranean.

But wait a minute, you demur, is it not all a little too casual for a country? Is there not really more to the thing than can be carried off convincingly in between holidays?

Do not be an old fuddy duddy. The voters, the PM's pack of press secretaries is quick to remind you, did not give him that majority mandate because he was' expected to be a drudge working by the hour or even by the five-day-week.

If he can do his thing from nine-ce-so in the morning to mid. or sometimes late afternoon with two hours for lunch, Monday to Friday noon, three weeks in a month, what is the matter with that.

Nothing, actually.

Nothing except that it should not look so easy nor seem to be such fun.

All the other Prime Ministers from Mackenzie King through Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson have made it such an ordeal.

They never seemed to have time for anything but work and worry. Holidays were scarcely ever, and then usually a visit at make-do semi-vacation courtesy with a wealthy friend's trip.

But Trudeau the Traveller!

He looks always, any time, any day, as if he has just come in from Marrakesh and has not had time to change, or care about to take off, slacked and sport-shirted, for Papeete.

He has canoed down the Coppermine to the Arctic coast, crossed the Gobi by camel, motorbiked through China, swam the Bosphorus, Sinned in British Honduras, the South Pacific, the Greek Isles, the Côte d'Azur, the West Indies, Côte d'Azur, the Spanish Sahara of Ibiza. Skied in the Rockies, Selkirks and Coastal Ranges, the Swiss and French Alps, the Laurentians, the Green Mountains, and the nearby Gatineaux. Skin-dived off Australia's Great Coral Reef, and the Great Bahama Bank. Wrestled to Zorba the Greek at the intimate little clubs on New York's swank East Side and danced in London's yeah Annabel's.

The East Block incense-burners no longer try keeping his comings and goings secret now, see him now you do not because he is on the other side of the world — anything like confidential.

Not since that first post-election holiday flip to of all unlikely and unimaginative places, Florida's Fat Lauderdale.

Holed up in a motel, would you believe, with his aides back in Ottawa playing it, of every-very hush-hush.

Ben Bella Trudeau vacation play - pal then — and the jig was up.

Ever since then it has been up, and away for the perpetual-ic PET-ition and do you not wish you could go along?

Belleville today joined the parade of cities across the continent observing National Kids' Day. Sponsored locally by the Kiwanis Club, the National Kids' Day celebration is designed to focus attention on the needs of the "not so fortunate". More than 1,198 Kiwanis Clubs throughout Canada, the United States, Alaska and Hawaii are participating.

The Kiwanee Boys' Band under the direction of Bandmaster Alfred Gower will take special part in the band festival to be held in the Belleville Memorial Arena on Oct. 3.

The 5th Belleville Cub and Scout group committee held a successful corn and wiener roast for the Cubs. There were 45 Cubs in attendance with their leaders, Mrs. C. Ashley, Miss D. Cunningham, Mrs. C. Moore and Mrs. A. Tiberron in charge of the outdoor meeting.

A fine exemplification of the spirit of the pupils of the Trenton School for the Deaf was brought to light when three students of the Institution presented I. G. Hayden, president of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society with $25 to be used in the war efforts of that institution.

Belleville business and industry placed official approval on the Federal Government's decision, enacted under the War Measure's Act, to continue Daylight Saving indefinitely in municipalities where it is in force, today. "As a War Measures Act, I think the suggestion is excellent," stated Mayor Glen Thompson.

Mothers—Does This Sound A Little Familiar?

Letter to Mrs. Thompson of The Globe and Mail

I have had an on-going battle with my daughter for the past 10 years (she's 12) about clothes. The scene is no way out of it and it leaves my stomach in a knot every morning when she goes to school. My husband, needless to say, believes this squabble is not only revolting, but part of the female personality, so he takes no part.

Mornings go like this: "Mary, I thought you agreed last night to wear a tunic this morning with your new knee socks and the white blouse I ironed for you."

"I decided not to wear it after all. None of the kids are wearing tunics yet. It's too hot."

A life lesson: "But that shirt is far too short for school. It's practically a blouse. You can't go out to school like that."

Loud and disgusted: "Mother! All the kids wear things this short. You don't know what kids wear. You're too old fashioned."

This goes on and on. I don't think I'm quaint in my notions of what a young girl should wear, but I don't want Mary going out looking like a little tart, a nd her jeans to the shoes and tight type of thing rather than plain classic styles which are really more suitable for school. We have tried discussing the problem calmly and come to some agreement the night before. But somewhere along the way it breaks down and we end up disagreeing.

I have given Mary considerable freedom in choosing clothes at the store, picking four or five for her to choose from. Invariably she takes them all and wants something else that is loud and of poor quality. Shoes are a problem too. I try to help her to pick something both nice-looking as well as comfortable. But she wears the shoes with the bows that fall apart in two weeks after leaving blisters on her feet.

I know I'm handling the situation all wrong. I do want to make my child happy and comfortable wearing outfits rather like those of her friends. But it seems impossible. Perhaps other mothers have found a solution. Mary is not inclined to be dirty or messy — just tawdry.

—Tired Fighting.

Most youngsters like to dress pretty much as their friends dress, so Mary may be right that you are not up-to-date with today's 12-year-olds. However it is not economical to buy poor quality clothes. How about giving Mary the money for each article she needs and let her buy it herself?

Then she must live with her choice, repairing it if it comes apart at the seams, sliding by it if the colors run, going every other day to the shoemaker to have cheap shoes fixed.

Ammo For The Critics

Hamilton Spectator

The latest federal provincial conference didn't accomplish a great deal, and, as a result of that not unexpected fact, professional critics of each affairs now have enough ammunition to keep them happy and boring throughout the autumn and winter months. This is particularly true of those who make a practice of poor-mouthing the conference as a reform aspect of the conferences: for as that regard, the recent summit meeting did not produce anything of a substantial nature.

These conferences aren't useless, however, by any stretch of the imagination, even though very little is seen to be done. They are in fact valuable in the sense that they broaden the views and soften the hard-line attitudes of some of the participants. It is good for a political leader from the Maritimes, for example, to chin-wag with his counterparts from provinces thousand miles away, and vice versa.

Today in History

Louis Joseph Papineau, French-Canadian patriot and rebel, died 99 years ago today—in 1871—in comparative obscurity. Like William Lyon Mackenzie, Papineau did not regain influence after the rebellion of 1837, perhaps because he fled Canada when the fighting began and tried to negotiate U.S. intervention. Papineau's political descendants were the Parti Rouge and one of his grandsons was Henri Bourassa, founder of the Montreal newspaper Le Devoir and a great Quebec patriot.

Middle East Turmoil

King Hussein Surrounded by A Sea of Troubles

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — There is a possibility that, no matter what the outcome of the Jordanian civil war, King Hussein will once again come out the loser in his sporadic conflicts with the Palestinian Arab guerrilla movement.

In winning the upper hand during the weekend, he may have won his battle. But, some observers here say, the spoils of victory may only be the prolonging of a losing war of political survival.

The bloody war of the last few days must have cost Hussein dearly.

He appears to have made united martyrs out of a disjointed Palestine guerrilla movement, just at a time when much of the world was turning unfriendly eyes to the commandos because of recent aerial hijackings.

And to some observers, especially in Israel, he has become or is in the process of becoming a servant of his own army.

Hussein could not afford to lose this latest battle with the Palestinians. If they had won, his days as ruler would certainly have been numbered.

But some observers see events in the Middle East as numbering the days or perhaps years that this remarkable survivor of disruption will have on the throne.

The Palestinians have time on their side. They have not wanted to take over the Jordanian government. But they now must be considering that possible alternative they can have.

It took them 20 years to build up to their present strength. They probably are willing to use another 20 years to recoup, if necessary. But observers say it should not take too long, as never in their history have they had so much support, even from reports of Chinese Communist and Soviet competition over the supply of arms to the commandos. In other words, what the Soviets or their allies don't supply may be obtained from China by way of Albania.

Hussein, meanwhile, must feel isolated in the Arab world. The most recent bitter pill for him was Egypt's tacit siding with the commandos. Now he has commando supporters on three sides of Jordan—Syria, Egypt and Iraq. One wag here suggested that Israel may become Hussein's best friend or perhaps least enemy.

Geophysicist Foresees Texas-style Refinery Row in Arctic

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — Imagine transposing Texas' refinery row from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada's Arctic Coast and you get an idea of the boom some oil men see just over the northern horizon.

"We should be preparing now for tens of thousands of people to be involved locally," says A. E. Pallister, a geophysicist and member of the Science Council of Canada.

Mr. Pallister's company, Pallister and Associates of Calgary, did extensive geophysical and geological work along the Arctic Coast.

"I feel people underestimate the impact that finding an oilfield—and it is going to be found —will have on this area," he said after touring the Mackenzie delta with the council.

He sees striking geographical and geological similarities between the Arctic Coast here and the Gulf of Mexico between Houston, Galveston and New Orleans.

"Ages and types of rocks and the structures are the same."

Mr. Pallister believes oil development will be surprisingly large although the local market would be too small to support extensive refining and petrochemical industries. But before oil is moved from this area, it will have to have some refining.

Elements like sulphur, which corrodes pipelines and tankers and pollutes the atmosphere, will have to be extracted.

Mr. Pallister's vision of increasing employment has serious implications for this community of 3,000.

Inuvik was a planned community, specially built in the last 15 years as a Western Arctic administrative and schooling centre. But its population under the impact of oil exploration has soared to almost three times the intended 1,800.

The implications can be measured by the $200-a-foot cost of the sewer-water-heating system, and the town is extending this insulated, above-ground "utilidor" to every home in town.

Everything runs above ground here because frosted pipe or below-ground foundations disturb the mustegi insulating the permafrost, the deep layer of permanently frozen ground that covers vast areas of the north.

Once thawing begins in the permafrost, foundations sink and pipes crack. So houses are built on wooden piles.

New construction methods would be needed to build refining operations as well as individual homes.

"There will be no reason to be surprised when the boom happens," Mr. Pallister says.

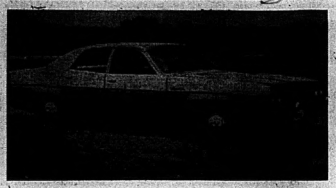
"We should be looking now at these things—construction, road and rail transportation—and doing the research that will be needed."

Richard M. Hill, who runs the federal government's Inuvik research laboratory and is mayor of the town, agrees.

"We are living on expectations," he said after briefing science council members on population forecasts and the growing need to train Western Arctic residents for the translation to a modern industrial society.

Council members had a striking illustration of permafrost problems.

Three years ago forest and muskeg five Ukrainians the townsite. A firebreak one foot deep and four hundred feet wide was torn from the muskeg surrounding the town.



Today the one-foot-deep strip has become 10 or 12 feet deep in places as the permafrost has melted and the water drained away.

The north is criss-crossed with similar man-made gullies from the passage of bulldozers and other vehicles, or from the seismic lines cut for miles through the brush by exploration crews seeking oil.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, science council chairman, told reporters he is sure arrangements can be made so that results of one seismic test can be made available to all oil companies before bidding on oil development leases.

Donald Macdonald Likely

Defence Department Awaits Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department awaits a new minister following the resignation last week of Leo Cadieux, named Canadian ambassador to France.

The new minister will have his hands full with a multitude of loose ends and major policy decisions left dangling by the 1969-69 defence review that led to a major switch in government defence policy and resulting manpower reductions.

There is a white paper on defence, which would be the fourth major pronouncement on the subject since April, 1968.

One of the new minister's first tasks probably will be to determine whether it's useful or necessary to have a white paper at this stage.

He will be taking over a department severely hit by government-imposed spending restraints.

The departmental budget has been frozen at its current level of $1,800,000,000 until the 1971-72 fiscal year.

The freeze results in a serious financial bind, since the cost of inflation has to be absorbed within the budget. Most other departments had their budgets frozen for only one year under the government's anti-inflation program.

To save money, the defence department has decreed a 16,000-man cut in armed forces strength and reduced its civilian arm. It has prematurely retired some equipment expensive to maintain, including the aircraft carrier Bonaventure, and postponed decisions on purchase of new equipment.

It has also closed a number of domestic bases and depots, despite arguments that the few million dollars saved are hardly worth it in over-all economic terms—considering the number of people thrown out of work in different parts of the country.

An estimated $700,000,000 a year will be saved on the government's decision to cut the Canadian military contribution to NATO, though this was primarily a political decision rather than an economic one.

Beyond the decision to bring home half the troops from Germany, and to relinquish Canada's nuclear role in NATO, little has been decided about the shape of Canada's future military presence in Europe.

The government has said that Canada eventually will have a lightly-armed, airmobile combat force in Germany, plus an air element designed for ground support or reconnaissance work. This compares with the mechanized brigade group and nuclear-strike air division maintained until now.

It is not clear when the airmobile force will come into existence. Last year's announcement said it would be after 1972.

It is also unclear whether the combat force will have its own Canadian air transport or whether this will be provided by NATO.

Although there have been indications the Canadian troops may retain their Centurion tanks well after 1972, there still has been no decision whether to replace the fleet of Argus anti-submarine patrol planes operating off Canada's East and West coasts.

Also undecided is whether Canada will join the U.S. in an expensive new bomber defence program based on airborne warning and control. This program suggested for inauguration in the mid-1970s, could cost $12 billion or more.

Legislators are Booed By Gaspe Farmers

STE. PAULA, Que. (CP) — About 1,200 farmers in this Gaspe Peninsula community booed MPs and members of the Quebec national assembly Tuesday night for neglecting their pleas for more action against unemployment.

The farmers crowded into a tiny white clapboard church and sounded a rallying cry of a private war against government inaction.

Local MPs and members of the national assembly were invited but only one showed up. The absent ones were booed.

"These guys accuse us of going ahead and drawing up plans on our own, but where are they when we ask them to take part," said Father Charles Bancille, the local parish priest.

"We can't trust those guys in Quebec. We have a situation that must be changed. We'll do it and we don't care how.

The farmers, representing 24 Gaspe parishes, were hoping to discuss proposals to establish a regional forest industry which they say could potentially supply 80,000 persons in the area with jobs.

Every bench in the church was filled, extra chairs were brought in, the choir loft was jammed and still busloads continued to arrive.

The residents of this community of 600 have been running three 600-acre tree farms for two years and have an operation which some Montreal university scientists and Quebec government officials term profitable.

The parish was founded in 1913 and since then the people have been mostly on welfare because the soil could not provide a living, while indiscriminate tree cutting left little work in the forest.

Give a good chef ordinary ingredients and he will turn out an extraordinary product. Mary Moore shows you what can be done with ground beef and some tomatoes and potatoes to make a meal for particular people.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Dressing Up Ordinary Food

By MARY MOORE

Here comes an idea for dressing up ordinary monotonous food into a celebration meal.

Ground beef, bacon, tomatoes, potatoes and sour cream will be on your grocery list. What you do with them when you get them home and in your kitchen is the expert's trick—turning ground beef into an elegant meat loaf, accompanied by baked tomatoes with a most unusual stuffing.

MASTER MEAT LOAF
(Serves 6 to 8)

1 lb. ground beef or lean hamburger
½ lb. ground stewing veal
½ lb. pork sausage meat
2 eggs
1 chopped onion (or ¼ cup bottled flakes)
2 tsps. salt
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tbsp. Heinz 57
2 tbsps. horseradish
¼ tsp. dry mustard
1 mashed ripe banana
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 tbsp. chopped parsley or bottled flakes
1 tbsp. finely chopped celery (optional)
Pinch of savory
Pinch of rosemary
¾ cup milk or water
4 strips side bacon

Mix all of these ingredients except bacon in very large bowl. Shape into a loaf on shallow pan. Bake, uncovered, at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 min., then cut 4 strips of bacon in halves crosswise. Place these pieces crosswise over top of loaf and bake 30-34 min. longer until bacon is crisp. When loaf is sliced at dinner table each serving is topped with a strip of bacon.

NEW BAKED STUFFED TOMATOES (6 med.)

6 med. tomatoes, unpeeled

Dinner Menu

Chilled Pineapple Juice; Baked Sausages; Spiced Applesauce; Buttered Noodles; Spinach; Apple Dumplings with Lemon Syrup; Tea.

2 med. potatoes
1¼ tsps. sugar (divided — see below)
1 cup dairy sour cream
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. MSG
1 tsp. chopped chives
Shake of pepper
Slight dash of cayenne (optional)
Paprika (see below)

Cook potatoes until very tender. Drain and mash until there are no lumps. Add the sour cream, salt, MSG, chives, pepper and cayenne (if used.) Scoop out a cone-shaped depression in top of tomatoes, big enough to hold about one-third cup stuffing. Sprinkle cut surface of each tomato with ¼ tsp. sugar. Fill each with the potato, sour cream stuffing, peaking it up to a mound at centre with fork and sprinkling top with paprika. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 min. or until tomatoes are tender but have not begun to droop.

Lovely as an accompaniment and garnish for a big platter of steak too.

Successful Living

Some People Need More Sleep Than Others

By DORIS CLARE

When you feel like shaking the children or slapping at your best friend, it could be you need more sleep.

Napoleon managed on four hours a night. But I know a business executive who can only be thoroughly alert after having 11 hours of solid lifegiving zzz's, pounding. The accepted average is eight hours. Find out what is right for you — then see that you get it.

There are some people who can't get enough sleep in one solid, silent night. They just can't sleep that long. It may be their work is completely sedentary, with brain throughly fatigued at the end of the day, and not nearly enough physical exertion to even things up.

A brief walk before bed could make the difference. Or a nap after lunch, even a short one, might be the answer.

Before you decide you are going into a decline, see if you can catch up on your sleep.

Dear Doris: The letter signed "Norma M." amused me so much. I am 81 years of age and read it over to my 90 - year - old husband. Norma might have described my figure, as I think I have all the things she mentioned ("old, fat, but modest fo-malls", "sagging flesh", "pot belly, rear - end spread").

Last summer we attended four weddings and dresses were a problem — until I got one from England. I am pleased to say the second one I have bought fits as well as the first, so I'm set for another October wedding.

All this English farm requires is your hip measurement. Catalogue is sent on request and orders take about two months to arrive here.

— Grandma.

Dear Grandma: What a boon! I have passed the good news on to Norma M. and I will give details to any other fashion - conscious but figure - imperfect female writing to.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 17 and not one boy ever asked me out. One reason for this is I look as though I'm only 14. Another reason is that I'm shy with people my age, but with grown-ups I seem to be able to talk freely.

Lately I met a certain guy. He is 18, and has a very good personality. The way he combs his hair really turns me on. Under the sun his hair looks like it's blonde and the highlights even on cloudy days, it looks like light brown. I can't ever stop thinking about him, no matter how hard I try.

How do I know if I love him or if it's just a teen-age crush I'm going through? How can I overcome my shyness and young looks? How can I let him know I'm older without him thinking I'm lying?

How can I get him to love me as much as I love him?

— The Dateless One.

Dear Dateless: Hold everything!

It's a crush, O.K. As for the shyness, just about every girl starts off so blessed serious that she either acts shy, or too noisy. Once you get the hang of it, being a teenager has its good points.

Don't start laying on the make - up to look older. The boys like a fresh dewy look and people judge your maturity by the way you act. There are some good hints for you in my "Tips on Talking".

As for your Blonde Beauty — by now you are probably over him and snoozing over a brunette. Enjoy your crushes but don't invest your feelings — hang onto them.

Mrs. Michener Relaxes and Enjoys Arctic Tour

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Not many governors wear parkas during a 17-day tour of Canada's Arctic — a tour that involves traveling 8,000 miles, being in the limelight up to 18 hours a day and meeting and greeting hundreds of people.

But it's all part of the job for Norah Evangeline Willis Michener, wife of Governor-General Roland Michener. During the 3½ years since the investiture in 1967, the vivacious Mrs. Michener has made 21 public tours and travelled more than 111,000 miles.

The recent tour to the Yukon and Northwest Territories was expected to be an arduous one for the 70-year-old Mrs. Michener.

Visits were scheduled to several small, remote coastal communities and for this reason most of the travel was in a noisy, non - luxury armed forces aircraft that could land at these small settlements.

But despite an itinerary busy enough to exhaust most women half her age, Mrs. Michener seemed to enjoy herself thoroughly, especially in informal settings in the Inuit and Indian villages.

"She's not an extrovert, like His Excellency," a source close to the people said. "But on this trip she relaxed and had a good time."

Although charming and gracious, she also is dignified and reserved, and seems to expect formality in others.

Yet during this trip, she showed self-assurance and more grandmotherly side to her nature. She seemed at home sitting in a cluster of girl guides, drinking her soft drink from a can, eating moose steaks at a barbecue and chatting with elderly villagers.

One of her "good times" was at a rousing dance at Coppermine, N.W.T., an Eskimo settlement on the Arctic Ocean about 1,000 miles north of Edmonton. Both she and the Governor-General joined in a quick-stepping traditional Eskimo dance and later, for several rousing swing-your-partner numbers.

Her partner in the traditional dance was Richard Kayogana, who won a medal for his part in the traditional dancing at the Arctic Summer Games in Spit.

"I love to dance," she told him following the dance, her eyes shining. And she also told friends that the Copper-mine party was one of the highlights of the trip.

Mrs. Michener seemed to enjoy most her opportunities to meet children. She laughed, joked and chatted with the youngsters that formed the guards of honor at the airports of Old Crow, Y.T., and Sachs Harbor, N.W.T.

And she was far from her formal, reserved image during shopping trips to Indian craft shops and Eskimo co-ops in the villages. She shows a definite knowledge of Canada's Indian and Eskimo arts and crafts.

Mrs. Michener's interest in arts and crafts is not confined to the Eskimo and Indian. She is a painter herself and has had her own exhibitions.

Her husband is also a painter and has had exhibitions of his own.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR CLARKE

Clarke — Thompson

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Lynda Louise Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Lynden Thompson and Arthur William Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Clarke. Rev. J. F. Turner performed the ceremony and Mrs. Elizabeth Hubbs was the organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle Mr. H. Thompson, was dressed in a floor length gown of imported peau de soie, with a U neckline edged with French Guipure lace. The juliette sleeves were trimmed with the same lace in an inset design, and the coachman style skirt fell in cut-away fashion to form a train at the back. She wore a bouffan veil of silk illusion and carried a bouquet of pink and white roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Carol Thompson, sister of the bride. Her candy pink gown of silk worsted had its neckline trimmed with a white guipure lenerigen and matching pink ribbon. The bridesmaids Wendy Hunter of Toronto, Maureen Addison of Waterloo and Jane Hunt of Bancroft wore pale pink dresses similar to that of the maid of honor.

Melville Clarke, brother of the bridegroom was best man and the ushers were Brian Burke and Norman Burke of Ottawa and Douglas Hunter of Wawa.

For the reception held in the church parlor, the bride's mother chose a green dress and coat ensemble of crimpline knit with green lace trimming. She wore tan accessories and a corsage of yellow and white roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a green jacquard design dress and coat ensemble with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The newlyweds left for their wedding trip to points East. the bride in a navy dress and coat ensemble of crimpline with red accessories and a corsage of red roses. Upon return they will reside at 316 Westdale Ave., Kingston.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL DUNCAN HEWTON

Hewton — Hart

Rev. A. Dunlop officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Margaret's - on - the - Hill Anglican Church, Belleville when Catherine Margaret Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ross Hart of Belleville was united in marriage to Michael Duncan Hewton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hewton, Carrying Place. Mrs. Henry VanOsten played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Daniel Thompson of Brighton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length lace over peau de soie gown in empire style with skirt of peau de soie and the lace bodice featuring a jewel neckline and bell sleeves with appliqued lace wedgings. Her wedding ring tulle and satin headdress was caught to a star - tier veil and she carried a bouquet of bronze mums and yellow roses.

Miss Laurie Hart attended her sister wearing a pale yellow brocade dress in empire style with sheer cape sleeves. She wore a white picture hat trimmed with yellow sheer and flowers and carried a basket of yellow mums and roses. Bridesmaids Miss Donalda Hart, sister of the bride and Miss Perry Hewton, sister of the bridegroom were identically attired but in tangerine shade.

James Morrow of Brighton attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Peter Hart, brother of the bride and Douglas and Reginald Hewton brothers of the bridegroom.

For the reception held in the Officers' Mess at the Armory the bride's mother wore a beige and off - white crimpleine dress bone colored shoes, rose silk shantung pillbox hat and a corsage of roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a turquoise dress with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations and deep pink roses.

Leaving on the wedding trip to the Kawartha Lakes, the bride donned a Kelly green A-line linen dress with green and beige matching jacket and bone accessories.

The couple will reside in Peterborough.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH ACW

The members of the Anglican Church Women of Christ Church Parish Guild were guests of Mrs. M. Livingston at her home for the first meeting after the summer recess.

The president Mrs. M. S. Lazier welcomed the members. Meeting opened in the usual manner with the Collect, read minutes of previous meeting in the absence of Mrs. M. Sparks, secretary, who was a patient in Belleville General Hospital Mrs. S. L. Lazier read the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. Nix, treasurer.

Mrs. E. Watson gave the devotional. Th eGuild will cater to a wedding in the near future. Best wishes were extended to Mrs. F. Seeby and her husband Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Livingston, Mrs. I. Wright and Mrs. H. Wright.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

SENIOR CITIZEN'S CLUB

A special welcome was extended to Mrs. Margaret Robinson and to the new members at the mid - monthly meeting of the Senior Citizen's Club held at the recreation centre, Mrs. Robinson had been absent for some time due to illness.

The birthday song was sung for those who had celebrated birthdays in July, August and September. Mrs. Gertrude Gist reported on those who were sick. A short business meeting and a draw was held. Mrs. Nellie Bly were also part of the proceedings.

The winners of the euchre games were Mrs. Margaret Robinson, Mrs. Carufel, Mrs. Cunningham, Mr. Bedell, Mrs. Gist and Mrs. Scales.

Conveners Mrs. Ada Scales and Mrs. Mildred Taylor together with their helpers served lunch. President Mrs. Kathleen Adams chaired the meeting.

Parents Without Partners

The farm of Ken Wood, Ameliasburg, was once again the scene of fun and food for single parents and their children. Both young and old gathered around the fire, sang songs while Gerry played his guitar. The circle broke as word got out that the corn and hot dogs were ready for eating.

This is just one of the happy times provided by Bella-Trent Chapter of Parents Without Partners, for single parents and their children. This chapter meets the first Thursday of the month at Queen Alexandra School, Belleville, at 7.30 p.m. and the third Thursday at King Street United Church in Trenton at 8 p.m. This chapter has been in existence for about two years now.

Recently in Toronto at a regular Regional Council meeting it was decided to form an Eastern Ontario Regional Council to cover the area from Toronto to Montreal. Vice President and Treasurer of the EORC is one of this chapter, Gerry Rogers, Belleville. All single parents are invited to any of the meetings.

MILLTOWN BIRTHDAY CLUB

The Milltown birthday club was held at the home of Beverly Gough in Kingston. Prizes went to the following: first, Mollie Hunt; second, Doris Sine; lone hand, Margaret Lazier; consolation, Irene Merry.

Guests were: Mollie Uens and Donna Kilpatrick of Belleville also Luella Kilpatrick of Kingston.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Multiple Sclerosis Chapter Meets

The meeting was called to order by chairman Bernard Fox, with the reading of the minutes of the previous month's meeting and introduction of special guests.

The Quinte Chapter display at the Quinte Exhibition was a very successful publicity campaign, giving the public an awareness of the crippling effect of multiple sclerosis on young adults.

Mrs. J. Lee Smith of Smithfield, Ont. was the prize winner of the $50.00 draw.

Steve Norvaisl and his sons Randy and Billy of Trenton, provided the membership with a musical treat. Instrumental and vocal solos that was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

The next meeting will be held October the 29.

Alberta Woman Says No Special Problems in Being Female Contractor

EDGEWOOD PARK, Alta. (CP) — Alice McIver says there are no special problems in being a contractress.

Mrs. McIver, a widow and possibly the only female contractor in Alberta, says that after a mile git over the initial shock, once they realize you know what you are talking about," it's just a matter of dealing with people.

Getting into the construction business was a natural course of events for her after her husband died four years ago.

Her husband, Thomas, had worked in the electrical field and owned some real estate, as a sideline. Mrs. McIver had been a bookkeeper before marriage.

Years of helping her husband in his business fitted her for construction. She registered as a limited company, A and S Construction—the letters stand for Alice and sons. The sons are 11, 9 and 8.

There are no steady employees of the company. All the work is done through sub-contracts. Work can involve as many as 30 sub-contracts, depending on the project.

Initial work involved rumpus rooms, each just renovation but A and S projects now are exclusively houses.

All the houses are in Leduc, a community 20 miles south of Edmonton. Sherwood Park is a suburban Edmonton, adjacent to the city's eastern boundary.

Mrs. McIver buys lots from a real estate company which has already sold the proposed houses. Funds under Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the homes are three-bedroom types ranging from 1,000 to 1,700 square feet.

There are five floor plans, each named after a castle, the company's symbol.

Mrs. McIver, an attractive woman, supervises the day-to-day work, keeps the workers supplied with materials and says "that the hard part of the other."

She does books for the building account but usually also hires to wear jeans. She wears dresses and pantsuits to retain her femininity in a man's business.

When the weather is good, she is out at the site most of the day supplied with a lot of time on the telephone and/or supper.

Most suppliers deliver, but sometimes she has to pick up odds and ends. The station wagon "substitutes for a half-ton truck" and she never leaves front day to day what she'll be carrying.

Ann Landers

Father-in-Law's Jokes Cause for Dissention

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About six months ago my husband's father went to work in a shop that employs twelve men. Apparently all these men talk about is sex organs and women.

Since my father-in-law took this job his conversation is nothing but filth, dirty words, and rotten jokes which he thinks are hilarious. Sometimes he laughs so hard he can barely finish the sentence.

Sunday at our house, my father-in-law got going on the dirtiest stuff I've ever heard. It had to do with sheep, goats, chickens, dogs — sodomy and perversion with a little incest thrown in. When I couldn't stand it any more I interrupted my father-in-law and told him if he couldn't think of anything more sensible to talk about to keep quiet. He became very angry and screamed, "You have insulted me and I am leaving." He stalked out, slamming the door behind him.

ANN LANDERS

My husband says I should go to his father and apologize. I don't feel I owe him an apology. Do you? Your opinion is wanted and needed. — MADGE OF THUNDER BAY.

DEAR MADGE: I agree with you. However, here's a suggestion: You could have made your objections known by simply leaving the room. Do so, if the occasion should arise again — and it probably will.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you concur, please say it — loud and clear. I need some backing.

Every time I include a certain friend of mine she jumps up from the dinner table as soon as she has gobbled down her food and carries her plate to the kitchen. Soon she started to take the plate of another guest and he asked, "Do you mind if I finish eating?"

I am well organized and can handle a dinner for six with ease. If I need help I'm not shy about asking someone to give me a hand.

This same guest wants to dive into the dishes immediately after dinner "to get them out of the way." I happen to believe it is impolite for a hostess to leave guests while she does KP in the kitchen. My wishes fall on deaf ears. Can you penetrate? — OVER-RIDDEN.

DEAR OVER: You sound plenty articulate to me. Or is this your paper personality? If so, I suggest that you write down what you would like to say to this gal and rehearse it aloud. Keep in mind she's a "compulsive "helper." To win your point you'll have to come on like Ana Pauker. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Add me to the list of people who never thought they'd be writing to Ann Landers.

I'm a woman in my 40s going with a man about 10 years older. I am divorced. He is a widower, a successful attorney, very charming, and attractive and I enjoy his company. Something odd happened last night and I'd like your interpretation.

We were walking from a concert to the garage when he suddenly stopped, bent over and picked up a penny, out of the gutter. He laughingly mumbled some corny cliche like, "A penny saved is a penny earned."

I said nothing but it bothered me. Why would a grown man stoop to pick up a penny on the street? I have never noticed any signs of cheapness in him, but this was a shocker. What do you make of it? — DIM VIEW.

DEAR DIM: Your friend has a good memory. He recalls when a penny bought something. I don't view this as a sign of cheapness, but rather a hang-up from childhood. I see nothing to criticize.

Points for Parents

By MARY BEYRON

Mother: "I'm afraid if we let the children watch TV, they'll never enjoy reading. Too many children just sit and let themselves be entertained and never read a book."

Children should watch TV in the same way they read books — sometimes to increase their knowledge and stimulate their interest; sometimes for relaxation and entertainment."

Expose your youngster to good books and to good TV programs, and they will acquire a taste for them. Statistics show children today read more books than did children of pre-television days.

Grasshoppers Utilized To Rob Bus Fare Boxes

CALGARY (CP) — A public hearing into possible conduct by city officials was told Tuesday that fare boxes have been developed to defeat a transit system's fare boxes, including the use of gum and even grasshoppers.

Bertram Freeman, an administrative assistant to the city accounting department and closely connected with transit operations, said the grasshopper and gum were attached to a string and lowered into the fare boxes to retrieve tickets or coins.

He told the public inquiry before Mr. Justice W. G. Morrow that most ways of cheating the transit system, a favorite delight of hard but there were other means of tampering with the fare boxes.

To prevent these methods from becoming common knowledge, they were read into the record as confidential items.

Indians Want Camp Returned

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — A resolution has been sent asking the government of Canada for the return of nearby Canadian Forces Base Camp Ipperwash to Indian ownership. Chief Charles Shawkence of the Kettle Point band said Tuesday.

The resolution, approved unanimously at a four-day meeting here last week of chiefs of Ontario, was sent to Ottawa by the Kettle Point and Stony Point Indians.

Fred Plain, president of the Union of Ontario Indians, denied reports published on the week-end that the union would take further action regarding Camp Ipperwash.

Jack Cullen, Liberal member of Parliament for Sarnia, said some of the land was purchased outright by the federal government but other land was to be returned to the Indians.

"It is my feeling that we may be able to enter negotiations calling for a phased-in returning of the lands, including the lands which were purchased . . . ." Mr. Cullen said.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

Many motorists lose some of their belongings on vacation trips because they are careless. If you are going on a trip, the Ontario Motor League urges you to follow these four basic rules to discourage thieves.

1. Always remove the keys from the car when you leave it parked, including any spare keys you may keep around for emergencies. The first thing a professional car thief does is he enters your car as is to look in the most likely hiding place for the spare key—under the floor mat or sun visor.

2 What you leave your car, make it a habit to close all windows and lock all doors.

3. Keep luggage, cameras, and clothing in the trunk, not piled on the front or back seat where they are an open invitation to thieves. Cars often are stolen only for valuable articles that can be seen from outside the car.

4. Park in a gas p or parking lot where an attendant is on duty, especially at night. If this is not possible, try to pick a well-lighted, well-populated street. The ideal mark for a thief is the car parked on a dark side street where there is little likelihood of interruption.

Properly adjusted and efficient brakes may save your life in an emergency. The brake fluid in the master cylinder should be checked every time the car is lubricated. Fluid leaks or other possible defects may develop unexpectedly if brakes are neglected.

When you're driving and you intend to stop, turn or change lanes, give the proper signal first.

Everyone knows a red light means stop, but some drivers are not aware that a flashing red light calls for a complete stop also. When you approach an intersection with a flashing red signal, come to a complete stop and check for passing cars and pedestrians before you proceed.

When you drive off a freeway, it's difficult to adjust to the slower tempo of congested areas. Remember this, and be especially alert.

On a vacation trip, do not try to set an endurance record. If there are passengers in the car who drive, let them take regular turns at the wheel.

Drive defensively! Always watch several cars ahead of you and not just the one directly in front of you.

When you're walking across the street, watch closely for turning cars. Don't rely upon motorists seeing you. Make sure you see them by looking in all directions.

Safety measures described by experts when a flat tire occurs while driving are to steer firmly, brake gradually and move completely off the road onto the shoulder before stopping.

If you're pulling a trailer behind your car, don't forget it for a minute. Remember to account for its extra bulk in every driving decision . . . especially where distance is involved. It's generally a good idea to double your estimation of the distance you'll need for stopping, for passing another car, and for judging the speed to leave between you and the next car. A trailer can be pretty unwieldy in tight situations — avoid them with this "double" safety habit.

Channel 19 Commences

TORONTO (CP) — For people who live in an area of southern Ontario bounded by Hamilton, Oshawa, Newmarket and St. Catharines, television takes on a new dimension this morning with the debut of educational television.

Channel 19, Canada's first channel broadcasting only educational television, seeks to attract a diverse audience of new Canadians, pre-schoolers, teachers, English and French-speaking students, shift workers, housewives and anyone else during its 19½ hours of broadcasting a day.

DUNDAS ST. WEST

RIGHT NEXT TO TOWERS & GAS BAR BELLEVILLE

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Once differences in semantics were sorted out, many who had been in last night's special Belleville and District Minor Soccer Association meeting with fire in their eyes departed with collective sighs of relief.

Objective of the meeting was to discuss the adoption of the European Club system for city minor soccer, a move that had been regarded in some quarters as a step closer to increased all-starism, and further away from the mass participation concept of community recreation.

What was heartening about the meeting was that the overwhelming majority of the 70 minor soccer workers present were adamant that they want to keep their sport on an "every-boy-plays-every game" basis.

What was discouraging was the fact that certain "touchy" points about the club proposal were not adequately outlined to many of their dense guests; particularly representatives of the two groups whom participation is paramount: the Belleville Minor Sports Association and the city's recreation machinery.

The three-hour Quinte Secondary School session produced a resolution to be presented to next month's annual general minor soccer association meeting, and recommending the adoption of a four-club system based on area representation.

What should make the Belleville club system more acceptable to the minor sporting public is the fact that it will not be a club system at all.

The true European club system is one in which a club's coaching staff gets the best possible players from any source, then builds an organization of "farm teams" beneath the club's senior 11.

But, as long-time Quinte area senior soccer worker Peter Davies said last night, "There will be no absolutely clear lines — you're talking about districts."

Minor soccer secretary Fred Jones agreed that the entire purpose of his brainchild was "to keep coaches from stacking teams."

The key to achieving this lies in the fact the four proposed city clubs would be selected on a geographical basis. Players from the present minor system to junior level competition would join the club within whose area jurisdiction they resided.

An exception would be made for next year to permit boys to stay with the teams they now play for.

Trenton has also asked to be included in the Belleville setup, and two clubs from that community are anticipated. Jones soothed city taxpayers' qualms by explaining that, other than sharing the fields with Belleville teams, Trenton clubs would not fall heir to any city minor sport subsidies.

Minor soccer's grant from the Belleville Minor Sports Council and the use of city recreation department facilities hinge mainly on the final item of last night's agenda — the matter of team selections.

Aldermen Donald Soulier — chairman of council's Recreation-arena Committee — emphasized that funds and facilities are allocated to minor soccer in this city "on the assumption that every boy has the opportunity to play."

Any notion of team trials, as suggested in the agenda, might leave youngsters unconvinced that they were capable of "making a team."

Several persons took exception to "reserve" and "A, and B team" designation that seems to create first and second-class minor soccer citizens.

Repeated assurances by minor soccer workers that "every boy will get a game" just didn't seem to be enough. "You've told me this," queried Alderman Soulier, "but can my nephew's youngsters they're going to get an opportunity to play?"

Dr. Tom Woodley, one of the coaches in the 300-boy city minor soccer network this past summer, felt the club system was premature.

"Ten years from now, when you've got 700 boys playing, then you can speculate. But the club system is not far removed from what I believe you call 'selects'. I think that's too far in the future."

No definite action was taken on the three points that raised the only real objections during the meeting: the proposed method of team selections, the "legality" of clubs charging boys registration costs beyond their Association registration fee, and the part to be played by Quinte area senior soccer teams in the club system.

It had been assumed that such senior Bay of Quinte Soccer Association teams as Parsons and Belleville United would be at the top of the club pyramids. Last night secretary Jones suggested they would be playing more of a figurehead role, as merely a level of play younger boys might aspire to.

A senior soccer spokesman commented afterwards: "This isn't really a club system they were talking about. It's the same way they've run things all along. The only difference is boys will be allocated to clubs by area instead of by school."

Saints Overwhelm Centennial for Openers

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The expected battle between the defending Bay of Quinte champion Quinte Saints and the up-and-coming Centennial Chargers never did materialize, as the Saints' potent offence gave their opposition a 43-8 lesson in basic football Tuesday night.

Lesson number one proved to Centennial that football lasts for four quarters, not one, as the Saints racked up 20 points in the second quarter after leading only 8-4 at the end of the first 15 minutes.

The second showed that wins go to the team that is willing to block and tackle, and the Saint line was first off the ball continually, throttling a potentially potent Centennial scoring attack.

The winners drew first blood, trapping Charger punt returner Ralph Vanderwoert in the end zone and then getting their first major as halfback Paul "Sadie" McQuaid skirted the right end to score on a seven - yard reverse. Rick Graham plunged across to give Quinte a 9-0 lead on a two - point conversion.

The losers bounced right back, however, as quarterback Mike Thomp... found flanker Steve Ford on a ... yard pass and run play. A ... point fake by Thompson from the Quinte secondary and Ford ... made amends for an earlier dropped throw by snagging the pay ... across the goal ... legging the Saint defensive backs.

Somehow, in between periods the Charger line stopped charging after playing the defending champions to a standstill in the first quarter, and the results were immediately obvious.

Quinte was able to move the ball almost at will, particularly on the right side where guard Brian Hennessey and tackle Tom Helm opened gaping holes in the Centennial defence.

Fullback Rick Meagher took advantage of the outstanding running attack to set up a successful passing operation. After getting a lucky break on a 21-yard throw to end Stan Brooks, that was tipped into his arms by a Charger defender, Meagher settled down to throw Ford deep and began to throw the ball with vast authority.

On the other side, Centennial pivot Mike Thompson was continually bothered by a strong Quinte pass rush as brothers Fred and Mike Whalen shredded the Chargers offensive line. Thompson faced double trouble with his receivers displaying a marked lack of catching ability when they did break into the clear.

The combination paid off for Quinte early in the second quarter when Meagher intercepted a Thompson pass to set up the winners' second touchdown and send them to the dressing room with a 29-8 halftime lead.

Centennial's scoring was curtailed by a rash of penalties that halted drives by both teams on a number of occasions. The only tallies came when Hall followed a fine block by Tom Helm for his fourth touchdown and McQuaid ended his night's work on another reverse. Rick Meagher concluded a safety touch for Centennial's final two points.

The Saint defence was ironclad in the second half, preventing any further Thompson aerials and showing occasional parsons of fullback Ralph Vanderwoert from mixing outside yardage. Corner linebacker Norm Pope came up with Quinte's second interception in the third quarter.

"I was impressed by the way we played with the play of some of our first-year men," stated Quinte coach Rick Locke after the game, "but, I still think that we're capable of coming up with a better offensive showing."

Charger coach Doug Irvine was understandably subdued after the game. "What can you say about an exhibition like that?" he commented. "I was disappointed with the showing of a lot of our first stringers."

The only weakness in the Saint machine appeared to be an inept kicking game as they failed to boot a single convert and their punting left much to be desired. Conversely, the Saints' punting ace Ken Bertrand were the most effective offense that the Chargers could muster in the second half.

After a scoreless first quarter, the winners piled up a 20-0 halftime lead. Bob Vanderwater counted twice on off-tackle plays, while Dick Howe counted the other score on an end run.

Vanderwater notched the only score of the third quarter, while Tim Whalen collected a pass from Gabor Kvekk for the late fourth-period score. Dick Howe picked up four points for the Chargers on a pair of two-point conversions.

Quinte made the scoreboard in the final quarter with Bob Rapley counting on a four-yard sweep.

Traffic Stop

Quinte linebacker Wayne Harrison sprawls on the grass after upending Centennial backfielder Steve Ford. The senior Saints exploded for 20 points in the second quarter to win the Bay of Quinte league opener 43-8. Centennial's juniors turned the trick on the opposition, however, coming up with a 34-6 win at Quinte.

Cosy's Claus Didn't Give Anything Away

Sandra Claus and company weren't giving anything away last night by taking a 5-0 win from Dairy Queen in the city Women's Softball championship.

With virtually the same players who won last year's title under the Legion Branch 39 banner and two others such as the Barrigas Landscapers, this year's Cosy Grill club marched to their third consecutive championship.

This season's win came the hard way however as the Dairy Queen lads — coached by Jim Bailey — gave the champs a battle.

Joyce Seniuk and Doris Lackwood were the only hitters to solve the Cosy Grill hurler's slants.

Agee's Infield 'Squibbler' Keeps Met Flag Hopes Alive

A hit that weaved its way through Philadelphia's pulled-in infield for the single his New York Mets thinking pleasant thoughts again about the final 10 days of the National League East Division race.

Tommie Agee delivered the ninth-inning hit, for two runs and a 7-6 victory over the Phillies Tuesday night that pulled the Mets back within three games of Pittsburgh Pirates and left them one behind second-place Chicago Cubs.

The Pirates protected their edge by coming back to knock off Montreal Expos 3-1 in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader after being shut out 1-0 in the opener by Bill Stoneman.

Chicago was rained out at St. Louis.

In other National League games Tuesday, Atlanta Braves trimmed San Diego Padres 3-2, Cincinnati Reds clipped Houston Astros 6-5 and Los Angeles Dodgers nipped San Francisco Giants 1-0.

The Mets were on the short end of a 6-5 count after Tony Taylor had tripled three runs home and then scored on a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the eighth for Philadelphia. The New York loaded the bases with none out in the ninth.

After pinch-hitter Dick Selma fanned Ron Swoboda on three pitches, Agee poked a squibbler that just made it into right field for two runs and the victory.

Stoneman, 6-15, stranded 11 Pirates in the first game and started Montreal's winning rally with a leadoff single in the sixth inning. Rusty Staub's triple chased the run home.

In the fifth, loaded the bases with none out on Dave Cash's double, a hit batsman and Veale's bunt single. Matty Alou beat out an infield hit for one run and Richie Hebner's sacrifice fly scored another.

The Pirates and Mets each have eight games remaining. The Cubs have 10 to play.

The scoreboard in the hectic National League East Division race advances to the playoffs against West Division champion Cincinnati Reds, who scored six runs in the eighth inning to overtake Houston.

Tommy Helms's bases-loaded single capped the rally which included five walks, two of them with the bases loaded.

Pete Rose's ninth-inning single enabled the Reds' sparkplug to reach the 200-hit mark for the fifth time in eight seasons.

Atlanta pushed across a run in the bottom of the ninth on Mike Lum's bases-loaded single to edge San Diego.

Los Angeles used Alan Foster's three-hitter to edge San Francisco and regain second place in the West Division.

Twins Wrap Up Western Honors

Tony Oliva quickly ended any suspense tonight by Oakland and Jim Hall put the finishing touch to the Athletics as Minnesota Twins wrapped up their second successive American League West Division title Tuesday night.

After a leadoff walk, Oliva drilled his 23rd home run for a 3-0 Minnesota lead in the first inning and Hall drove in two more in the sixth inning with a bases-loaded single as the Twins swept to a 5-3 victory over runner-up Oakland.

Minnesota will open the best-of-five playoff series at home against the East Division champion, Baltimore Orioles, Oct. 7.

In other American League action, the Orioles lost their 100th victory of the campaign, trouncing Detroit Tigers 10-2, New York Yankees edged Washington 5-4, Chicago White Sox slugged Cleveland Indians 8-3 and Kansas City Royals swept a pair from Chicago White Sox 3-1, 6-2.

Oliva also singled and doubled as a three Jim Kaat, 13-10, went five innings, allowing one run on six hits.

Andy Etchebarren drove in six runs with a single, double and homer in the Orioles' romp. It was the Tigers' sixth straight loss.

Tommy Harper's 30th homer, a two-run shot in the seventh, carried the Brewers to their victory over the Angels. Harper became the fifth major league player to hit at least 30 homers and steal more than 30 bases in a season.

Tony Conigliaro and Rico Petrocelli ripped two-run homers for the stunned Red Sox, who captured their seventh straight in knocking out 20-game winner Ted Abernathy in the fifth.

Al Fitzmorris scattered eight hits and capped a three-run Royals' fifth with a bases-loaded single in the nightcap of their sweep over Chicago. Lou Piniella cracked a sixth-inning RBI single in the opening game triumph. Ed Kirkpatrick added a homer for the winners.

Disability Payment Aid to Malingering?

OTTAWA (CP) — Government proposals to include disability insurance benefits in a revised unemployment insurance program may lead to elimination of existing private income-protection plans, a team of business consultants warned the Commons labor committee.

The team, representing William M. Mercer Ltd. of Montreal, told the committee the scheme proposed in a white paper in June by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey would stimulate the one cheque now sold by employers against malingering by employees.

Company vice-president J. Keith Marks said that the proposed plan would mean workers in many industries would derive sick leave benefits both from the unemployment insurance commission and from plans already established and operated by private insurance companies.

Unless a relatively low upper limit was placed on the percentage of normal income that an employee on sick leave could draw, he would have little incentive to return to work promptly upon recovery, Mr. Marks said.

"Malingering in the disability insurance field is a problem today and there is an increase in abuse when new plans are brought in," he said.

"Odds often," added another vice-president, Carson E. Beadle, "there has been a 30% or 40% or even 50%-per-cent increase in the sickness rate in a company compared to that of an unlicensed company."

The white paper, under study by the labor committee, proposes a special unemployment benefits of 66 2-3 per cent of normal earnings for up to 15 weeks for persons off the job for either sickness or maternity.

GM and Auto Union Resume Bargaining

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for General Motors of Canada Ltd. and the United Auto Workers returned to the bargaining table here Tuesday for the first time since a strike by 344,000 GM workers began Sept. 14 in Canada and the United States.

Art Stapleton, chief of GM's negotiating team, said negotiations here involved fringe benefits only and were not likely to last more than one day unless the UAW requested continuance.

Wage negotiations were left to company and union negotiators in Detroit, who also resumed talks for the first time since the strike.

When talks broke down previously, negotiators in the U.S. were 25 cents apart on the first-year wage-package and far apart on fringe-benefit demands.

Affected in Canada by the strike are about 27,000 workers at GM plants in Toronto, Oshawa, Windsor, St. Catharines and London, Ont., and Ste. Therese, Que.

Talks have been held here since the strike on issues affecting individual plants, but chief negotiators had not met since the strike.

The strike has affected several companies dependent on GM for orders. Gale Lumber Ltd. of Oshawa announced Tuesday that 26 more employees would be laid off, leaving a staff of 30. Forty workers were laid off Sept. 14, when the strike began.

In Stratford, 60 more workers were laid off by Standard Products Ltd., which supplies rubber parts to GM. About 225 workers have been laid off to date at the plant which employs between 550 and 600.

Ontario Ban on Tire Studs Unlikely to Be Widely Copied

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The majority of Canada's provincial governments have been watching their roads for damage from studded snow tires but Ontario is alone in planning to ban studs.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press Tuesday showed that officials in five provincial governments think the safety factors outweigh the possible cost of road damage.

Ontario Highways Minister George Gomme and Transport Minister Irwin Haskett made a joint statement Tuesday that Ontario would ban studded tires after April 30, 1971.

They said 35 per cent of the vehicles in Ontario now used studded tires and by 1971-72 at least 60 per cent were expected to be stud-equipped.

Provincial officials have predicted the studs will cause $127 million in road damage during the next 10 years.

Mr. Gomme said the tires obliterate lane markings and create ruts in roads, both safety hazards, and that studies have shown studded tires increase braking distance under most conditions.

He said they are effective in southern Ontario for only 1.1 per cent of winter driving time.

Nova Scotia Highways Minister I. W. Akerley said white markings deteriorate faster because of the studs but the cost is offset by a lower winter accident record.

The highways department continually re-assesses research but has found studs do no substantial damage to highways, Mr. Akerley said.

"We have to consider that our traffic volume is much less than Ontario . . . and that we have much milder winter conditions in Nova Scotia than in Ontario."

The use of studs is unrestricted in New Brunswick. Highways Minister Andre F. Richard said, and no immediate legislative action is planned.

He said highway engineers claim roads are damaged by studs "but to what extent we don't know." He said the department will continue its evaluation of studs this winter.

Newfoundland Highways Minister Harold Starkes was not available for comment but he said in a television interview last week that the government believed the safety factor to be more important than any road damage.

George Tremblay, Quebec transport minister, said the Ontario law does not change his opposition to a ban on studded tires.

"To save a human life, that is much better than saving on the cost of a little asphalt. The cost of asphalt is nothing; what concerns me is the loss of lives."

He said since he became transport minister, early this year he has not fully studied research on the subject.

A spokesman for the Ontario Motor League, Pat Curran, said the league agrees studded tires may not be of much benefit in southern Ontario but "Northern Ontario is a far different story."

She said the major league between studded tires are valuable where permanent ice conditions exist throughout the winter.

A spokesman for the Manitoba highways department said no anti-stud legislation is planned and the province has not carried out extensive research on studded tires.

Dudley Highways Minister L. T. Holmes of Saskatchewan said if people consider studs a safety factor, perhaps they are prepared to pay for moderate wear on highways.

He said the province has not made any detailed studies but that studded tires do not appear to have done much damage to Saskatchewan roads.

George MacDonald of Edmonton, executive vice-president of the Alberta Motor Association, said Alberta has tested studs thoroughly and found road damage minimal.

Other provinces and states have come to the same conclusion, he said.

"They can't all be wrong."

E. F. L. Jackson, an official of the British Columbia vehicles branch, said the Ontario move probably will have no immediate effect on British Columbia.

He said that because of different road construction methods in B.C. it does not have the same wear problem as Ontario.

Protest Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Tire and stud industry officials said Tuesday they will probably lobby against Ontario's proposed ban on studded snow tires.

Chamber of Commerce Wants Economic Council Role Enlarged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce plans to ask the federal government next week to enlarge the role of the Economic Council.

A. Gordon Archibald of Halifax, new president of the chamber which speaks for about 128,000 business men, said the chamber will ask that the council be empowered to recommend what can be done to enhance Canada's economic growth.

It would include a specific suggestion that the council study existing tax laws and proposed tax changes, and social welfare and regional disparity programs.

Mr. Archibald said the council should be asked to give the federal government its assessment "of the degree to which these laws and proposed programs will enhance Canada's economic growth."

The meeting with federal officials will take place Wednesday, Sept. 30.

Mr. Archibald, president of Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., in his first speech today to the chamber's annual convention as president, said he was also concerned about government's philosophical conception of the free enterprise system.

"Through tax reform and changes, the federal government is in a position to alter our entire way of life and we have a right to know the over-all objectives and philosophies . . . in order that we as business people, can formulate our own plans and objectives."

Mr. Archibald also called for a better understanding between labor and management.

"It is time that all sectors of our society understood that we are all citizens of Canada and as such have responsibilities as Canadians."

He said a new approach to labor-management relations had to be sought.

"The process of continually passing the buck from one group of society to another is futile. Somehow we must collectively recognize that the buck must stop and be shared by all."

Minimum Wage Will Rise to $1.65 April 1

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's minimum wage is to be increased to $1.50 an hour from $1.30 Oct. 1, and go up to $1.65 on April 1, 1971, Labor Minister Dalton Bales said Tuesday.

The minimum rate in the construction industry, now $1.55, rises to $1.75 on Oct. 1 and to $1.90 next April 1.

Mr. Bales said the April 1 level will be the same as the federal minimum wage, and the highest provincial rate in Canada.

Alberta is to raise its minimum to $1.55 Oct. 1 while British Columbia and Manitoba moved to $1.50 on the same date.

Ontario's minimum wage has been $1.30 since Jan. 1, 1969.

Mr. Bales said about 200,000 workers will be affected by the Oct. 1 increase.

A number of amendments to the Employment Standards Act, providing additional protection to workers on overtime and vacation pay, also become effective in Ontario Oct. 1.

The revised act will protect an employee's vacation pay rights and notice-of-termination rights if a business is sold, providing he stays with the same establishment.

Vacation pay will have priority over all other claims against the employer.

The labor department, which now helps employees collect unpaid wages up to $1,000, now will help recover up to $2,000.

All employees will be entitled to two weeks' holiday with pay after two full years employment.

Employers will pay a 10 per cent penalty on all unpaid wages, vacation pay and overtime pay.

EVERYONE WAS BRAVE by William L. O'Neill

In his book, Mr. O'Neill argues emphatically that American women are hardly better off today than they were 50 years ago. He describes the American woman's struggle for equality from the earliest stirrings in the 1830's to the present day.

THE NEST - DEDUCTIBLE WOMAN by Sheila Kieran

This book is about that little-understood Canadian — the working wife and mother. There are certainly very special problems for the working married woman and emotional adjustments to make. However, as the Non-Deductible Woman shows, working isn't all trouble — otherwise there wouldn't be so many women who do it with such obvious competence and enjoyment.

REMEMBER TO FANDEMIST by Rupert Butler

When Emmeline Pankhurst was born, a woman's place was most definitely in the home. Mrs. Pankhurst was forthright and courageous, with great organizing ability, but she was also at times misguided and also dictatorial.

Drawing from writings of fellow suffragettes, and from newspaper accounts, this book gives a personal account of a truly extraordinary woman.

THE BETTER HALF by Andrew Sinclair

Mr. Sinclair's lively and impeccably researched study traces the emancipation of American women from Colonial days to 1919 when they won the vote on equal terms with men. They started from a position of hopeless subservience, chattels in the domestic bondage, isolation and constant child-bearing of pioneer life. Winning education and property rights, they gained a position of moral superiority.

THE VANISHING RIGHT TO LIVE by Charles E. Rice

Nothing so dramatizes the low estate of the right to life as the wide acceptance of abortion; and the law in Canada has now been amended to make abortion legal. Mr. Rice debates the moral issue of the right to life starkly and honestly.

TAKE IT FROM EVE by Eve Nelson

There are two reasons why every woman should read this book. First, it is an earthy, straightforward philosophy of beauty. Secondly, it is written by a woman who has spent her life surrounded by men. Unlike many successful women, Eve Nelson doesn't cling to her secrets. She understands the strengths and weaknesses of being a woman and how to make the most of both.

SEVEN WOMEN: GREAT PAINTERS by Winthrop Neilson

Few women have attained greatness in painting. The seven women included in these pages have beyond question, a permanency of reputation in art history. Each one was entirely different in personality from the others. Several had similarities of family background, but their educations, academically as well as in art, were very unalike. Treated together for the first time, each of the painters comes through as a vivid, strong and striking personality.

Fertilizers Pollute

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of Agriculture said Tuesday that fertilizers containing phosphorous are not a significant contributor to water pollution, but those containing nitrogen may be if their use is not carefully controlled.

Dr. M. H. Miller, a soil scientist at the University of Guelph, says that only a small percentage of the large amounts of phosphorous in fertilizers reaches ground or surface water.

Volkswagen Raises Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Volkswagen Canada Ltd. announced Tuesday it is raising retail prices on 1971 models by about 1% per cent. The German parent company raised car and truck prices about 3½ per cent in January.

The 1600 model, the basic Beetle, will cost $1,999, and the deluxe version $2,199.

Machine Gun Registered

Police Brass at Duke Display

TORONTO (CP) — Two provincial police officers said Tuesday they gave 11 senior police officers, on different occasions, at Duke Lawn Equipment displays.

Cpl. John Doherty and Cpl. Donald Bell were called as witnesses at an inquiry investigating allegations that George Clanton Duke, owner of the firm, had connections with senior police officers and known criminals.

Cpl. Doherty said that in 1964 or 1965 he saw Assistant Commissioners Ward Kennedy and Leonard Nell, Chief Superintendents I. R. Robbie, Waldo Gibson and Robert McKie, Staff Supt. A. M. Bodger and Supt. Albert Wilson at a Duke equipment "lawnorama."

Cpl. Donald Bell said in the fall of 1967 he saw Assistant Commissioners Nell, J. L. Whitby, Albert Biel, and R. W. Miller, and Insp. C. G. C. Wilson at lawnoramas.

Supt. Robbie and Gibson have since died, and Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Nell have retired.

Cpl. Doherty, who lived for several years in the gatehouse on the 30-acre Duke estate in Oakville, said he registered five guns—including a machine gun and a revolver Mr. Duke in late 1965 or early 1966.

He said Alex Swan, the registrar, showed him a criminal record on Mr. Duke compiled by the RCMP but Mr. Swan said the record was 40 years old and Mr. Duke had become a respected businessman.

Cpl. Doherty said some time later he checked the OPP central records, where criminal records were kept, but found no file on Mr. Duke.

"I guess I just forgot about it after that," he said.

Cpl. Doherty said he also saw Mr. Swan at a lawnorama, the former Justice of the peace died two years ago.

Cpl. Doherty said he rented the gatehouse in 1959 when he was stationed in Oakville.

The $100 a month rent was normal for the area and covered all utilities but the telephone. Later he had to pay for the utilities as well.

Cpl. Doherty said he moved out in 1967 when Mr. Duke said he needed the house to accommodate a member of his staff.

Cpl. Bell told the inquiry he became acquainted with the Dukes through friendship with one of his neighbors in Burlington, Sharon Dredge. Mrs. Dredge is the daughter of Mrs. Duke by a former marriage.

Cpl. Bell said he saw the senior officers at the lawnorama when he went to pick up his wife, who sometimes helped Mrs. Dredge at the stalls.

Mrs. Dredge, a secretary at the Duke firm, told the inquiry she kept a record of Christmas gifts.

She produced cards showing that Duke, Insp. Wilson, Insp. Wilkinson and Assistant Commissioner Whitby had received Christmas gifts for the last four years.

Mrs. Dredge said she has been looking after the gift list for seven years, updating the cards annually. Gifts usually valued from $5 to $10 went to a large number of clients.

Asked by Dr. Morton Shulman about erasures on some of the cards, she told the inquiry: "I changed my mind about some of the gifts and crossed them out. I believe it's a woman's privilege."

ABC Sticks with Favorites

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC did so well last season with its Tuesday night schedule, it wisely left the programs alone this season. The series between 7:30 and 11 came back with new material Tuesday night.

Mod Squad, returning for its third year, opened with what can be identified as a typical Mod Squad tale. This time Pete, played by Michael Cole, hit a girl with his car while pursuing a suspect. In his guilt and concern, he became romantically involved with her during her convalescence. Then he learned that she probably was part of a gang of burglars.

Members of the squad are forever falling in love and the love affairs are always terminated at the end of the episode. In the case the girl was killed in the final shootout.

How Awful About Allan, a suspense thriller, opened the season for the 90-minute Movie of the Week. It was a story of a man suffering psychosomatic blindness resulting from guilt feelings in his father's death in a fire. The man, Allan, is treated in a mental hospital and returns to the family home to live with his sister, horribly scarred in the fire. Almost immediately he starts seeing, with his blurred vision, shadowy shapes and hearing whispered voices.

Anthony Perkins played the harassed Allan with such relentless anger and impatience that it was hard to be sympathetic about his plight. Julie Harris, with a plastic patch over one cheek to conceal her wounds, turned in her usual expert performance as the sister.

To wind up the evening there was ABC's smash hit of last season, Marcus Welby, M.D. His season opener was a believable but rather painful story about a 16-year-old girl with venereal disease.

The girl had an ambitious, dominating mother and a weak father who wanted peace at any price.

Marcus Welby, M.D. had something to say and, without being preachy, said it.

'71 Ford Pickup

The Ford F-250 pickup introduces standard power brakes for 1971 and an optional AM/FM radio. The F-250 and its counterpart F-100 and F-350 pickups feature the styling and comfortable ride that make them suitable for personal transportation, as well as the rugged, functional capability of working trucks. All models go on sale September 18 at Ford, Mercury and truck dealers of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

Danny Thomas Returns Tonight

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is there room in the new "relevant" television season for a new-old situation comedy about a family?

ABC, Danny Thomas and two sponsors are betting $2.5 million plus that there will be.

Tonight marks the debut of Make Room for Granddaddy, a curious rebirth of one of the great successes of television history. Reviving a series into the unique—Dregnet made it. But placing of a family comedy in this season's schedule runs counter to the trend of making a series relevant to today.

Make Room for Daddy, later The Danny Thomas Show, chronicled a nightclub comedian's family and had about as much relation to average Americans as say, Frank Sinatra's life style.

"This time it will be different," said Thomas during a rehearsal break at Paramount Gower studio. "Of course Danny Williams is not a normal American father, because he makes his living as a nightclub comic.

"But the family itself will be concerned with all the things that are facing American families today. These are subjects that we never could have hinted at in the first series.

"This season it's all changed. The censor just says, 'Go right ahead.' The only thing he asked was that we don't use four-letter words."

Danny Williams is signed for a movie role, then learns he must play a love scene—in the nude. How does his family react?

The Williams daughter helps a couple move into their new apartment. The couple is unmarried. What is Danny's reaction?

Danny hires a new piano accompanist, a black. How do Danny and his family respond to entertaining a Negro in their home?

Relevant? It seems to be, compared with family comedies of yesteryear.

Why would a happy millionaire such as Danny Thomas return to the weekly television grind?

"I like to work, and I enjoy staying at home," he explained. "But one of the main reasons is that I want to hold onto my key production personnel, and I can only do that by keeping them busy."

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO — Mrs. William Holmes returned home on Sunday after spending two weeks with her sisters Mrs. Cowan and Mrs. Bayliss in Toronto.

The members of the Queensboro Women's Institute were guests at the September meeting of Cooper and Remington WI. Mr. Robert Kirkwood from the Talc mine at Madoc was guest speaker and gave an interesting talk on mining in general.

A number of people from here attended the anniversary services at the Baptist Church in Madoc where Rev. Robert Snyder a former pastor was the guest speaker.

Mrs. C. A. McMurray was hostess for the September meeting of Unit one of the United Church Women. Mrs. Harry Love unit leader had charge of the devotional. Mrs. Harry Declair gave a reading on the subject of the educational system in Korea. Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

PERFORMANCES — 8.00 P.M.
1st Week – Wed. to Sun.
2nd Week – Tues. to Sat.
OPENING SEPTEMBER 30
A THOUSAND CLOWNS by Herb Gardner
A sensitive comedy about a well-meaning writer's efforts to bring up his nephew — the happy home and beautiful relationship is threatened when the department of social work decides the child's home environment is not conducive to normal upbringing.
OPENING NOVEMBER 18
THE FANTASTICKS
Still running in New York after several years — still the most charming and unpretentious simple musical about young love and the tears and fears that accompany the blooming of adolescence.
OPENING JANUARY 20
EODL 3-ACT FESTIVAL ENTRY
Theatre Guild hosts the entire festival — this as yet unannounced work promises to be one of importance that will test the abilities of the Guild to the utmost.
OPENING APR. 22
"" by Albert Camus
An intriguing family show of mystery and suspense by one of France's foremost living authors — a play that can be interpreted on various levels: from the existentialist for which Camus is famous to the simple tale of life and one of life's absurd paradoxes — an ideal festival play.
OPENING MAY 26
THE DRUNKARD
You will boo and hiss at the drunken ineptitude of the remorseless father — and you will applaud the poor daughter's and mother's plight as they try to make a better life for themselves without the brew tainted by the devil's own evil.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Doctors Disagree, So Ask Another

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband and I are worried. Our family doctor says he has "borderline" angina pectoris. Another doctor says his heart is all right. Now we don't know which is which. — Mrs. T.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: X rays show that I have a large stone in my gall bladder. I have no symptoms. Feel fine. But there's a difference of opinion about what I should do about it. I am 74. One doctor says I should have a gall bladder operation. The other says, "Forget it." What does a patient do in such a case? — Mrs. F.

• • •

Comment: It is true that two heads are sometimes better than one. However, it is equally true that three heads are sometimes better than two. Nothing is more frustrating than being sick and given two totally different opinions about what to do.

Let's take the letters one at a time. First, there is no such thing as "borderline" angina. It is angina or it isn't. Who shall make the decision? You say two doctors have examined you. Is one of them a recognized internist or cardiologist? The question is not as important as who gives it. Therefore, ask to have a third opinion from an expert. You can't go through life wondering whether or not you have heart trouble.

Now, as for what to do about the conflicting advice regarding gall bladder operation. Call in a third head, an expert who will swing the balance of what or what not to do. Since you are 74 and symptomless it will have to weigh the actual need for surgery at your age.

What I have said about these two patients applies to many thousands of people who confront us in doubt about what to do, because they are confused and procrastinate about going for a third, expert opinion. Many would be happier and healthier if they relied on three heads instead of two.

But there is a limit. I do not suggest you see four doctors instead of three, or five rather than four. Many readers know how I feel about jumping on the medical merry - go - round and getting dizzy with too much conflicting advice. Sometimes that's worse than just seeing one doctor and relying on his opinion.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We seemed to be plagued by mos-quitoes. Our friends down the same street say they are rarely bothered. Can you explain? — Mrs. V.

Comment: Inadvertently, perhaps you are providing breeding places for these pesky critters. Make an inventory of your home and yard.

Get rid of standing water. Repair leaky plumbing and outside faucets. Clean clogged roof gutters and drain flat roofs. Screen rain barrels. Discard old tires. Empty or remove anything that will hold water: old bottles, tin cans and other receptacles. Do you have a plastic wading pool? Empty it at least once a week and store it when not using it. Mosquitoes lay their eggs in standing water. Hence you are kinder to them than your friends, not realizing that you are running some kind of obstetrical clinic.

• • •

For Mrs. Z.: You can consider yourself fortunate in taking your young son to the emergency room instead of waiting for your doctor who was out of town until the next day. Acute appendicitis still kills about 1,500 people every year. Early operation, as in your son's case, might have saved them.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Many friends and neighbors called on Mr. and Mrs. George Wellman on Saturday afternoon on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. 'Open house' was held on Saturday afternoon when they received many lovely gifts.

Rev. D. Saunders preached his farewell sermon at St. Mark's Anglican Church on Sunday. On Sept. 20 St. Thomas' and St. Mark's congregation are invited to meet with St. Paul's on Sunday for a farewell service.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burkitt attended the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barker at their home, Marmora on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Ray Wellman, who spent the summer vacation in North Ontario with the Lands and Forest has returned home and is attending college at Lakehead, Peterborough of the Lands and Forest.

Many attended the retirement party on Sunday in honor of Jack Mack of Havelock, who has worked at the Minaconda Building Products plant for 40 years. He is a former Bonarlaw boy.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Stranger's Advice Useless

By SYDNEY J. HARIS

Among the letters I never answer are those that want specific advice. Such as the one from the lady in Wisconsin whose nephew has just been graduated from high school.

She has faith in my judgment; she writes flatteringly, and therefore wants to know whether I think the boy should go to a small college or a large one. This is the sort of advice no one can give who does not know the nephew.

Whether any young person should attend a large or a small college — or attend college at all — depends on a dozen individual factors: his personality, intelligence, emotional problems, home life, habits, loyalties, goals, desires, talents. Without knowing the answers to these questions, any advice I might give would be stupid and presumptuous.

The point I am making is that we try to fit individuals into our ideas rather than modify our ideas to fit the individual. I personally am in favor of small colleges—but not for everybody. This woman's nephew might very well do better at a large state university, a correspondence school, or none at all.

This is why the professional advisers — in the press, on the radio, and elsewhere — are futile, misleading and, in some cases, downright dangerous. They are not dealing with precise mathematical formulas, but with variable human beings.

It takes a great deal of interest, study and affection to understand another person — even those we are closest to. To prescribe for somebody else's needs is something not even a psychoanalyst will do; he lets the patient find out for himself what he really wants to be and do.

Patients who try to force their children into a mold — to go to the same school father went to, or enter the same profession, or marry the same type of girl — fail to respect their children as individuals. They think they are interested in the child's happiness, but actually they are more interested in having the child contribute to their happiness.

Rousseau wrote an excellent book on the rearing of children, and the ill own offspring grow up neglected in a foundling home. This is not to say that all professional advisers-givers are hypocrites, but that if we cannot recognize our own needs, how can we prescribe for others?

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 24

Your birthday today: Optimistic adventure, improving expectations are a feature of the psychological terrain for the year ahead. There are peaks of poignant achievement and plateaus of high level routine. Your intuitive talent grows somewhat; collaboration is attracted. Avocations turn out to be major sources of earnings, emotional satisfaction. Today's natives generally speak right out with their beliefs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your enthusiasm should lead you through a normal day of productive activity followed by an evening of festivity. Take time to meditate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Broaden your range in dealing with people; increase your communications with them. Apply for improvements, changes of status, licenses.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The better features of today's psychic climate continue; make the best of them. Mental chores, family discussions are favored. Later, influential people can be approached.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Many pleasant things can happen today, if you make them. Personal plans for once fit comfortably with your career. Family affairs run smoothly this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Continue negotiating, remain discreet. Those you are dealing with need a great deal of time to reach agreement. Financial matters, perhaps romance, make the evening memorable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Friends now make a strong difference in both career and social matters. Start early to achieve a team for a broader-range program.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The unforeseen may play a part in your success today, but don't count on it. Be ready to make a definite effort if this happens. Your friends bring something of interest to your attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): New information, additional skills figure in today's activities. Progress in legal matters should be sought. Find time for meditation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Confidences kept now bring rewards. A little digging can unearth added resources. Bring in interested friends; listen to see what they know before you tell your information.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Material improvement challenges your mental faculties. Deal serenely with what you must, seek a fun-filled evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Extra time and effort expended now prepares the way for later advances. New skills will be unexpectedly helpful in the near future.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Creative projects turn out better than ever. Select distant markets for whatever you normally produce. Pursue sentimental interests later.

Hussein Attacks As Truce Refused

Pact Rejected By Guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — King Hussein's troops launched their biggest offensive of the Jordan war, now in its eighth day, aimed at breaking the back of the guerrilla forces in the north today, and Amman radio said 5,000 guerrillas have surrendered.

New fighting broke out in Amman, the capital, and on the outskirts, despite a ceasefire proclamation. But the new fighting was not expected to halt the rescue airlift being formed to take foreigners out of the battered capital.

Moves to bring peace stalled before the big guns. Guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat repudiated a peace agreement negotiated by a Cairo peace team and four guerrilla leaders in Amman. Arafat called it a "trick."

The Al Fatah guerrilla information office in Beirut said Jordanian artillery this morning began the "saturation shelling" of Irbid, the biggest stronghold in the guerrillas' "liberated area" in north Jordan.

Reuters correspondent Malik Al-Husseini reported from the Irbid area Wednesday night that the northern provincial capital was under air and artillery attack with big fires burning.

Two chartered flights were ready here to fly to Amman to collect non-essential members of the U.S. embassy and American wives of local citizens among the 400 Americans still in the country. Other foreigners wishing to leave also will be brought out.

At the same time, a second British plane was expected to fly in during the day from Cyprus with medical supplies—and bring out more British women and children. A party of 30—22 members of the British community and nine UN personnel, including two Britons—flew out from Amman Wednesday.

More planes were standing by, to fly in medical supplies—and with the fighting continuing, each trip remained fraught with danger.

Al-Husseini, reporting from the north Jordanian border town of Ramtha, said troops of the Palestine Liberation Army, the regular force of the Palestine resistance movement, pulled back six miles after Jordanian tanks, artillery and planes opened their big offensive with a 16-hour bombardment.

Husseini said the PLA was still holding a line about 10 miles south of Irbid and Ramtha. Both cities were hit in the air and ground bombardment.

A senior guerrilla officer said the withdrawal was for tactical reasons and the guerrilla forces would attack again.

The Jordanian government earlier claimed that an "aggressor force" of tanks and artillery had been buried back into Syria.

Israel sources, insisting that it was Syrians and not Palestinian Arabs who were fighting in the north, said the attacks during the night had broken Palestinian resistance.

The Israelis, reporting from Tiberias, said that after the Jordanian shelling ended, Jordanian troops pursued the guerrillas. One source described the activity as a pogrom—organized massacre—and said the guerrillas were giving up.

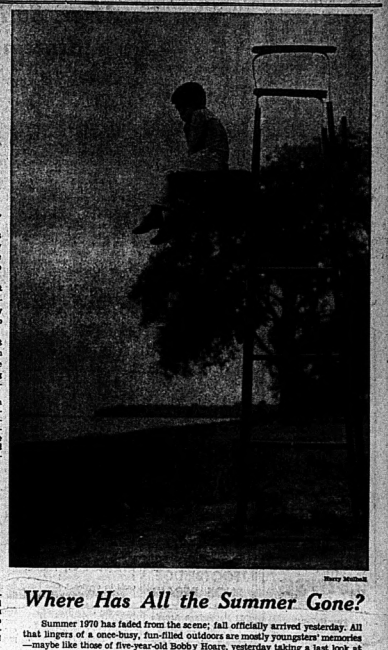
U.S. Plans To Fly Out Americans

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Top U.S. officials were armed with secret emergency plans in case of any trouble from Arab guerrillas over the planned evacuation today of Americans and other foreigners from Jordan.

The evacuation order went out late Wednesday night from the state department and officials immediately went into action to see there was no hitch.



They hoped everything would go smoothly but it was reliably understood they had formulated a stand-by plan to use if anything went wrong.

The state department said a chartered civilian plane of the Lebanese Middle East airline was scheduled to fly from Beirut to Amman after dawn to pick up a first batch of Americans and others who want to leave.

It was not known how many were likely to be picked up but 112 seats will be available on the plane.

Intervention Opposed

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union condemned attacks today with Arab leaders in an effort to end the fighting in Jordan after telling the United States and Britain that outside interference would further complicate the situation.

Moscow already has had contacts with the leaders of Syria, Iraq and Jordan and the Soviet news agency Tass, quoting a foreign ministry report, said the necessary steps would be taken to help bring the Jordanian conflict to an end and prevent intervention by outside forces.

This could be read as a veiled threat that in the event of American or British intervention Moscow would not just stand by, but Tass gave no indication of what these steps might be.

Doctors' Strike Near in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's medical specialists will withdraw from mediation talks on medical care insurance if a national assembly committee does not hear their case, an official said Wednesday.

Dr. Raymond Robillard, president of the 4,000-member Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists, said mediation would continue if the committee discusses an opting-out clause.

"The medical profession is close to a strike," Dr. Robillard said.

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. J. C. C. Dawson, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, said Wednesday "perhaps five or six" Quebec medical specialists have obtained permission to practise in Ontario in the event of a strike over medical care insurance in that province.

Trustee Takes His Children From Tweed Separate School

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

An "inequality gap" in the educational curriculum has led the Tweed-Hungerford trustee on the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board to withdraw his children from St. Carthagh's School and his residential tax support from the separate school system.

JAMES LESAGE

James Lesage of Tweed notified the board through a letter to its chairman that "I feel I cannot adequately represent the separate school ratepayers of Tweed and Hungerford."

The letter was read last night, but no comment was made by trustees.

Mr. Lesage urged that the board immediately appoint someone to replace him on the board. In the meantime, he wrote, he did not intend to take an active part in deliberations of the board, but "rather to simply intercede for those ratepayers of Tweed and Hungerford who wish to obtain information through me rather than to contact the administration directly."

He requested that the letter

Wounded's Fate Hinges On Appeal of Red Cross

GENEVA (Reuters) — The lives of thousands of wounded in and around Amman hinged today on an answer from the Arab guerrillas and the Jordanian government to a Red Cross appeal for a 24-hour truce.

The International Red Cross Committee today awaited a reply to its appeal Wednesday night for the 24-hour truce to enable the wounded to be evacuated and treated.

The Red Cross wants the truce to start at 1 a.m. EDT Friday and be effective in Amman and within a radius of 12 miles of the city.

But even more important, the Red Cross wants assurances that the ceasefire will be respected. It also has appealed to all combat forces to give its delegates the necessary protection to carry out their task.

A Red Cross convoy of four ambulances and a car flying large Red Cross flags was forced by heavy fighting Wednesday to abandon an attempt to reach the badly-shelled Jebel Wahdat Palestinian refugee camp to evacuate wounded.

The Red Cross had obtained assurances on the spot 24 hours before from both the Jordanians and the Palestinians that the convoy would go through unscathed.

"But the shooting went on and they could not reach the camp," a Red Cross spokesman said.

"Our delegates are under fire when they go to work. Our big problem is to obtain the co-operation of both sides in the conflict to make sure that any ceasefire is respected.

"We are immensely worried about the situation. We just can not go into action."

U.S. Railway Strike Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A threatened strike that could shut down U.S. railways has been postponed two weeks to give negotiators more time to settle a dispute over elimination of firemen's jobs.

The postponement, worked out by the railways and the United Transportation Union, was announced early today after negotiations continued past the 12:01 a.m. strike deadline.

Moonship's Cargo Lands on Kazakhstan's Windswept Steppes

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union's Luna 16 moon-probe returned to earth today carrying the first samples of moon soil ever gathered by an unmanned spacecraft, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Helicopter-borne search teams recovered the capsule and its cargo on windswept steppe brushfields in Soviet Kazakhstan about 1,400 miles southeast of Moscow and 50 miles southeast of the Kazakh town of Dzezkazgan.

Tass said the craft parachuted to earth at 8:26 a.m. (1:26 a.m. EDT), six minutes later than expected.

The moon material will be turned over to the Soviet Academy of Sciences for analysis.

The soil was gathered Sunday from the Sea of Fertility, a hereto-fore unexplored area of the moon's surface.

Luna 16 was launched 11 days ago with little fanfare and no word from the Soviet information on the purpose of the mission.

His controlled soft-landing on the moon was announced Sunday as if it were no more significant than previous Soviet soft landings that were not intended to return to earth.

Only on Monday did Tass announce that the craft would attempt to return to earth with a load of moon soil.

Only twice previously have samples of moon rock been brought back to earth, by the U.S. Apollo 11 and 12 astronauts last year.

That Russia has achieved this feat without putting human life at risk will only serve to reopen the controversy of whether men or robots should carry out the complex tasks of space exploration.

The feat of Luna 16 has shown that though Russian scientists may not have evolved all the systems needed to put men on the moon, they have highly sophisticated instruments capable of doing many of the tasks a man can do.

The Luna 16 samples will add a considerable amount to man's knowledge of the moon since they are from a different part of its surface from those brought back by American astronauts.

The craft's feat is being hailed here as a major triumph for Soviet technology, and one of the engineers who helped design it told Tass that similar robot "hands" may one day supply scientists with samples of Venus or Mars.

Russia so far has given few details of Luna 16 beyond the fact that it has an electrically operated drill, attached to a robot "hand."

After the samples were drilled from the surface, the "hand" placed them in a container atop the return rocket, which was then hermetically sealed.

SS Ratepayers Call for Reinstatement of Superintendent

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Separate school ratepayers last night called for the immediate reinstatement of suspended superintendent of education F. B. Allore.

After hearing about 55 separate school ratepayers and interested public school supporters present a brief to the board on the subject, he gave notice of motion calling for withdrawal of the suspension.

Mr. Allore, superintendent of education and chief executive officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board, was suspended last May 8 but the reasons for his action were never made public by the board.

Last night, the ratepayers delegation learned that his salary of about $20,000 a week had been paid until Sept. 1 but is now terminated.

James Tobin, a spokesman for the delegation, said he represented "a growing number of distressed ratepayers and teachers who wish to give expression to their concern over — the suspension."

He argued that the board is not carrying out legislative requirements that a qualified superintendent must be installed by Aug. 1 of each school year.

"Without a qualified superintendent, school program and teachers have no legitimate supervision or guidance," he said.

He asked board chairman J. Buckley whether or not the board had received directives from the Ontario department of education on the situation.

Mr. Buckley indicated that the board had received no direction from the department, and it still had a superintendent even though he was under suspension.

Mr. Tobin said "it seems indeed a travesty of justice that the creative efforts of this man . . . can be summarily dismissed."

"From all walks of life, teachers, physicians, parents and workers with disturbed children and others give testimony of the concern and educational competence of this man," read the delegation's brief.

"As members of the Christian community we deeply regret the isolation done to this honorable man, and we ask most urgently that the board take steps to reinstate Mr. Allore as our superintendent. Any further unnecessary delay must result in most serious deterioration of our school system," the brief concluded.

The brief read by Mr. Tobin included specific wording reduced provisions for children needing special education and the role of the department of education grants for building construction, building and machinery.

Mr. Buckley asked the delegation to file its brief with the board, but said it was not prepared to answer any questions without further study.

"Failure to answer deprives our disquiet," said Mr. Tobin. "The quality of education is at stake."

Deputy Reeve Boyle said in the board that the issue has come for publicity and resolution of the matter.

Asked by Mrs. Boyle if the department of education's attorney on the board was in conflict in "disinclination to go along with the decision," Mr. Buckley answered: "I don't think so."

Mr. Buckley indicated that the board expects resolution of the issue "in the near future."

"This is a highly emotionally charged issue," he told the delegation. "All the facts are not public knowledge. They could be made public, but it is not in Mr. Allore's interest to publish the facts. A man's whole career is at stake."

He added that he knew of no way to get the department to move on the issue.

Msgr. Sullivan's Statement

Four months have passed since this Board voted to suspend the superintendent for alleged inadequacies. It was an action which I feel was unwise and in which I did not concur. Maybe the situation in which we find ourselves at the present time has caused others to re-think their position. I, therefore, give notice of a motion for the withdrawal of this suspension.

The plight of this Board grows worse day by day. We were led to believe that the situation with the superintendent were so substantial that the department of education would quickly approve of our action. It has not, giving great credibility to the contrary view that they were without substance. In a period of transition filled with uncertainties, and at a time when suspension were undesirable, other Boards considered and actually did levy such charges at their directors, but in view of existing legislation none chose to pursue the course of action.

Present legislation covering the relationship of boards with their chief executive officer is archaic. It will undoubtedly be changed, establishing grievance procedures that are just and fair. But we do have to resolve to the best of our ability, the problem we have created. Nobody is going to do it for us, although the department is indirectly and manifestly has encouraged reconciliation.

Our minds have been closed and so we are now on the verge of sending this matter to the courts. This could be extremely damaging and extremely costly. It is my opinion and the opinion of many whom we represent, that we should retrace our steps. The first condition is any settlement has to be the withdrawal of the suspension. Maybe everyone has learned something from this experience.

Hees, Carriers To Try Gliding

HEES listed on ma

Former transport minister George Hees, an advocate of flying as a means of travel, has never had a ride in a glider.

Weather permitting, this weekend, however, the active MP for Hastings-Prince Edward is being introduced to powerless flight at the Belleville Flying Club. He will be among a group of novices making their maiden flip, including a number of The Intelligencer newspaper carriers.

Their trip will be around the circuit above the hub of growing Hastings County and it's suburbs.

Mr. Hees noticed the increased interest that the youth of the Quinte area are taking in gliding (Air Cadets from Trenton are taught to fly gliders at Mountain View Airport in PE County) and decided he would like to try the sport himself.

He will arrive at the Belleville airport at 1 p.m. on Sunday afternoon, motoring from his home in Cobourg.

Townships Veto County Library

PICTON (Staff)—Prince Edward County has rejected a proposed county library system supported earlier this month by Picton town council. Four municipalities, Ameliasburg, Athol, Hallowell and Sophiasburg, have held down the plan during township council meetings.

The support of three-quarters of Prince Edward's 10 municipalities was required before the proposed system could be developed. Cost factors for the system are compiled by county council and forwarded to each municipality for study.

The Lake Ontario Regional Library System had endorsed an $8,000 grant for a one-year period to facilitate the purchase of books and furniture. A provincial grant of 40 cents per capita or $12,000 was also provided. A provincial establishment grant of $4,000 had been offered, however. It had been expected that the county system could be established by Jan. 1, 1971, with the approval of eight municipalities.

Donald Thompson, Picton deputy reeve, commented on the county's decision remarking, "I wish to assure you that Picton is not trying to sabotage. The books will be here in our library for the country people to read."

IN MEMORIAM

CHAPMAN — In memory of our dear mother who passed away September 26th, 1967.
O honey house we once enjoyed,
Where mother's love was ever found,
Her smile, her laugh, her kindly word,
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by daughters Audrey and son-in-law, Velma, Nina and son-in-law, Ken.

ANDREWS — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Matilda Andrews, who passed away September 26th, 1965.
Sweet memories are all we have,
Of a mother kind and true,
A gentle heart and faithful friend,
Her like we never knew.
Lovingly remembered by Ruth and Gib.

ABBOTT — In loving memory of a dear father, Marguerite Jeath, who passed away September 26th, 1965.
Dear father, you left us suddenly,
Just as you had planned,
To go to rest and be with God,
Where you will understand.
Sadly missed and always remembered by her family.

BICKLEY — In loving memory of Mrs. Gertrude Bickley, who passed away September 26th, 1962.
Gone but not forgotten.
Ada and Ed.

One who was better God never made.
A wonderful mother to loyal and true.
One in a million — mother was you.
Sadly missed by daughter Ruth, husband Ernest and friends.
Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Mrs. Bickley's sister-in-law Hannah, granddaughter Ruth and great-grandchildren Paul and Calvin.

Employment Committee Behind Work-train Scheme for Youth

Belleville's Golden Girls took to the greens at Bay of Quinte Country Club for fourth annual tournament this morning. Part of the fun is eccentric dress — as demonstrated by (from left) Fran Bannon, Hedie Dyble, Ana Ryan and Joy Bowerman.

The Belleville and District Employment Committee will ask Ontario's Minister of Social Services John Yaremko to set up a pilot program in this area to assist young out-of-work local people into gainful employment.

The project would be aimed primarily at young people with no job experience who don't want to return to school and who don't qualify for job retraining because they have no work records.

Local manpower and welfare officials have been urging such a program to senior governments for the past two years but only recently has the necessary provincial-federal agreement been signed to make the program possible.

Quinte riding MPP Dr. Richard Potter said that the program to extend further than providing assistance to out-of-work young people and would like to see assistance provided also to adults who may have lost work habits through chronic unemployment.

The first pilot project for the new assistance program is contemplated for the Toronto area, but local officials have legislated the idea they feel the local area should also get in on the ground floor.

The agreement under the Canada Assistance Plan would encourage municipalities and industries to set up work projects with unemployed men to work at the projects and at the same time attend classes to learn work disciplines.

The federal government would have to approve each project and then, through the Canada Assistance Plan would pay half the cost to involved municipalities. Private industry would also receive financial help to implement work projects.

Officials feel the plan could encourage hard core unemployed back to work , could help unemployed workers not being trained in other fields and people who either can't or won't work.

The scheme would allow men to remain on welfare and would also provide "incentive" payments as they learn and work.

Local manpower office manager H. W. Karn said that under the provincial - federal agreement the department would have nothing to do with the scheme except to administer the Canada Assistance Fund.

Work programs would have to originate with the local community, in co - operation with the welfare department, he said.

Committee chairman Reginald Tucker said that despite the fact Dr. Potter was anxious to get the scheme under way here, he did not feel it was somewhat the committee should rush into.

He suggested that a concrete proposal should be decided upon before Mr. Yaremko was approached.

However the committee approved a recommendation from Mr. Karn and Belleville Alderman A. E. Orr, calling for a letter to be written to Mr. Yaremko advising him that Belleville is interested in getting the program going in this area.

Four Tibetan Families Coming to Quinte Area

Four Tibetan families comprising a total of up to 30 people will arrive in the Quinte area some time in November to take up new lives.

The Belleville arrivals - to be are part of a contingent of 240 Tibetan families coming to Canada after fleeing their homeland a few years ago in the face of Communist invasion.

Ex OPP Constable To Hospital

BRIGHTON (Staff) — A former provincial police constable will go to the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, for a 30-day period of observation.

Decision was made in provincial court here Wednesday that Glenn Doyle, 35, should be detained in custody at the hospital to determine whether he is fit to stand trial.

Mr. Doyle faces three charges — robbery, pointing a firearm, and forcible custody following out of a holdup at the 1867 restaurant on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway east of here and the subsequent hijacking of a transport.

Since they fled their country the Tibetans have been living in refugee camps in Northern India but are now being offered new homes through a world-wide refugee program. In all, about 50,000 Tibetans were involved in the exodus from their mountainous homeland.

Sixty of the families will be placed in Ontario with the same number being destined for Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia.

Canada Manpower office manager H. W. Karn told the Belleville and District Employment Committee Wednesday that his office would be responsible for meeting the four families in Toronto and finding accommodation for them in Belleville or the immediate area.

The four Tibetan family heads will go immediately to work at the Bata Shoe Company plant, while the other family members will attend manpower retraining classes to study basic English and train for jobs.

The arrival of the Tibetans will bring to 28 the number of ethnic groups who have come to the Quinte area in the past two years.

Mr. Karn said that the four family heads had worked at Bata shoe plants in India or had been trained in shoemaking.

Other than that nothing was known of the four families except even how many people were involved.

"There will be communication problems; they will have to be shown how to do simple things like shopping at the supermarket," Mr. Karn said.

However, no great difficulties were anticipated as already his department had listed up several persons who have offered to act as interpreters.

Tweed Trustee Transfers His Children

be read into the minutes of the board.

Informed this morning that no action had been taken on the letter, Mr. Lesage told The Intelligencer that he would now have to consider immediate resignation.

In his letter, Mr. Lesage gave the withdrawal of his children from the Tweed separate school as his reason for requesting replacement.

"If I remained a member of Mr. board it would mean that almost half the trustees would not have children in the public," he wrote. "As far as I am personally concerned, this is much too high a proportion. I would like you to believe that neither spite nor bitterness was the reason for withdrawing my children from St. Carthagh's and enroling them in S. H. Connor School. Being realistic, the inequality gap between the facilities, programs, etc. of the two schools is just too great and the decision simply is in the best interest of my children."

He added, however, that he was motivated in the interest of separate school education from a provincial viewpoint, and "I believe the board, in the interest of separate school education from a broad point of view, has made a serious error in judgement".

Mr. Lesage this summer led the fight to retain the former Tweed - Hungerford high school in the possession of the separate school board.

It purchased the school from the public system and owned it for six weeks before reselling to the public board. A letter from Dr. J. R. McCarthy indicating department of education disfavor of the original sale and probable withholding of purchase grants was credited by some trustees for the action of the two boards in negotiating the resale.

At the public meeting of separate school supporters in Tweed last August, Mr. Lesage and trustee Paul Wall urged that the department's intervention after completion of the original sale was a blow to separate school education in the province. They argued that the department is opposed to extension of the separate school system, and particularly to separate school boards offering Grades 9 and 10.

The first two years of secondary school had been planned for the Tweed school had the separate school board retained the building.

Mr. Lesage warned that many parents would withdraw their children from the separate school system if the board did not retain the former high school.

He said grants could not be obtained to include shops, science and home economics rooms at a proposed addition to St. Carthagh's, thus depriving Catholic children of advantages offered to public school children.

This morning, Mr. Lesage said the principal of S. H. Conpor public school in Tweed discouraged separate school ratepayers from enrolling their children in the public school because of overcrowding. The school is now operating near capacity, however, enrolment cannot be refused to public school supporters.

Mr. and Mrs. Lesage changed their tax support from the separate to the public school system to permit enrolment of their four children. The tax levy on Mr. Lesage's business in the village continues to be dedicated to the separate system.

A spokesman for the Hastings county board of education said this morning that 13 children from four families had been transferred from St. Carthagh's to S. H. Connor public school in Tweed.

He added that 24 children had picked up registration forms for transfer, but only the 13 had actually enrolled following their parents' switching of tax levies from the separate to the public school system.

A public school supporter can act as a trustee on a separate school board. Provincial legislation specifies that a separate school trustee only need be a Canadian citizen and 21 years old to qualify for election.

Feasibility Investigation Is Ordered

TORONTO (Staff) — Mayor J. Russell Scott, chairman of the pollution control committee, association of mayors and reeves of Ontario, announced today that an investigation would be instigated to reveal the feasibility of passing backwash from treated lake water through sewage treatment plants.

The Mayor explained that in this way, the effluent from the lakes would not be pumped back into the water, but would be accumulated with sewage effluent and used for commercial fertilizer.

"This accumulation is a very marketable product," accounted Dr. Scott.

R. J. Collins, chairman of the OWRC, has ordered that the investigation be undertaken.

City's Progress

Belleville's continued growth is everywhere in evidence these days. Work on the new arena, providing another much-needed ice surface, is expected to commence shortly and the site in readiness for construction of the new shopping plaza on North Front Street.

There is the Four Seasons Hotel, with construction well advanced, adding not only to the city's tourist and business accommodation but including also a training complex for Bell Telephone. Bell also has an extension going up on Church Street behind the present exchange.

A new apartment block on Bridge Street West near Highland Avenue is an attractive new addition to accommodation in the city. It blends well into the skyline and the lights in the various units at night are an indication that renting is going well.

Meanwhile City Council has approved two bylaws which could pave the way for construction of another major apartment complex in the east end.

The low cost housing project in the north end is yet another sign of progress in the provision of necessary accommodation. So too is the additional rental complex for senior citizens on Turnbull Street.

Across the bay one sees evidence of housing growth which, perhaps five or ten years from now could see the area transformed as Belleville radiates outwards. New home construction is under way all around and this reflects confidence in the area's future. A number of new restaurants have also been establish...

In the city itself communications will be greatly improved with the scheduled November opening of the Dundas Street bridge and two lanes of traffic up the Devil's Elbow. Not only will traffic movement be facilitated by this development but air pollution from car exhaust, now concentrated on Front Street and on the existing bridges at rush hour, will be diminished considerably.

One further development that is particularly encouraging from a traffic standpoint is the prospect of an electronic traffic control system to synchronize lights at the city's intersections. The present system is far from satisfactory and synchronization could effect a big improvement.

It is certainly a different Belleville which citizens are now contemplating. Five years ago or less than two years no such immediate prospects of development as are now evident. It is all very heartening.

Tourism Year Round

Tourism in Ontario is going to be boosted as an all-year round business, according to Tourism and Information Minister James Auld.

Mr. Auld lives in Brockville when he is not engaged in ministerial business. His home is a handsome structure amid trees overlooking the River View of the St. Lawrence — which it is his business in part to project in advertising of the province.

His overall domain though is much larger, some 400,000 square miles of tourist country. He has told the Kingston Ad and Sales Club recently it was no longer enough to limit advertising to summer attractions. "We must broaden our approach and take more advantage of the enormous potential which Ontario can offer all year round."

Consequently this fall the province is putting more than $200,000 into a campaign to support both autumn and winter tourist attractions.

Before long we should be able to expect those indefatigable Americans with skis strapped to their cars. We like to see them in summer too of course — but contrary to what some may think, that is one time they can leave their skis at home.

Tragedy in Jordan

What a tragedy is being enacted in Jordan where thousands of civilians have been killed or wounded. A Swedish cameraman who reached the safety of Beirut in neighboring Lebanon spoke of an orgy of gunfire with troops and guerrillas "shooting at everything." Two soldiers, he said, shot and seriously wounded a woman who was merely putting out her washing, and it was not even curfew time. There had been no water for five days and of the situation generally he said: "It was awful." It takes little imagination to realize the simple truth of his words.

PM's Secret of Eternal Youth

Jet-Setting, at Movies, or with Mother He Is at Home

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There is positively no peril of an all - work- and - no - play life menacing Pierre Elliott Trudeau into emptying even vaguely resembling a dull boy.

The Prime Minister is far too smart — as so many of his predecessors have had — to run the remotest risk of that.

This brightly burnished bachelor PM may be a bit of different things to a lot of different people, but a drudge is not one of them.

The man wisely works an all but computerized five-day week with little if any brooding of the midnight oil and with almost always weekends free.

He has time for work and play so tightly managed he can program one — and, that is what they are, carefully planned projects — those frequent holiday excursions.

Projects because the man realized from the outset that a Prime Minister, to stand up under the pressures, must know how to relax and periodically get away from it all.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King knew the necessity of it and found rest and recreation in those retreats of his private world — on the top floor study, with its crystal ball and those talks with his mother, at Laurier House in Ottawa's Sandy Hill — and deep-buried somewhere in Gatineau Park in the saddle of his Kingsmere estate high in the nearby Gatineau Hills.

Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson had to know, too, but never discovered how it could be done.

So the responsibilities of national leadership wrecked Mr. St. Laurent's health, making an old man of him before his time, drove John Diefenbaker almost to distraction, and were more than Lester Pearson could bear.

Pressure, fatigue and not infrequently exhaustion impaired the judgment of all three men.

If the judgments of Pierre Trudeau are questioned, as the actions of any Prime Minister inevitably must be, it is not a result of flaws caused by going stale from overwork.

To so many he seems to be his world's only prime minister, member of, and participant with the International Jet Set.

That it is that all up, up and away Places of Sun, Fun and the Mediterranean, the Caribbean and the Exotic.

For one of the most fascinating — and to your old Aunt Agatha, most unsettling things about the man is that he is as much of a home-body.

It is not that he just stays home like any habit - hamstrung stick-to-the-mud, but that he so enjoys it he looks and acts like he has never left.

The man blends into the scene and becomes such a part of it you could mistake him, at first casual glance, for that chap down the road block.

Like when he goes to the theatre, if is just as likely to be at Hollywood movie at the Plaza as Verdi opera at the National Arts Centre.

For there he was, not so long ago, in the long Saturday night line-up in the box office waiting to get in to see Steve McQueen in "Bullitt."

And looking like any other Joe in the queue, wearing, if at all, for one long visit to buy tickets whether there is to be another line-up in the lobby.

And who at last at the next table, in Nate's Delicatessen on Rideau street in Ottawa's Lowertown, nibbling contentedly at a smoked - meat - on - rye with a dill? Why sure, it is Pierre Trudeau.

Just everybody goes to Nate's for smoked-meats, including the Prime Minister often looking like he had been pumping gas at Ozzie Kissmerman's service station nearby.

"You know who I just saw inside?" a man asks his wife when he emerges from Rouleau's Pitales Prime, a take-out and specializing in chips, beside the road this side of Alfred on the narrow, at time high-way dangerously winding from Ottawa to the Quebec border on the way to Montreal.

"Who?" she wonders.

"The PM."

"You have to be kidding."

"Okay, just watch," and out comes Pierre, in blue jeans and sweatshirt, wool cap, sunglasses, with a cardboard carton of Roulaus's chips for the girl in the car, and Monday's mail.

The PM spots the other fellow's car, another Mercedes, sports, in a corner.

And so the two men, strangers really but together, fix up the hoods of the two Mercedes and like a couple of car buffs, inspect the power plants.

Just everybody on the way to or from Montreal stops at Roulaus's for chips, the queue at the chips is twice-by — first - time to partially cook, second at super-hot for take-out — including Pierre Trudeau and his girl-of-the-date.

Some weekends he zips down to Montreal to see his Mother — and do not think this does not do things for his image with Aunt Agatha and all of womankind beyond the ages of 20 to the mini-pind.

This PM can be all things to all people, a resourceful, refreshing high-flyer, and a wholesome home-body.

How are you going to match an image or compete with a personality like that?

If you have any ideas, National Headquarters of the Progressive Conservative Party would like to hear them.

Accident Prevention Urged

Quebec Doctor Lays Some Myths About Traffic Toll

By Edward Gruffley in the Winnipeg Free Press

Recently, Dr. Harold Elliott of Como, Que., issued an interim report on traffic deaths and injuries in air conditioned counties of that province. Dr. Elliott was the neurosurgeon-in-chief at the Montreal General Hospital. With his assistants, night after night and day after day, he has worked long hours over broken bodies and smashed in skulls which had been projected through windshields or had been crushed upon the steering posts or dashboards of vehicles involved in traffic accidents.

Like other surgeons in his position, Dr. Elliott soon found it hard to contain his frustration — and soon he was to devote his energies towards "prevention" — feeling that many of the victims had been needlessly and unnecessarily injured or killed.

Like many others, he felt: "If only we could get to the bottom of this thing. Amateur sleuths are a dime a dozen; but, really, why do people get into traffic accidents, and once in them, what kills or injures them?" He shared the view of those who felt by far too few Canadians, namely, Canada's annual road slaughter claiming over 100 victims dead per week for a yearly count of more than 5,500; 250,000 are persistently injured each year, and the direct measurable annual cost to all Canadians is over $1 billion.

Since the automobile is the number - one killer of our youth under 35 — apart from the pain and sadness involved — nobody can count this cost to the nation.

Dr. Elliott's research project involved a network of men throughout the six counties. The key to his operation involved a retired police officer and university students from the faculties of medicine, law, engineering and the social sciences.

As soon as it became known that a car was involved in a death-producing accident, his team descended on scene immediately and as thoroughly as possible. The accident scene and vehicles were photographed, relatively sophisticated and uniform accident forms and reports developed from the Cornell traffic and injury studies were completed, and some students actually rode to the hospital in the ambulance with the victim.

Dr. Elliott would be the first to admit that his studies were only a beginning. The size of his research grant, alone, did not allow for anything more. Yet, already he has investigated over 1,000 producing accidents and already his findings are laying to rest many myths connected with highway and traffic deaths and injuries.

Never has one public health problem of such magnitude been subjected to so little meaningful research effort while so many offer definite opinions, such as: "We can always blame the rut behind the wheel." Obviously driver-error is a big factor, but Dr. Elliott's findings stress what many transport thinkers have known for a long time — that the shocking slaughter is a world - wide problem involving the driver (as agent), the road and surroundings (as the atmosphere), and the vehicle (as the microbe).

If we didn't know it before, a few hours of leaking into Dr. Elliott's reports and findings soon convinces us that only an integrated approach to the problem, involving all three factors, will begin to stem the tide. The anatomy of most fatal or injury-producing accidents bears this out.

A driver is going too fast (driver error). He is suddenly blinded by the sun reflected from glass — producing panic and chrome windshield wipers that shouldn't be there (the vehicle).

He applies the brakes, hits a soft shoulder on the road and smacks into a concrete post built unnecessarily close to the traffic lane (the road and surroundings). But what kills him? After the first impact of the car against the post, the steering column, the bayonet in the front seat, plunges through his chest (again the vehicle). In a matter of a couple of seconds, the driver, the car, and the road and surroundings were involved. Dr. Elliott's studies confirm this. His findings will indicate that, apart from driver-error, road and vehicle construction and road and vehicle repairs are equally major factors. Perhaps we should forget lashing the scapegoat as the tide keeps mounting, but Dr. Elliott has much of the onus and responsibility on the shocking lethargy of government and the shocking indifference of public officials.

Ottawa should step up its research activities by establishing a national accident - prevention research centre to determine scientifically what the real causes of the epidemic are. Ottawa should also step up its role in ordering meaningful engineering safety standards for the manufacturing of vehicles. Ordering safety features to be added to intrinsically unsafe vehicles constitutes cynicism of the highest order.

As a surgeon, Dr. Elliott has a lot to say about the role of the community hospitals in relation to accidents. With ambulances, he feels their role has been later which killed 22 persons.

1956—The external affairs department announced it had requested the withdrawal of G. F. Popov, second secretary of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, for attempting to bribe an RCAF civilian employee for information on Canada's new CF-105 jet interceptor.

1923—Ross Thatcher, who four years earlier had resigned from the CCF was elected leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal Party.

Hospital Incident

Newcomer's Cough Gets Brush-off in Emergency

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

My wife and I moved here a short time ago, after having visited and found friendliness and warmth from almost everyone. Yesterday evening, therefore, proved a little disappointing.

The last four days she first have been subject to a rather severe cold, the nature of fact it got so bad that the mere act of coughing caused quite intense muscular pain. She had just started a new job three days previous, I was somewhat concerned that she should take off to nurse the cold or to visit a doctor. Last night however, about 8.45, we were persuaded I go to the hospital where a doctor could give me a prescription. A friend of my wife, accepted by and endorsed this suggestion so we proceeded to the hospital.

The reception in the hospital was courteous, the usual red tape and cool professional approach, but that was to be expected. After waiting a short time, which was in itself surprising, a young lady directed us to the proper place.

"What's the idea of coming in here to emergency with a cough?" demanded the doctor. "Don't you know I have better things to do with my time than care for your cough? Why don't you get a family doctor?" I don't know exactly what I said but it was something like "Hmm, well, eh." He continued in this fashion while preparing his gear repeating himself continually. He finally handed me a paper and a word in edgewise. Eventually I got quite angry and told him what to do with his examination and medicine, and left.

The purpose for writing is twofold: first to express my regret that a doctor, who should be the first to understand the pain and discomfort of sickness, found it necessary to upbraid me. Secondly, I felt a need to express the frustration of the whole childish farce in writing.

A. WAYNE ATKINSON,

Trenton Police Seek Parity With Metro Toronto Wages

A three - man arbitration board met in magistrates' court, Belleville yesterday to hear out both sides of the contract dispute between the Trenton Police Commission and the town's constabulary.

The meeting was moved from Trenton to accommodate large crowds of observers.

Chairman of the session, Judge J. Clare of Barrie, said that a decision could be expected "soon" but would not give a more definite date for release of the board's findings.

In dispute are 14 items of the contract for the period from January 1, 1970 to January 1, 1971. Only weeks will separate decision of the arbitrators and commencement of negotiations for the 1971 contract.

Central to the dispute are salary arrangements, with the local police association bidding for wage parity with the Metropolitan Toronto force. There, a first class constable receives $10,115 annually, in Trenton $7,020.

Major point of contention in salary level discussion was whether they should be determined by rates in towns of comparable size to Trenton — Midland, Cobourg, Port Hope, Trenton — or, whether they should be in line with Toronto rates.

James Cook of Hamilton, counsel for the police association, argued that constables should have the same basic standard qualifications and duties. He concluded that wage levels should be standardized.

A. J. Clarke, counsel for the police commission, followed the line that duties differ between a town and metropolitan area.

The Trenton Police Commission has offered two increments of six per cent, one effective Jan. 1, 1970, the other July 1, 1970, to settle the dispute. With the second six per cent coming at mid-year, the actual increase is nine per cent or $912 for a first class constable.

Other police demands outlined yesterday included one that would require the town to pay 100 per cent of hospitalization costs for men of the force. Sixty-six per cent is now paid by the municipality.

Trenton police receive no compensation now for overtime. They asked arbitrators yesterday for double-time pay for hours worked in excess of regular eight-hour shifts.

Twelve statutory holidays are also part of the police demand package. Officers now receive 10 days holiday with senior officers having priority as to when they are scheduled.

"One man has not received the holidays in the summer for 12 years," Mr. Cook said, explaining that this was due to the senior-officers-first policy.

"For protection, $5,000 insurance just is not enough," Mr. Cook continued. The municipality pays half the cost of $5,000 policies for each policeman.

Belleville, he said, pays two-thirds toward $15,000 policies for its men; London two-thirds for $20,000 policies.

Other demands made yesterday included a shift differential payment by which officers would receive more pay for working night shifts and a boost in court time pay from $6 per court sitting to four hours pay per sitting.

Hussein

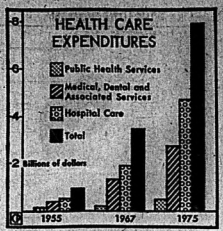
The main force from Syria withdrew across the border, the Israelis said, and was control near Deraa in southern Syria. It left behind 25 damaged or destroyed tanks and a number of armored personnel carriers, they reported.

Arafat appealed to Egyptian President Nasser to intervene personally to settle the Jordan crisis after he had repudiated the peace agreement reached between Hussein and a group of guerrilla leaders.

In a cable to Nasser broadcast by the Voice of Palestine radio, Arafat said the four commando chieftains who made the peace agreement in Amman with the king were not empowered to speak for the guerrilla central committee.



Arafat called on the mediation mission from Cairo under Sudanese President Jaafar Al-Nimeiry to go into Amman to meet the guerrilla central committee and see the true situation for themselves. The committee flew back to Cairo Wednesday night without seeing Arafat, whose whereabouts are unknown.

Shortly after returning to Cairo, Gen. Nimeiry sent a toughly-worded cable to Hussein saying that news of renewed fighting in north Jordan, if true, was a violation of the agreed ceasefire.

Observers in Beirut saw the cable as an indirect accusation that the king was turning his back on the agreement.

Hussein, in a reply to Nimeiry, stressed he had sent strict ceasefire orders to government troops in the Irbid area.

Hussein sent a telegram to the Sudanese President saying he had given ceasefire orders to all units in the area but the guerrilla central committee radio continued to incite guerrillas to fight.

Health Costs Soar

The Economic Council of Canada says in its seventh annual review of the economy that soaring health care costs must be curtailed by improving efficiency. The graph shows how costs have grown since 1955 when $1 billion was spent on health care. In 1967 the figure reached about $3.5 billion and by 1975 the figure is expected to double, reaching almost $8 billion. (CP Newsmap).

Further Study Delays PE Home for the Aged

PICTON (Staff) — Homes for the aged built two years ago could grow out of date in the next two years. This fact was drawn to county council's attention this week by Picton's deputy reeve Donald Thompson, chairman of the county home and welfare committee.

Mr. Thompson, a delegate to a recent convention in Thunder Bay, returned impressed with a wide range of changes being made in homes for senior citizens.

"I've been taking a lot of criticism because I've been dragging my feet but I think I was smart in waiting," said the deputy reeve. He was referring to the delay in plans for a new Prince Edward County home.

Mr. Thompson told council that resident councils formed to offer constructive criticism of county homes will be introduced in the future. Inmates of these homes also are placing requests to choose and buy their own clothing. Many of them are asking for greater privacy than that which is now provided in some of the ward rooms.

Mr. Thompson remarked that some persons feel that alcoholic beverages should be available to county home residents.

There is also objection in some cases to the separation of husbands and wives entering homes for the aged.

It was suggested to council that the cost of a new county home could be raised through a capital reserve fund. Observed South Marysburg reeve Allan Ralley, "I endorse saving up the money for the county home. This seems to be the ideal way to avoid hitting the taxpayer with a debenture."

'Outsiders' Swell PE Welfare Roll

PICTON (Staff) — Welfare cases in Prince Edward county this month top the number reported by the county home and welfare committee last year at this time. Fred Stafford, deputy reeve of Hallowell and a member of the committee reported that most of these cases have moved in from outside the county. "But there's nothing you can do about it," he commented.

County Warden Gordon Lloyd revealed that there are 16 new welfare cases this month, 12 of them "outsiders".

Delays Anticipated In Water Works Job

Completion of the new 3½ million gallon water reservoir in the north - east section of Belleville is not feasible until 1975. Before construction can begin, the city must await the final decision of the Ontario Water Resources Commission concerning the water area.

Improvements will go into effect this winter. However, installation and improvements to existing facilities will not begin until the city receives Ontario Municipal Board approval which must be received prior to establishment of the new water area.

The report on total costs and time involved was received this morning by the Belleville Utilities Commission. The report, by representatives of the Toronto consulting firm of Gore and Storrie Ltd., outlined the improvements recommended by the OWRC at the public hearing held at Centennial Secondary School on May 28.

Requirements for the next five years, before the new water source is provided, will cost a total of $1.25 million.

Mayor J. Russell Scott suggested that local labour might be used on a winter project for first stage measures, if approval is received.

These measures include installation of a new low lift pump, a spare motor for intake pumps, modifications to existing intake screens and filters, and new settled water conduits (channels).

The second and most important stage is the construction of the 2-3 acre ground level reservoir and pumping station together with appropriate trunk pipe mains. Plans are being made to construct the new water storage unit in the northeast section of the city, above the CNR tracks.

Lyle Langabeer, chairman of the BUC, explained that "a great deal of money has to be spent. We have to determine where the trunk mains will go, the only possible route (at this time) being somewhere under the CNR tracks. We have to determine whether to install the lines under the railway yards or further east (past the freight depot)."

Mayor Scott advised that the proposed new bridge in that area might be taken into consideration.

These suggestions were an indication of the planning yet to be completed before improvements can be made.

The improvements to the filters, which will make it possible for the present plant to handle 12 million gallons per day, would not be completed until the summer of 1971. At that same time, Ronald A. Simmons, vice-president and planning engineer for Gore and Storrie, predicted that 6,000 gallons per day might be diverted to Thurlow Township.

The increases to both municipalities would take effect following completion of the new two-acre reservoir.

Mr. Simmons suggested that the city might make the site into a recreational park, following the example of such centres as Toronto. He pointed out that such facilities as tennis courts have been installed, making the reservoirs a two-fold service.

Marmora Unit Receives Standard

Air Squadron 695 in Marmora has become the third Canadian unit to receive its squadron standard from Governor - General Roland Michener.

The Marmora unit was honored recently at CFB Greenwood in Nova Scotia when members of the squadron gathered for a reunion.

A special Boeing 707 flight left Vancouver prior to the gathering and made stops at Edmonton, Winnipeg, Trenton and Ottawa to transport the members to Nova Scotia.

After the standard-receiving ceremonies, members of the squadron were presented to the Governor - General at a reception. Festivities later included a banquet and ball.

Squadron 695 has had 25 years' service as a unit and carries eight battle honors.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Shakespeare Devitalized

A few days ago I attended a performance of "Macbeth" given by a college group. The audience was composed mainly of English students who had been required to write a "paper" on the play the following morning.

The students were there under compulsion. Most of them cared nothing about seeing the play; they looked at some of the high-flown language; and in general, behaved as if this were an irksome chore that couldn't end too soon for them.

Now, it happened to be a poor production. But even a great production would have left them cold — because by this time they have become so conditioned against Shakespeare in school that he is an unenterable bore.

I submit that this is one of the most shameful tragedies of our educational system. Here is the greatest writer of all time, in any language, universally translated and reverenced — and profoundly disliked by the bulk of English-speaking young people.

If this parlous condition persists, it is conceivable that in a few generations, Shakespeare will be read and enjoyed only by a handful of scholars and sensitive people who have somehow managed to resist the punishing process in the schools, with the rest merely paying lip service to his genius.

The teaching of Shakespeare has become thoroughly devitalized and dehumanized — in this most vital and most human of writers. He has become a dry and desiccated lesson in Style, in Plot, in Memorization, in Metaphor, in Construction, in short, in everything but Poetry, which is the sublimest expression of life's experiences.

Shakespeare was poetic, but never prissy, which is what most teachers make him. He was gutty, bawdy, witty, irreverent, rebellious, indecorously frank — as well as deeply spiritual. And the task of teachers is to make him come alive, not to botanize on his grave.

In this task, they have almost unanimously failed; and as I have said before, I would rather not have Shakespeare taught at all than taught the way he is taught by most teachers in most schools. Ignorance is easier to overcome than conditioned indifference.

American Influence NDP Issue

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial council of the Ontario New Democratic Party will try to make American influence in Canada a major political issue with a resolution to be submitted to a party convention next month.

The council governing body of the NDP will meet in convention, will meet the night before the convention is convened Oct. 2 to consider recommendations of a committee which has been studying national independence for almost two years.

It will turn the recommendations into a policy statement to be submitted to the convention the next day.

The council resolution likely will take precedence over several other resolutions on the same topic submitted by party riding associations.

A basket containing 317 resolutions already submitted by ridings was published Wednesday, and another 50 resolutions are expected to be released before the convention opens.

The gathering will elect a new party leader to succeed Donald MacDonald, retiring after 17 years as head of the provincial NDP.

Party secretary John Harney told a news conference Wednesday that about 1,600 voting delegates are expected, with estimates raising the convention attendance to about 2,500.

About 220 delegates representing affiliated trade union locals are expected. It is possible for labor to be represented by 1,000 delegates, but in 1968 only 208 turned up.

Pig Field For STOL Craft Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — The shaky aircraft industry may regain strength by building, with government help, on its proved ability to design and produce short take-off and landing aircraft, the Science Council of Canada said today.

However, the council seems less definite about it than the report of a panel of experts whose study of the Canadian aircraft industry sees such a program leading to improved exports, better transportation and more industrial expansion.

The science council is cautiously optimistic in a foreword to the experts' study about the future for research, design and development of small and medium-sized engines.

It advocates as well that an all-out effort be put into helping manufacturers extend research and marketing activities for electronic and aircraft accessory products linked directly to flight operations.

The study was produced by a group headed by Dr. J. J. Green of Litton System (Canada) Ltd., which designs and makes electronic gear for the air industry.

Big Investment

EDMONTON (CP) — Encouraged by high prospects for finding large volumes of oil and gas in the Canadian North, petroleum companies have committed $15 million toward Arctic pipeline research, a pipeline company official said Wednesday.

Ian Hall, operations manager for Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Co., said Wednesday about $900 million will be spent on oil and gas exploration in the North during the next four years.

FIRE WARNING

VICTORIA (CP) — The man responsible for fire protection in British Columbia forests has warned the West Coast forest industry that 1970 may be a bad year for forest fires. He says fire danger may be high this year because of an abnormally dry winter.

Sonic Booms Unlikely

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — Sonic booms are unlikely next week during a joint training exercise by the North American Air Defence Command and the United States Strategic Air Command, a NORAD spokesman said Wednesday.

The NORAD - SAC exercise Tuesday and Wednesday over the eastern Canadian provinces and eastern U.S. will simulate an attack by bombers.

Maj. John Boulet of Quebec City, public relations officer at NORAD headquarters here, said "We don't go supersonic at all unless absolutely necessary."

Air Veterans to Meet

WINNIPEG (CP) — More than 1,200 Commonwealth air crew veterans of the Second World War will gather here for their highly informal days of reunion and reminiscing. The toast to fallen comrades opens with registration today under the wing of the Winnipeg Wartime Pilots and Observers Association.

Invitations sent out by the association have drawn acceptances from points as distant as Australia and Britain.

From the other side, there will be Lt.-Gen. Adolf Galland of the Luftwaffe, Germany's top ace, had more than 100 "kills" in a career of aerial combat going back to the Spanish civil war.

Here he will meet with the top Commonwealth ace — Air Vice-Marshal J. E. (Johnnie) Johnson of the RAF (32 kills) and Douglas Bader, the famed legless RAF ace.

Bader lost both legs above the knee in an air crash before the war and it took an heroic effort of his part just to get back in the air force and fight.

Shot down over enemy-held territory, he escaped so often that his captors finally took to confiscating his artificial legs every night.

Misfortunes of Others Bring Comfort to West

By JIM REAVES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Aided by the misfortune of other producing countries and changes in government policies, Prairie grain farmers now see the rays of silver among the clouds of gloom which have persisted during the last few months.

There is an air of cautious optimism among producers that the grain trade about recent sales increases which are expected to put about $600 million into the Prairie economy by Christmas.

Two of the world's largest wheat-producing countries, Australia and Argentina, are having crop problems this year.

The European feed grains crop apparently isn't bright and an attack of blight on the United States corn crop is cited as the reason for increased sales of Canadian barley. During the crop year which started Aug. 1, barley sales now are estimated to exceed the previous 122-million-bushel record.

It was announced Saturday producers now will be able to deliver a total of 10 bushels of barley per quota acre. The quota acres are based on the acreage seeded to barley this spring and any eligible acreage a producer seeded to this crop in his application for a permit book. The barley quota previously was five bushels an acre.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said Wednesday grain exports "could be exceptional this year."

He called for co-operation from the grain industry to allow the wheat board to take advantage of all sales opportunities and said that unusually strong advance orders indicate wheat sales as high as 500 million bushels before the end of the crop year next July 31.

Export sales of wheat, oats and barley are expected to reach a record total of 700 million bushels this crop year compared with the previous record of 685 million bushels—595 million of it wheat—set in 1963-64. Last year Canada exported a total of 474 million bushels of all grains.

"This will give Prairie farmers a new lease on life and start the western economy rolling again," said Jack McCloy of the National Farmers' Union, Saskatoon.

Bill Winslow of Winnipeg, general manager of United Grain Growers, said Canadian feed grains started to attract interest before July because of Europe's poor crop prospects.

This was followed by U.S. agriculture department reports that blight would reduce the corn crop by six per cent—"a figure we think is underplayed."

The corn problem gave Canada "access to the feed grains market that would have taken years to effect if we'd had to fight our way in."

"We should be able to retain this market if given continuity of supply at competitive prices," Mr. Winslow said.

While the world situation has helped, the grain trade also recognizes that changes in federal policies have allowed the wheat board to sell at more competitive prices and to increase credit arrangements available to countries which want Canada's grain.

Mr. Lang said new policies for guaranteed credit sales and for paying part of the interest have resulted in sales to the United Arab Republic, Brazil, Syria, Peru and the Philippines totalling about 30 million bushels. Added to this are the previous wheat orders from Russia and China.

W. C. Nelson of Avonlea, Sask., president of the Palliser Wheat Growers Association, said the markets were there before, but the wheat board wasn't taking advantage of them.

"It's really encouraging because the wheat board now is doing things in the sales field unheard of before and we are happy because it shows what the board can do when they get top off their belt."

Mr. McCloy said the NFU is convinced that if the government had implemented the new policies earlier, Prairie farmers would not have had such a huge stock of grain on their farms this year.

The board of grain commissioners said wheat exports for the week ended Sept. 18 totalled 8.1 million bushels, 4.4 million more than in the corresponding period last year.

The weekly report also showed a decrease of some three million bushels in Canada's total wheat stocks. The 421.4 million bushels of wheat in stock represented a decrease of 57 million bushels compared with the same week in 1968.

With orders for 400 million bushels of grain to fill between now and Jan. 1, 1971, the wheat board is not only faced with getting farmers to deliver it to the elevators, but also with moving it from the country points to the terminals.

W. C. McNamara of Winnipeg, chief commissioner of the board, says Canada's current shipping program will require the biggest grain movement in the country's history.

"I know many producers are busy with harvesting operations, but to ensure that we can meet our sales commitments, it is extremely urgent that producers respond quickly to the delivery quotas that have been established," he said.

The heavy shipping program involves the carrying capacity of almost 195,000 railway box cars and if the shipping requirements are to be met, grain terminals at Thunder Bay, Ont., the West Coast and Churchill, Man., will have to continue operating at close to their maximum capacity.

Mr. McCloy said the NFU is concerned about the "ambitious" shipping target, "but we have assurances from the wheat board the movement will be realized."

"I don't know when it's worse living with him—in the summer when he plays or in the winter when he can't."

Professor Excluded

TORONTO (CP) — A United States professor, hired by York University here to teach American history, said Wednesday he has been refused landed-immigrant status because his presence has been called "contrary to Canadian national interests."

Dr. Gabriel Kolko said he applied for landed-immigrant status in early May but received a letter from the federal immigration department in July saying his application has been refused.

He filed an appeal six weeks ago but there has been no decision.

John Saywell, dean of arts at York, said Dr. Kolko has been an outspoken opponent of the Vietnam war, but his opposition has been lawful.

Dairy Subsidies Offered

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of agriculture has offered subsidies to small Ontario dairy plants unable to operate profitably during the winter months, enabling them to ship their milk to other plants so they can close for the season.

The subsidy program, beginning Oct. 1, will provide a maximum payment of 25½ cents per hundredweight that will largely cover the cost of transporting the milk between plants.

Meanwhile, new quotas for Ontario milk producers originally planned for Oct. 1, will not go into effect until Dec. 1, the Ontario Milk Marketing Board has announced.

Housewives Warned to Watch for Unlicensed Salesmen

SASKATOON (CP) — Door-to-door salesmen used to be an important part of the daily routine of the average homemaker.

The milk man, bread man, vegetable man and fresh fish man all made their daily or weekly visits. And other vendors called regularly to offer a variety of items at the door: cosmetics, bedding supplies, handicrafts, appliances, magazines, brushes, spices and hearing aids.

Now, a woman is more likely to be pounding a typewriter in a downtown office when her doorbell rings. Consequently the number of neighborhood vendors has decreased.

But there are still a good number, and in Saskatchewan the government has issued a pamphlet warning citizens to investigate before they buy.

"Watch for the unlicensed salesman," it says. "He may be a fly-by-nighter. Here today, gone tomorrow—with your money."

Licences for direct selling are issued in Regina. The fee, which varies from $5 to $150, depends on the number of salesmen hired by the vending company.

Companies also must bond the salespeople.

Licences must be endorsed by the municipality. But R. H. Knapp, assistant city licence inspector, says the endorsement only indicates that the salesperson has paid an additional municipal fee. It does not represent an endorsement of the person, product or service.

Mr. Knapp urges citizens to ask to see the licence of every salesperson, and to report those who have none.

The provincial government pamphlet also outlines the rights of a citizen who buys from a direct seller, then changes his mind.

"You may, within four days, cancel a deal by sending a registered letter of cancellation to the vendor. You may, within one year, cancel the deal if the salesman was not licensed or the goods or services were not supplied within 120 days."

But it warns: "Keep your deposit small; refuse to pay for goods or services in advance."

Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Ross Mark 55 Years of Married Life

Finance companies and credit bureau organizations would have little business if all people were like Mr. and Mrs. Dorland Ross, 4th concession of Thurlow township.

Observing the 55th anniversary of their marriage Tuesday the Thurlow couple expressed zero interest in the popular modern day method of financing everything from household appliances to holiday trips to all parts of the world.

"I never, never bought anything unless I paid for it," the 'bridegroom' of more than half a century said.

That doesn't mean the couple deny themselves the advantages of modern day conveniences.

A television graces their living room although Mrs. Ross says she couldn't be bothered watching and her husband's opinion of many of the programs rates low.

There is a big deep freeze in the back kitchen and Mr. Ross has operated a tractor on his 75 - acre farm for many years.

But he kept horses much longer than his neighbors and gave up driving them into the city-only when there were no longer any stables to tie them.

The couple are natives of the 4th concession area, the Ross farm having been homesteaded by Mr. Ross' great grandfather, Mrs. Ross, the former Blanche Conley lived four miles "down the road."

Regular church goers, the couple were married at the nearby Methodist parsonage. Since their own church was closed the couple attend services at St. Mark's United Church at Cannifton.

"Everybody should take time to go to church," is Mrs. Ross' observation.

But a flock of about 200 hens is looked after and the couple have a regular weekly egg delivery route with customers at Cannifton and Belleville.

"It gives us something to do," says Mrs. Ross.

The couple have but one daughter, Mrs. Herb (Hilda) Patterson of Ham's n. There are two grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

The couple shy away from publicity and had no thought of a celebration on their anniversary.

But they reckoned without their neighbors and last night neighborhood friends called to extend best wishes and congratulations.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD MILLAR

Millar – Loney

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of the Sept. 12 wedding of Connie Jane Loney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Loney of Belleville and of Richard Duane Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller of RR 3 Belleville. Rev. William Lamb conducted the ceremony while Mrs. Barkley at the organ and Robert Noyes, soloist provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was attired in a floor - length gown of white peau de soie featuring a long cathedral train gathered at the waist which was accented with a large bow. The long bouffant sleeves and stand - up collar were accented with daisies which also covered the entire bodice and skirt of the gown. Her french illusion veil was caught up by a band of small white flowers and she carried a bouquet of orange and yellow roses.

Both the maid of honor Miss Sally McFree and the matron of honor Mrs. Richard Brampton the bride's sister, wore dresses of tangerine crepe chiffon over taffeta. The long, sheer bouffant sleeves, empire waists and stand - up collars were accented with orange velvet ribbon interlocking bands of orange and yellow daisies and green leaves. They carried bouquets of autumn flowers. Dressed identically to the maid and matron of honor were the bridesmaids Miss Deborah Wood, the bride's cousin and Miss Wendy Miller, the bridegroom's sister. The costume of the flower girl Miss Karen Millar, the bridegroom's sister was similar to that of the other attendants.

The best man was Larry Millar, brother of the bridegroom. Richard Brampton brother-in-law of the bride and Dave Millar, the bridegroom's cousin were the ushers.

At the reception held in the Tabernacle United Church, the bride's mother greeted the guests, wearing a princess line silk worsted dress of antique gold. She wore a corsage of rust carnations. Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a two-piece ensemble of sake french lace in french blue. She also wore a corsage of pink carnations.

For the honeymoon trip to points north, the bride left in a green plaid coat-type jumper with a long-sleeved mock green chiffon blouse. Dark brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses completed her ensemble. Upon return, the newlyweds will reside in Belleville.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Richard Millar (nee Connie Loney) was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brian McFree of Queen Street. Miss Sally McFree and Mrs. M. McFree were the hostesses. The wedding party was honored at a small buffet lunch after rehearsal by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Millar, the parents of the bridegroom-to-be.

• • •

Before her recent marriage in Ottawa, Mrs. Thomas Campbell (nee Elizabeth Millar) was entertained by Mrs. Amelia Campbell of Marmore, at miscellaneous showers given by the staff of St. Mary's School at Brockville, and at two showers at Marlborn, N.Y. given by friends.

• • •

Mr. Jack Mason, Crystal Hotel, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rollins, 15 Second Street, Belleville will be "At Home" to friends and relatives on Saturday September 26 from 7 to 10 p.m., on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Physiotherapy Topic at Hospital Auxiliary Meeting

Tom Wright, who has been a regular volunteer at the Belleville General Hospital for 15 years, was the guest speaker at the opening fall meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, introduced to the meeting by Mrs. J. H. Fleming. He mentioned learned that Mr. Wright had trained in London, England and also served as a physiotherapist in Trenton and Kingston.

Mr. Wright explained that it is important to understand that physiotherapy is the treatment of disease through physical means, apart from surgery and medicine. The cooperation of the patient is essential.

Heat, which is possibly the simplest means of treatment, may be applied in several ways for example: heat lamp, hot water bottle, hot packs or wax. In the wax treatment, the oil in the paraffin wax softens the skin which is particularly effective for arthritic pains. Heat is also used in superficial conditions, however, for deep pain short wave diathermy may be used which causes the body to heat itself.

When joints are stiff, a quick way to mobilize a patient is through the use of whirlpool baths where the temperature of the water may be between 100 and 110 degrees. The effectiveness of whirlpool baths is that they promote circulation which then gives relaxation, while the moving water produces a percussive effect on the skin.

Mr. Wright expressed pride in the fact that the Belleville General Hospital has a Hubbard tank. These are not too plentiful in hospitals. A bedridden patient may be lowered into this tank, thus receiving treatment and relief from pain. Another type of local treatment is through cold therapy using ice packs.

Traction is used as the result of car accidents. Often a person suffers a whiplash, where the muscles tighten and contract. Intermittent traction aids in their treatment. If patient has deep scar tissue or deep, fibrous tissue, ultrasound may be applied which sets up a shaking effect on the tissue.

Since the advent of new drugs, ultra violet light is used to a lesser degree at the present time. Mr. Wright stressed that the most important part of physiotherapy is exercise. A patient has to be shown the correct movement with assistant exercises and the confidence of the patient is essential.

Physiotherapy facilities have progressed greatly over the years and this department in the Belleville General Hospital is the best equipped of any in the province, the making of the future, Mr. Wright visualized not just physiotherapy department, but a rehabilitation centre. In this way the treatment may be taken out of the hospital to the patient. The cooperation of the patient and relatives is required in this type of home care service.

In expressing thanks to the speaker, Mrs. W. H. Fiddle also thanked the years many people require treatment by the physiotherapy department and it is gratifying to know how fortunate we are to have such a well equipped and efficient department.

Mrs. B. E. Burley, president, issued a warm welcome to all members and particularly congratulated those volunteers who carried on their work in the hospital during the summer. The director of volunteer services, Mrs. S. B. Mercer, progress to date had prevailed. Although there are already new volunteers working in the hospital, more are needed, especially in the paediatric playroom. Another shortage is for drivers to take patients for physiotherapy treatments, while volunteers are required for flower cart. Mrs. R. S. Knight has consented to supervise Cradle Pictures. Many compliments were received by the junior volunteers who worked so faithfully during the summer. Their trim appearance encouraged the patients and the atmosphere of the hospital.

Mrs. Burley extended congratulations to the third vice-president, Mrs. C. D. Ashley, also the husband of corresponding secretary, Colonel A. B. Duffy, for the forthcoming awards which they will be receiving in recognition of their work in the St. John Ambulance Corps. Mrs. Ashley will be created a Commander of the Order of St. John and Colonel Duffy a Serving Brother of the Order.

During Mrs. F. A. Beeby's absence, Mrs. R. D. Bowles will be reporting for the Opportunity Shop to the executive and general meeting. The Shop has re-opened with outstanding success. Cakes for the first three days of operation were $535. More volunteers are needed both as juniors and seniors.

Mrs. N. K. Manning, bulletin editor, and her committee deserve a great deal of praise for the line they spend preparing and typing out the monthly bulletins. A total of 343 were processed for the September meeting, stated Mrs. Manning.

It was announced by the president that Mrs. F. A. Beeby is to be the recipient of a provincial life membership at the annual Hospital Auxiliaries' convention to be held in Toronto in October. It is the first one to be presented to a Belleville General Hospital Women's Auxiliary member. As Mrs. Beeby will be in India, the membership will be kept for her until her return.

QUEENSBORO WI

Mrs. Arthur Holmes demonstrated cake decorating at the September meeting of the Queensboro WI held in the WI hall on Sept. 8, with Mrs. William Lyon as hostess and Mrs. C. A. McMurray presiding.

The roll call "Hints on good shopping" received many interesting answers. It was decided to send Mrs. John Thompson and Mrs. Harold Tubley to the senior training school for leaders for the project "Comments" to be held on September 29 and 30. Members decided to take a display of salt and pepper shakers to the Madoc fair. An invitation to attend the September meeting of the Cooper WI was accepted.

Mrs. William Cassidy was the co-speaker for the evening. The motto "practise safety - it pays big" was used by Miss Hazel Thompson who conducted a quiz on road signs and dangers in the home.

Lunch was served to the 16 members and one visitor present by the hostess Mrs. McMurray and her assistants. The next meeting will be in the WI hall with Mrs. Roy Rollins as hostess.

WALLBRIDGE WI

WALLBRIDGE — A number of reports were given when Wallbridge Women's Institute held its first meeting of the fall season at the home of Mrs. Ray Shorey.

Following the regular opening procedures by the president Mrs. Everett Phillips, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Don Shorey after which the president expressed thanks to all those who had helped at the recent Exhibition. A letter was also read regarding the senior training school to be held in Stirling Sept. 29-30. Leaders at this time will be Mrs. R. Shorey and the president.

An invitation was read in regard to the annual banquet to be held at the Hastings Manor also one from the Mental Health Association, and one from the CNIB. Canvassers were appointed and included Peggy Evans, Nelia Ketchen, Sonia Spencer, Louise Sine, Violet Demorest, Marguerite Tucker and Marie Gardiner. Mrs. Helen Johnston reported on Federated News. Mrs. Anna Spencer was delegated as representative to the Hastings County Museum, to which $5 was donated.

For the program Mrs. Reta Chisholm dealt with a topic on historical research. A film was shown on "Turn of the Century" which was a presentation of Canada's yesteryears.

Lunch was served at the close.

Minidress Can Be Used Many Ways

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: My thanks to all your fans for the birthday cards which keep coming — so lovely! One day I handed out a handful to some prospective customers and in a few days they returned what was left, having purchased Rs 125 worth. That is a full salary for some whole families here — about $18 — per month.

Do you know the latest in my mind to help such people? This — What will all your readers do with the minidresses now that the style is changing so long again? Many girls wear the Panjabi outfit to school here — a tunic to the knees or so, a kind of tight-fitting ankle-length pants and a 3 to 4 m all scarf over their shoulders.

So those minidresses would make very nice tunics for them. Please remind folk when sending a good big parcel of them to put just a fe w or so value so we won't have to pay customs. Mark "Used clothing for relief." If discarded sweaters got included in the parcel that is all to the good.

— Frances Stevenson, Christian Compound, 14 Old Sehore Road, Indore, M.P., India.

Dear Frances: Good idea. Canadian readers will be delighted that their minidresses can still do somebody good.

* * *

Dear Doris: Please send me your leaflet, "Why Suffer In Silence?"

I have yet to establish some kind of communication with my husband and we have been married for eight years. I have tried just about every approach possible but none has been effective. From sex to discipline of the children we have never communicated. Dumb — Or What?

Dear Dumb: It's just as bad as not having the gift of speech when you can't get anything across to your life mate. But this time dumb doesn't mean stupid.

We go into marriage expecting perfection, so that any complaint would suggest failure. Marriage partners need to learn that they cannot possibly see eye to eye all the time; and they need to listen hard — when their favorite person tires to explain herself; no feelings hurt!

I've seen the mildest of husbands become really talkative with time, patience, and a wife who not only talks at him but draws him out about the things that are on his mind. Perhaps "Why Suffer In Silence?" will help.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid James Doyle, Fairview Crescent, Trenton, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter Mary Susan, to Daniel Joseph Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Murphy, Marmora. The wedding will take place in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, Trenton, on Saturday, October 10, at 3 p.m.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS W. WILCOX

Wilcox – Brown

The wedding ceremony was performed in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling when Norma Florence Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brown of Stirling was united in marriage to Thomas Willms Wilcox Jr., Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilcox of Willowtree. Rev. A. L. Sutherland officiated and wedding music was rendered by John DeVries.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white peau de soie fashioned in princess style with high stand away collar heavily beaded with seed pearls and crystals. Long fitted sleeves were also adorned at the cuffs with matching beading. An attached cathedral train extended from the shoulders and a floor-length veil was caught to a floral headdress. She carried a bouquet consisting of two golden orchids encircled with Talisman roses.

Mrs. Donna Brockman as matron of honor wore a long gown of nile green over taffeta in empire style with puffed sleeves. The waistline was accented with coral and green silk braid. She wore yellow baby 'mums in her hair and carried a basket of Talisman roses, yellow and gold 'mums intermingled with golden wheat. The bridesmaids Miss Barbara Short and Mrs. Grace Holmes were attired identically to the matron of honor.

A reception was held in the church hall where the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a petal pink dress with matching lace coat, navy accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations and pale pink roses. Assisting the bridegroom's mother were a deeper shade of pink coat and dress ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations and dark pink roses.

Leaving on a wedding trip to the Eastern United States, the bride wore a pink crepe pantsuit with grey accessories and a corsage of white and pink carnations. On return the couple will reside in Scarborough.

Hot Ice Cream Sauces Add to Tasty Desserts

By MARY MOORE

While I have a built-in sundae-eating eager assistant against I am testing ice cream sauces. (As you know by now Marianne's family is stopping over here for a few days en route to Kingston from Kansas).

By coincidence a letter arrived asking for a recipe for a butterscotch parfait.

It is a long time since I have given you recipes for these hot ice cream sauces so I hope I am pleasing quite a few readers with news that handy by gallon of ice cream in their freezers.

HOT FUDGE SAUCE
(Serves 6)

1 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 sq. chocolate
1-3 cup hot water
1 cup granulated sugar
2 tbsps. corn syrup
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. vanilla
In a heavy pot combine butter or margarine, cocoa, hot water, sugar, corn syrup and salt. Stir over med. heat until dissolved, taking down sugar on sides with damp cloth. Simmer 5 min., remove from heat, stir in vanilla. Serve hot or warm over ice cream, plain cottage pudding or plain blanc mange or junket.

BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE
(Serves 6)

1 cup light brown sugar
¼ cup milk
2 tbsps. corn syrup
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
Combine all ingredients in heavy saucepan. Bring to gentle boil and boil 2½ to 3 min. Remove from heat and pour into pitcher to serve warm over ice cream or to make BUTTERSCOTCH PARFAIT. In bottom of parfait glasses layer a small scoop of best quality vanilla ice cream. Cover with 1½ tbsp. Butterscotch Sauce (above). Repeat both. Top with puff of whipped cream and top that with 4 large whole pecan.

Ann Landers
Oriental Boy Uncertain of Himself

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It must be great to be either black or white. At least you know what you are. I am an Oriental. The average Negro or Caucasian has no idea of the problems and anxieties suffered by people of the so-called yellow race.

Most blacks think of the Oriental as white. But whites people do not consider us their equal. While we have never been pushed to the back of the bus, this another minority race, we have been discriminated against in other ways. The whole color thing in the United States is completely illogical since some Indians have darker skin than many Negroes, but as long as they wear native costumes or have aquiline features they can get in anywhere.

I am an Oriental boy who moved to a new state and I would like to date a Caucasian girl. Shall I try? I know the racial barriers are breaking down, but I do not wish to offend anyone. Please advise. — UNCERTAIN.

* * *

DEAR UNCERTAIN: The best way to find out is to ask her. It may be that the girl would like very much to go out with you. But if she says no, don't assume the reason you were turned down is because she is prejudiced against Orientals. One of my favorite stories is the one about the fellow who didn't get the J-ob on a re-sale announcer because he was J-J-J-awful.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: So many parents are concerned about drug abuse these days, and they have a right to be. You can do them a favor by telling them know they can get help by calling their County Mental Health Department.

Most county hospitals have detoxification clinics where patients are physically taken off drugs. If your particular county hospital does NOT have such facilities they can give you the name and number of a place that does. The county hospital can also put callers in touch with organizations that help addicts get free treatment and follow-up counseling. These organizations have staff members trained in first aid and telephone answering. The county pays for this help and there are also volunteers (ex-addicts usually) who donate their time. Through these organizations, addicts can be cured without getting a police record or publicity. They also have a 24-hour crisis phone service. If an addict becomes dangerously ill someone will come for him. If a staff member sees that medical help is needed, a physician will be called immediately.

So many people need help these days and they don't know where to go or who to call. Please tell them. — A STOCKTON, CALIF. MOTHER AND VOLUNTEER.

* * *

DEAR MOTHER: This office checked your suggestion by calling 12 county hospitals in 12 different states. They ALL had free facilities for drug addicts, including Cook County in Illinois, which was a pleasant surprise. I endorse your suggestion and thank you for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Am I becoming crotchety in my old age? I'm only 32 yet I become increasingly irritated by my fellow workers. I am employed in an office — 12 desks in one large room. I'm on an aisle. Several times a day some passerby drops a paper clip down my dress, jabs my arms with a pencil, lifts a loose hairpin from my head and hands it to me. Just this minute a kid younger than my son pulled my ear. Should I tell everybody "Hands off!" — MRS. GRR-RR.

* * *

DEAR MRS.: No. The petty annoyances are in reality expressions of affection. The time to be corrected is when people pass your desk and ignore you.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jimmy, you know Mrs. Taylor doesn't want you to cut across her lawn."

Jimmy: "It's O.K. The Taylors are out of town, so she won't see me."

Mother: "We don't trespass on other people's property even if they don't know about it. You walk on the sidewalk so you won't trample the Taylor's grass."

Integrity consists of doing what is right even though no one may know about a transgression. Parents should emphasize the need for integrity consistently and constantly.

WEDDING

CAMPBELL — MILLOY

MARMORA — St. Mary's Church, Marmora, was the scene of the recent wedding of Miss Elizabeth Milloy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Milloy of Marlboro, N.Y., and Thomas Campbell, son of Mrs. Milton Campbell of Marmora and the late Mr. Campbell. Rev. Father W. F. Healey performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a white floor length, A-line style gown of silk organza. The satin bodice, accented with a sheer neckline and cap sleeves, was embroidered and edged with seed pearls, and the back fell softly into a chapel length train. Her headpiece was a Camelot cap of satin, embroidered with seed pearls, attached to three tiers of elbow veiling in silk illusion. Her bouquet was a nosegay of stephanotis.

Maid of honor was Miss Mary Ann Evans of Selby. Bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Campbell of Cornwall, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Cronin, of Marlboro, N.Y., cousin of the bride. They were identically attired in sleeveless, princess style gowns of faille. Pale pink in hue, piping edged the Renaissance neckline, the waistline, and created a multi-crescent effect over the shirred backs. Their headpieces were cap pillboxes of matching pink satin with court length veiling, and they carried nosegays of pink miniature rosebuds.

Best man was James Cosin of Ottawa, and ushers were Patrick Milloy, of Marlboro, brother of the bride, and Leland Hutt of Ottawa.

At the reception at the Grenadier Ballroom of the Chateau Laurier Hotel, mother of the bride received the guests wearing a pink Mom gown with matching accessories and a flowered hat. Mother of the bridegroom assisted wearing a turquoise floral gown with long full chiffon sleeves and matching accessories.

For their wedding trip to Cape Cod and other Southern points, the bride travelled in a navy bolero dress with white trimming and white accessories. On their return they will reside at 979 Newbridge Avenue, Ottawa.

Collegian Teams Can Only Hold Trojans for One Quarter

By ALAN TEEWORTH

Coach Don Lindsay of the Bonne Madres Trojans has finally found a combination to winning a football game. Score: home points, nothing; this with a usually strong defense, and a few breaks will win a game. This mixture, however, proved costly to the BCI Seniors, as the Trojans ran over their opponents 27 - 0 Wednesday night at the Fairgrounds in opening Bay of Quinte grid action for both schools.

Fullback Tim Yohn started the ball rolling for the Trojans in the first quarter as he fought off tacklers for the first major of the game on a 36 - yard sweep. Kicking specialist Tony Conciatore booted his first of three converts to make the score 7 - 0 for Moira.

Early in the second quarter Mike Scarlett, initiated the only BCI scoring play when he ran back a Conciatore punt 35 yards to the Moira 21. Two plays later after an unsuccessful running play, quarterback Jim Fraser hooked his first of three converts to make the score 7 - 6 for Moira.

The pass for the convert failed when it hit the crossbar, on its way in.

From then on it was Moira's game. Halfback Jim Lennox led the Trojans' end sweep late action once again, running 42 yards to the BCI 18. Two plays later on a third and two situation, Lennox went through the middle over 12 tough yards to score. The convert attempt of Conciatore was wide of the mark, leaving the half with Moira leading 13 - 6.

The BCI offence seemed to add spark to the second half with Moira racking up 16 points, 14 more than their opponents.

The collegiate defence, having apparently found a chink in the Trojans' line on the one - yard line, gave way to the offence who promptly gave the ball back to Moira on a fumble. In the second of the two games and the first of four in the half, Pete Hart intercepted Graham Crabtree on the major which, converted, gave Moira a 20 - 6 combine. The last major score of the game came on Brian Conlin's pitch out to Jim Lennox who, breaking off four defensive corners to a picture-play 47-yard touchdown romp.

Moira coach Lindsay had mixed feelings. "We did not have the blocking of a defense we should have. I was disappointed by so many penalties. However, the defence played extremely well for us, especially the backfield.

He was also happy with the play of quarterback Brian Conlin in his first game in the pivot position. He also praised collegian Mike Scarlett. "He did just about everything for them." This included everything from quarterback to defensive safety, while playing with a broken hand.

Another bright spot for BCI was the defensive line. While not catching Moira for too many losses, they did keep the scores down on occasions, such as holding the Trojans twice from the one and the four-yard line.

Jim Lennox was the big rusher for the Trojans with over 150 yards. Tim Yohn and Pete Hart were next with 88 and 68 yards respectively. Bob Raycroft, with his very aggressive play, looked good for the winners in the defensive backfield.

Excellent defence by the Collegians held the winners in a single touchdown in the first quarter as Peter Stallkwich converted on a six-yard run. John Loder added a two-point conversion.

BCI standout Keith Watson knotted the score with a 20-yard end run and a two-point convert. The Trojans put the game out of reach for all practical purposes as Stallkwich and Dave Rutherford racked off 58-yard scoring runs.

In the second half, the Moira defence dominated BCI, while Stallkwich and Rutherford added their third quarter touchdown runs.

The Belleville Firefighters have only one thing going for them in their new-contracted November 13 exhibition fund-raiser with Montreal's NHL Oldtimers.

Youth!

Facing the local smokies will be one of the most impressive — if grey around the temples and starting to creep even to grace an official game roster.

Try goalie Gerry McNeil and defencemen "Butch" Bouchard and Doug Harvey on for size. The trio stopped enough pucks behind the Montreal Canadiens' blueline to build a rubber Hercult for the Russian army.

And the city firemen's defensive unit will face a forward line attack that would have put NHL goaltenders into cardiac arrest a decade ago.

Their only solace is that age has taken its toll on the legs of Maurice Richard, Dickie Moore, and Elmer Lach.

The trio tickled NHL goal judges' trigger-fingers more than 1,100 times, with "The Rocket," naturally, perpetrating more than his share — 626 to be precise.

Defencemen Dollard St. Laurent and Ken Reardon were far from anonymous in their hockey heydays, and will round out the Oldtimers roster.

Also accompanying the senior Canadiens to Belleville will be Frank Selke, Sr., a Hall-of-Famer in his own right as one of hockey's most dedicated builders.

And as if the parade of past-tense hockey talent wasn't enough to bulge the Memorial Arena, Alvin "Red" Skerry will be along his colorful style and story-telling — as well as his striped shirt.

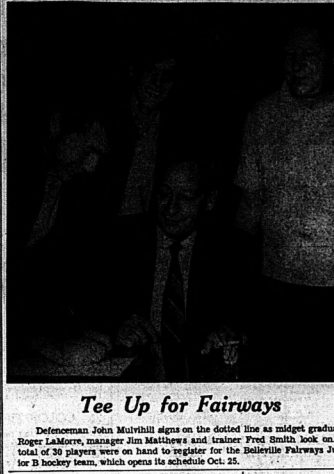
Zany "Red" is as unofficial an official as there ever was.

The loyal local opposition will include such blueline luminaries as Beam-boom Beauchesne, Patrick 'Old Orange' Barrett, and Long-pass Don Putnam.

Unfortunately, as member of the fireman's roster have ever made the bubble-gum card stage in their hockey careers, although Soupy Smith confides he was once run over by a Chiclets truck.

There isn't a Richard in the fireman's starting lineup, although they will have a Maurice, and half a dozen dam sawss at all.

The game, if it proceeds to that stage, will be a double fund-raiser.



The Canadien Oldtimers have a $1,500 asking price which goes into the coffers of the Canadian Crippled Children's Society.

Belleville's firefighters will use their net proceeds to help develop a benefit fund for the many charitable projects they involve themselves in locally. In addition to raising about $2,000 annually for muscular dystrophy research, the firemen also help make Christmas something to look forward to for many in the city who are down on their luck.

A little luck wouldn't hurt the firemen's playing chances any, but they can't really count on that in November, Friday the 13th.

Fairways Get Good Turnout

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

If quality matches the quantity of hockey players turned out for Belleville Fairways registration Wednesday night, the Belleville Junior B's could be running straight towards a play-off position.

A total of 30 junior-age boys attended the short organizational meeting and a number of others are expected to turn out for the training camp. A definite date for the opening of the camp cannot be established until the ice surface of the Belleville Arena is completed, reportedly after the weekend.

Coach Floyd Crawford announced that, "we're going to be scrimmaging the first two days of the camp and we'll also be making some cuts."

Only two returning members of last year's fourth-place team were on hand for the meeting, but eight members of last season's strong midget all - star squad were among the new faces.

Speedy centre Dan Lupenette and top defenseman John Mulvihill will be definite starters in the Belleville lineup this year. Lupenette counted 13 goals and 17 assists in his rookie year, in addition to doing an excellent forechecking job, while Mulvihill's fine line puck-handling brought blueline puck-handling brought points, 14 more than their opponents.

The collegiate defence, having apparently found a chink in the Trojans' line on the one - yard line, gave way to the offence who promptly gave the ball back to Moira on a fumble. In the second of the two games and the first of four in the half, Pete Hart intercepted Graham Crabtree on the major which, converted, gave Moira a 20 - 6 combine. Tee Up for Fairways

Defenceman John Mulvihill signs on the dotted line as midget graduate Roger LaMorre, manager Jim Matthews and trainer Fred Smith look on. A total of 30 players were on hand to register for the Belleville Fairways Junior B hockey team, which opens its schedule Oct. 25.

Colebourne Has Barcovan Knack

Rick Colebourne continued to come out on top in his battles with Bruce Hughes by winning the Barcovan Open, Sunday with a low gross of 153. Colebourne who had previously defeated Faulds by one stroke in the Men's Club Championship came up with a three - stroke edge on the back nine after the pair had both carded 78's on the front.

Pat Brown took the low net honors for the field of 65 golfers, while Terry Jones won the draw for a set of golf clubs. The Barcovan golfing season will wind up with a dinner dance at Brighton Legion Hall, Nov. 21.

Muldoon Some Consolation For City Lacrosse Entry

Belleville's Junior B lacrosse team may not have been the top club in the league, but they at least had the satisfaction of sporting the top player.

Standout goalie Paul Muldoon won the Bob Bland Sports Trophy for the league's Most Valuable Player at the league's recent awards banquet.

Campbellford had a monopoly on the other awards, winning the Don Bell Trophy as league champions, top scorer (Sud Bannon) and the best goaltender (Ted Jowett).

The league, which operated with teams from Picton, Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford, Lyrend and Cobourg is hoping to add Hastings and either Kingston or Middleford Park to the loop next year.

The league's spring organizational meeting is slated for Thursday, March 18 and a referee's clinic is planned for some time in February.

Aces in Town Oct. 3

Belleville's Senior 'A' Mohome-and-home exhibition set with the Aces, with the first game in Belleville Sat. Oct. 3 beginning at 8.30. The Mo-Hawks repay the visit the next night in Kingston.

The Aces, who bowed to Belleville in six games of OHA Senior 'A' quarter-final action last spring after finishing three places higher in the standings, opened training camp Monday night.

Coach Danny McLeod had 39 turnouts for the opening workout, including holdovers Tommy Mercer and Neil Perry in goal, defencemen John Ford and Eddy Long, and forwards John Mercer, Rod Graham, Bob Rawson, Tom Carty, and Tom Smallman.

The Aces have lost the services of key forwards Hugh Harvey and Fred O'Donnell, both of whom have signed pro contracts with the Boston Bruins organization.

The Mo-Hawks are still in drydock pending installation of ice in the Memorial Arena, which could be an accomplished fact by Monday.

East Division Still Three-horse Race

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The topsy-turvy National League East Thursday was in no clearer today after all three contenders saw action Wednesday night.

New York Mets, trailing Philadelphia Phillies 6-3 in the eighth, rallied for a pair of clutch homers when they had defeated in the ninth the previous night, with a two-run homer for a 5-4 victory.

Pittsburgh Pirates were on the short end of a 3-1 score with Montreal Expos when Coco Laboy's first-inning grand slam ran over Bob Moose and Dock Ellis.

Chicago Cubs saw visions of their 1969 collapse when they dropped identical 3-1 decisions in a doubleheader to St. Louis Cardinals.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, San Diego shut out Atlanta 2-0, Cincinnati

DONN CLENDENON
Homer Saves Mets

out Chris Short with a two-run rally in the sixth. Ironically, Clendenon, whose 11th homer won the game two innings later, crippled the early rally by slamming into a base-runner-at-second double play.

Selma, whose expressive post-game tirade the night before resulted in his fine by NL President Chub Feeney and nearly caused a walkout by the four umpires, was more reserved this time.

"I threw a curve ball and it hung," he said, claiming his catch with the umpires had not affected his performance.

Pittsburgh came close but could not quite catch Montreal. Carl Morton, who won his 17th, converted a 3-2 lead into the ninth with a pair of hits by Don Hahn scoring two runs.

Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen sandwiched singles around Richie Hebner's pop up and Laboy's throwing error scored one run and left the Pirates in position for a hit on a hit. But Marshall bore down to get Fagan on a fly ball and Alou on a line drive to end it.

Gibson simply overpowered the Cubs in the first game, scattering just two hits. The big right-hander struck out seven and walked three to run his season record to 18 victories.

In the nightcap, Reuss permitted seven hits including three doubles by Billy Williams but bore down in the clutch, especially the ninth when he got Ron Santo, Jim Hickman and Tommy Davis with the tying

Alston Signs For 18th Dodger Year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walter Alston, manager of the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers since 1954, was given another one-year contract Wednesday for his 18th year at the helm of the National League baseball club.

"Walter Alston received a deserved raise over 1970," said Al Campanis, Dodger vice-president. "This probably is the earliest Walter has received a new contract over the years."

Terms were not disclosed except that the pact covered just one season, following Dodger tradition.

Alston, 58, who worked 13 seasons as a minor-league manager before coming up to the Dodgers, was asked at a news conference how many more years he planned to manage.

"It's hard to say. If I didn't manage I'd probably go into trying to find something to do. I like what I'm doing."

Alston, who had the Dodgers to six pennants and four World Series victories—the last in 1965—had his club in second place, one game ahead of San Francisco Giants but well behind Western Division champion Cincinnati. The news conference was held before Wednesday night's Dodger-Giant game.

'Yanks' Houk Likes Being Number Two

After five years of frustration, manager Ralph Houk of the New York Yankees admits that the 1970 season has been a fun year for him.

"The way the kids are playing," said Houk, "the season, especially near the end now, has been a lot of fun."

The Yankees, not counted on to be contenders in the American League East, after finishing fifth a year ago, clinched second place Wednesday night, dropped the Washington Senators 6-4 for their sixth straight triumph.

It gave Houk's youngsters an 89-67 mark, their best record since the last New York pennant-winning club of 1964 finished 99-63. The Orioles lead the Yanks by 12 games but New York was the only club to make any kind of a run at Baltimore earlier.

The Yankees won it on rookie Jon Lyttle's two-run double and RBI triple. Another rookie, Frank Baker drove in the Real New York run.

The victory earned the Yankees about $1,200 per player for their second place finish.

In other AL games, Boston lost to Cleveland 5-2, and combined with the Yankees' victory, eliminated the Red Sox from the second-place battle. Minnesota defeated Oakland 3-2, Chicago blanked Kansas City 5-0, California at Milwaukee was called by rain and the Detroit at Baltimore game was postponed by the power shortage in the East.

Steve Hargan pitched a six-hitter and Ken Harrelson and Tom Fuller each slammed their first homers of the season in the Indians' triumph, snapping Boston's seven game winning streak.

Ticats Win Share of First, Lose All of Zuger's Talents

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats won a share of first place in the Eastern Football Conference but lost the services of veteran quarterback Joe Zuger for an indefinite time as they romped from behind Wednesday night to defeat British Columbia Lions 36-14.

Zuger suffered a broken right wrist late in the first quarter of the Canadian Football League match-ideal game played before 29,787 fans. The injury appeared to happen when the Lions' defence blew up at its first shows of strength broke through to hammer Tiracki for an eight-yard loss on a running play.

Reserve quarterback John Eckman came off the bench to direct a well-balanced attack for the Tiger-Cats, but it was the rugged Hamilton defence that turned the tide.

The big play was by defensive lineman John Vilness in the fourth quarter when the Lions seemed about to sew up a victory that would have broken their tie with Calgary Stampeders for second place in the West.

Lions had just taken a 14-11 lead on a 15-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Paul Brothers to fullback Jim Evenson when Hamilton back Mack Lamb fumbled the ensuing kickoff. Lions recovered on the Ticat 25-yard line.

A two-yard gain and an incomplete pass set the stage for a 39-yard field goal attempt by Lions' usually deadly Ted Gerela, but the leather went wide. But Vilness broke through for the second time in the game to block the kick and Hamilton's John Williams grabbed the loose ball and ran 75 yards for a touchdown.

Eckman added Ticats' clinching touchdown just two minutes later when he shook off a blitzing R.C. lineman and ran seven yards on a broken pass play.

Dave Fleming scored Hamilton's other touchdown on a four-yard run in the second quarter set up by two good catches by end Tommy Joe Coffey on pass plays covering 18 and 44 yards.

Coffey converted all three Ticat touchdowns and added a 28-yard field goal and a single on a 30-yard field goal try that went wide. Coffey pushed his career points total to 994 and his season total to 69—tops in the eastern conference.

Flasher Vic Washington, the former Ottawa star, scored B.C.'s other touchdown on a pass play from Brothers that covered 58 yards. Gerela converted both touchdowns, but failed on four field goal tries—two blocked by Vilness and the others of 39 and 53 yards going wide.

The result of the hard-hitting contest moved Hamilton into a tie with Montreal Alouettes, two points ahead of Toronto Argonauts and four ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Lions remain locked with Calgary six points behind Saskatchewan Roughriders and only two ahead of Edmonton Eskimos.

The Zuger-less Tiger-Cats play in Edmonton Saturday. The Lions' next game is here Oct. 3 against the Eskimos in what could be a showdown for a western conference playoff spot.

A broken wrist on Zuger's throwing arm was the latest in a long list of problems that began last year when he jammed a finger on his right hand. This year, he twice dislocated a finger and only recently recovered from an injury to his right thumb.

Eckman completed seven of 16 passes for 133 yards after Zuger had completed his only two throws. Ticats—led by Ed Buchanan's 61 yards and Fleming's 66—rushed for 183 yards.

Brothers connected on 18 of his 35 passing attempts for 256 yards, but Lions' usually strong ground game made only 90 yards.

Evenson, the West's leading rusher, picked up 41 yards on nine carries to move 44 yards ahead of Saskatchewan's George Reed.

Brothers, who had given up only five interceptions in nine previous games, had three of his throws picked off and several others were narrowly missed by Ticat defenders. Eckman gave up one interception.

Clay Seeks Licence

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Mohammed Ali took time out from training, and weight reducing today to fly to New York, hopefully to pick up a reserved licence to fight there.

Overweight, but still ahead of the heavyweight champion planned to apply to the New York Boxing Commission today and said, "It's nice to know you're going to be allowed to perform your trade again."

Ali, who won the title in 1964 as Cassius Clay, was stripped of the crown in 1967 after refusing to step forward for the military draft.

Habs Take Hawks Two Straight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens won their third pre-season exhibition game Wednesday night and their second straight over Chicago Black Hawks, 6-3, in National Hockey League action before 8,000 at Halifax.

The Canadiens were 4-1 victors Tuesday night in the first of four NHL exhibition schedled for the east-coast city.

Billy Collins notched the winner with just 30 seconds left in the game. Canadiens' other two, and Marc Tardif were the other Montreal scorers. Bobby Hull, Dennis Hull and Gerry Pinder replied for Chicago.

In other games Wednesday, Boston Bruins needed two third-period goals from Ken Hodge to earn a 2-2 tie with New York Rangers at Kitchener, Ont.; Minnesota North Stars blanked the host Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0, Pittsburgh Penguins scored two third-period goals to tie Buffalo Sabres 2-2 at Sudbury, Ont., and Philadelphia Flyers tripped Quebec Aces, their American League farmhands, 4-0 at Rimouski, Que.

At Halifax, the Canadiens jumped into an early lead on Lavarre's first goal, converting a pass from Henri Richard behind goaltender Tony Esposito. Bobby Hull evened it up midway through the second, beating Rogatien Vachon. Tardif and Dennis Hull made it 3-1 going into the third period.

The Bruins-Rangers game, played before 7,500, was a lacklustre effort until the third period when the aroused Bruins, playing their second game in as many nights, got untracked. Don Awrey and Bill Fairbairn had tallied earlier for New York.

Goalie Gilles Villemure was the victim of both Boston goals after Ed Giacomin had held the Bruins' scoreless in the first half of the game. Ed Johnston, the third Bruin goalie, blanked the Rangers in the last period. Gerry Cheevers and John Adams each allowed one goal.

The North Stars, burdened by nine of the 12 penalties called in the game—including a 5-penalty shot—shut outhustled the Leafs at Maple Leaf Gardens. After being held scoreless in the first period by Jacques Plante, the North Stars beat Marv Edwards twice in the second. Walt McKechnie scoring the first then hooking up Lou Nanne on the second.

Joey Johnston scored the third Minnesota goal late in the game. Minnesota goaltender Gump Worsley had stopped Toronto's Guy Trottier on a penalty shot.

Trottier had a breakaway when he was tripped up by rookie defenceman Fred Barrett for one of three penalties the North Stars' No. 1 draft choice picked up in the game.

Polis was tagged with a game misconduct late in the third period when he shoved lineman Malcolm Ashford to the ice during an argument over an offside call. It was one of 21 penalties called by referee Dave Newell, 15 against the Sabres.

The Pittsburgh victory was a costly one when veteran Gary Dornhoefer reinjured his right knee in the first period and club doctors estimate he'll miss at least the next week of training camp.

The 26-goal scorer last year has already missed a week of the camp because of the ailing knee.

The Flyer goals, by Bob Kelly, Jean-Guy Gendron, Lew Morrison and Bobby Clark, came at the expense of Quebec's Bob Taylor who re-Michel Belhumeur midway through the game.

Sanderson Confirms Acting Talents

MONTREAL (CP) — Derek Sanderson confirmed Wednesday what some of his National Hockey League critics have maintained for some time—he's an actor.

Sanderson, the 21-year-old mod dresser and self proclaimed swinger who plays centre for Boston Bruins, took time out from the club's pre-season training camp to come here to shoot some scenes for a movie.

He has a small role, that of a scout for a girls' hockey team, in the production You Know It Ain't Easy. The movie is being produced by Cinepix Inc., a Montreal-based film company which previously made Reel and

Some Tuna !

NORTH LAKE, P.E.I. (CP) — Mel Immergut of Brooklyn, N.Y., caught a giant bluefin tuna weighing 1,040 pounds, a possible world record, on his first fishing trip off here Wednesday.

If the big fish was boated in accordance with the rules of the International Game Fish Association, it would set a world record.

Gretel Crew Still Hoping

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Although Intrepid stood on the verge today of continuing the United States' monotonous domination of the America's Cup, the challenging Australian had not given up.

"We still can win this thing. And we're not giving up," said Martin Visser, tactician on Gretel II, knowing that it would take a near miracle for his yacht to overcome the 3-0 Intrepid lead in the best-of-seven series.

"But it makes it a little difficult here to make four straight firsts. Still, we can do it."

NHL Still Unable To Locate Gallinger

WATERLOO (CP) — Don Gallinger, who fought bitterly against a lifetime expulsion from organized hockey 22 years ago, still has not been officially notified that the National Hockey League lifted his suspension a month ago.

The whereabouts of Gallinger —suspended for life along with Boston Bruins team-mate Billy Taylor in 1948 for betting on NHL games—has been unknown since he left this area 10 years ago.

However, Frank Udvari, eastern supervisor of officials for the NHL, says he is satisfied Gallinger is aware of the change in his status.

"I don't think he found out through the league, because no one knew where to get in touch with him," he said.

"I understand, though, he definitely knows he has been reinstated. He's living in Los Angeles but apparently he is keeping his address a secret. It seems he just doesn't want anyone to know where he is."

In the month since the NHL's surprise lifting of the only life suspensions ever imposed, Taylor has returned to the game, signing to coach the Owen Sound Greenmits of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A division.

Feed Grains Scarce But West Still Unhappy

OTTAWA (CP) — The summer turnaround in world grain markets, bringing stronger demand and prices, has caught some Prairie farmers with their granaries down, federal officials say.

With reports of bad weather hitting crops in Europe, Australia and Argentina, plus corn blight in the United States, feed-mills and their agents put in early orders for coarse grains and bid up prices of lower grades of wheat for feed.

The corn-shortage scare—expected at first to be worse than it ultimately proved—also gave an upward push to an already buoyant market for oilseeds, especially rapeseed.

The renewed shortage of feed-grains at Prairie rail terminals developed in part because some farmers are caught in a squeeze between the attraction of rising market prices and their own requirements for livestock feed.

Terminal elevator stocks of barley, durum wheat, oats and lower grades of hard wheat have run down.

The barley-supply situation is described officially as most critical, with shippers waiting to fill orders that exceeded the all-time export record of 122 million bushels even before this summer's crop was harvested.

In some cases, the shortage stems from the slow-market glut days of last winter.

Then, farmers with bulging granaries and slight demand from the official marketing system run by the Canadian wheat board bootlegged lower grades of wheat directly to feedmills and cattle feedlots in Canada and the United States.

The price was depressed—as little as 30 cents a bushel, or as much as $1 below the official rate. But the farmers needed cash and saw little prospect of a stronger market.

Grain farmers with livestock normally hold onto lower-priced wheat for feed, reserving top wheat and feedgrains for market. The new grain market prompted many to increase the size of beef herds, so requirements for on-farm feed have risen.

Those who unloaded all or most of low-grade grain on bustling markets are caught by the dilemma of whether to hold onto barley or other feedgrains—thereby passing up an opportunity of good market prices—or cashing in on the feedgrain demand.

Selling the feedgrain might leave the farmer short of his own needs. Sometime next winter he might be forced to feed his cattle with precious premium-grade wheat.

Then, some farmers are almost as upset now as they were during the market slump last year and the government campaign last spring to get them to reduce wheat acreage.

One farmer who opposed the cash-for-fallow federal program and Milk Mission acting grain-capacity finds now that he wasted his money. He won't seed the acres after all.

Others who opted reluctantly to switch wheatland to summer-fallow wish they had planted more grain in what has turned out to be a good year for yields and markets.

Grumblings also have been reported to the effect that the wheat board—called the marketing agent for wheat, barley and oats—should not be so eager to seize into sales commitments. It might be better to hold off until prices climb higher, it is suggested.

But grain officials say markets are not all that speculative. Australia, for example, may be suffering crop losses in premium-wheat areas as it is, but stockpiles of lower grades are plentiful.

In any case, one official said, there is no way orders are going to be turned down after the experience of scrambling for buyers in the last few years.

Caloil Refused Review Of Oil Sales Decision

MONTREAL (CP) — A request by Caloil Inc. that the Exchequer Court of Canada review a judgment preventing the company from selling imported petroleum products west of the Ottawa Valley was rejected Wednesday by Mr. Justice Jacques Dumoulin.

No further details were immediately available.

Caloil claims the Exchequer Court judgment last week would cut off half its gasoline sales. Company chairman John Newman said Monday the company would appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada if the review proved unsuccessful.

The Exchequer Court last week upheld the federal government's right to control movement of imported petroleum products in Canada and denied a Caloil bid to have a National Energy Board ruling governing such imports declared unconstitutional.

329 FRONT STREET BELLEVILLE 962-8611

Pendulum Discotheque Opens Friday Night

The Pendulum - Belleville's heralded new discotheque - opens its doors for the first time tomorrow night at its basement on Front Street location, near the upper bridge.

In the tradition of a true discotheque, the new recreation place for Belleville's youth will have all the earmarks of a big city discotheque.

"The Pendulum is intended to serve a real need for young people — a place to go where they can meet their friends and enjoy an evening of dancing pleasure and listen to their favorite tunes amid unusual light effects," a Pendulum spokesman explained.

Something new and different for the Belleville area is being offered at the Pendulum, in the way of light effects.

Along with flashing strobe-lights and black light, which themselves will produce unusual psychedelic displays on the discotheque's decor of stripes, squares, triangles and other geometric designs, ill the use of a translator unit which through electrical impulses, transforms the sound waves of music into light waves. Each musical note, therefore, is recorded and produced in colored lighting effect.

Barrels have been added to serve as tables in The Pendulum. Gumstock chairs and church pews have also been scrounged for a certain flavor.

Special attention has been given to the sound and recording system which has the most up-to-date equipment available, comprising tape decks, turntables, special pinpoint and speakers which will provide continuous recordings.

"For the artist, the walls in the washroom are graffiti boards for those who have the urge to sketch," the spokesman said.

Refresh m e n t s — s o f t drinks, varieties of coffee, "subs submarines", spinsky of the home chips and chocolate bars — all at moderate cost to patrons.

Plans include air conditioning in the summer for the discotheque which will have a capacity of about 150 people. Over - crowding will not be permitted.

The Pendulum will be open from noise p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays and from noise p.m. to three a.m. Fridays and Saturdays, closing on mildnight on Sundays.

Allan Bowman, an area resident and university graduate will manage the discotheque with assistance by Lindy Powell, another area university graduate.

J. NELSON McKIBBON

McKibbon Named AOCO Director

J. Nelson McKibbon, vice-president in charge of manufacturing at AOCO Ltd., was recently appointed a director of the company.

Mr. McKibbon, a graduate of Queen's University, joined AOCO in 1948 at Nation Rapids where while the Belleville factory and head office facilities were under construction. He became vice-president in 1968.

He has served as chairman of the Public Relations and chairman of the Salary Negotiating Committee while a member of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board. He is a member of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the Bay of Quinte Country Club and the Prince Edward Flying Club.

A navigator in the World War II, Mr. McKibbon holds a private pilot's license.

Mr. and Mrs. McKibbon reside at 63 Maple Drive. Their daughter is attending Queen's University.

ANAF. NEWS

The weather was ideal for the Decoration Day ceremonies with bright sunshine, temperate weather and a gentle breeze. The Argylle IODE picked up a number of Senior Citizens and shuttle and waiting arrangements had been set up in front of the Mausoleum for their convenience during the service. Buses were on hand for others that needed transportation.

The R.C.S.C. Cadet Band arrived early and gave a concert of sacred music while waiting for the parade. Those lads, under the baton of Lieut. Bervans are becoming a very fine band. They played for the hymns and gave a good rendition of the Last Post and Reveille.

More than 100 members of the veterans and Ladies Auxiliaries were on parade under Padre Marshal S. Scott and were led by the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Pipe Band under Pipe Major D. McCamley. This band played the Lament during the Silence. The massed color parties under Color Sergeant G. Christopher made a brilliant splash of color with their flags fluttering gently in the breeze.

Altogether there were well over 500 citizens attending the services.

Padre C. H. White, Base Chaplain (P) CFB, Trenton gave a short but stirring address. Cdes. R. G. Burns ANAF, J. J. Lynch, 418 Wing, RCAF and Ins Rollins, RCL laid the wreath.

Immediately after the ceremonies were over, the Duke of Edinburgh members proceeded to the Provincial Normal Home for a service for the late Cde. Ab Newman. Also on Sunday, there were two Memorial services at the H. and PER Memorial held by the famous 21st Bn. CEF and the 2/47 Battery. With the Battle of Britain ceremonies at Trenton it was a busy Sunday for the veterans of the Quinte district.

It was a sad week for the Unit as two valued members passed on. Cde. C. "Army" Armstrong and Cde. Ab Newman joined the White Battalion and the sincere condolences of all members are extended to the bereaved families in the loss of their loved ones.

The following members are in the Belleville General Hospital at this time: Cdes. T. Cronin, room 728, E. Gardner, room 714 and J. Coughlin, room 255. Cde. J. McNaught collapsed Friday and was rushed to Kingston where he is in the Victoria Ward, 139 in serious condition.

OPENING SEPTEMBER 30
A THOUSAND CLOWNS by Herb Gardner
A sensitive comedy about a well-meaning writer's efforts to bring up his nephew — the happy home and beautiful relationship is threatened when the department of social work decides the child's home environment is not conducive to 'normal' upbringing.

OPENING NOVEMBER 18
THE FANTASTICKS
Still running in New York after several years — still the most charming experience! A delightful musical about young love and the tears and tears that accompany the blooming of adolescence.

OPENING JANUARY 20
EODL 3-ACT FESTIVAL ENTRY
Theatre Guild hosts the entire festival — this as yet unannounced work promises to be one of importance that will test the abilities of the Guild to the utmost.

OPENING APR. 22
by Albert Camus
An intriguing family show of mystery and suspense by one of France's foremost living authors — a play that can be interpreted on various levels: from the existentialist for which Camus is famous to the simple tale of life and one of life's absurd paradoxes — an ideal festival play.

OPENING MAY 26
THE DRUNKARD
You will boo and hiss at the drunken ineptitude of the remorseless father — and you will applaud the poor daughter's and mother's might as they try to make a better life for themselves without the brew tainted by the devil's own evil.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Hypnosis Requires Special Abilities

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor doesn't believe in hypnosis at all. I am a heavy smoker. I've tried everything, but I can't get myself to stop.

I suggested hypnosis to him and he laughed. He said that even if it did make me quit, it's only got some other habit, like drinking. What is the present belief of the medical profession? Isn't hypnosis used by some doctors? — Mrs. K.

Comment: There have been numerous reports of the use of one bad habit, followed by another to take its place.

However, I have talked with some dentists who have used it in managing their nervous patients, and to excellent success who have performed surgery with the patient was under hypnosis.

But what you should understand, Mrs. K., is that not every doctor can use hypnosis. It requires special training. And it is limited in many patients: only in special cases.

Personally, I would not recommend hypnotism for the cure of the smoking habit. The hard choice is best: will power. In answer to what the medical profession thinks about hypnotism officially, I think you will be interested in excerpts from a report by the American Medical Association Council on Mental Health entitled "Medical Use of Hypnosis":

"The use of hypnosis has a recognized place in the medical armamentarium and is a useful technique in the treatment of certain illnesses when employed by qualified medical and dental personnel. Physicians should be used on a highly selective basis by such individuals (well trained) and should never become a single technique used under all circumstances by a therapist.

"The surgeon, obstetrician, anesthesiologist, psychiatrist, internist, and general practitioner may legitimately utilize these techniques within the framework of their own particular field of competence. The use of hypnosis by the entertainment purposes is vigorously condemned."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I know it isn't imaginary. I get daily small gobs of prune juice keeps me regular. I don't have to take any of the widely advertised cures for constipation. What I'd like to know is this. Is the daily use of prune juice harmful? What does it contain that overcomes sluggish bowels? — Mrs. N.

Comment: The prune juice, like many other fruits and juices, seems to exert its influence right on the small bowel. I see no reason to believe that a small glass of juice taken daily should be harmful. I've looked up the constituents in prune juice which seem to do the work for you. It is a jaw breaker by the name of dihydroxyphenyl isatin.

For Mrs. D.: There may be something to the fact that your friend became pregnant only after she had lost over 30 pounds. I recall a few patients, much overweight, who had tried for years to become pregnant, and succeeded only after they had taken off some poundage. I don't know why.

However, recent studies seem to show that often highly fat content is associated with infertility. No one can guarantee that you will be equally successful. Nevertheless, why not try dieting? You can't lose (and I'm not referring to pounds).

London Bombing Seen Work of Underworld

LONDON, Oct. (CP) — The bombing of an Italian bakery in London July 11 was linked to organized crime Wednesday by one of Canada's top criminologists.

W. H. Kelly, retired deputy commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was the first top lawman to publicly hint that organized crime was behind the bombing.

Speaking to the Canadian Club of London, Mr. Kelly said the bombing of the International Bakery "had all the earmarks of organized crime."

He linked the London bombing with a series of explosives which have rocked Italian bakeries in Toronto earlier this year.

"I have no inside information but from an educated guess this bombing would have something to do with a request not granted (to the underworld) or a warning of things to be said. Or be said.

City police have never given their version of the two dynamite bombs which wrecked the bakery, causing about $40,000 damage.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 25

Your birthday today: Your present energies to be fairly steady this coming year; and if you are in a specialized career, hence recognition and economic considerations — a trade society position or scholarship award is indicated. Your horoscope promises to continue well, despite challenging conditions and circumstances. Today's natives are not to be turned from their course, although silhouette their cause and sympathize with the opposing view.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Seek aid in winding up the week's routines; concentrate on the more creative aspects. In your search for excitement, beware a passing tendency to overspend.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You may improve your future working conditions with the diligent application of today's ideas. Don't let differences among associates lead to changes in your budgets.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you discipline your enthusiasm, you can make all sorts of activity meaningful. Keep at it, as the temptation is to waste time on pleasures.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): With everything going well, close up your office early. Avoid overstocking or overspending for the weekend. Family discussion produces fresh ideas.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 23): Your plans exceed what is wise to lay out at this time for display. You have to work harder to get people to accept your ideas. Financial outlay, entertainment will not quite do it.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 — Sept. 22): It is time your efforts included something for the general welfare of your community. Think what you can contribute in time money, services.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Original ideas fit right in with routines and traditions. See what you can do to help your local organization. Your people must prove themselves before you confide personal matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Work may not suit you today; do something about it beyond mere complaint. Fresh inspiration arises during consultations with specialists.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Friends are helpful but do not delegate to them sensitive tasks you should do yourself. Contact with institutions runs into some cost outlay and additional complexity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your ventures lead you in on to spending beyond what is reasonable. Social doings are not all that important. Changes in business methods are indicated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): There is no point in argument over money. Find a new way for smoothing out differences. People at a distance are very helpful without realizing it.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Haste makes waste — and errors. Novel ideas are pertinent, appealing, and readily applied. Pitch right in, take your results at the earliest opportunity.

Mansion for Sale

TORONTO (CP) — The elegant mansion of the late Lady Eaton went on sale today for $225,000.

Matriarch of one of Canada's wealthiest families, Lady Eaton died in July at the age of 93. Her husband, John Craig Eaton, who predeceased her, succeeded his father as president of T. Eaton Co.

The mansion's major feature is the third floor, built to resemble a huge log cabin. It has log walls, stone fireplaces, and British Columbia fir floors.

Other features of the house include a 35-foot-high living room, panelled library, Italian marble fireplaces, dining room with moulded ceilings, and high fidelity music in every room.

Top OPP Officers Intervened for Duke On Traffic Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Inspector J. H. Jones of the provincial police told a judicial inquiry Wednesday he wrote the names of a magistrate and a Crown attorney on an OPP document stating that a charge of careless driving against George Clinton Duke was withdrawn because of insufficient evidence.

Inspector Jones said that to his knowledge the case was never heard in any court.

He said he was ordered by Staff Supt. A. M. Hodgso to have the charge withdrawn and carried out the instruction because he never signed with his superior officer.

The inquiry was told during the day that at least two senior OPP officers intervened when Mr. Duke, an Oakville, Ont., millionaire, was charged with traffic offences.

Inquiry counsel J. J. Robinette produced a court disposition document from the OPP central records branch showing that the careless driving charge was withdrawn on June 18, 1968. On the document were the names of a magistrate and a Crown attorney.

A notation on the document near the name of Staff Sgt. J. H. Jones said there was insufficient evidence to warrant the charge. Another entry said that date did not list the Duke charge. The Burlington detachment's record book showed that a charge had been laid but the space for comments on the disposition was blank.

The inquiry was also told that a speeding charger against Mr. Duke was reduced after Sgt. Albert Wilson asked that special consideration be given to the gentleman because he was on a police errand when he was clocked at 85 miles an hour.

The inquiry heard that Supt. Wilson had asked Mr. Duke to obtain a handgun and deliver it to the widow of Chief Supt. I. E. Ribble, who wanted it for her protection. Mr. Duke was stopped for speeding as he returned from Toronto with the gun.

Supts. Wilson and Rodger are under suspension and face charges of disobeying an order to stop associating with Mr. Duke. Their cases will be heard after the inquiry is completed.

At the time of the careless driving charge Supt. Rodger was the senior officer at Burlington district headquarters and Inspector Jones, then staff sergeant, was commander of the Burlington detachment. Both offices are in the same building.

Sgt. Roy Roberts said that two months after the date of the careless driving charge he was promoted from corporal and transferred to the detachment at Matheson, 65 miles north of Kirkland Lake and 93 from Kapuskasing.

He said he was pleased with his promotion but "not too happy" about his transfer.

Sailboat Bandit Surrenders

VICTORIA (CP) — A heavily-armed bank bandit who hijacked a sailboat surrendered to the U.S. coast guard early today and released three hostages unharmed, ending a 12-hour land and sea drama that started with a bank robbery here Thursday afternoon.

The bandit, who shot and wounded two policemen during the holdup, handed over three rifles and a shotgun along with the hostages to the crew of the cutter Point Richmond.

Police and coast guard officials said William Lawrence Olenik, 26, was being held by U.S. marshals aboard the cutter. No charges had been laid.

The sailboat drifted on the tide into U.S. waters near the San Juan Islands, surrounded for more than three hours by American and Canadian police vessels.

The bandit agreed to surrender his arms and hostages in return for guarantees that he would be handed over to American rather than Candian officials and provided with a U.S. lawyer.

The drama started shortly after noon Thursday when a man walked into a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch armed with a revolver and wearing a bandolier of ammunition slung over his shoulder.

He walked up to teller Brenda Annear and growled: "Come here, blondie."

Mrs. Annear said the gunman got between $5,000 and $6,000, then ordered the bank staff and half a dozen customers behind the counter. One of the customers bolted out the door and the bandit fired a shot.

The bullet struck a policeman outside the bank, who went down. A second policeman arrived, gun drawn, in response to a silent alarm.

"He just turned around and shot him in the stomach," said Mrs. Annear.

The gunman fled on foot a few blocks away where he had a taxi cab waiting.

The car roared north from Victoria at speeds of more than 100 miles an hour and crashed through three police roadblocks before it ran off the road at the northern tip of the Saanich Peninsula.

Taking a hostage, Roger Smith, a Vancouver fisherman, the gunman headed into Satellite Channel between Saltspring and Vancouver Islands in a 14-foot motorboat.

Pulling alongside the sailboat, he took Mr. Smith aboard with him into the cabin where he forced two other hostages, Mr. and Mrs. Wells, to take the boat down the channel.

Within minutes the sailboat was boxed in by four police boats and a helicopter.

King and Rebel Chief Both Order Ceasefire

15 of Plane Hostages In Amman Are Freed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — King Hussein and guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat ordered their forces to cease fire today after nine days of savage fighting so that a peace agreement could be implemented ending the war in Jordan.

The broadcast announcemnt by Amman radio did not make clear what the terms of the agreement were.

The announcement followed word from Field Marshal Habis Majali, military governor of Jordan, that 15 of 54 hijacked airline passengers held hostage by guerrillas had been freed.

Relased were eight Britons, five Swiss and two West Germans. All but one of the 30 hostages who remained in the guerrillas hands were believed to be Americans. Majali said arrangements would be made quickly to get the freed passengers out of Amman.

The agreement among Hussein, Arafat and Arab mediator Gen. Jaafar Al-Nimeiry, president of Sudan, was announced over Amman radio. It was the first time Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, agreed to stop fighting in nine days of bloody fighting.

Field Marshal Majali said the freed airline passengers "are now in army hands preparatory to their delivery to their home countries."

He did not say how they were freed from the guerrillas.

Originally, there were some 400 hostages, from three planes hijacked to the Jordanian desert Sept. 6 and 9. Most of the hostages were released earlier. The planes were blown up.

The guerrillas have demanded the release of Palestinian Arab commandos and supporters jailed in Britain, West Germany, Switzerland and Israel as ransom for the hostages.

Majali and Hussein both issued orders over Amman radio for their troops to abide by the ceasefire after reports of more fighting around Irbid in northern Jordan.

Guerrilla broadcasts from Damascus and Baghdad said the army was making tank and artillery assaults on Palestinian positions in Amman and in Irbid through the night. Several thrusts at Irbid were halted, the guerrillas said.

Fifty-eight foreigners, 33 of them Americans, were evacuated from Amman to Beirut Thursday, and three planes stood by for further evacuations of foreigners today. Two prepared to leave Cyprus to take out British subjects and one was waiting for orders to leave Beirut to remove Americans who were unable to make it to the Amman airport for Thursday's flight.

Hussein, Arafat and Nimeiry, leader of the four-country Arab peace mission, said the ceasefire would go into effect immediately. In Amman earlier, a 24-hour ceasefire had been ordered to allow the Red Cross to help the dead and wounded badly in need of medical attention.

There was no immediate word from the Jordanian or the guerrilla side that the joint ceasefire would actually gone into effect at 6 a.m. in front of the whole series of previous ceasefire pacts between the two sides have been broken.

Earlier Field Marshal Majali ordered the unilateral ceasefire by the army in Amman starting at 7 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT) today in

Carnage Opens Up Huge Gulf

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters) — The carnage of the last week of devastation in Amman has opened up such a gulf of bitterness between the army and the guerrillas that no forgiver unlucky enough to be trapped in this city of fear can conceive any basis on which the two sides could co-exist.

The long periods of curfew bring uncanny spells of silence —more frightening in a way than the continual din of gunfire to which the city became accustomed for the first week of the battle.

An army armored personnel carrier clatters down the street. Bedouin soldiers watchful behind their .50-calibre machineguns.

No civilian cars are allowed. People may leave their houses only on foot and unarmed to hunt for a shop open for a few brief hours to sell food.

An army tank crew brought water Thursday to the Hotel Intercontinental where a handful of journalists and one Italian diplomat still live in comparative luxury off steak, fruit juice and fruit salad.

But much of the city is starving. The authorities have failed for several days even to repair broken power lines and water is scarce.

Human Suffering Appalling

BEIRUT (Reuters) — After a week of ferocious fighting in Jordan, only one item on the balance sheet of wins and losses is indisputable—that the cost of human suffering has been enormous.

Official figures given in Amman put total casualties in the capital at between 1,300 and 1,600 as of Wednesday night. But the guerrillas say up to 15,000 people have died.

Foreign correspondents returned from Amman agree that the scale and savagery of the street fighting was such that the guerrilla estimates could well be right.

If the 15,000 figure were anything near accurate, these seven days of fighting would have spilled more Arab blood than the protracted Arab-Israeli war of 1948-49, the Suez war of 1956 or the six-day war of 1967.

Arms Sales to South Africa Deplored

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp expressed concern Tuesday night over the possible sale of arms by Britain to South Africa and Britain entry into the Common Market.

He told the new British foreign secretary, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, that there is hostility in Canada towards countries that sell arms to South Africa.

Sir Alec is reported to have told Sharp that any such sales would be for defence of the sea lanes only.

Canada has a longstanding ban on the sale of arms to South Africa, and recently announced that she will review its policy of selling spare parts to South Africa for some elderly Canadian-made equipment. She is now issuing export permits for sale of these parts, pending the outcome of the review.

But Sharp said the government is not willing to exert pressure on private firms to stop trade with South Africa.

He said sale of arms is of central importance in the Commonwealth and said a move by Britain's Conservative government to break a previous British ban on these sales might have a serious effect on other Commonwealth members.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Southern Ontario experienced a few severe thunderstorms last night. These have now mostly subsided and moved into eastern Ontario and should have ended entirely by mid-morning. Slightly drier air will move over the southern portions of the province today giving readings up into the high 70s. A return to warmer weather Saturday will be short lived as colder weather is now pushing east out of the Prairies. By late Sunday the cooler conditions should have spread across the entire province.

Macdonald Is Appointed As Minister of Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — Five ministers changed positions in a cabinet shuffle Thursday as Privy Council President Donald S. Macdonald became defence minister to succeed Leo Cadieux, named ambassador to France last week.

No new ministers were brought into the cabinet with Prime Minister Trudeau. And in two cases, ministers are returning to responsibilities they held in the government of Lester Pearson.

With the appointment of Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Coté, 44, as minister without portfolio, but with responsibility for the post office, it appears that the cabinet position of postmaster-general no longer exists. Eric Kierans, 56, who held the position, continues as minister of communications.

The prime minister said the growing communications department has an important area and Mr. Kierans "is very satisfied at being able to devote himself full time to that portfolio."

Mr. Coté, who was postmaster-general for three years prior to 1968 would emphasize the "human problems" in the post office, said the prime minister.

Allan MacEachen, 49, minister of manpower and immigration, becomes president of the Privy Council and also returns to the job of government House leader, a responsibility he held under Mr. Pearson.

The new minister of manpower and immigration is Otto Lang, 38, who was minister without portfolio. He will continue to have responsibility for the Canadian wheat board.

Herb Gray, 39, previously a minister without portfolio, succeeds Mr. Coté as revenue minister. He will continue to advise the government on questions of foreign ownership.

The changes, coming after months of speculation and rumors, were not as far-reaching as many observers had predicted. And Mr. Trudeau said he had no immediate plans for further shifts.

In a brief news conference following the announcement, the prime minister said that the appointment of Mr. Macdonald, 36, to the defence portfolio does not herald a shift in defence policy. He said Mr. Macdonald had done a "very good job" as House leader.

Commenting on the appointment of a minister without portfolio responsible for the post office, Mr. Trudeau said the government has not made a final decision on whether the post office should become a Crown corporation. A Toronto consulting firm has made such a recommendation.

Educationists Told They Are Not Fit To Teach Indians

EDMONTON (CP) — Leading Canadian educationists were told Thursday they are not fit to teach Indian children.

Douglas Cardinal of Edmonton, a Metis who is a prominent architect and an outspoken critic of Indian affairs, told 800 delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Education Association their textbooks are racist and "programmed to make us believe we are inferior beings."

At the end of his four-minute address, the soft-spoken Mr. Cardinal received more applause than any of the dozens of speakers who preceded him.

Most of the other speakers dealt with problems in educational administration and several said current school systems are obsolete and irrelevant because of changes in society.

J. A. Turner, director of education in the Peel County board of education in Ontario, said departmentalists can no longer ignore mounting criticism of the cost of education.

"Beyond the point of paying adequate salaries to all staff members it is questionable how much, if anything, is gained from the large amounts of money spent on newly-created positions in our schools—from lowering of the pupil-teacher ratio each year; and from the installation of the latest sophisticated equipment, simply because it is available."

A humanistic rather than a materialistic approach to education is best, he said. Teacher representatives should sit down with board officials to discuss how to use funds available for education.

Own Future Is Dark

Spiritual guidance, members of the clergy report, is on an upswing.

However, certain activities along this line must follow strict rules.

Belleville police yesterday arrested Susan Mary Burt, 24, of Dufferin Street, Toronto. The woman, who called herself "Mrs. Brown" was charged under section 305 of the criminal code for "selling fortunes for money."

The usual procedure is to leave a donation for services.

The 2.30 p.m. arrest at her 344 Front Street residence was made following investigation of complaints that "Mrs. Brown" was charging between $5-$10 for her advertised services of "card and palm reading".

Released on bail, she will appear in court on Tuesday, Sept. 29.

With no details yet available in Beked of the terms of the agreement reached between the two sides under intense pressure from the Arab bloc of state, it was impossible to tell who had emerged victorious from the struggle—if indeed it is finally ended.

All that was known for certain was that the civil population had been the chief victims, suffering casualties running into thousands of dead and wounded as soldiers and guerrillas fought for supremacy in Jordan.

Comox Jumping Team Wins Para Tourney

TRENTON (Staff) — The Canadian Forces' annual Para Rescue Competitions are over and top honors have been given to the three-man team from 442 Squadron, Comox, B.C.

Both the Armstrong Trophy for over-all supremacy and Para-professional Trophy were presented to the Comox representation at the base yacht club last night.

Mrs. Ruth Armstrong presented the Armstrong Trophy, an award dedicated to her husband, Sgt. W. N. Armstrong, who died two years ago while serving with Trenton's 424 Squadron.

In handing the second trophy over to Comox, Brig. Gen. C. Allies, chief of staff operations, Air Transport Command, stressed that the four-day competition had been a display of the competence of the Canadian Forces' para-rescue function.

Five teams — from Comox, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Trenton and Summerside — participated in the national tournament, conducted by the defending title holder, Trenton's 424 Squadron.

Three events comprised the competition — para-jumping, para-supply drops, and free fall package drops.

Jumping from the regulation 2,000 feet Wednesday, Corp. Bill Wacey of CFB Comox (formerly CFB Trenton) made a perfect bullseye landing on the centre of the target area.

Trenton's 424 Squadron came up with the best free fall package drop of the competition, one of the squadron's packages tossed out of an aircraft at 150 feet landed less than two feet from target centre.

Squadron 424 placed fourth in all-round point counts, third on jumping events.

Green Grows the Grass With Sewage Sludge

It's a positive truth: Just one visit to a sewage disposal plant and your garden can come up smelling of roses.

To prove the point, keep an eye on future landscaping developments at the Ontario Water Resources Commission disposal unit in Belleville.

The plant now is in the process of large scale expansion and completion of which calls for an environment enhanced by green lawns.

And the way OWRC workers tell it they should wind up with the most spectacular improvement in the city.

Secret of such expected success is the by-product of the plant itself — the sludge that remains after waste has been processed from the city sewer system.

Poured on the ground, the chemically treated, almost odorless sludge evaporates and what's left is the world's best fertilizer, say OWRC workers.

There's no revolutionary discovery. Local residents have been visiting the plant for several years to collect the sediment when it's made available. One district farmer daily runs a tank truck to the plant and spreads the sludge on his fields, say OWRC employees.

"As fertilizer it's a great soil conditioner" and you should see how it makes roses grow," says one.

ETV on Cable Is Doubtful

Belleville and Quinte district viewers will not see the new educational television channel when it begins broadcasting Monday.

The signal just won't reach this far — 120 miles from the transmitter.

Roy Taylor of Cablevue Ltd. here said his company is investigating the possibility of bringing in the channel. But because the channel is not yet on the air, he has no way of determining whether or not it will reach this area.

"It's unlikely we'll be able to bring in the signal, but we would add channel 19 to our programming if it could be picked up," he said this morning.

According to information received by Mr. Taylor, the signal will cover only a limited area around Toronto, reaching east only as far as Oshawa.

Because channel 19 is ultra high frequency, it will not carry as far as channels 2 to 13, which transmit at different levels of signal.

The Canadian Radio and Television Commission has given several companies the right to carry the channel.

Those are all in the Toronto area, and the permission is temporary, pending a hearing in October.

The new channel will broadcast daily from 8 a.m. until 9.45 p.m. .

Autumn's Here But No Frost Yet

The calendar says that autumn has arrived but you'd never know it from the weather!

Temperatures in the Quinte district during the past several days have reached into the eighties and the lingering summer weather has been marked by a complete absence of frost — even in the northern parts of the county.

A northern reeve in the city yesterday on county business said his area had not yet been touched by a killing frost.

"Cornfields are still green and cattle pastures are still growing," said Dungannon Reeve Calvin White.

Normally killing frosts in the northern parts of the county can be expected as early as late in August, the reeve said.

Tory Tea on TV

The newest style in Quinte politics will be televised Saturday night.

Scheduled for airing on Kingston's Channel 11, 6.30 p.m., Newstel program is a presentation based on the recent Tory Tea organized by Mr. Richard Hall, MPP Quinte.

The event was planned by Dr. Potter as an attempt at personal communication between government leaders and the electorate.

Four Ontario cabinet ministers were involved in the confrontation — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, Education Minister William Davis, Provincial Secretary Robert Welch and Economics and Financial Affairs Minister Bert Lawrence.

Individual debates and interviews involving the four ministers and the public were televised on the lawns of Dr. Potter's Massassaga home.

Wage Settlement No Closer

This year's wage contract dispute between the Belleville Police Commission and members of that town's constabulary is on its way to settlement but negotiations toward salary agreements for police and firemen in Belleville are at a standstill.

An arbitration board hearing on the Trenton dispute was held this week in Belleville with a decision to be expected "soon".

Salary settlements for police and firemen in Belleville are also to go to arbitration but the principals have been unable to agree on board members and requests have been made for government appointments.

Spokesmen for both firemen and police said it was hoped the government board appointments would be made in the near future.

IN MEMORIAM

FRIELICK — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Samuel Frielick, who passed away seven years ago today, Sept. 25, 1963.
Your love remains with us yet,
Your memory is a keepsake,
With God we trust we'll meet.
Inserted by daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Bonter, children Bonny, Margaret, Mary, Barbara, Ruth.

MacDONALD — In loving memory of Thomas MacDonald, who passed away September 25, 1967.
Dear brother, you are not forgotten,
As long as memory lasts with me,
As you always were before,
So you shall be to me, brother Wilson, sister-in-law Mary, nieces, nephews.

BRENNAN — In loving memory of a dear father, William Brennan, who passed away Sept. 25th, 1969.
Sleep on dear father and take your rest,
That be in God. He is just every.
Inserted by daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Hicks.

BRENNAN, Mary Leonard — In memory of a dear father who passed away Sept. 25, 1969.
Dad, the face we loved so dear,
The hand we held so fast,
The heart that beat for us alone,
Is now at peace at last.
But not too far for thought to reach,
Beyond to where he lives in bliss.
And memory brings him near to us.
Inserted by daughter, Mrs. Ivan Hicks.

MARTIN — In loving memory of a dear wife, Lena Martin, who passed away Sept. 25, 1967.
Lena, the garden of your heart is still,
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
Of the face we loved so dear,
Of the hand we held so fast,
Her memory we shall always keep,
Her heart was golden, true and kind,
Dear husband Jack and sister Betty.

HILL — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Ernest Hill, who passed away Sept. 25, 1964.
Remembered by friends we are known,
Sadly missed.
In the words of our joys we are blest,
With a smile on our faces we have a heartache.
Longing for another, for you.
Always remembered by daughter Audrey, son-in-law Bill and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank my neighbors and friends for the cards and every party and the lovely gifts they gave me on the occasion of my 80th birthday. Also Dr. Hall, Dr. Potter and Mrs. Jenny Buckley and Mr. Ross Corrigan for their kindness and help over the past 3 years. Mrs. Ethel Wilson. 24

I wish to express my sincere thanks for the many cards, gifts, flowers and visits I received while in the Belleville General Hospital and since returning home. Special thanks to Dr. Potter, Dr. Hall, the staff of 7th floor and Rev. Canon R. B. D. Wright. Gordon E. Lane. 24

Area Garbage Dumps Conform to Law

New provincial regulations with respect to garbage dumps will not result in any immediate changes in the operation of disposal areas in the Belleville district.

The new legislation which went into effect on Sept. 1 is aimed at putting an end to open garbage dumps in settled parts of the province.

John Beamish, director of the waste management branch of the department of energy and resources says his department will not even entertain an application for an open dump in settled areas and at the same time said the new clean-up of 1,500 disposal sites in the province's 993 southern-most municipalities.

In Belleville arrangements have been made with Commercial Refuse Services to dispose of city garbage at a new landfill site in Sidney township.

However, the city will continue to dump garbage at the present landfill disposal site on the Bay Bridge Road until this area has been filled.

There will be no change in the operation of the Thurlow township dump site.

Here the township has no municipal garbage pickup and householders are required to make their own arrangements with a private collector.

The township's only involvement is provision of the dump site on which it spends approximately $3,000 annually in maintenance.

Ameliasburg township formerly had a garbage dumping arrangement with the city of Belleville but in the spring of this year opened its own land fill disposal area in the 3rd concession. The site is a an old township gravel pit and was approved by the waste management branch before it was opened.

Hungerford township now has three open garbage dumps which will continue to be used until the first of the year.

However, the township has purchased a new sanitary land fill site and when this is in operation the three present dumps will be closed and cleaned up.

Discussions are going on between the township and the village of Tweed to join use of the disposal area.

Sidney township is also continuing to use its present dump although here too discussions are under way as to what the future operation will be.

One possibility is that the township, like Belleville, may enter into an agreement with Commercial Refuse Services for garbage disposal.

Like Thurlow, the township has no municipal garbage pickup and delivery of garbage to the dumpsite is by private arrangement.

Garbage disposal in the city has developed into a costly exercise with the cost this year to amount to approximately $145,000.

The garbage collection contract for 1970 is for $122,000 and added to this will be about $20,000 in dump maintenance costs.

The normal cost of dump maintenance is about $30,000 annually but this year additional funds were allocated to "finish off" the disposal area when it is filled.

Under a new agreement with Commercial Refuse Services for disposal in Sidney township, the cost to the city for garbage disposal is expected to be about the same or slightly higher than under the present arrangement.

The city will pay the private company a set fee for disposal but collection costs will be higher due to the increased distance to the disposal area.

Y Fall Program Is Announced

The Belleville Family YMCA is operating right on schedule when it comes to its new programs for this year, it was announced this morning.

A new swimming program on Saturdays combines the Red Cross and Royal Life-saving Award system with the current Y standards and already has an enrolment of 300 youngsters with space for more.

Special aquatics classes in lifesaving and skin and scuba diving are being scheduled to begin in October. All instructional swim periods are open to the general public.

A new gym program for boys on Saturday mornings will offer a different sport or activity each month. This program is indicative of the Y's desire to increase community involvement.

Representatives from the Minor Soccer Association have volunteered to assist in teaching soccer this fall.

Women's classes in 'Get Fit and Keep Fit" are filling to capacity and a new special class for women 25 to 50 pounds overweight will start in October.

A new Wednesday afternoon "Ladies Day Out" will be started in October with activities and projects of particular female interest.

October will also introduce new swimming instruction classes for six and seven-year olds and three, four and five-year olds.

Adults will again have bridge lessons for beginners and advanced players and the annual golf school and pro ski clinic will be open again.

Benson's Back

Hon. Edgar Benson, minister of finance, is shown arriving at CFB Trenton yesterday with his wife. Mr. Benson returned to Canada on a regular Air Transport Command 707 flight from Lahr, West Germany following a high-level International Monetary Fund meeting in Brussels. Due to the skyjacking threat, government leaders have been instructed by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau to fly with Transport Comamnd rather than commercial airlines.

Widening A Greenbelt

Belleville's park system has a new addition. The site, at Sidney and West Dundas Streets, is strategically located to downtown approaches with a view of the Bay of Quinte.

New Park In West End

Autumn leaves have a new city park on which to fall this year.

Site of the latest notch in the city's greenbelt system is at the corner of Sidney and West Dundas streets — a joint development of Belleville's parks department and public utilities commission.

While maybe too late in the year to blossom to its full potential, the park will be ready and waiting for the arrival of fine weather in 1971.

Although estimated at less than an acre in area, it is one of the most effective park sites in the city.

Strategically located on the main west entrance to the city's downtown it has a prospect of trees, flowerbeds, benches and lawn that slopes toward the Bay of Quinte.

It has been created on land owned by the utilities commission adjacent to its filtration plant.

Purpose of the park not only was to enhance the plant's environment, says park superintendent Lloyd Syer.

"It also is an obvious location along the approaches to downtown," he adds.

The Belleville Horticultural Society has donated funds for purchase of plants for the park's perennial flowerbeds.

Enhancing its natural effects, the utilities commission also plans to floodlight the area.

Break-in Or Good Deed ?

Belleville city police said this morning they were called to the residence of Orville Matthews at 636 Bridge Street East to investigate a mysterious break-in and lawn cutting at the Matthews home sometime between 11:40 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

A basement window to the home was opened and, according to witnesses, two persons entered. The door to the upstairs portion of the house was locked and no entry was gained.

However, when Mr. Matthews discovered the entry he also discovered that his lawn had been cut by his own lawnmower left in his yard for that purpose.

"Whether they felt bad about breaking in and then cut the lawn to make up for it, I don't know," he pondered.

Police are still investigating.

Sam Is Coming

Sam the Record Man is coming to Belleville, and he's coming to stay.

Sam Sniderman's 11th store will open here in the latter part of October in one half of Booth's old store on Bridge Street. The store will inhabit the section of the building closer to Front Street.

But there's still a strong link-up with Sam's famous store in Toronto, Mr. Hitchon is a franchisee in the most recent expansion of Sam's record empire.

Mr. Hitchon told The Intelligencer yesterday that his store would offer the same benefits as Sam's and would be called Sam the Record Man.

He said he would obtain merchandise through Sam, thereby getting it cheaper than buying it from record companies. The Belleville store will offer new releases as soon as they are released and will also offer 24-hour order service.

"We'll have any record in the world ever made if it's still on the market," Mr. Hitchon explained.

Mr. Hitchon started work today to construct partitions in the building and to design the layout of the store. Despite extensive renovations by Booth's it will be repainted in the special Sam the Record Man colors.

Mr. Hitchon will also have to bag thousands of records in preparation for the store's opening about the third week of October.

During the opening, record sales will be characterized by Sam's famous penny sales wherein recent releases will be sold at certain times far one cent. Mr. Hitchon will also have Sam's advertised specials.

The opening will also be celebrated by the presence of a big rock group but Mr. Hitchon would not release the name of the group as yet.

He said that the store would run dances and concerts now and again as part of its business not only for young people but for country and western fans and for adult tastes.

"We came to Belleville because there is no real outlet for records or music," Mr. Hitchon explained.

Soviet Space Feat

The United States long since has stolen Russia's space exploration thunder. There were the two successful manned flights to the moon last year, and although a third flight had to be aborted because of an explosion in flight and serious damage to the spacecraft's systems the crew made it safely back to earth.

Now the Russians, for long in the space doldrums, have come up with another spectacular of their own. They claim that an unmanned space vehicle has returned to earth with moon samples, which if true must be regarded as a prodigious technical feat as yet unrivalled by the Americans. They claim further that the unmanned space probe was made at half the cost of a manned flight.

The space vehicle is said to have come down in Inner Asia near the Chinese border. Whether this was by design or not, reflecting the accuracy of ground control, is a matter of conjecture; but imagine the frustration of the Russians had the vehicle come down in Chinese territory.

In any event it is an excellent example of the differing approach of the American and Soviet space programs. A manned Soviet landing on the moon would have been an anticlimax after the U.S. efforts. Instead, the Russians have accomplished another "first," while contributing to the overall knowledge of the planetary system. Without any overt signs of co-operation between them, the two space programs are complementing rather than duplicating each other.

Wheat Sales Up!

Next spring, we have heard it rumored on good authority, Canada can expect another rash of wage claims and strikes and another battle in the shadowy world of inflation. But meantime we may rejoice at one piece of good news — grain sales overseas will add up to a record wheat shipment for the first five months of a crop year.

The Canadian Wheat Board is hoping to sell orders for 400 million bushels of wheat by January 1, an initiative that could boost the sagging Prairie economy by as much as $600 million by Christmas. Last year only 188 million bushels were exported in the same period.

After so many wretched months of watching their grain add up to the growing glut of unsold produce in the country's history this is good news and a prelude, we hope, to continued purchases abroad.

Same Again

Front Street is again taking on the look of pre Drop-the-Gloves Days. The kids are back, lining the sidewalks, idling the time away — and in some instances bothering pedestrians.

Here is an example, as related to us by a young woman. Walking to a store and carrying some loose change in her hand she was passing a youth when he said, "you have dropped a penny." She picked it up before realizing she was victim of some kind of jest. "Ever, you can have this too," said the youth, tossing another penny to the ground, then joining a group of his friends nearby. They all laughed insanely at the "joke."

This sort of thing is insolence born of indolence and a general contempt for society. Specifically, the incident is not the result of its kind where young people crowding the main street have displayed insulting behavior toward other citizens.

It is not good enough. The city recently passed a bylaw banning loitering; it should be enforced.

An Independent Breed

Some time ago we wrote about a young Argentine who was en route through Canada to Alaska, in a bid to complete a walk from Buenos Aires. It recalled the feat of the classic Tschiffely's Ride, in which A. F. Tschiffely told of his journey with two pack horses from Washington to Buenos Aires, or. was it the other way round?

Anyway, here we have another adventurer who is on his way on foot from Alaska to Tierra del Fuego, at the southern tip of Argentina, a region incidentally which Tschiffely knew well.

Andy Horujko, a former wood pulp dealer reached San Diego recently to complete a third of the journey which he says is undertook because it became "an obsession" with him. He left Alaska March 31 and expects to end his trek next May.

Every generation produces such men of grit and independence; they demonstrate for the rest of us that the world has much to offer beyond the average, conformist activities of daily life.

Arabs Law Unto Themselves

Washington Avoids Intervention in Middle East

WASHINGTON (CP) — The ability of events in the Middle East to escape management—or even influence—From the White House has made the area clearer than in the current battle for power in Jordan.

President Nixon's course of action in Jordan is likely to be dictated in large measure now by the results of meetings among individual Arab leaders. Egypt's President Nasser has been attempting without notable success to arrange a ceasefire in Jordan and undo the chronically dissident factions.

The failure of diplomatic initiatives by the United States and others to obtain peace in Jordan has placed the burden of action on the Arabs themselves.

During the last few days the Nixon administration has been caught up in a series of consultations aimed at defining U.S. alternatives for the Middle East and influencing events there.

But the end result has been largely and deliberately a wait-and-see posture for the U.S.

The only consistency Americans officials might draw from the situation is that the Soviet Union is unlikely to find itself more happily placed.

Despite massive donations of armaments to the Arab world and virtually unqualified diplomatic support for the Arab cause against Israel, Moscow has had frequent difficulty restraining and influencing Arab moves.

Yet no country has this been more obvious than Syria, now apparently embarked on a campaign by help the Palestinian guerrillas overthrow Jordan's King Hussein. With the guerrillas themselves, Moscow has no direct influence whatever.

An important element in Jordan's current difficulties is the lack of clearcut support for King Hussein from any outside circles.

Among the Arab states, he is opposed by military leftist regimes in Syria, Iraq and Libya, among others. His support from President Nasser is widely regarded as tenuous—subject to cancellation the moment he seems doomed to fall. Even Saudi Arabia, another moderate country, has shown little open sympathy for him.

Israel is said to be largely indifferent to Hussein's fate, although for Israel's security about who would succeed Mm. Under constant attack from Jordan-based guerrillas, Israel has not been inclined to make nice distinctions between Hussein and other Arab leaders. But any new Jordanian government which adopted the active support of the guerrillas would become for concern—and perhaps intervention—by Tel Aviv.

However, the Palestinians have warned of all-out retaliation if the U.S. intervenes—a warning supported in some cases by almost every other Arab nation, not by arms but by the Arab world, including France.

Although the U.S. has put some of its forces on alert, the dangers in direct intervention are regarded here as overwhelming.

The consequence of an attempt to save Hussein's throne could be to spread the Mideast conflict across the Middle East.

Faced with such an alternative, President Nixon is not thought likely to push beyond general diplomatic maneuvering until some new stage is reached in the Middle East.

Objects to Ad Mail

Editor,
The Intelligencer.
My dander has been stirred up about all the garbage arriving in the mail these days. No wonder our old mail slanty can't be good for too much longer. We private citizens are paying through the nose for advertising. Literature we either give to the kids to play with or toss out.

Personally, I have had something in the mail almost every day, usually for my preschoolers and primary children urging them to "accept free first volume", "win prizes selling", or "we have a prize waiting for you". After many letters demanding that these names be taken off the mailing lists, my husband finally hit upon a very obvious solution. "Fight fire with fire!"

Now, I take fiendish delight in removing our name and address label from anything those nice little postage pre-paid cards and envelopes back to the company that made them plenty!

If everyone, everywhere did the same thing for a while maybe just maybe they would get the idea through their computerized brains, and we could keep our six cent stamps.

"FIGHTING MOM"

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sept. 25, 1970 . . .

1857 — Relief of Lucknow, the turning-point of the Indian Mutiny, occurred 113 years ago today—in 1857 — after a four-month siege of the British garrison by Indians. The slaughter-house of Cawnpore had been massacred two months before. The Mutiny was caused generally by British reforms which offended Indian religious principles, and particularly by the introduction of a new type of cartridge for Indian soldiers. These were greased with pig and cow fat, thus offending Hindus and Moslems at the same time.

1942—Tim Buck and other leading Canadian Communists surrendered to police in Toronto after a parliamentary committee recommended the Communist party no longer be outlawed.

Parks Greet Autumn

Ottawa Journal

Quetico Provincial Park, Ontario

Ontogua River, Pog Lake, Batchawana Bay, Devil's Glen, Kakabeka Falls on the Kaministikwia River near Thunder Bay, Quetico, Algonquin, Bonnechere, are just a few of the provincial parks that dot Ontario. Soon they will welcome their visitors with nature's grand finale.

An Ontario lands and forests map gives thumbnail sketches of all our parks and more extended descriptions of larger parks.

Ontario's parks fall into five categories. Wilderness parks such as Polar Bear on James and Hudson Bays are preserved for the purposes of study and scientific observation. They have no serviced campgrounds and their natural resources are not exploited. There are Wild parks, such as Rushing River near Kenora, whose classification aptly describes them.

Natural Environment parks such as Algonquin's 2,910 square miles offer every thing for lakes accessible only by canoe to fully serviced campsites. Some recreation parks offer serviced campsites, others are used primarily by day. Some parks are just nature reserves where the public is allowed only to observe and quiet the area's natural balance.

Fortunately, much of the beautiful countryside in the A. Y. Jackson and Tom Thompson has been preserved for us. We have only to walk in its permanent trust and tuck more of it away while we still have the chance.

Decimals in New Year

Tea Break Dilemma As UK Prepares Coin Switch

Kingston Whig-Standard

In February Great Britain starts decimal coinage. The basic coin is quite a stir among thousands of tea-drinking British citizens.

According to a recent news report, approximately 50,000 coin-operated vending machines dispense 2,000 million drinks of tea a year. Every machine will have to be adjusted to take the new coinage. And many may not be converted.

Canadians may not think this is a very serious problem, but British workers insist on having tea or their tea break. There is even the threat of a strike if the vending machines will not accept the new coins.

Thereupon tempers continues to brew in Britain. By February it may well boil over.

An organization meeting for the erection of a war memorial in this city to commemorate those who died in the Great War of 1914-18 was poorly attended last night. Men elected to the executive were elected Chairman John Elliott; secretary Fred Chamberlain; treasurer Alderman Harold Armstrong, Mayor Reid and T. Y. Webster.

Although some Kingston grocers are selling bread for eight cents a loaf, the Belleville price remains 10 cents.

Gertrude Fisher of Howard St. has left for Montreal where she will visit friends. She will attend the wedding of Amy Lamoria, which takes place next week.

D. C. Hall, a native of this district, and who for the past 34 years has resided in Saskatchewan at Macdowall, will return shortly to reside in Belleville. In referring to his departure from the district, the Daily Herald of Prince Albert says: "Dr. C. Hall, who for the past 18 years has been a familiar and active figure in the life of the rural municipality of Prince Albert is leaving shortly for Belleville, Ont. and with his removal the municipality loses its Reeve and the district loses one of its best known citizens. For the past 10 years he has been an active member of the council of the municipality, holding the position of Reeve for half that time".

Yugoslavia's Key Role in Europe

Tito to Resign in Favor of Collective Leadership

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Tito's announcement that he plans a collective leadership for Yugoslavia after he steps down was apparently designed to bolster confidence in the country's constitutional future but instead has posed a number of new questions.

For one thing, Tito did not stipulate when he intends to resign as president.

And his statement, made in off-the-cuff fashion, did not make clear how the new presidential system, planned to represent the six republican regions of Yugoslavia together with their Communist parties and other organizations, will co-exist with the 14-man executive formed last year to give the national party an over-all lead.

Moreover, despite Tito's emphasis on collective as opposed to individual leadership in future, observers agree that over the 78-year-old Tito withdraws from power another personality may emerge as a dominant figure in the country.

He is Edvard Kardelj, a member of the Communist party executive and for 30 years a confidant of the present chief of state.

Tito obviously is anxious to avoid the spectacular struggles which have rocked some countries after strong national leaders have left the scene.

The constitution evolved by Tito after the triumph of his Communist guerrillas in the Second World War fell had to be a formally federal one, to reflect the differences among such diverse Yugoslav regions as Serbia, Croatia and Montenegro.

In fact, the idea of Yugoslavia as a single state did not materialize until 1918.

Before that, the territory came within the orbit of the Hapsburg empire of Austria and seethed with, among other conflicts, the ancient antagonism between Serbs and Croats.

Compounding the national rivalries within what became the frontiers of Yugoslavia was the variety of religious groups, ranging from Roman Catholic to Moslem

Such internal tensions were further complicated after the war by the strains between the newly-supreme Communists and champions of the old social order.

Lately, there have been signs that the dissension rooted in regional splits within Yugoslavia remains sufficiently strong to make trouble for the central government—perennially concerned in any case with steering a perilous middle path between the orthodox Communists of Moscow and the capitalists of the West.

The outcome of all its domestic strains is of vital concern to the world at large because of Yugoslavia's key place in the affairs of southern Europe.

Lending added importance to the country's prospects is its present role as leader of the developing nations of the globe, together with its self-chosen function as a proxy bridge between East and West.

Fever Is Up, Delirium May Be Coming, In Quebec Medical Care Controversy

MONTREAL (CP) — The fever is up, the pulse has quickened. For some, even delirium may be setting in.

Quebec's medical care insurance dispute is reaching the critical point. It could conceivably end in a strike—withdrawal of services—by the province's doctors.

Premier Robert Bourassa said in Quebec City Thursday his cabinet will meet next week to set a date for the start of the medical care plan. Legislation was passed in the national assembly July 31, but implementation has been delayed during unsuccessful negotiations with doctors.

The doctors say the government's approach to medicare will kill "quality medicine" in Quebec. Supporters of the government's diagnosis say they won't be bullied by a group of highly-paid medical "prima donnas" intent on protecting their incomes.

Neither side is backing down on the main issues in contention —the opting-out clause which doctors say takes away their liberty and forces them into medicare, and the system of resolving disputes which they say threatens their control of professional standards.

Opposition to the government's plan has polarized around the 4,000-member Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists. It says it will never agree to the present scheme unless fee-for-surgery is performed on it.

Dr. Crawford Lindsay, its treasurer, said Thursday:

"If we yield on any of the points on which we are supposedly adamant, quality medicine is dead in Quebec. The future of medical care in the province is very, very much at stake."

What can the doctors do if the government decides to go ahead without their agreement?

Withdraw services, strike," said Dr. Lindsay. "What else is there?"

He said the government then could pass coercive legislation, forcing doctors into the plan on penalty of either being fined, imprisoned or having their licences revoked.

"It will simply be conscription of doctors."

Temperatures on both sides rose this week.

Doctors held meetings at various hospitals and a June declared they are prepared to walk out "on an hour's notice" to protest the proposed plan.

The Montreal Gazette, in a warning hospitals they would be placed under trusteeship if they closed their doors in support of any strike.

A handful of individual doctors have made plans to leave the province, Dr. Lindsay said. Others have cancelled all appointments until the medicare dispute is settled.

"If no reasonable end is visualized, a lot of doctors who are faced with uncertainty will simply pack up and leave."

He said he personally refuses to do non-quality medicine and 95 per cent of federation members are of the same opinion.

The Federation of Medical Specialists groups 22 associations representing specialized disciplines such as pediatrics, cardiology, anesthesiology, dermatology, neurology. The specialists make up 44 per cent of doctors practising in Quebec. The Federation of General Practitioners represents the other 2,200.

Officers of the general practitioners' federation said three weeks ago they had reached agreement with the government on medicare. However, they have issued no further statements and sources within the specialists' federation said the GPs "are with us all the way."

Medical care schemes adopted in six other provinces since 1962 have no such restriction. Neither do private insurance plans.

Payments are made from the insurance pool according to an established fee scale regardless of what doctor is visited. If he has opted out the patient pays.

Without the choice of opting out with remuneration, a doctor will probably be forced to examine more patients in a given time to maintain a level of income based on the fee scale. The quality of medical care, the federation claims, will suffer.

In addition, Dr. Lindsay said, opting out with remuneration would be a bargaining weapon for the federation in future negotiations for a higher fee scale. If the scale is unreasonable, more doctors could opt out in protest. This would be a public barometer on how acceptable medicare is.

The federation says experience shows that no more than six to 19 per cent of doctors will take advantage of opting out. These would be the top men in their fields who have a right to charge more or who have affluent patients. It was unfair to force such doctors to charge the same as a specialist just starting out in practice.

"I cannot give details at this time," said Dr. Lindsay, "but we are willing to guarantee to the government and patient that regulations will be set down to prevent exhorbitant over-charging by doctors who opt out. Fair and reasonable rates will be followed by the federation."

A major advantage of opting out is for the large majority of doctors, he said, is the fact that it will guarantee prompt and fair per-cent payment from the insurance board for medical services.

It will cut down on accounting paper work and will avoid the average current loss of about 10 per cent in defaulted patient payments.

The federation is just as opposed on the issue of compulsory control.

The government's plan gives authority to the insurance board to decide disputes involving amount to be charged for medical service and also how the service is performed.

The federation has no disagreement with the first category. But in the second it feels the five-man board, with only two doctors on it, may eventually dictate professional standards.

The board will use its computers to establish "profiles of care" on every doctor active in Quebec, detailed reports on how he deals with medical problems he faces.

Norms of practice will be determined. The specialists object to the way the norms will be used.

If, for example, the norm show that a pneumonia patient visits his doctor about five times a year the board could investigate a doctor who deviates considerably from this norm and may refuse to pay for a sixth or seventh visit.

The board, with two government representatives and a member of the public, is competent to judge this, Dr. Lindsay said. It also is neutral partial because it is rightly concerned with trimming costs.

Such questions of professional standards should be judged by a doctor's peers, he said, and only suitable thing at present is the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons. Although the board can refer a dispute to the college, it is not bound by the college's decision under the government's legislation.

Whiskey Filter

In what might be considered a medical boon to barrooms, this girl in Munich, Germany, is trying a new method of filtering nicotine and tar from cigarettes—whiskey. The cigarette is attached to the front of the whiskey pipe with its smoke drawn through whiskey and water in the bottle, thereby, the theory goes, eliminating the nicotine and flavoring the smoke. The pipe is on display at an international food exhibition at Munich. (AP Photo)

Natural Mercury Levels May Be Above Safe Level

DULUTH, Minn. (CP) — Background levels of mercury occurring naturally in the environment may be higher than the levels established as the safe limit for human consumption of fish contaminated by mercury, Ontario Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle said Thursday.

"Natural background levels in the environment may be accounting for levels of mercury in fish above .5 parts per million from numerous waters adjacent to certain geological soil and rock formations," he said in a speech to the Great Lakes Commission.

"Such natural levels must have been present for years and they raise the question of whether residents from these areas show higher residues than normal. Health authorities state that there may be some question as to whether the .5 parts per million is realistic in terms of the possible hazard to health and may be in need of serious review."

Employee Negligence Found By CPR in Cobourg Fatality

OTTAWA (CP) — A lawyer for the Canadian Pacific Railway told the Canadian transport commission Thursday his company's investigation of a fatal derailment at Cobourg, Ont., last July "revealed employee negligence."

Gordon Miller, general solicitor for the railway, said the company would not ask employees involved in the accident to appear before the commission, which is investigating the Cobourg accident and two other midsummer railway accidents.

He said their voluntary appearance as witnesses might make them vulnerable to later prosecution for criminal negligence and suggested the commission issue subpoenas.

But D. H. Jones, chairman of the two-member commission panel hearing the case, said witnesses "are entitled to and will receive all the protection the law allows" in such cases.

Mr. Jones said federal and Ontario laws would protect witnesses before the commission from incriminating themselves.

A railway employee was killed at Cobourg July 30 when 21 cars of a CP freight were derailed.

Also being investigated is the Aug. 7 collision between a Canadian National Railways passenger train and a track motor car at Brockville, in which one of the car's occupants was killed, and a derailment of a CN freight at Port Hope, Ont., Aug. 6.

After investigating the three accidents the commission will inquire into maintenance operations and other factors "likely to contribute or prevent railway derailments and collisions."

The hearing continues today, then moves to Belleville, Monday.

"Look who's here! The Grahams!"

The Grahams! You haven't seen the Grahams since you moved from the old house. What memories they bring back!

We've got to celebrate this! The ideal answer: your Brights "wine cellar". Sherry will start things off nicely. The sauterne and claret would go in handy with the snacks. And what's better with cheese than the port and Mazel Tov? Then toast the get-together in the DuBarry bubbles.

"What on earth have you been doing with yourselves?"

A "welcoming" cellar:

74 Sherry
74 Port
Monsr St. Davids Sauterne
Monsr St. Davids Claret
Mazel Tov
DuBarry Sparkling Vin Rosé

- A delectable appetizer wine.
- Superb with cheese and crackers.
- A medium dry white table wine.
- An excellent dry red table wine.
- A delicious dessert wine.
- An "anytime" fun wine.

A welcome gift! What better way to say "good luck" to friends who've just moved into a new home than with this "welcome friends" wine cellar?

Man loses his controlling the population growth and improving production to solve the problems of a large and growing populace. This UCW will be interested in the future of one of the world's most densely populated countries.

The secretary reported having received thank-you notes from Mrs. B. MacDonald and Mrs. W. English who had been patients in Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. Ross McLaren thanked the members for the dinner served at her daughter's marriage.

Items for the sale are to be sent to Mrs. P. Barlow of Trenton. Closing exercises were followed by refreshments.

NURSES WANT INQUIRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia has asked the provincial government for a public inquiry into the financing of health care in B.C.

ST. ANDREW'S UCW

MARMORA — St. Andrew's United Church women welcomed members from St. Paul's Anglican, Marmora Free Methodist, Marmora Pentecostal and Sacred Heart Churches last week in the presentation of the film "That All May Be One."

Approximately 65 were in attendance to view the film produced by the United Church of Canada, to develop the awareness of the churches' involvement in current social and personal problems. Poems, songs and special effects on the sound track stressed issues raised and made those watching more sensitive to human needs everywhere in the world, needs that could be filled by church involvement.

Following the presentation, discussion groups were arranged and directed by Rev. John Peters, and Rev. Father T. G. Scanlan. Participants considered the changes that are taking place in society, and personal attitude towards these changes, and in what ways the churches must adapt to this new style of living.

Special thanks was extended to Rev. Peters and Rev. Scanlan for their help in this endeavor, as well as to Mr. Ken Gilbert who arranged the necessary technical arrangements.

Guests were invited to test at the close of the discussion period, a most enjoyable half hour of friendly greetings and fellowship.

UCW members met later for a brief business period, chaired by the president, Mrs. Douglas Vilneff. Special items of interest from the general business were: Brazilian foster child's family is now self-supporting and she no longer needs help from the UCW. News of the name of a foster child will be forthcoming. and the date for the annual church bazaar is set for November 20.

City Woman Quo Vadis Nursing Graduate

MRS. GWENYTH BLACK

Mrs. Gwenyth Black of Belleville was a member of the 1970 graduating class at the Quo Vadis School of Nursing when graduation exercises were held last Saturday at Convocation Hall, University of Toronto. This was the fifth graduating class of the school. Forty - six students graduated, bringing the total number of graduates of the school to 168, including three male graduates.

The program was chaired by Silva Hagg, M.D., chairman of the Board of Directors of the Quo Vadis School of Nursing.

Catherine D. McLean, M. S. W., was the guest speaker. Miss McLean was the person originally responsible for the institution of the Quo Vadis School of Nursing. A message from the graduates was delivered by Mrs. Rene Pinn.

The Quo Vadis School of Nursing was established in 1964. The school is unique in that it is specifically designed for adults between the ages of 30 and 58. The course is of two years duration and the curriculum is geared to meet the needs of the mature students on an individual basis, as much as possible. The educational admission requirement is the Ontario Grade XII Diploma, or its equivalent, as determined by the Ontario Department of Education. Upon successful completion of the program, the graduates qualify to sit for the Principal Registration Examinations to become licensed as Registered Nurses.

The school is primarily affiliated with the Queensway Hospital in Etobicoke.

Quo Vadis School of Nursing enjoys world - wide interest of nursing organizations, and, because of its uniqueness, attracts enquiries and applications from many countries.

Stuttering Considered A Symptom

HALIFAX (CP) — Stuttering is a speech impediment which affects sensitive persons—not a disease, but a symptom of underlying problems.

These were conclusions reached recently by eight persons who took part in a special six-week clinic at St. Mary's University here in an attempt to relieve their speech problems.

Using what one therapist called a "mini-society," the participants experimented with various situations in which they found greatest difficulty in speaking properly.

Practising first among themselves and later with persons who do not stutter, the stutterers attempted to help themselves and each other conquer speech problems.

All agreed that the biggest challenge was making contacts by telephone, because it is an "impersonal" instrument.

Helen Donaldson, a speech pathologist who headed the clinic, says a person with a stutter should receive treatment at a young age, because youngsters are easier to deal with and the cure rate higher than with older persons.

MR. AND MRS. PERCY TREVERTON

Treverton — Tufts

Edith Aileen Tufts, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Robert G. Tufts of Warkworth and Percy Earl Treverton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Treverton of RR 1 Plainfield were united in marriage on Sept. 12 at the Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, Rev. J. Leslie Dean and Rev. Robert Tufts were the officiating clergymen while Mr. C. E. Templer organist and Mrs. Ruby Young, soloist provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor-length empire waisted gown of white satin with a lace bodice, puff sleeves, high neck and a chapel train. Her four - layered bouffant veil fell from a sequinned headpiece and she carried a nosegay of red roses and white mums.

Maid -of- honor Miss Anne Tufts, the bride's sister wore a floor - length empire waisted gown of green - blue brocade with green velvet ribbon. Her headpiece was of green tulle and green velvet ribbon and she carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums. The costumes of the bridesmaids Miss Evelyn Caswell, a cousin of the bride and Miss Jane Treverton, the bridegroom's sister were identical to that of the maid of honor.

Flower girl Miss Marie Treverton, the bridegroom's sister, wore a white-silver brocade dress with green velvet ribbons. A white wicker basket held her yellow and white mums.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother Fred Treverton as best man and Bruce Swan and Allen Tufts, the bride's brother, acted as ushers. Ring bearer was Phillip Caswell, the bride's cousin.

For the reception held at the Gilead Community Hall, the bride's mother wore an aqua blue street-length crimplene dress with brown accessories and a corsage of pink baby roses. A blue brocade dress set off by beige accessories and pink baby roses was the choice of the bridegroom's mother.

St. Columba Women Study Family Living

Mrs. D. Taylor presented slides and simulated tape on Christian and family living — a study of young people and the effect of Christianity on their homes at the first Fall meeting of the Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Church which took place on Sept. 21.

The theme for the mission study was the matrix of decision which developed into some thought-provoking ideas from the study groups.

The business meeting followed the worship period. Some of the topics discussed were the auction sale to be held on Oct. 3 for which Mrs. Devolin would be happy to receive contributions, and a tea to be held on Nov. 5.

Members were asked to bring gifts for 14 - year - old boys and girls for the Christmas Exchange to the next meeting to be held on Oct. 19. Members were also told that leaders were urgently required to help with COC and also CGIT.

President of the group is Mrs. Doreen Hackett.

MR. AND MRS. G. D. BELLWOOD

Bellwood — Burns

The recent wedding ceremony was performed in the Church of Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Lindsay, Ontario, when Patricia Marie Ann Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Burns of Lindsay was united in marriage to George Douglas Bellwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bellwood of Belleville. Father Joseph Moran officiated and wedding music was rendered by Donald Lozon and accompanied the soloist Miss Patricia Gill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de faille with the bodice featuring a guipure lace portrait neckline with elbow-length sleeves adorned with matching lace and highlighted with a chapel train extending from the shoulders. Her headdress of leaves encrusted with jewels was caught to a four tiered scalloped veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations and roses.

Mrs. Jim Devlin of Peterborough, sister of the bride as matron of honor wore an A-line dress of golden shade peau de soie with a wide brimmed hat covered with matching material. Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Lynch of London, Ontario and Miss Colleen Manion of Kingston who were dressed identically to the matron of honor, but in orange ice shade of peau de soie.

Carson MacAuchlan of Cobourg attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Jerry Burns, brother of the bride from Lindsay and Larry Bellwood, Belleville, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a purple crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece beige and brown suit with dark brown velvet hat, beige accessories and a corsage of pumpkin shade carnations.

Leaving on a wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario, the bride wore a jersey dress-pant suit of white, navy and brown floral design with navy accessories and a corsage of roses.

The couple will reside in Orlawa.

Kissing Relationship Irks Dentist's Wife

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Am I out of line for objecting to a kissing relationship between my dentist husband and several of his female patients — ranging from 15 to 50 — who kiss him hello and good-by in his office. He also kisses them when they meet in public. I just stand there and look coy and don't even know most of these women. I am eager to hear your opinion. For reasons you can guess, I must remain — ANONYMOUS.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR NONY: No woman should worry about the kissing her husband does in public. Obviously you have not had extensive dental work and do not know the joy and gratitude one feels when the dentist announces, "No cavities, and your gums are perfect. We'll just clean them today."). I can easily understand a woman giving her dentist a smack — and have done so myself.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope the woman who signed herself "Fed Up" will read this. She complained because her husband was building their new home and talked of nothing else — morning, noon and night. He erected blueprints in his pocket and showed them to friends.

My husband built our house and I was warned by women who had been through it that it would probably be the worst year of my life. It was. These poor guys work their heads off at a regular job. Then they run to the new place, sometimes skipping supper so that as much as possible before dark. They worry about whether or not the material they ordered will come in, and will it be right. Then they have nightmares about inspection officers and building codes.

My husband talked everyone's ears off for a solid year, but I let him talk and I hoped our friends would appreciate it. That was a blessing in disguise. When I knew it was worth it. I hope the women who have this experience ahead of them will be smart enough to give their guys a pat on the back instead of a kick in the pants. — PROUD WIFE.

DEAR PROUD: Thanks for writing. And now to all you gals out there who may be faced with the experience — remember: Pat the back. Don't kick the pants.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Mark Twain once said, "The holy bonds of matrimony should be sweet, kindly, loyal and enduring that it will last through a whole lifetime — if not asked to lend money."

Sadly enough, I had to learn this lesson the hard way. I lent some money to a friend and ended up losing both the money and the friend. I prized this relationship highly and I am heartsick.

How does one say "no" and still preserve a friendship? — CLOSED DOOR.

DEAR DOOR: Friendship means coming to the rescue in time of crisis. The key word, however, is judgement.

For small "favors," say yes, but there should be limits even here. If the friend has repeatedly failed to repay previous small amounts the answer should be, "Sorry — no more."

For a sizable loan the best answer is, "I'll go with you to the bank and help you get a loan." You could still get stuck, but your chances are vastly better than if you simply hand over your own money. The friend who gets angry when you want your money returned was no friend to begin with. You lose nothing when you lose the friendship of a deadbeat.

A Tape Recorder Makes Good Listening

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I had many people respond locally to the suggestion I made in your column about women trying to achieve their secret ambition. This prompts me to pass on another hint.

Letters, telephone and cameras all help to bridge the gap once a family group breaks the home ties. The best investment for each branch, now leaving far apart, is a small, good quality tape recorder. A round-robin system is arranged, thus Mom and Dad can sit in the garden, with full sound effects of summer bird song and neighborhood noises; tape the informal chit-chat or some special event.

In turn, a married son can get the small fry together at breakfast or birthday party. Another sister gives her jumpmaster at her distant nonchalant outpost, of a new job and fun items, for example, small grass can be used and revised. All it involves is the initial investment for the recorder (usually around $90). It works and brings much joy. — Sally.

Dear Sally: For communicating, the tapes are tops! I won't forget the delight with which one doting grandmother hugged hers in, sat back and heard the beloved voices of her family, each one saying, "Hello, Grandma." He was 2,000 miles away and the recorder brought him close.

Dear Doris: Could you please tell me how a man would know for sure that he is sterile?

I know of someone who had a sperm test taken and was chagrined by his doctor to be sterile, then two years later produced a child for his wife. Is there any other way of knowing for sure? — Just Wondering.

Dear Wondering: My medical consultant tells me it is mighty tricky to know for sure. Much depends on circumstances — state of health; fatigue, sexual activity prior to test — plus competence of the examiner. It takes only one little live cell out of several million usually present — to bring about a pregnancy, provided the timing is right.

Several tests, carefully done may be needed to establish for sure whether a person is consistently sterile.

* * *

Dear Doris: Here's a little dilly I'd like to track down. I can only remember it as a child — from about 60 years ago:

"Th' over, th' over the mountain.
Where the little birds sing in the tree.
The cottage is covered with ivy,
There my Eileen is waiting for me."

— Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: It's not familiar. But let's see what our Ella-by-Request readers can do.

Have you ruled out some lurking, out-of-sight tooth decay? Sometimes fillings conceal a cavity. And for that bit of detection you'll need your dentist.

Adult Education Course Planned

During the Sept. 14 general meeting of the St. Michael's Parish Council held at St. Michael's Rectory Father M. Gilfivry gave a talk about the adult education course to begin on Oct. 1. He also showed two films and was presented with a gift by Mrs. Mary Moran.

It was announced that Carman's Beauty Salon will put on a wig show on Oct. 20 at St. Michael's Academy. There will be a door prize at this event. It was reported that Mrs. Gordon Decker is in need of helpers for the bowlies.

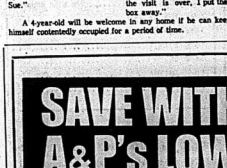
The marathon bridge will commence on Sept. 28. The regional meeting will be held at Sacred Heart School in Carlow on Oct. 6 with mass to be celebrated at noon. Lunch will be served at 1:15 p.m. and the meeting will commence at 2.15 p.m.

Earlier, Monsignor Sullivan opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Bernice Farrel presided.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

CANNIFTON — CORBYVILLE WI

Mrs. G. Moore was chosen to attend a training school in Stirling for leaders of WI groups at the first meeting of the fall season of the Cannifton - Corbyville WI.



The treasurer's report showed a successful summer of operation of the canteen run at Ball Park by the WI. Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. Milton reported for the standing committees and Mrs. G. Moore gave a report of the Directors' meeting held on Sept. 1. A district tea will be held in Gilead Hall on Sept. 29 at 8 p.m. Mrs. Willman, the district president will show slides and give members a talk about her trip to Winnipeg last summer.

The program, conducted by Mrs. G. Moore, convener opened with readings by Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Bowers. Mrs. N. Welch showed slides on the building of the Mohawk Indians at Deseronto, a ritual that is enacted each spring. She also showed slides of a trip to Manitoulin and Manitoulin Islands and of a visit to the Rice Mountain military site. Other slides shown were of Saint Marie, land of the Hurons.

Earlier, the president Mrs. Ellswood welcomed the gathering of 19 members and read the poem "Take Time For Ten Things".

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "It's so hard to keep Dickie from getting into things when we go visiting, especially if it's in a home where there are no young children or toys to keep him occupied. He takes the house apart when we visit Aunt Sue.".

Mother: "I'm looking for a book and a puzzle to add to the "busy box" we always take along when we visit grown-up friends. I keep a supply of things Dickie can play with alone and quietly for about an hour. As soon as the visit is over, I put the box away."

A 4-year-old will be welcome in any home if he can keep himself contentedly occupied for a period of time.

What's In A Name

BRISTOL, England (CP)— A psychologist at Bristol University in Gloucestershire warned parents not to call their daughters Doris — because of people's dislike for the name. Dr. Joseph Mallory, investigating the link between names and personalities, found that Dorises are labelled "gossipy, fat and dim." He suggests that people tend to give jobs the personalities associated with their names.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Unbaked Squares Easy to Make

By MARY MOORE

Letter: I came across a recipe for an unbaked square, one similar to the Rice Krispie square in a 1958 copy of a woman's weekly magazine. I tried it and liked it very well and thought your many "square" collectors would too if you haven't already given it to them. — Mrs. Lloyd T.

Answer: As you know, I am always eager to involve our young people in our cooking efforts so because my secretary's daughter Donna had not yet gone back to school we gave her the recipe to test and she sent me a lovely crunchy sample.

DONNA'S CHEWY SQUARES
(unbaked; courtesy Mrs. Lloyd T.)

Two 10-cent toffee bars
¼ cups miniature marshmallows (or equivalent in cut-up large marshmallows)
¼ cup margarine
1 tbsp. honey
3½ cups Rice Krispies
2½ cups corn flakes

In a large saucepan combine the toffee bars, marshmallows, margarine and honey. Stir over gentle heat until melted and blended. Stir in Rice Krispies and corn flakes and mix well. Turn into 13 x 9" pan, pressing down well and evenly into corners. Cool and chill if desired. Cut into 1¼" squares to serve. Wonderful for a picnic or a children's party.

Question: Could you please describe to me the different types of vinegars that are available and their various uses? I often wonder when I am using a recipe with vinegar which kind I should use, so I thought the best way to find out was to ask an expert. Incidentally my family enjoys your recipes. — Jean H.

ANSWER: Cider vinegar is a good staple use and what I depend on. But if a recipe calls for spice or white vinegar, buy a small supply for it keeps indefinitely. For the fancy vinegars tarragon is most common. To make your own, measure 1 cup fresh or dried tarragon leaves into a quart sealer. Fill it with cider vinegar and let stand three weeks in a sunny window. Strain and refrain. Wine vinegar is made the same way. To make garlic vinegar add 6 cut cloves of garlic to 1 qt. cider or spirit vinegar and store well covered.

Duke Contacts Ordered Ended Two Years Ago

TORONTO (CP) — An order to provincial police personnel to break off social contacts with George Clinton Duke and employees of his company went out two years ago, a judicial inquiry was told Thursday.

Thomas Trimble, deputy commissioner, said the order was issued by OPP Commissioner Eric Silk at a meeting of the force's most senior officers on the day that the commissioner learned of the criminal record of the Oakville, Ont., businessman.

The inquiry also heard about Mr. Duke's driving record. A file in the driver-licensing section of the provincial transport department showed reports of 12 accidents or driving offences since January, 1966.

Richard McKay, manager of the section, said there were five convictions for speeding and two for making an improper turn. There were also five collision reports with no record of a conviction. Mr. Duke was not required to appear in court to answer any charges.

The inquiry heard Wednesday that three traffic charges were withdrawn or reduced when senior OPP officers intervened on behalf of Mr. Duke.

The inquiry by Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of Ontario Supreme Court is investigating allegations of improper relationships by Mr. Duke with senior OPP personnel and with persons of known criminal activity.

OPP and provincial government accountants told Thursday of purchases from Mr. Duke's Burlington lawn equipment company totalling more than $175,000 during the last five years.

Deputy Commissioner Trimble said that Mr. Silk instructed Assistant Commissioner A. H. Bird to make the non-fraternizing order known to members of the force, particularly to personnel of Burlington district.

At that time the head of Burlington district headquarters was Staff Supt. A. M. Rodger. Supt. Rodger and Supt. Albert Wilson have been suspended and still appear before an OPP hearing after the inquiry on charges of disobeying the order.

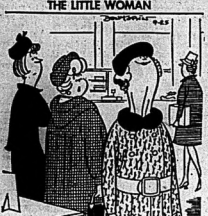
Earlier the inquiry heard evidence that several senior officers, including Mr. Silk, met Mr. Duke socially in the period from 1965 to 1968.

A number of officers regularly attended annual displays, put on by Duke's subdivision manufacturing chimney, known as lawnormas, put on by Mr. Duke's firm at his 20-acre Oakville estate.

Evidence has been given that the OPP accepted a free power mower from Duke's Lawn Equipment Ltd. which was donated as a door prize at the 1967 convention of Ontario chiefs of police.

Leonard Neil, retired purchaser for the OPP, testified he had established the practice of buying from Duke Equipment if the firm could beat other offered prices.

"If the other offer was higher than the Duke price, I put the Duke price into the budget," said the former assistant commissioner.



He said his major concern was getting the best possible equipment at the lowest possible price and the Duke price was consistently lower than other quotes.

Crackdown Begins on Operators of Gravel Pits

TORONTO (CP) — A crackdown to save the Niagara Escarpment from stone and gravel pit operators began Thursday when Mines Minister Allan Lawrence imposed mining bans on 15 firms and granted short-term permits to 51 others.

He said the action was taken to show "we mean business" in enforcing provisions of the Niagara Escarpment Act which provides for fines of up to $1,000 a day for operators guilty of defacing those areas of th escarpment left open to mining.

The escarpment is a geological formation stretching 230 miles from Queenston on the Niagara River to Tobermory at the tip of the Bruce Peninsula.

Mr. Lawrence said the 15 under the cease-work order may obtain a permit only by convincing the government on re-application that they intend to "clean up" their operations. Campbellville Grave Supply Ltd., Duffering Materials and Construction Ltd., Toronto, and Milton Brick Co. Ltd. have re-applied.

But Mr. Lawrence said "based on past experiences," Milton Brick would not likely be permitted to continue. He did not elaborate.

Cleaning up involves rehabilitating the scarred land by building grassy mounds or planting trees to camouflage the ugly aspects of quarry operations. In the case of the Campbellville firm, Mr. Lawrence said it had not complied with orders to move plant and equipment off the escarpment face.

This Campbellville firm has an annual payroll of almost $500,000, employing 30 persons in two gravel pits, only one of which is affected by the order.

The banned firms can continue to operate by using stockpiles.

"We're not trying to put anybody out of business," Mr. Lawrence said. "If these firms show us they are prepared to rehabilitate, they will get their licenses back."

Mr. Lawrence said all mining operations on the face of the escarpment and within 300 feet of it have ceased. Permits were granted only for existing operations.

Of the 51 short-term permits, 19 were for one month, nine for three months and 23 for six months.

These were granted on a temporary basis pending further study of their applications and on-site inspection.

The value of Ontario's sand, gravel and stone industry in 1968 was $63 million, most of it from escarpment operations.

Other firms refused permits were Ebel Quarries, Warton; Rice and Mcfarg Quarries Ltd., Limehouse; DeForest Brothers Quarries, Terra Cotta; Salco Construction Co., Oakville; Burnstein Brick Ltd., St. Catharines; Mr. C. Flear, Shelborne; Moyer Sand (1965) Ltd., Fenwick; Ralph Stobbe, Owen Sound; Township of Saltfleet Quarry, Stoney Creek; Natco Building Products Ltd., Toronto; J. C. Duff Ltd., Rexdale and County of Halton, Milton.

Charge Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — John Aimers, 18, chairman of the Monarchist League of Canada, said Thursday the Queen's head has been ordered replaced on Canadian coins and some public servants wishing to join his group have been intimidated.

The chairman told a news conference that Finance minister Edgar Benson has ordered the queen's head replaced on new dies for Canadian coins.

Through an office spokesman, Mr. Benson denied the statement.

Pitman Advocates 'Power to People'

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Pitman said Thursday a New Democratic Party government in Ontario under his leadership would "return power to the people."

The legislature member for Peterborough, who is opposing Stephen Lewis, the member for Toronto Scarborough West, in the provincial NDP leadership campaign, outlined his ideas for a decentralized government at a news conference.

His proposals included:

—Government information centres in "store-front location" to provide citizens with details "about every facet of government operation and policy." In addition, citizens should have access to long-distance government telephone lines so they could dial directly to Queen's Park.

—Public and news media access to all government files and documents except those ordered confidential by a minister to protect individuals. In these cases, the government should provide reasons.

—Government grants to civil servi groups, such as tenants' associations, welfare recipients' organizations and anti-pollution groups.

—Government services, such as health, welfare and housing assistance, to be provided in the community at local schools.

—Decentralization of government departments into smaller offices located throughout the province.

Mr. Pitman said the NDP had raised many specters in the minds of citizens in the past by the party's tendency to overstate its platform.

He said the party must do its best to erase the image that an NDP government would mean bureaucracy on a far worse level than is currently offered by the repressive Conservative government.

Meanwhile, a spokesman from Mr. Lewis' campaign headquarters said Thursday that the latest poll of delegates to the leadership convention here next week showed Mr. Lewis leading by three to one.

Of 1,300 delegates selected, the campaign headquarters' own poll listed—766 for Mr. Lewis, 246 for Mr. Pitman and 305 undecided.

One of Mr. Pitman's campaign managers called the poll figures absurd and Mr. Pitman said he believed polls to be misleading, since "people will always respond the way they know the questioner wants them to."

Shortage Of Power May Ease

NEW YORK (AP) — Air conditioners were turned off and lights were dimmed Thursday as utilities along the Eastern Seaboard of the United States again ordered power reductions to cope with an electricity shortage.

There were signs of improvement, however, as hot, humid weather eased a little in some areas and repaired equipment was put back in service.

The power crisis which began Tuesday, the last day of summer, when the shortage was so severe some utilities were forced to resort to blacking out selected communities for brief periods to prevent a major failure. The unexpected hot weather, generator failures and loss of power from equipment undergoing seasonal repairs combined to cause the trouble.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro said Thursday that exports of electric power to the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-Maryland pool have been increased to 200,000 kilowatts from 80,000.

Power exported to New York state Thursday was 300,000 and 250,000 to Michigan.

The figures represent an increase of 120,000 kilowatts over Wednesday's total, officials said.

Bill Bittle Surveys Likely Lagoon for Wildfowl Retreat

Wildfowl Sanctuary to Be Enjoyed By Hunters and Birdwatchers Alike

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — Duck hunters and birdwatchers may be an incompatible combination in nature.

But, they've finally been provided with a common meeting ground — and the Quinte outdoors thereby has a new resource.

It's a unique wildlife conservation development by lands and forests department planners 15 miles northwest of here.

The undertaking on Camden Lake in Camden East township, is not only evolving as the only public wildfowl sanctuary of its kind in Ontario's Quinte region, it also is being hatched as a homing ground for that emblematic denizen of Canadian wildlife—the Canada goose.

This weekend puts the scheme through its first working test as duckhunters herald the opening of their 1970 season.

For Bill Bittle, Tweed district lands and forest wildlife management officer, it's also a major milestone on a long working trail winding back almost a decade.

Mr. Bittle has been centre man in a painstaking assembly of co-operation that moved the project from inspiration to readily — an evolution involving private citizens, local and senior governments.

Camden Lake — known locally as Mud Lake — is about four miles long. Its 2,000 acres of water, dappled with islands of marsh, are a sliver of gentle wilderness in a rural countryside. There's one problem, though. On the average, estimates Mr. Bittle, it's less than two feet deep. This renders it useless for swimming, boating and serious fishing.

Its only attraction was for duck hunters — and this activity in recent years waned rapidly after the season's opening day.

Eventually Camden Lake wouldn't even have been for the birds. Its shallow water would have soured, discouraging wildfowl population as feed vegetation diminished.

Inspiration for regenerating the lake as a useful nature resource began developing for Mr. Bittle about 10 years ago — shortly after his lands and forests posting to the Tweed district.

Its potential as a wildfowl sanctuary with a seasonal, controlled hunting area was apparent.

"It seemed the obvious thing for this part of the country," recalls Mr. Bittle. "That plus the fact the lake was sitting there idle and no use was being made of it."

He took his conception to Nelson Kennedy, then reeve of Camden East, who "readily" saw the lake should be put to some use and accepted the plan wholeheartedly."

Stimulating the interest of local government was only the start.

Most involved phase of the operation came with acquisition of needed farm property edging the lake.

Countless meetings ensued, with property owners being acquainted individually, and in groups, with the development proposals. Wrapping up the intricacies of property negotiations for what is now estimated at about 1,500 acres of land, took up to five years, says Mr. Bittle.

The project also had to be financed and "funds weren't readily available from departmental sources," says the lands and forests official.

However, an alternative resource was tapped — successfully.

"Because the scheme was deemed of benefit to local people ARDA (the federal - provincial agricultural redevelopment agency) got involved and purchased the land," said Mr. Bittle.

With much of the organizational problems finally hurdled, the project entered a working phase this summer.

A locally - recruited work crew marked off the north and south reaches of the lake as sanctuaries, then began measuring locations where duck hunters this year were permitted to build blinds.

Some 30 blinds were staked and hunters given permission to build shelters for opening day in the designated hunting area.

Under lands and forests management, the lake in future now will provide what Mr. Bittle terms "good, quality, controlled hunting."

Meantime, however, the other major aims of the development are being pursued.

Improvement of nesting facilities by establishing the sanctuary will hopefully attract "many thousands of wildfowl to the area." A dam is planned at the North end of the lake on Cameron Creek to keep water at levels beneficial to production of vegetation on which the fowl feed.

Most dramatic development of the scheme is the introduction of a captive flock of Canada geese to nest in spring-time pending a new generation with Camden Lake as their home ground.

These should then return after winter migration to hatch their own flocks.

"This has been successfully done elsewhere," says Mr. Bittle, "and there's no reason we can't do it here."

This means, he says, the Quinte district would then have its flocks of Canada geese.

Their presence would be a fascinating bonus for the birdwatchers — both the sightseeing public and dedicated naturalists. The sanctuary's attraction should be widespread, he believes.

"People generally just love watching wildfowl in their natural environment, says Mr. Bittle.

The influx of public and naturalists offers a potential economic harvest to local residents. People need services.

Landowners with lakeshore property not managed by the department may find a potential for renting watchlowers, decoy sites.

"That's another objective," says Mr. Bittle. "To create an opportunity for the local people to derive economic benefits by catering to the naturalists, the hunters and non-hunters for which this project will be a rendezvous."

Coast Guard Cutter Stands by to Assist Mariners in Trouble

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

Commercial and recreational use of our waterways is coming to an end for another year. In the coming months ocean - going ships will be streaming out of the Great Lakes to avoid being boxed in by ice and pleasure craft will be hauled out of the bay and lake to await spring thaw.

Seasonal use of Coast Guard cutter 118, based at Presqu'Isle will soon come to an end as well. The sleek 33-ft. cutter will move through the Murray Canal on October 15 and will go into storage at CFB Trenton shortly before winter closes in on the bay.

The craft operates on the bay for several weeks before going into mothballs because, as her officer-in-charge Ken Campbell put it, there are always a lot of fishermen along the bay in late fall.

Refitting of the cutter will begin in March and her hull will be completely scraped down and repainted for spring launching. Resumption of duties at Presqu'Isle begins again on May 15.

Rescue boats are not foreign to Brighton Bay - the RCAP had a crash boat stationed there during the war years when bombing ranges were in use on Lake Ontario.

In the post - war period two crash boats were stationed at CFB Trenton but in last three years these have been phased out and the Coast Guard has assumed marine search and rescue duties in the area.

The Coast Guard functions as a branch of the Ministry of Transport but its activities are tied closely to Search and Rescue Units of the Canadian Armed Forces throughout the country.

A Coast Guard officer, Captain - Bay of Quinte region at the Search and Rescue Coordination Centre, CFB Trenton and works with the staff there when cutters are needed.

Capt. Bould, a master mariner, administers seven cutters from his Trenton office. These are positioned at various points along the seaway from Thunder Bay to Quebec.

The Ministry (formerly Department) of Transport has been in the search and rescue business since before Confederation. Operating a fleet of ships, the MOT services lighthouses, sets out navigation lanes, does ice - breaking duties as well as functioning in a marine rescue capacity, Capt. Bould said.

In 1965 the Coast Guard was formally established but most of its duties were carried out beforehand by Transport Ministry agency under such names as the Canadian Marine Service, he explained.

Coast Guard Cutter 118 was commissioned in 1967 and serves the Centre Lake Ontario - Bay of quinte region from Cobourg to Point Petre and south to the American frontier in Lake Ontario.

The boat is on call round the clock with a crew of six men, rotating in shifts of three for seven day periods.

When not out on a mission, the cutter docks at a pier adjacent to the Presqu'Isle Hotel at the south - east corner of the provincial park.

Crews are housed in a small Coast Guard office there and Canada Customs operates in the summer months from a house - trailer nearby.

Coast Guard cutter 118 is a sophisticated piece of machinery, equipped with a mass of marine-type equipment. Radar, depth sounder and three radio systems (citizens' band, high frequency, very high frequency) are on board.

Coxswain Campbell explained that there is one channel on each of the radio bands for emergency calls and all commercial ships monitor it.

Cutter 118 is dispatched into action when an emergency call is received from the rescue centre at CFB Trenton, one of five in Canada.

The 118 crew know their work well. Coxswain Campbell and Eric Brown, a native of Shediac, NB, both served on one of the RCAP crash boats based at Trenton.

Other crew members, assistant coxswain Jim Anderson and seamen Reg England, Hank Hayward and Mike Harper all grew up with a love for the water - and they see a lot of it in the summer.

Scores of missions are made by cutter 118 in a season. Whether it be a boat out of gas, a motor breakdown, a rowboat adrift, a ship run aground or taking water, or escort duty for a major yachting event, the big red and white Coast Guard vessel is ready to go, giving an aura of security to our waters.

Retraining Boosts Economy

Manpower retraining classes held in Belleville are responsible for pumping approximately $2.5 million annually into the Quinte district economy.

This is the report of local manpower office manager H. W. Karn who Wednesday told the Belleville and District Employment Committee that nearly 300 district unemployed people were taking retraining courses to upgrade their working skills.

He said that the "payroll" for trainees who receive up to $70 per week amounts to approximately $1 million year, while the cost of school facilities and mileage paid to trainees driving more than 10 miles hourly is the over-all figure to about $2.5 million.

If manpower training classes were not held in the city and students had to go elsewhere to attend courses, the money would go out of the district, according to Mr. Karn.

Because manpower retraining students are being "paid", Mr. Karn said these people for record purposes were not considered as being unemployed.

In his report on labor market information, the Belleville Manpower office manager said that the Belleville area was "not badly off" in its rate of unemployment.

As of the end of August, six per cent of the area's 37,000 labor force was listed as unemployed.

Figures for the month end showed that 853 men were without employment with 772 women registered in the same category for a total of 1,625.

These figures compared with 1,383 men and 981 women and girls out of work as of July 31.

The reduction in the number of unemployed in the six-month period resulted from the fact that the August figure does not include job-hunting summer students who were cancelled from the list at the end of the month.

Cancellation from the employment list of students going back to school made the percentage figure of unemployment more realistic, Mr. Karn said.

Committee members were told by Mr. Karn that the student employment office, operated this year from the city recreational centre on Pinnacle Street, had been an increased success over last year with a greater number of university undergraduates and high school students being found employment.

This brought commendation from committee chair man Reginald Tucker who said the success of the centre was an indication that money provided by Canada Manpower for its operation had been well spent.

Mr. Karn, however, disclaimed any credit for the success of the student employment office. All credit was due to student counsellor Eric Ferguson and other students who helped in the office.

"I had nothing to do with it," he said. "The student counsellors ran the office on their own."

Appreciation of the employment committee will go out to city council for making accommodation at the recreational centre available for use as the student employment centre.

Mets Open Crucial Three-game Series with Pirate Leaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The wheeling National League East title fight resumes tonight with all three contenders looking, for a change, like contenders.

New York Mets, tied for second place with Chicago Cubs 3½ games behind Pittsburgh Pirates, open a three-game series with the Pirates, Cubs, meanwhile, will bewatching the numbers on the scoreboard and Philadelphia Phillies on the field.

The Pirates prepared for their showdown with New York by whipping Montreal Expos 8-0 Thursday night as Luke Walker scattered seven hits and Gene Alley drove in four runs with a triple and two singles.

Chicago moved into a second-place tie with the Idle Mets by whacking St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 on Ken Holtzman's seven-hitter.

In other games Thursday, San Diego Padres shut out Atlanta Braves 5-0, Baltimore Orioles took Detroit Tigers 7-4, Boston Red Sox edged Washington Senators 4-3 and Milwaukee Brewers dropped California Angels 7-3.

Pittsburgh and Chicago, both staggering lately, looked solid for a change Thursday. And the Idle Mets kept trying to pump some life back into their pennant hopes, rallied in the late innings for a pair of victories against Philadelphia earlier in the week.

The Pirates, who had dropped two of three to the Expos before Thursday, gave Walker plenty of offensive support, battering four Montreal pitchers for 15 hits.

Alley was the key man, singling home one of three runs the Pirates scored when they bunched five hits in the third inning. He singled another home in the sixth and then tripled for two more in the seventh.

"Everybody had doubted that we could win," said Alley. "But we're still in first place. They have to catch us."

The Mets would need a three-game sweep to accomplish that this weekend. New York and Chicago each have seven games to play and the Pirates have six.

The Cubs, who play three games in Philadelphia before finishing the season with four in New York, need their best pitching healthy by whipping the Cardinals.

Chicago shattered a 1-1 tie with four runs in the sixth inning with a bad-hop single and a bases-loaded triple by Lou Brock resulted in two more. Billy Williams' 20th hit of the season helped Chicago's two-run rally in the seventh.

Dave Roberts pitched a six-hitter and Clarence Gaston and Nate Colbert powered home runs as San Diego blanked Atlanta for the second straight night.

A pair of two-run homers in his first two swings by Tony Conigliaro carried Boston past Washington.

Paul Blair had four hits including a pair of homers as Baltimore tagged Detroit. Mike Cuellar won his 24th game.

Tommy Harper hit his 21st homer and Ted Savage drove in four runs on three hits as Milwaukee ripped California.

Sea Burial For Gretel Postponed

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — They've postponed the funeral indefinitely.

Australia's Gretel II was scheduled to be buried at sea Thursday with a fourth and final triumph by America's Intrepid to nail down the America's Cup for another three years.

Instead the Australians rose from the dead — and how — to beat Intrepid on their own backyard course and homestretch race to bring the best-of-7 match to a 3-1 score for the Americans.

It may have been the most exciting finish in all the 119 years racing for the old trophy. The result of racing luck and a racing mistake of oceanic proportion.

Intrepid's Bill Ficker took it like a skipper should. He blamed it on himself.

The one thing that isn't done in match racing such as for the cup is for a leading boat not to match every move of a trailing boat. If left uncovered, the trailing yacht can go elsewhere gambling on a wind shift or a private puff of wind to sneak by the boat ahead.

That is what happened to Gretel II when she slid past Intrepid a mile from the finish after the U.S. yacht had led all the way around the 24.3 mile triangular course and seemed a sure winner of the race and the cup.

"We felt in a medium breeze we had as good boat speed as they but did not accelerate as fast after tacking so we would cover them loosely," said Ficker. "A loose cover is good, but not too loose. On the last leg it was disastrous."

Tactical error? It was a tactical blunder," said Intrepid's cockpit genius, Steve Van Dyck.

Intrepid had a seemingly insurmountable one-minute two second lead rounding the next-to-last buoy and heading for the barn, 4½ miles upwind.

But the wind, which had been a fresh 13 knots from east northeast at the start, had weakened to about six knots. More important, it had been moving all during the race more to the east.

A windward loosely-covered boat would benefit by such a shift. Coming up the sixth and last leg, Gretel II was a windward loosely-covered boat when the wind shifted.

Bill Fesq, Gretel II's navigator, had been saying to helmsman Jim Hardy, "We're gradually losing Intrepid. we're gradually losing Intrepid."

Then his continuous report changed. "We're gradually gaining on her. Gaining on her. Do you hear a change in the message?"

Onlokers aboard the 150 or so spectator boats had already started saying their good byes to shipmates. A number had checked out of their hotels ahore.

But they as well as Hardy were getting Fesq's message.

With the wind shifting 20 degrees or more, Gretel II had a better course to the finish than the leeward Intrepid.

As both Australians and American on the spectator craft began jumping up and down and screaming, Ficker flopped on to port tack to get in position to turn again for the buoy end of finish line.

Then he realized he would cross astern of Gretel II. he tacked again and was badly headed. Hardy sailed on, tacked until he could lay the line, tacked again and crossed one minute and two seconds ahead.

The crowd loved it.

Gretel II had been a sentimental favorite for many since being disqualified after winning the record race Sunday. Had that race stood instead of being reversed as the result of a collision, the Aussies would be sitting with a 2-2 tie instead of still being deep in the hole.

Gretel II was willing to race today but Intrepid called for a lay day as the next meeting in what remains a sudden death contest will be Saturday.

Sanderson Locked Out, Provost Being Sent Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Derek Sanderson had an off day Thursday, one he'd sooner forget.

He was supposed to fly out of Montreal Thursday morning for Boston Bruins' London, Ont.-based training camp. All the flights were booked solid.

Then while waiting for an afternoon flight he heard the Bruins had suspended him.

Now the mod, flamboyant centre of the Stanley Cup champions is just sitting tight, awaiting developments between his employer, Bob Woolf of Boston, and the Bruin management.

Sanderson was in Montreal Wednesday to finish his bit part in a movie. He was given the OK to wind up his commitment by Boston coach Tom Johnson, just so long as he was back in camp Thursday.

Then came the chain of events that prompted him to sigh: "I'll just have to sit tight. My hands are tied."

"I don't know what it's all about," Sanderson said Thursday night. "They (the Bruins) have never told me I'm suspended.

"The first thing I knew about it was when a Boston writer telephoned me here to tell me about it," he said from his Montreal hotel. "I had gone to get a flight to London but the flights were all booked and I couldn't get on."

Woolf, who is negotiating a contract for Sanderson said:

"I hope they didn't act too hastily. . . . I'm very disturbed because contract talks were going well and I hope this isn't a form of intimidation."

out with Boston but refuses to play any pre-season games until his contract is settled.

Meanwhile, rumors were rampant around Montreal that veteran Claude Provost was heading for the Canadiens farm club in Montreal. Voyageurs, as playing-coach of the American Hockey League club.

The 37-year-old veteran of 1,005 regular-season games with the Canadiens is far down the list of right wingers out with the Canadiens and did not make the trip to Halifax this week.

Varsity Punter Joins Cats

TORONTO (CP) — Paul McKay, 24, halfback-punter with University of Toronto Blues, has been signed to a balance-of-season contract by Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

The move came after Ticats lost their punter, quarterback Joe Zuger, early in a 26-14 victory Wednesday night over British Columbia Lions.

McKay, drafted by the Ticats last year, attended their pre-season training camp and spelled Zuger in several games while averaging nearly 45 yards a kick.

McKay's signing drew the wrath of Varsity coach Ron Murphy on the eve of the intercollegiate football season. Murphy called the actions "of the Hamilton coach staff . . . highly unethical."

"They didn't even contact me and get permission to make him an offer."

Hamilton coach Joe Restic phoned McKay last week and offered him a contract to play with the Ticats on their two-game swing through Western Canada only.

McKay, still eligible for college ball, refused but accepted the ballon season contract offered by the Ticats Thursday.

Trenton Hopes to Break Saint Trust

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Trenton High School football players are hoping to accomplish some truth — breaking again this season and if first indications mean anything, they just might do it.

The Tigers, OCSSA champions two years ago, are the only team to interrupt a five-year reign by the Quinte Saints as Bay of Quinte senior athletic. After finishing second last season, with their only loss coming to the Saints, Trenton appears to have come up with another talent-laden team as their 77-0 pasting of Centre Hastings Thursday would seem to indicate.

Coach Tom Nigro isn't making any predictions after his team's one - sided win, however. "They (Centre Hastings) really didn't have much out there," said the stocky head coach. "We played our second - stringers quite a bit, so you couldn't really tell much by the game."

The towering Trenton lines completely dominated a small Madoc team, providing a strong pass rush and opening big holes for their backfield mates.

Nigro feels that "probably the strong part of our team is on the lines but we lack the depth we had last year. Injuries could hurt us."

The Tigers sport a well-balanced backfield that runs out of multiple sets. "We put in the power 'I' plays to take advantage of Jim Ransom's blocking, and Dan Dow's ball carrying ability", says the coach, "Dow is a good, strong ball carrier. He's no breakaway threat and he seems to loaf a little until he's hit, but he runs just as well against a good team as a poor one because he likes the contact."

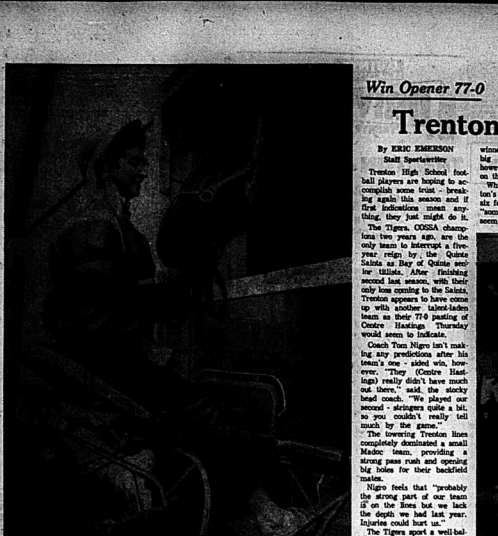
The quarterback picture still isn't completely settled, although hockey standouts Chris Long and Ted Brown are among the main candidates.

Another hockey player who is doubling as a football standout is Steve Keech. Playing in his first game Thursday, Keech showed good speed and some excellent moves as he darted through the Madoc lines for two touchdowns.

Flanker Duncan Armstrong, who makes up for some blocking deficiencies with good speed and hands, snared a pair of touchdown passes in his team's opening win.

First half touchdowns by Chris Long, Dan Dow (2), Colin Slimmon, Dean Norton, Duncan Armstrong and Jim Ransom, coupled with five conversions by Gary Keech gave Trenton a 47-0 halftime lead.

Centre Hastings only real scoring opportunity came near the end of the first half, when they moved inside the winners ten yard line. The big Trenton line stiffened however, to stop the visitors on three consecutive plays.



While a number of Trenton's linemen tower well over six feet, the coach feels that, "some of our smaller boys seem to be the most aggressive." Keith and Steve Slous stand out as bulwarks on the front line of defence.

Steve Keech scored both his majors in the second half, the final one on a 20 - yard, broken - field run that provided the game's most outstanding individual effort.

Both Trenton teams will face stiffer tests when they meet Moira Secondary School Monday. The senior Tigers stopped BCI 27-6, while the defending OCSSA champion bounced a strong Collegiate junior squad 48-6 in their opening encounters.

Getting together for a strategy session are Nida Dillard and Gloria Vance —her driver in Saturday night's "powderpuff race" on the weekly Quinte Riding and Driving Club harness racing card. The novelty has attracted six women drivers for Saturday's third race on a nine-heat card.

Faulty Connection

Trenton's Colin Slimmon goes up over a Centre Hastings defensive back only to have the ball get away from him. Not many balls eluded Weston and his teammates as they won their Bay of Quinte senior football opener 77-0. The Trenton juniors completed a banner defensive day by blanking their Centre Hastings opposition 33-0. Both teams see action Monday against Moira Secondary School.

It's Girls' Night Out At Fairground Trots

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Females have been pulling their share of sulkies at the weekly Quinte Riding and Driving Club harness meets. This Saturday night the fair sex is also going to get a chance at the reins.

"Girls" like Nida Dillard, for instance have been doing their share at the work end of the sulky. Allen Vance's 11-year-old mare has won four of her starts at the Saturday night Belleville harness meets.

This Saturday night, things will be different.

Mrs. Allen Vance, Gloria, will take Nida's reins as one of six entries in a "powderpuff" race, the first of its kind in this area.

"I haven't heard of one of these being held anywhere outside Montreal," says Quinte Riding and Driving Club vice - president Gerald Vance, who also happens to be Gloria's father-in-law. "I know for sure this is the first all - women's race on any class "B" track in Ontario."

The Belleville entry will be one of six in the field of the event, the third heat on Saturday night's nine - race card. Other drivers hail from Baltimore, Trenton, Kingston, Brighton and Stirling.

Things will be kept on 'a strictly "novelty" basis. There will be no part - mutuel privileges on the race for the simple reason the distaff drivers are all unlicensed.

That doesn't mean they don't have some horse-handlers.

"I guess I've been working horses for about ten years — as long as Allen has been keeping them," says Gloria Vance.

"It's been was any legal betting permitted on Saturday's powderpuff stakes, Gloria would have to be one of the pre-race favorites.

Husband Al is currently the leading driver at the Belleville track, with 13 firsts, 13 seconds, and 11 thirds in 46 Fairground outings this season. Son John, 18, is about to apply for his driving licence.

The Vance stable is not exactly full of underdogs, either. Nida Dillard, who will pull Gloria in the powderpuff, has won four Belleville races this season, and shared her best lifetime mile to a flat 2:10 in her second-last year of eligible racing before retirement.

"I'm really more used to Magic Flight," confides Gloria, that "bet Ruthie (Nida Dillard's stable name) has more experience."

Nervous before her first race?

"Not really. I think it'll be a lot of fun," says Gloria.

But father-in-law Gerald and the Driving Club executive don't want the girls to get carried away with their first crack at a man's game.

"We're going to split the purse equally between the girls," he says in very fatherly tones. "We want to keep them down a little so nobody'll get hurt."

Hilda Dolan Shines Among Golden Girls

Hilda Dolan was the shining star of the Bay of Quinte Country Club's "Golden Girls" Thursday.

Ena Corke (36) and Helen Lewis (37) were close behind the leader, followed by Ana Ryan, Dolly Diamond, Muriel Fawcett, Joy Bowerman, Alice Stewart, Carrie Mahoney, Gwen Sutton, Hettie Dylde, Vickie Ritchie, Gerry Carcallen, Irene Belanger, Mary McAdam Er Campbell, Betty O'Brien, and Lillian Pedlie.

The annual Golden Girls event is open to Quinte Club women who admit life begins at 40.

Volkswagen makes it big.

After 22 years of making it small, Volkswagen has built a big car.

The new VW 411.

The 411 is what happens when a team of dyed-in-the-wool Volkswagen engineers gets a chance to think big.

To begin with, they gave it four doors. And inside, they gave it more front legroom than a Lincoln Continental. (But outside, it's 4 feet shorter.)

It has a powerful air-cooled rear engine that speed is just under 100 mph.) but it still gets around 27 miles to a gallon of gas.

It has a computerized fuel injection system like the Mercedes. But it's as easy to take care of as a Volkswagen.

It's as dependable as a Volkswagen. It will last as long as a Volkswagen.

In fact, by making it big we might have also made automobile history.

Because for years everybody has been trying to build a big car that's as good as a Volkswagen.

Now somebody has. VW 411

Our backs are experienced, but small, so it's something along the lines of the Kansas City Chiefs offence, with the big linemen and their 'mini-backs'."

Three out of four from the 1963 starting backfield will be returning, including quarterback Paul Pettingill. Other offensive standouts could be six - foot five inch end Bill Barrett and centre Tom Forbes, a mainstay of the offensive line.

The coaching staff is hoping to go with separate offensive and defensive platoons, although there is a possibility that several players will be going both ways.

Goldfried considers his defensive backs the strength of the defensive platoon and along with Stewart has been placing emphasis on his inside linebackers. Defence was a nagging problem for Prince Edward last season as opponents barged across for a whopping 344 points.

Picton get their first test of the season today, when they travelled to Napanee.

Most Happy Fella Proves Pacing Point

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Most Happy Fella, a $12,000 purchase turned into pacing's newest million dollar gem, has the three-year-old pacers this season.

His three-heat win in the $160,000 Little Brown Jug Thursday gives the Meadow Skipper colt two legs of the Triple Crown and three of the Big Four.

Stan Dancer and his prize colt, before they part company Jan. 1, will shoot for a sweep of pacing's major crowns Nov. 7 in The Messenger at Roosevelt Raceway and a crack at Bret Hanover's world record of 1:55.

First comes the time trial attempt at Bret Hanover's mark at Lexington, Ky., Wednesday.

The first and third heat wins in the Jug pacified Most Happy Fella's career bankroll to $290,545 for Dancer's wife Rachael, who owns him.

The Dancer's purchased him for $12,000 as a two-year-old at the Harrisburg, Pa., sales. They sold him this week to Blue Chip Farm of Wallkill, N.Y., for $1 million effective Jan. 1.

Canada's Golfers Lie Fourth

MADRID (AP) — Steady but unspectacular play by the youngsters of the American team, Thursday lengthened the United States lead in the Eisenhower Cup world team golf championship.

Canada and New Zealand were tied in fourth spot with a total score of 434.

The young American team turned in a total of 213—three under par—for the second consecutive day.

Keith Alexander of Calgary continued to be the Canadian spearsetter, firing a 71 Thursday for a two-round total of 143.

Wayne McDonald of Oakville had rounds of 72-73 for 145, one stroke better than Gary Cowan of Kitchener whose 72 Thursday matched his opening round.

The fourth member of the Canadian contingent, Stu Hamilton of Brampton also matched his first-round score with a 75 for 150.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Sure-cure Quacks Human Vultures

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a hang-up on quacks. My mother just died of cancer. She kept going to a quack who kept promising he would cure her. She lost over $2,500, but what's more important, her life. Isn't there something you doctors can do to warn people? — Mrs. V.

Comment: I call them human vultures. But unlike the ugly birds and scavengers, quacks feed on human beings while they are still alive.

They pick your eyes out while you can still see. They look on complacently — always making their promises of "sure cures" — as cancer spreads, as a patient crippled with arthritis, as epileptic attacks sap the energy of their victims.

Since I am a physicist especially interested in preventive medicine, do you wonder that I see red at the very mentention of the word quack?

Well, at last we are beginning to fight back. No longer do we allow them to operate without counterattacking.

For example, consider an advertisement run recently by the American Medical Association in Today's Health magazine. It takes off the gloves and strikes a bare-knuckled blow against quacks. I hope that hundreds of thousands of their suffering victims will look, Look and Listen.

I quote in part from the advertisement which is headed: This Man Is A Health Swindler — Learn His Trade Secrets.

It continues: "His hallmark is fraud — his words phoney — and his cures fake. He often uses eye - appealing, ear - catching mechanical devices, mystical potions or magic pills to fool the public. Whatever his gimmick, the quack falsely promises he can diagnose and cure disease."

The American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610 is publishing a pamphlet called "Facts on Quacks." (30 cents per single copy.) If you or any family member are in doubt about what kind of treatment you are getting, sending for it will be one of the best investments you have ever made.

It tells you "about the kinds of diseases and health problems on which quackery thrives: arthritis and rheumatism, cancer, nutrition and weight control, alcoholic nostrums, treatment devices, health books and pamphlets, epilepsy, mental health, recovery, baldness, rejuvenation, sex preparations and devices."

If you have a question on quackery, "Facts On Quacks" will supply the names and addresses of the agencies you should contact.

So you see, Mrs. V., organized medicine is trying to protect the innocent from the blandishments and false promises of smooth - talking quacks.

Our problem is how to make you disbelieve those promises. Quacks thrive on the weaknesses of human nature — which become especially weak when one hasn't been helped too much by his own regular physician.

It is much easier to be convinced that help is on the way, and quickly, when a quack promises he will relieve your pain and suffering.

I don't so much blame the sick for going to quacks as I do heartless quacks themselves for taking the money and lives of the helpless without even a twinge of conscience.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Decorating Is Phoney

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Those friends of mine moved into a new apartment, and the wife, with some misgivings, called in an interior decorator for a "consultation."

What the decorator saw my friends' books, and the shelves to be put up along the front-room walls, she raised her hands in genteel horror. "You'll have to put grillwork over the bookcases," she said. "Otherwise the books will give the room too 'busy' a look."

That tore it. The decorator was hustled out of the apartment before she knew what was happening to her. And the walls were covered with books — as busy as they can be, without grillwork.

This little incident is typical, I think, of the essential shallowness and phoniness of most of those self-dubbed experts in interior decorating. They are interested in making a room look like a picture-book, for show-off purposes, not for intelligent and comfortable living.

They say that their aim is to make the house reflect the personalities of those who live there, as in the main, incapable of understanding personalities other than their own, or values in living that go deeper than the cold perfection of a rug advertisement.

Abolish these pretentious parasites, I say, and save them back to labors for which their limitations more obviously fit them — designing face Valentines, or hand-tinting Hi Mom and She pillowcases.

The word-poets decorators, in my estimation, are no better than their conventional brethren. The confusion "modern" with "startling" and mistakes sterility for simplicity. Most modern apartments planned by a decorator give me the queasy feeling that all the occupants died three weeks ago and the symbols of living were hidden in the closets.

I would no sooner let someone plan my room than pick my wife. It is essentially a personal task, and its secred character is made by its uniquity. If your taste is admittedly bad in such matters, the answer is to improve your taste through study and experiment, not to let a mercenary stranger arbitrarily decide what he thinks is best for you.

The homes that are happiest are generally a little sloppy and unconventional. A passion for neatness, precision, the exact blend and the right balance indicates a family in which the natural love of people has been transferred to the unnatural love of things.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 26

Your birthday today: A year opens of mixed influences, mostly favorable. You must just enjoy obstacles to justify planning. The most serious challenge is to your capacity to manage other people's resources, to retain savings. This year's experience will also teach you to rely on your own resources. Emotional ties go along about as they were. Today's stability is jolted, strongly attached to their homes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Working off energy on details gives you time to live past a pile of chilly surfaces in personal relationships, or shy behavior in somebody you'd like to know better.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): There is no smooth course today. Decide what to do and proceed directly. The greatest obstacle is your own doubt; you can compromise with outside opposition and still get things done.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Disconcerting news or a glum mood should not deter you. Get out and make contacts, look up friends, seek advice. There is too much to do.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Aside from money worries, your problem is your response to the moods of others. Everybody has some story to tell; it's a general phenomenon rather than a purely individual experience.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Other people cause temporary difficulties. Nothing quite answers the situation, but if you will keep busy the balance eventually tips.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Some situation of temporary imbalance is not in its course. Legalistic approaches are unsatisfactory. Pick up as best you can, get your weekend chores done.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You can't prevent your friends from unwise financial management. Keep out of the deal, promising nothing. Instead, attend to neglected chores.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Any problems now may relate to illness or weakness of others — be patient, give everybody a chance to work around limitations. Details are still important.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your urge is toward sweeping physical action when your own interests are best served by attention to essentials, serious thought on your plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The temperament of the day is to be worked off with diligence, investigation of creative approaches. Increased expenses are almost certain now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Be prepared to give more time to your home, your loved ones. There may be a health problem for somebody. Personal plans give way to the situation. Patience!

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It seems there is no end to details that come to you for action. Concentrate on the most urgent subjects first. The evening brings a turning point.

U.S. Still Hopes For Joint Peace Force

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The United States officials yet open today the possibility of a joint U.S.-Soviet force to police a settlement of the Middle East conflict, but denied the Soviet Union had shown any such interest yet. Washington with such a proposal.

The possibility of a direct peacekeeping role for the two superpowers was raised first by White House officials at a background session briefing last month. Pat. President Nixon later said it was inappropriate to discuss such possibilities.

The officials, questioned again Friday about the matter, said it was premature to talk about who should furnish units for the force.

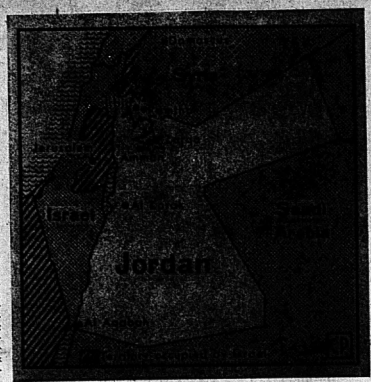
A high White House official, who could not be identified under terms of a press briefing, said the primary requirement should be that the units come from countries which serve the parties a sense of security.

He also said units of a peacekeeping force should avoid a repetition of the 1967 experience, "when at the moment they (the UN force) were most needed they were withdrawn."

"I think that with these general principles in mind we would be prepared to engage in a discussion of the concept (of a peacekeeping force)," he added.

Arab Head Charges Jordan Broke Truce

Toukan To Run Jordan



BEIRUT (Reuters) — King Hussein of Jordan formed a new government today under a civilian, Ahmed Toukan, Amman radio reported.

The new cabinet replaces the military government formed Sept. 16, a day before the king's tanks rolled into Amman to try to crush the Palestinian guerrillas. The military premier, Brig. Mohammed Daoud, resigned Friday.

The king's mandate to Toukan, a Palestinian, charged him to do everything possible to return life in the country to normal after nine days of fighting between royal troops and guerrillas and to heal regional differences between East Bank Jordanians and the Palestinians.

Toukan also will be foreign minister in the 13-man cabinet, which includes at least five soldiers.

At least five cabinet members, including the premier himself, are Palestinians.

Libya Drops Ally

From AP-REUTERS

Egypt accused King Hussein today of violating the Jordanian ceasefire and planning to liquidate Palestinian Arab guerrillas, but Hussein said his forces had observed the truce despite endless provocations.

The military government resigned Friday.

Meanwhile, the guerrillas accused the Jordanian army of murdering Palestinian wounded with machine-guns and arson in an Amman hospital, and a former Jordanian ally, Libya, broke diplomatic relations with the beleaguered monarchy.

The Jordanian army has been shelling still around Ramtha and Irbid, 30 miles north of Amman, for the last three days. Hussein said in his broadcast. The situation in Amman was calm, he added, "except for scattered incidents where the armed forces were attacked."

He charged that a number of guerrilla groups were opposed to the ceasefire and were trying to sabotage it.

The charge that Jordan had broken the ceasefire agreement was made by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser in a cable sent to Hussein and broadcast over Radio Amman. It was sent in the names of nine Arab countries whose leaders have been holding an emergency summit in Cairo.

News reports from Jordan Friday night said the fighting had ended. The round-the-clock curfew which had been in effect in Amman for more than a week was lifted for five hours daily, Radio Amman said.

However, Tel Aviv radio said information office in Beirut, Lebanon, said violent fighting broke out at dawn near Jerash today. A spokesman reported an attack by royal troops on guerrilla positions at Zarqa.

He said the fighting was for control of a highway to the road from Amman to Zarqa, 15 miles northeast of the capital.

The guerrillas retreated after having suffered heavy losses, he said. But Amman radio reported earlier that the curfew in Zarqa would be lifted today, implying that the area was in Jordanian army hands.

Nasser charged that "a horrible massacre" was going on in Jordan "in violation of all Arab and human values." The cable, drafted at a meeting attended by Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat, said Jordanian

Hussein's Kingdom In Crisis

King Hussein of Jordan faces the most serious crisis of his reign as government forces battle with Palestinian Arab guerrillas in the northwest corner of the Hashemite kingdom. The guerrilla uprising against Hussein's new military government continues with the major action taking place in Irbid, Ramtha and Zarqa.

Hostages Reported Safe

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Palestinian guerrillas said today they released 16 of their 54 air hijacking hostages Friday because the food and water they were using was needed for Palestinian children.

The Beirut, Lebanon, newspaper Hadaf, organ of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which carried out the hijacking of three Western airliners to Jordan's border with Israel, said the hostages had been released by the Front and not liberated by Jordanian troops as reported by Radio Amman.

A Swiss embassy official, however, confirmed that a 16th hostage, Max Jost, had been found by troops in Amman's Wahdat refugee camp Friday. He joined 37 hostages —all Americans but some of them with dual Israeli nationality— and 21 guerrilla fighters.

Hadaf said:

The fact that the hostages have remained alive in the sea of death and destruction experienced by our people means that the Popular Front has exerted every effort to protect their lives in the midst of barbaric and ruthless shelling by the royal troops.

The newspaper said that the confirmation by the International Committee of the Red Cross that the hostages were in good health "indicated the kind of treatment given them in the midst of conditions similar to famine."

The newspaper added:

This does not free Britain, Switzerland (or) West Germany from their responsibility for releasing the Arab guerrillas detained in these countries and this does not indicate a change in the previous conditions of the Front."

Prints Identify Youth

SEATTLE (CP) — Police Friday night finally pinned the right name on a young Ontario man behind bars here today charged with kidnapping a Vancouver man in a land and sea chase that followed a bank robbery in downtown Victoria Thursday.

RCMP headquarters in Victoria identified the suspect as Berkhard Bateman, 19, an Ontario resident for the past nine years and believed to be originally from Hamburg, Germany. Although police had earlier said he lived in Belleville his home town is Mountfield, Ont.

When taken into custody early Friday morning aboard a U.S. Coast Guard cutter after three persons were held hostage aboard a sailboat, the youth identified himself to American authorities as Rory Smyrne.

Prior to his arrest, Canadian police had been referring to the suspect as William Lawrence Olenik, 20, a man who escaped from a minimum security institution in British Columbia earlier in the month.

An RCMP spokesman said Friday night a tentative identification naming the man Olenik was released because of radio broadcasts the police hoped would persuade the man to surrender.

Bateman, a laborer was identified through fingerprints forwarded to RCMP headquarters in Ottawa by police officials here.

Bateman was being held in lieu of 6,000 cash bail. The real Olenik, who escaped from William Head minimum security prison near Victoria, is still at large.

Bateman is charged here with kidnapping Roger Smith, 49, of Vancouver, one of the three hostages. Friday afternoon, a charge of armed robbery between one before a justice of the peace in Victoria.

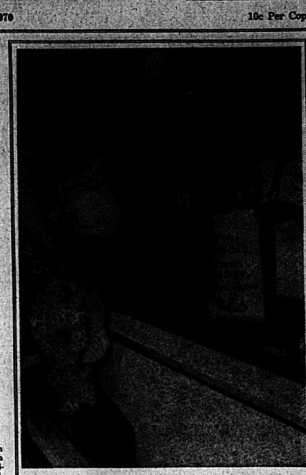
Russians Building Sub Base In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States defence department disclosed evidence Friday of what it said appears to be a submarine support base under construction in the harbor at Cienfuegos, Cuba, possibly for use by missile-firing Russian subs now positioned in the Atlantic.

Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said that "while we have seen activity along this line as far as Cuba is concerned, it is a little early to determine the extent of Russian naval" involvement there.

White House officials quickly responded by saying the U.S. "would view the establishment of a strategic base in the Caribbean with utmost seriousness." However, no diplomatic representations have been made to Moscow.

Officials here immediately drew a parallel with the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, when President John F. Kennedy said peace in the Caribbean could be preserved if Soviet offensive weapons were removed from the area and kept out in the future.



The magnitude of the new naval development in Cuba is not the same as eight years ago, when Russia placed offensive missiles on the island 90 miles from the U.S. mainland.

At that time, the Soviets had no Polaris-type missile-firing submarines. Today, with 12 nuclear-powered submarines armed with 16 missiles each and 15 more subs under construction, the Soviets can strike deep inside the United States without the need for land-based missiles in Cuba.

A support base would enable the Russians to keep more submarines on station for longer periods of time without the need for returning to home ports for servicing and resupply. U.S. Polaris subs use bases at Holy Loch, Scotland, Rota, Spain, and on the Pacific island of Guam for this purpose.

Information on the Russian activity at Cienfuegos came from American U-2 reconnaissance planes, the same aircraft which furnished the first evidence of Russian missiles in Cuba Oct. 24, 1962.

Although no submarines now are in Cienfuegos, Friedheim said, a submarine tender and three other Soviet ships are anchored in the harbor. The vessels are part of a Soviet naval force which arrived in the Caribbean earlier this month.

The Message is The Thing

Belleville's United Appeal is campaigning to get its message across to the public. A catchy innovation this year saw the A & P supermarket print a campaign slogan on its shopping bags, one of which Mrs. Joyce Turner is filling for Mrs. Lyle Martin. The campaign, starting Monday, has already received $30,573 in corporate and individual advance donations.

PM Says Greediness Reason for Unemployment

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Friday blamed greediness on the part of big business and organized labor for Canada's high unemployment.

In a question-and-answer session at the annual convention of l'Association des Hotels du Canada — the association of French-language weekly newspapers of Canada — Mr. Trudeau said exorbitant price increases and wage demands have left a large number of Canadians without jobs.

About 250 publishers and their wives attended the meeting. He said the federal government has taken upon itself the role of defender of the "little man" against the large, powerful segments of society — "and that means big unions, not only big companies."

"If there is high unemployment, it's because labor and business haven't co-operated voluntarily," he said.

By balancing its budget and reducing the amount of money in circulation, the federal government had done its part, but business and organized labor had not eased their demands on the economy.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul turned 73 today, but for the second year in a row he planned no birthday celebration. Vatican sources said the pontiff has been deeply saddened by the bloodshed in Jordan and is even less inclined to make his birthday a festive occasion than he might have been otherwise.

Grim Reapers Jailed

CALGARY (CP) — An immediate appeal will be launched against the non-capital murder conviction of 13 men charged following the death of a motorcycle gang president, defence lawyers said Friday.

The men, all but two members of the Grim Reapers motorcycle club, were the largest group ever convicted in a single murder case in Canada, a justice department source said.

They were brought to trial in Alberta Supreme Court after Ronald George Hartley, 23, leader of the Outcasts motorcycle club, died March 7.

Evidence during the five-day trial indicated he died after one of the accused hit him on the head with a length of chain during a confrontation between the gangs on a rural road southeast of the city.

The jury was out for almost nine hours before they returned their guilty verdict Friday and Mr. Justice Neil Primrose passed the mandatory life sentences.

As he passed sentence one of the 11 jurors shook his head and the judge asked him why he had done so.

"My Lord, I just don't understand this. What was the charge?"

"The charge was murder," the judge replied.

"No, I mean the sentence, Your Lordship."

Guild's Masked Ball Season's Gala Opener

Amid the dazzling lights of Club Cedars, the Belleville Theatre Guild's first masked ball, imbibed in the haunted strains of Gordie Jones and his band.

This gala event marked the opening of the guild's 1970-71 season, with a provocative, new resident director, and new plans for a year planned to involve the whole community.

The theatre guild, is seeking the Quinte district's one of those interested in both artful endeavors and community involvement, has planned a series of events throughout the year, the ball being the first.

Although Mrs. Russell Scott and Mayor J. Russell Scott sent a telegram en route to Ireland to guild president Frank Seymour, they sent best wishes and success in the new year.

Close to 300 people filtered into the small hours of the morning following a buffet supper.

For the past three months Mrs. Rene Robertson, and committee of guild members have been preparing for last evening. To mark the occasion, specially designed cards were offered to guests and booklets of programs and ticket were offered at reduced rates.

Mr. Seymour termed the evening "a wonderful success" and offered his thanks and congratulations to all involved, from "the organizers to the one responsible for the table decorations."

They Had a Ball

Dancing to the strains of Gordie Jones band at Club Cedars last night were close to 200 guests and members of the Belleville Theatre Guild. The masked ball was the first in a new season of community-oriented events.

BGH Emergency Unit To Advertise Services

Belleville General Hospital's emergency department is just that — a unit to cope with emergencies.

But many city-area residents regard it as an out-patients' unit, included in the administration believes.

It's a fine point of difference the BGH board of governors yesterday decided to emphasize at the community unit.

The move, prompted by the hospital's medical staff, comes in the wake of a published complaint from a Belleville man who sought treatment for a cold at the emergency department.

The mounting case load processed by the emergency unit — 14,805 for the first six months of the year compared to 21,200 for all 1969 — has increasingly perplexed the BGH administration in recent months.

A major contributing factor is believed the increasing number of newly - arrived district residents without family doctors and medical attention at the unit.

The citizen's complaint published in a letter to the editor in Thursday's Intelligencer, voiced a belief of the attitude of the physician called to treat him.

Dr. D.A. Scott told the board there were clear indications that people were not using the emergency department for emergencies.

Dalkia teaching hospitals in large centres, the BGH unit was not an out-patients' unit, he said.

Mayor Dr. Russell Scott said social mobility was a contributing factor. Many newly-arrived Belleville residents came from large centres where hospitals operate definitely-defined out-patients' units and people "are used to this kind of service."

He believed it "unfair" that such people were not told the difference.

At the same time, "the medical profession goes out of its way to help people who wander in (to the emergency unit) all hours of the day or night."

Both board chairman Magr. J. P. Sullivan and Ald. Enos David pondered the need for an out-patient facility.

"It's impossible," said Mayor Scott "because the Ontario Hospital Services Commission doesn't regard this as a teaching hospital and they would not provide the money necessary."

Ald. Gerald Joyce, who has repeatedly at board meetings stressed the need for more community practitioners, warned the problem "is compounding itself with more people arriving in the city."

Mayor Scott said doctors now must form a group to ensure medical attention to any patient whose family doctor was not immediately available.

Dr. R. S. Berry said the board should issue a statement on the situation, so that a doctor should not be "harangued unfairly" through a newspaper.

The governors decided to advertise the emergency unit's service and what situations it was designed to cope with.

Accident Cuts Hydro

Hydro service in the Redmondville area was interrupted for about 1½-hours this morning when a car "went out of control and crashed into a hydro pole on the Rossmore-Carrying Place county road.

Provincial police at Picton said the accident, Wednesday, suffered head cuts while approximately $1,000 damage resulted to the 1966 sedan.

The accident occurred about 6:30 under foggy conditions.

Hussein

assurances that Hussein's commanders would observe the ceasefire were "completely broken and devoid of any real validity."

The cable said a delegation of four Arab leaders headed by Sudanese President Jaafar Al-Nimeiry reported after returning from their ceasefire mission in Jordan that there was "a decision on the part of Jordan-Jan authorities to continue the fighting despite all attempts to halt the bloodshed."

The message appeared to place blame for all attempts to halt the bloodshed."

Hussein said his troops abided by the ceasefire and will continue to abide by this decision in the face of intolerable provocations by perverted elements of the Palestinian resistance movement."

But guerrilla chieftain Arafat, whirled from Cairo to Amman last night to join the Arab summit meeting in Cairo, urged his men today to stand fast in the face of the Jordanian army if they did not want the same fate as children and wounded, reports he said were "butchered" by soldiers at the Amman hospital.

Arafat said in a statement broadcast over Palestine radio that the "group of criminals" who attacked Ashrafiya Hospital after the ceasefire. Friday had "used submachine-guns to mow down the wounded and axes to decapitate the children."

Transport Commission Hearing To Open Here Next Monday

The Canadian Transport Commission hearing into three mid-summer train accidents — one near Brockville, and the other two in the Port Hope—Cobourg area — will move to Belleville next week.

The commission this week has been investigating a CN accident near Brockville on August 7 in which one man was killed and well reopen in the Hastings county courthouse to hear evidence on the Cobourg area derailments.

The Belleville hearing is expected to take about a week.

A 31 car derailment of a Canadian Pacific freight train on July 26 at Cobourg resulted in the death of a railway employee. On Aug. 6 a CN derailment of 14 freight cars occurred at Port Hope.

Friday at Ottawa, the Commission was told that the conman crew of a truck motor car probably never saw or heard the high speed CN Rapido train that overtook their car near Brockville Aug. 7.

Testifying at the hearing, E. J. Wolin, CN track supervisor for the Brockville area, said the men in the gasoline powered vehicle "would not hear a train whistle" when their own vehicle was operating.

Killed in the accident was J. M. Arcand of Brockville, temporary head foreman of a patrol crew. The other occupant of the car, F. W. Charland of Brockville has been unable to attend the hearings because of injuries suffered in the accident.

After investigating the three specific accidents, the commission will make a more general inquiry into the factors preventing or causing railway accidents.

Apple Crop Looks Good

PICTON (Staff) — "As sure as God made little green apples" that's the way Mr. Edward County orchards are opening with heavy yields of MacIntoshes, Spies and Delicious.

Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist for the Ontario dept. of agriculture in this county, said yesterday that early predictions of a 25 per cent drop in the apple crop this year have been changed showing a figure of an expected 4 per cent decrease instead.

He explained that last year's crop was a heavy one and it was not considered likely that the abundant crop would repeat itself this fall. In 1969 a total production of 360,- 822 bushel of apples of all varieties was recorded for Prince Edward. This year the dept. of agriculture has predicted a final figure of 341,- 411 bushels.

Although a 9 per cent drop in the total number of bushels of MacIntosh apples is expected this year, the Delicious yield is predicted to be a 9 per cent higher. An impressive increase of approximately 75 per cent is estimated for the Spy apple yield.

Mr. Cobbledick remarked, "Some farmers feel it will be the biggest Spy crop in 15 years." The fact that the Spy grows on a biennial tree is believed to be one explanation for this fall's large crop increase. "We hit a year when all the trees are producing," pointed out the fruit specialist.

In contrast with the "on again, off again" trend of the Spies, MacIntosh apple trees annually bear approximately 75 per cent of their potential. The consistency of these trees, coupled with a rise in production figures for Delicious and Spy apples promises a pretty good crop from these three main varieties" according to Mr. Cobbledick.

Incidental apple crops have dropped in their production figures. Early varieties such as Snows and Wealthies represent smaller crops not considered factors in the marketing field.

Mr. Cobbledick reported that this fall apples are not coloring well because of warm weather accompanied by cloudy days. "Red apples," he added, "are the result of cold nights and sunny days." He pointed out that color is not related to the quality of an apple although consumers prefer "rosy, red apples" popularized in favor of other varieties such as Russets.

Spot picking already is underway in Waupoos, Redners ville and South Bay and Mr. Cobbledick suggested that most fruit growers will try to finish picking in their orchards by Oct. 10.

Prince Edward County fruit growers who have taken brush ed apples to Edgewater Canners for juice in former years this fall can deal with an out-of-county buyer. The closing of the factory, announced this month, had raised the question of where farmers would market juice apples in future. Mr. Cobbledick reported that an outside buyer has contacted a number of local fruit growers, offering to purchase juice apples. He noted "In the past a fair per cent of Prince Edward County's apples went to Edgewater." The factory is phasing out of the county to relocate with a sister operation in Weston.

Horticulturists Hold Meeting

PICTON — The Gananoque Horticultural Society recently was host for the annual meeting of nine area societies.

The district societies voted to invite the Ontario Horticultural Association to Queen's University in Kingston to hold the 1972 convention.

Delegates from all over Ontario would number approximately 800.

At the meeting, election of officers saw Robert Patterson of Belleville, re-elected district director. Mrs. Gerald Scott of Gananoque will serve as secretary and W. F. Barber of Napanee as district treasurer.

E. R. Garwood of Kingston was guest speaker for the meeting talking about the plant family tree.

'Preemies' A Belleville Specialty

Premature babies born in the Belleville area outnumber the average, Belleville General Hospital board of governors learned yesterday.

The observation was made by Carl Bateman, Hastings chairman of the hospital's finance committee, as he explained equipment purchases for the hospital nursery.

Some 10 per cent of babies born in the Belleville area are premature — compared to an average 6-7 per cent, said Mr. Bateman.

Artistic Engineer Can Be Selective

By BARRY GRELLS
Staff Reporter

"J. H. A. Lassing is a practising consulting engineer with a passion for the arts."

Not satisfied with slide rule and drafting board he combines his talents in "simply, line drawings, makes bolts of molten steel grow into the faces of an old man, paints fanciful landscapes where man struggle and objects wait for liberation."

So reads the program for a Tony Lassing exhibition of paintings and sculptures that is being held at Jazi Exhibition Ltd. in Stratford. The exhibition began June 8 and is continuing through Oct. 10.

Indeed, Mr. Lassing is a consulting engineer with a passion for the arts.

He has once again come to the notice of Belleville Theatre buffs, having designed the set for the Belleville Theatre Guild's first production this season, Thousand Clowns, which opens Sept. 30 and runs for two weeks.

During the production, Mr. Lassing will exhibit many of his paintings and some sculpture, an extra advantage of Thousand Clowns when it opens at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

"Of course I'm prejudiced; he did the cuts for a limited edition of my poems, which were written in Europe, and it's as if he'd been looking over my shoulder in Greece, Italy and Turkey, seeing the same things I was seeing."

These were the written words of Canada's famous poet, Al Purdy, who, like Mr. Lassing, works in or near the perimetre of Trenton.

Mr. Lassing did the art-work for a limited edition of poems by Mr. Purdy, entitled The Quest for Gunn, a book of which there were only 70 copies printed.

Tony Lassing was born in Amsterdam in 1928. He was raised and attended school there and obtained a mechanical engineer's degree.

He's been around having traveled through a goodly portion of Europe, North Africa and even under the sea on submarine duty.

In 1954 he came into Canada and set up his home in Hamilton for half a year, but employment opportunities there were scarce and he moved to Trenton where, two years later, he set up his own drafting business with a partner.

"I've painted since I was 13, starting with water colors and then oils," Mr. Lassing said.

His formal education in art has been sparse, save for a correspondence course in anatomy. In art he is 'self-educated.'

He frequently travels to theatrical and art events in Toronto and New York, besides keeping up with his skill.

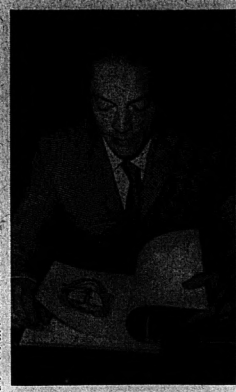
Belleville Theatre Guild executive member, James Alexander, introduced Mr. Lassing to the guild during Thurber's Carnival a number of years ago.

Despite original doubts about amateur theatre, Mr. Lassing was hooked and worked with the guild designing sets for The Importance of Being Ernest, The World of Carl Sandburg and the Diary of Anne Frank.

Fuel of his success in the field of set design comes from his training as an engineer. Not only can he design a set but he can also consider the feasibility of its construction due to his knowledge of structures.

Mr. Lassing will only design sets for plays he feels he can "get his teeth into."

"I can afford to be choosy. I only take the ones I like," he said.



His paintings and sculpture have been shown in amateur exhibitions all over eastern Ontario. He has had two pictures shown in the Spring Exhibition at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Spending an average of 40 hours a week as an engineer and 40 hours a week as an artist, he finds the difference between an amateur and a professional as the amount of time put into the work.

His paintings always have a link with life around him and in "liberating objects", he sometimes will put a piece of furniture in a landscape, for example a sofa in a painting of a forest.

He worked for The Trentonian once and his drawings appeared in editions of that newspaper in a section called, Anthony Lassing's Scrapbook.

Tony Lassing has been around and he'll be around for awhile yet.

Quinte Area Industries Receive ODC Loans

Hinterland Handcrafts Ltd. of Bancroft, manufacturers of leathercraft souvenirs and costume jewellery, has been granted a $23,032 forgiveable loan by the Ontario Development Corporation to expand its business and enter the export trade.

The loan to the Bancroft firm was one of 10 loans totalling more than $1 million granted to companies planning to locate in slow growth areas.

Another loan of interest to the Quinte district is in one for $21,200 to the Knight Manufacturing Company Ltd. of Brighton, makers of stainless steel and aluminum products.

Hinterland Handcrafts at Bancroft grew out of the inability of a Combermere tourist resort operators Carl and Helen Pitts to acquire typical Canadian souvenirs for the tourist trade.

As result Mr. and Mrs. Pitts set up their own leathercraft business which has developed into a cottage industry employing approximately 40 persons.

The firm's souvenirs and costume jewellery are now sold coast to coast.

Plans are to consolidate the industry at Bancroft and go into the export trade.

Newspaperboys Learn What Schools Can't Teach

A young man who delivers a newspaper route learns a lot that many other youths miss. And these lessons of experience "sink in" faster and better than any classroom lecture.

A newspaperboy learns to become independent because he's running his own business. Route management also offers him a range of practical experience in handling people, learning the value of money, keeping records and developing efficiency and self-assurance.

All these things books can't teach . . . but a newspaper route does. That's why many school officials endorse route training as a valuable adjunct to formal education.

Neighbor Says Graveyard Not Haunted

A Foxboro resident who has lived directly across from the graveyard for 20 years has announced to a claim that the Foxboro Cemetery is haunted one night each year.

The claim of the Foxboro graveyard being haunted was made to a Toronto reporter.

"I've never heard anything in the graveyard that was not alive," said Mrs. Walter Johnston when she was told of the midnight ghosts.

However, she does recall a car stopping one night with the occupant getting out and abandoning a car by the graveyard fence.

One other time a station wagon stopped during the night and two men entered the graveyard.

Curious as to what the men wanted in the graveyard at night, Mrs. Johnston kept morning investigated and found they had placed a footstone at one of the graves.

Wage Demands Worry Hospital

Pay increases being initially sought by office and technical employees at Belleville General Hospital are causing administrative concern.

Meantime, conciliation is being sought in negotiations with operating engineers at the hospital, acting administrator John Kunetsky told the NGH board of governors yesterday.

Pay increases initially requested for office workers and laboratory and X-ray department technical staff by the Service Employees International Union are causing a "great deal of concern," Mr. Kunetsky said.

"I don't know where the money is going to come from," Mr. Kunetsky said.

He explained later that hospital expenditures for the year are "quite restricted" by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission. The union is seeking "substantial increases," said Mr. Kunetsky.

About 130 employees, organized into the union in recent months, are involved, said the acting administrator.

Meantime, the current contract with the Operating Engineers Union expires Sept. 30. The hospital administration now has applied for conciliation in hopes of reaching a settlement with the group, he said.

An Appeal to Belleville and Picton Industries

The Wellington plant of Quinte-Canlin Limited is being forced to close down on September 30, 1970, because the milk allocated to it is not sufficient to warrant continued operation.

Some 30 employees will lose their jobs.

This is a matter of great regret and concern to the company which is now trying to assist its staff in the search for employment elsewhere.

Quinte-Canlin Limited asks the co-operation of local industries in placing these reliable men and women. Please address your enquiries to the plant manager, Mr. Ray Lennox, Wellington, telephone 399-3334.

Your sympathetic interest and active help in this regrettable situation will be greatly appreciated.

Separate School Issue

The situation whereby the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board is without the services of a superintendent, because of the suspension of F. B. Allore, has now reached the point where public disquiet cannot be ignored.

Board chairman E. J. Buckley has indicated the board expects resolution of the issue before December. But what exactly is going on? What, in short, is the issue involved? Mr. Buckley's statement that it is a "highly-emotionally-charged issue, that all the facts are not public knowledge, that it is not in Mr. Allore's best interests to publish the facts," serves only to becloud the situation still further.

Thursday's report in The Intelligencer afforded ample evidence of intrigue and efforts to cloak the facts. However, a ratepayers' delegation to the board is indicative of mounting public concern. The delegation learned that Mr. Allore's salary of about $500 a week, which had been paid as usual since his suspension in May, had been terminated as from Sept. 1.

The air of mystery over the affair was compounded further by Education Minister William Davis' testy "No Comment" when queried on the subject during a visit to Belleville two weeks ago.

"I don't want to talk about that at all," he added. Well if the minister is not talking, someone else — either in Toronto, or in Belleville — must eventually. The issue is not just going to resolve itself.

There is some encouragement toward a remedy in the statement issued by school trustee Magr. J. P. Sullivan. Opposed to the suspension of Mr. Allore in the first place, Magr. Sullivan charges that the problem is of the board's own making.

Calling for withdrawal of the suspension, his statement notes that "the plight of this board grows worse day by day. We were led to believe that the charges against the superintendent were so substantial that the department of education would quickly approve of our action. It has not, giving great credibility to the contrary view that they were without substance. . ."

The statement goes on to say that present legislation covering the relationship of boards with their chief executive officer is "archaic," and that it undoubtedly will be changed, "establishing grievance procedures that are just and fair."

There is some hint here, between the lines, as to differences of opinion between the board and Mr. Allore, but beyond that the full facts are at present being kept from the public. Now the matter is beyond the point of no return and it must be resolved somehow.

Magr. Sullivan's motion offers one possible solution, but in the ultimate the real arbiter is the Department of Education. A decision by the department, one way or another, at this time, would be in the interests of all.

Hitchhicking

We had not been aware that $20 fines were being handed out anywhere as a means of curbing hitchhiking, but it would appear this is the case in Hamilton. The Spectator quotes a young mother as saying teenagers and their parents should not complain about such fines, if they help discourage youngsters from what it describes as a "dangerous practice."

Seven provinces, incidentally, prohibit soliciting of car rides, but then the law in this regard is seldom enforced.

Lately it seems that hitchhiking has tapered off considerably in the Belleville area, although one does see the occasional thumb seeking a ride for its owner. The other day a young woman stood on the side of the road in the city end of Zwick's Island, her hand out, and it seemed a surprising thing for her to do for she did not look like the usual breed of hitchhiker.

One way or another hitchhiking is not an estimable practice. It has been demonstrated often enough to be dangerous, not only from a traffic flow standpoint, but from the fact that it can lead to undesirable contacts, injury and even death.

It's A 'Float-Out'

The Esso Ulidia, a 253,000-ton tanker built by Harland and Wolff Ltd. of Belfast, is the first vessel ever to be floated out of a building dock in the United Kingdom. Despite its size the vessel draws only 14 feet of water unloaded and is thus susceptible to movement in windy conditions. The launching was twice postponed because of the weather. To facilitate the launching, 120 million gallons of water were pumped into the dock and six tugs were used to tow the vessel to its fitting-out berth. Construction of a sister ship was started in the same dock after the surplus water was pumped out again.

Efficient . . . Courteous

Another Look at Hospital Care

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Mr. McKimon's letter provokes me to present the other side of the coin concerning hospital emergency care and doctors' treatment at Belleville General Hospital. A month ago I had occasion to rush my 11-year-old daughter to the emergency ward suffering fever, severe abdominal pains and vomiting. She was placed in bed, her temperature was taken and a doctor was called by the emergency ward nurse on duty.

I had not previously met the doctor who examined our child, and who then asked permission to consult a surgeon who examined her again. Both agreed that all symptoms seemed to indicate an inflamed appendix. I had never met the surgeon previously, either. Our family doctor was contacted at his holiday cottage and arrived in time to administer the anesthetic for surgery at 2 a.m. Meantime, blood tests were taken, case history and admitting forms filled out.

The whole procedure was courteous, competent and an excellent example of a well-run hospital emergency department. During the course of her pre-op preparation three out-of-town accident victims were brought in and treated. At no time was any one criticized or berated for disturbing either doctors or nurses. All were given the same efficient care as my daughter received, which by the way, lasted through another entire stay in hospital.

Everyone is subject to an "off" day, and perhaps the doctor who treated Mr. McKinnon was experiencing one. This of course, does not excuse rudeness, while it may explain it.

However, when people move to a new area, one of the first things they should do is to locate a family doctor and dentist. Their home town doctor will usually recommend a colleague in the new city they are moving to, or if not this, then a call to the local hospital will provide the new residents with names of doctors to contact for regular care. Most medical men are grossly overworked and deserve all the rest and relaxation they can get during their short holiday.

One does get wake a furniture store owner at 2 a.m. because one is experiencing insomnia due to an uncomfortable mattress. To disturb a doctor any time after regular hours for anything less than a real emergency is not quite cricket.

ORCHIDS TO HIS NURSES AND MEDICAL STAFF

Toward Pollution-free Cities

Montreal Gazette

Car manufacturers say they can not produce pollution-free automobile engines even by 1976. City residents, out of patience with growing confrontation from automotive exhausts, are not prepared to wait that long for relief. If cars can not be made pollution - free, then the cities will continue to search for means to free themselves of the car, truck and bus.

The prohibition of vehicular traffic in the downtown areas is becoming increasingly popular. New York's experience this summer, when large sections of 59th Ave. were blocked off from traffic for days at a time, was so successful that the city is studying ways of extending this approach.

By prohibiting cars from downtown Montreal the city would rid itself of much air pollution. It would regain valuable space for pedestrians. There would be no more worries over the growing scarcity of land available for street and parking lot expansion.

Montreal's first venture, the Mount Royal Ave. mall, is a step in the right direction, but a hesitant one that can not be expected to prove much. What Montreal needs is a bolder concept, along the lines of that which produced Place Ville Marie. Such an approach might include the area from Mansfield to the edge of the Phillips Square, from Maisonneuve to Cathcart.

Above ground a mall would replace streets with open plaza-like expanses where ornamental lamps, benches, fountains, flowers and greenery could be installed. In winter, sheltered walk-ways with windbreaks and radiant heating could be set up.

Makes Bad Worse

Vancouver's Confusing Traffic Signs

Vancouver Sun

It hardly seems possible that the symbol signs telling motorists where to get off have been a part of our Vancouver landscape for three years. And the reason it hardly seems possible is that less than half of them are still being fooled by the most eminent symbol of all — the unabated common sense of man — or that way above our mere city intersections.

This confusion is not the fault of the symbol itself. The idea of traffic signs which are uniform throughout the country and which surmount the language barrier is a good one. And, slow learners though we may be, our failure to be triggered into a Pavlovian reflex by childish pictures after three years' exposure to them would be embarrassing, if that were all there was to it.

It isn't. Because a picture is not always worth a thousand words — nor when the picture doesn't necessarily mean what it seems to mean and has to be explained in the new language of a large proportion of city directional signs carry a postscript. Under the pictorial interdict, hedging the simple childish symbol with this qualification and that exception, are reputed to be the pools of absurdity.

In theory, the addition of a written message in letters four inches high — sometimes there are two messages, riding piggy-back — to suggest correctly a sign meaning 34 inches by 21 inches makes sense to traffic engineers. A tab of a size that would be half-way readable, they say honestly, would not only lead to be over-loaded, but would "compete with the symbol itself." Perhaps so. But to motorists who find themselves approaching the riddle of the intersection, there should be something the matter if its doubt don't make the matter worse.

Perhaps the engineers think this is practical advice, we don't. But we know about messages consist in forming the average motorist, he is going to groan and he will be by-passing conference. At that, he probably be less of a menace than the motorist who drives blindly until the orbit of the engineers is writ large enough to see.

There are enough dangers and inconveniences in big city traffic without superimposing directional matter suited to optometrists' charts.

Poachers Menace African Game

Threatened with Extinction

Brian Tetley in the Globe and Mail

The Game Department of... ficial in Nairobi picked up a handful of leopard skins a and said: "Look at these. Barely full grown and yet the poachers had to kill them." His brave them down in disgust and walked out of the sale room as auctioneers called for bids for 3,500 pounds of ivory. The bidding was brisk. Two hours after that the sale room was empty, the Game Department had made $19,600 but Kenya's the poorer by 25 elephants, 24 leopards, 18 cheetahs and an assortment of lesser known but rarer species of game.

Poaching has become a big industry in East Africa. the Game Department says. The secret caches uncovered by wardens in their fight against this illicit trade. Nearly every week tourists flock to the Kenya Game Department's Nombasa auction room to bid for ivory, leopard and cheetah skin, rhino horn and buffalo head. One small leopard skin recently sold for $312. Elephant tusks sold for an average of $3 a pound. On the black market those trophies command double the price. The trophies confiscated by Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania last year represent less than 1 per cent of all illegal kills. Yet the average turnover at the frequent auctions is between $75,000 to $125,000. Thus the incentive for the poachers is at least $60 million a year.

Poachers in East Africa are so highly organized that experts predict the end of the life of the lordly and the cheetah within the next decade. "Many other species are also threatened," an expert says. "The elephant, rhino, buffalo and lion will all become extinct within the next 50 years unless something is done to stop this slaughter." One fleet-footed Somali with a poisoned spear can make $500 in a night — simply by killing a lion, but elephant and rhino-poaching the ivory to a contact. Now poachers deal openly in gangs of 30 in four-wheel-drive vehicles, with automatic weapons and explosives, stocks of poison and wire snares.

In Kenya's Northern Frontier District gang specializes in leopards: laying out 25 steel traps in a single line, they may catch five a night. In the morning they club the cats to death to avoid damaging the skins. The area in which they have worked, around Meru and Marsabit, has been so systematically exploited that five hundred of square miles there is no fauna.

Wardens touring the Turkana area of the Northern Frontier Desert found 25 water holes had been bodytrapped for leopard. The cat released a rock poised above as it entered the trap and its back was broken, leaving it to die in agony. One gang in the no-man's land between the village and the borders of Thavo National Park slaughtered an entire elephant herd by poking a water hole. Of the 32 beasts which died, including young, only 14 had tusks worth mentioning.

Between 1950 and 1970 more than 10,000 wire snares were confiscated in Serengeti. Last year wardens recovered more than 3,000 snares.

City Auditor F. H. Mac Fadden at a joint meeting of city council and the Board of Governors for Belleville General Hospital, held at the city hall council chambers presented his auditor's report of the financial condition of the hospital as of June 30 of this year. The report, which was requested by city council some months ago, covered all phases of hospital operation and took Mr. McFadden over 2½ hours to present. There was no discussion on the report either by members of council or the board of governors. The meeting was adjourned by Mayor H. J. Allin at the conclusion of the auditor's report.

New Zealand attained Dominion status 40 years ago today—in 1907—although it did not seek powers to amend its own constitution until 1947. At the start of the century under the Liberal-Labor government, New Zealand was a pioneer in political reform. Between 1893 and 1898 it introduced universal suffrage for men and women, abolished plural-ion courts, graduated income tax, established old-age pensions and the eight-hour working day.

Common Factor For Both

U. S. Influence on French and English in Canada

Montreal Le Devoir—While the last few years have seen the development among French-Canadians of a new type of nationalism centred on Quebec, three parallel currents of thought and action have materialized among English-Canadians:

1. Many are giving an ear to the gripes and aspirations of French Canada, and most recognize the existence of Quebec's political and linguistic problems.

2. Symptoms of impatience can be seen in certain regions, mainly the West, on the questions of cost sharing and distribution of benefits within the federal system.

3. A strong assertion of our Canadian identity vis-a-vis our American neighbor is shaping up in universities, the news media, unions and the world of business. . . .

(The third) is the current that has shown the most activity in recent years and which lends itself most to concrete action.

After having practised an energetic economic nationalism under Macdonald, English-Canadians grew lax under Laurier. . . .

Nationalism regained its vigor with the Diefenbaker mission in the early 1950s, but it was largely social and political. . . . This still has some adherents among English-Canadians but it has been replaced in recent years by a nationalism more urgent, more radical and more global. . . .

A new generation of economists, sociologists, journalists, historians, political scientists, artists and social milieus has applied itself to a systematic study of the Canadian reality. . . .

Between the nationalisms of English-Canadians and Quebecers there exist some common aspects which should be cultivated. Even if Quebec some day separates from Canada, it would be beneficial that before this break, men of good intention on both sides get together to work for common aims, to know one another better and to appreciate their respective motivations. . . .

The tissue of everyday French-Canadian life is more impregnated with the American influence than we are willing to admit. A strong economic program and the problems which the U.S. presence creates are for us as much concern as for English-Canadians. . . .

We can always make use, tomorrow, of that freedom which we have managed to preserve But it is more difficult to recover that which we have sold for a dish of beans.

Being Woman Is No Drawback To Methodist Church Minister

By ELMA RELL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The members of East Brewton and Cedar Hill United Methodist churches have welcomed their new pastor—a woman, Rev. Miss Jean Spikes has never found being a woman a drawback to her work.

"In my secretarial history, there may have been some slight barriers for a lady minister," she says, "but they deteriorated. I have always received a warm welcome."

Miss Spikes has been in the ministry 22 years and her only regret is that she did not answer the call sooner. "My work is not just a profession, it is very definite call. The call came early in my life, but I would not accept it because of my desire to go into the field of medicine.

Her life has been meaningful and rewarding. "I feel as if I have been useful," she says.

"I left the pastorate after 16 years to become an evangelist," she says. "I traveled in seven foreign countries with teams from the Oriental Missionary Society preaching in their churches throughout the world. I have also lecturing in their seminaries. In the United States, I have preached in some 30 or 35 states holding over 200 revivals in a period of 12 years."

Miss Spikes, who is from Hartford, Conn., is at home and happy whenever she preaches, but now is the parsonage in East Brewton, where she "keeps house with the help of a faithful world."

Asked if there was any reluctance on the part of her congregation to having a woman perform special ceremonies such as weddings, she laughed.

"No, really. I'm telling you the truth, I never feel any resentment from my congregation."

Young people also come to her for counselling, and that is where Miss Spikes reaps great satisfaction. She can identify with those who think the youth of today are a cause for despair.

"There is a small element of the really bad. There is a spirit of rebellion among young people. I sensed that everywhere I traveled, not only here in the United States.

"But, there is a very definite attitude of genuineness among the majority of young people. They want to find something they can build their lives on, and we must give it to them. Not with pretty gowns and difficulties. Our problem is not with youth, it's in the leadership we have to offer. We are rather, rallied to give them."

Most of Us Semi-pagan

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Peter Slater, newly appointed director of the religion department at Sir George Williams University, says contemporary religion is "a mixture between history, philosophy and social studies."

The religion professor in Haverford, Pa., for seven years, Dr. Slater says only three of Sir George's nine instructors in the religion department have had "traditional theological training."

"Most of us have several religions," he said, so most of us are semi-pagan."

In other words, man is seen as given many commitments or "religions" which he wants to or must fulfil.

Such a situation, says Dr. Slater, makes the source material for religion courses unlimited.

"Where's our data? It's juts as much in comic strips and advertising as in books."

He is convinced, that the younger generation is more religious than its predecessor.

"Ultimate questions interest them, and they raise moral problems. The typical type of student we get asks 'What am I?' and is searching for his identity.

"Religion is one of the newer subjects which poses some of the older problems."

Famous Elephant Dying

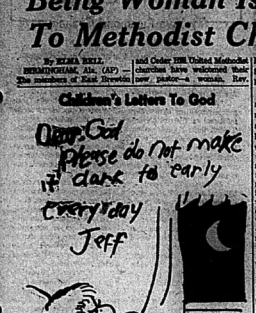
BOMBAY (CP) — A famous elephant, once the pride of India, is dying a slow death because of the vicissitudes of party politics.

For nearly 60 years Kesavan, the basher, had served the temple of Vishnu in Kollengode, in Kerala province. Besides carrying the god's idol on his sturdy back on festive occasions, he used to figure prominently in religious processions.

Pilgrims visiting the Hindu shrine always made it a point to offer gifts of rice, coconuts and vegetables to Kesavan. He also received cash offerings at the rate of $100 a week.

But for the last year or so, Kesavan has been doing little jigs for the past six months."

The temple has run out of funds and pilgrims no longer come laden with gifts.



Like the god he had served for six decades, Kesavan has become the victim of agrarian politics.

The pro-Moscow wing of the Indian Communist party, which is influential in Kerala province, has called upon the peasants living on land belonging to the Kollengode temple not to hand over any agricultural products to the temple authorities.

The peasants have unilaterally declared themselves as owners of the land. They say that "not even an ounce of rice will be given to the capitalist-dominated temple."

Donations from pilgrims from other parts of India have also been reduced to a mere trickle.

Italian Teacher 100 Years Ahead of Her Time

ROME (AP) — In a way, Maria Montessori was 100 years ahead of her time. The centenary of the birth of the influential educationist, one of the pioneers of modern nursery, was marked in August.

Eighteen years after her death, the Montessori method of teaching young children is enjoying a strong revival in many countries, even the homeland which once ostracized her.

During a time when Italy suppressed its women almost totally she broke new ground for females in professional life. At a time when the Roman Catholic Church practised harsh discipline, she was an unwed mother and a champion of the concept of critical sin. At a time of ascendant fascism, she was a champion of individual liberty, and a foe of social prejudice.

Even the Communists hated Miss Montessori. They said her educational thought was a bourgeois product of capitalism.

Today the Italian government and others subsidize Montessori schools, although Montessori school was called.

Miss Montessori trained teachers to sit down and mingle with children. She worked with small tables and chairs, informally arranged rather than austere desks and aisles. The method was intended to give the child maximum freedom within a controlled environment to develop his own capabilities, through self-motivation.

Miss Montessori challenged the concept of unquestioned child obedience, charging: "Never were any slaves so much the property of their master as the child is of the adult."

Soon Miss Montessori ran up against her first big opponent—the Vatican. When, unmarried, she gave birth to a child, it drew the church's ire. The teacher never made a secret of her unmarried state and expressed pride in her son, Mario Montessori, who now heads the Montessori International Association in Holland.

Zenaits attacked her method as "anti-Christian." Catholic belief that man from birth is marked by fundamental sin.

As the church gradually became more open socially, it dropped its anti-Montessori and writing better than "normal" children, for whom she eventually opened a school in a working-class neighborhood. Soon they were showing phenomenal learning results too.

As her fame spread, educationists began drifting in from other countries to inspect the House of Children, as the

CLUB 4-H NOTES

RYLSTONE 4H CLUB

The Rylstone 4-H club began its fall project "working with wool" with eight members present. Leaders are Mrs. Douglas Brunton and Mrs. Earl Brunton.

Officers elected at the meeting were Kathy Bullough: president; Marlene Shortt: vice - president; Denise Irwin: press reporter and Mrs. Douglas Brunton: treasurer.

The club decided to call itself "The Woolly Lambs". It was also decided that each member should pay a fee of 75 cents. A discussion on types of wool was held. Each member will be required to make a wool skirt or jumper during the coming term. The next meeting will be held in the Rylstone Women's Institute Hall on Sept. 26 at 1 p.m.

LONSDALE 4-H

Mrs. Ted McGuinness and Mrs. A. Swinne were the leaders at the first meeting of the Lonsdale 4-H Club sponsored by the WI and held in the WI hall. The ten members will be doing a project, working with wool.

Rosemary McGuinness was elected president and Olive Swinne vice-president. At the second meeting held on Sept. 14, the leaders demonstrated different kinds of wool and members decided to make wool skirts with linings.

CARMEL WILD WOOLEYS

The first meeting of the Carmel Homemaking Club was held at the home of Mrs. Jessup on Thursday, September 10, at 7:30 p.m., with ten girls and two leaders attending. Mrs. Jessup led the election of officers. Results were president, Cheryl Reid; vice - president, Penney Cone; treasurer, Cheryl Robinson; press reporter, Janet McMurtry.

The topic of the club this fall is "Working With Wool." Mrs. Jessup outlined the duties of a club member. Each girl is to make a wool skirt or jumper. Mrs. Baker led a discussion on the "characteristics, structure and quality of wool fibre."

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Baker on September 24 at 7:30 p.m., Cheryl Reid closed with the 4-H Pledge.

Pastor Honored By Parishioners

MARMORA — On behalf of parishioners of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Belleville, St. Paul's, Marmora, and St. Thomas of Rawdon Township, presentation of a purse of money was made to Rev. David Saunders after last Sunday's service, by Roy Frost.

Pastor here for the past three years, Rev. Saunders expects to leave on September 28th with Mrs. Saunders and daughter Victoria for his new appointment at Camp Borden.

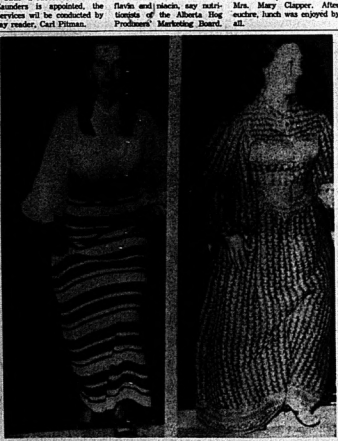
Gifts to Mrs. Saunders were given from the Anglican Church Women, by Mrs. Clarence McCoy, president of St. Paul's ACW, and by Mrs. Bill Barlow, on behalf of St. Mark's and St. Thomas.

Until a successor to Rev. Saunders is appointed, the services will be conducted by lay reader, Carl Pitman.

Senior Citizens Win CNE Prizes

Among the 800 senior citizens who entered crafts in the Canadian National Exhibition 1970, were residents of Hastings Manor, Belleville.

Prizes were won by: Miss Edith A. Latham, 3rd prize, a pair of bird figures; Mrs. Bertha Courtney, 3rd prize, a tissue picture; Alex Armstrong, honorable mention, ladies' leather clutch bag.



These crafts are on display in the therapy room at the Manor.

Club Activities

EUCHRE CLUB

The social committee of the LOBA 350 and the LOL 274 held their regular euchre games on Saturday in the orange hall on Church St., Belleville with seven groups of players taking part. Winners were: Mrs. Flosie Sager, Mrs. Betty Fairbrother, Mrs. Valkman, Mrs. M. Thompson, Bill Smith, Gerald Sager and W. Vicks.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Mary Clapper. After euchre, lunch was enjoyed by all.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN CAMPBELL

Campbell – Welch

Lynda Marie Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Welch and John Kennedy Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Campbell of Belleville were united in marriage on Sept. 4 in St. Joseph's Church Belleville. Monsignor J. A. Carley solemnized the marriage and Sister Mary Avila played the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a sleeveless floor-length gown of white eyelet lace, with a lace stand-up collar and an empire waist accented by white satin sash. A tiered floor-length veil with scalloped edges flowed from her bouffant piece of tiny roses and velvet ribbon flowers. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnation roses interspersed with lilac colored carnations.

Mrs. Joseph Theriault the matron of honor wor a sleeveless empire style floor-length gown of turquoise crepe. Her headpiece was of turquoise flowers and streamers and she had a nosegay of pale yellow roses and white carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Gerald Campbell, as best man while Robert, Ken and Gary Welch, brothers of the bride were the ushers.

For the reception held at San Lack Gardens, the bride's mother chose a two-piece avocado green suit with white trim. Her accessories were beige and her corsage was of yellow sweetheart roses.

White accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses set off the bridegroom's mother's empire style dress of pale blue crepe.

The bride's going-away costume consisted of an orange short-sleeved dress with matching jacket, black patent accessories and a corsage of lilac carnations. The couple chose points east for their honeymoon.

Upon return, they will reside at 129 Herchimer Ave., Belleville.

County Manor Auxiliary Hears Various Reports

Reports given by two representatives to the 51st annual convention for Homes for the Aged at Thunder Bay highlighted the recent meeting of the Hastings County Manor Auxiliary.

Mrs. D. Maclean reported on auxiliary meetings and gave a short history, while Mrs. J. McLaren spoke on the general assembly held at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The convention theme was "Walk a Mile in My Shoes". A display of residents from three Homes for the Aged in the Thunder Bay and district dealt with social, personal and physical aspects of the Homes. Various reports at the convention were also given.

The main speaker at the convention assignation banquet was Hon. John Yaremko, Ontario's Minister of Social and Family Services who dealt with the problems incurred by old age, and what his department's part was in alleviating this problem.

The regular meeting was conducted by president, Mrs. D. Maclean who welcomed everyone following the summer recess. A report was given by the coffee shop convener and it was noted that 62 carnations and bowls had been sent to residents who were patients in the Belleville hospital. A bingo will be held for the residents on October 7 and a bus trip has also been planned.

Mrs. C. Holmes reported that plans for the annual tea and bazaar for October 21 were well under way.

A number of residents who had celebrated birthdays recently were honored, the eldest of these being Joe Doxtator who marked his 100th birthday. Mrs. Pearl Dafoe and Mrs. John Dowling poured tea.

. . . letters mingle souls: For thus friends absent speak." John Donne (1571-1631).

* * *

The question was posed, due to the recent postal situation: Are letters a thing of the past?

"As for mine," protested one Belleville lady, "even I can scarcely read my own writing. Resigned to my letters surely must feel as Thoreau did in the 19th century, saying: 'I don't think I mastered anything beyond the date (which I knew) and the signature (which I guessed at). There's a daughter and perpetual charge in a letter of yours.' It never grows old, it never loses its novelty, other letters are read and thrown away and forgotten, but yours are kept forever—stored. One of them will last a reasonable man a lifetime."

Another spoke of her daughter's friends. "They seldom write letters. Love affairs are carried on via the telephone, and neither one wonders whether they would do without its invention."

"Lovers," declared another, "are never that pen-shy; if phones were not available reams of love-letters would be exchanged. In my day, everyone wrote love-letters; there was a war on. Yes, to be able to speak 'live' over the phone is wonderful, but I'd be sorry if the way of lovers' fashions in letters — one had no letters tied with ribbon, which years later, for me at least, bring back the miracle and beauty of being young, being in love."

Goodness! what many letters have a sad fate; after they are written, they are read then often discreetly destroyed, and so disappears the most beautiful, the most immediate breath of life, back the orably for ourselves and for others."

The truth of Goethe's statement is revealed upon reading the letters of one lady to her daughter, which Fate has thoughtfully, successfully handed down to us. They demonstrate clearly: Yes, letters are important.

These letters allow one to enter a world remote from our own, yet with an atmosphere of timelessness, however fraught with the weight of heavy, serious problems, anxious and frustrating. Likewise how all is kept in balance by a sweetness of spirit and humor, an ol love and loyalty in the matter of daily living; birth, illness, love affairs of members of the family and subsequent marriages and social

Animal Feet Used In Furniture Design

Some aspects of furniture design are distinctively North American. The table shown was made in New York in the early 1820s.

The use of animal feet in furniture design is an old one which was verified by archeological diggings and Napoleon's campaign in Egypt during the late 18th century. Some tables sprouted wings, supported by a goat foot and terminating in a sphinx. The table has four dog legs, complete with claws and hair. There are acanthus leaves on the dog legs which support a tablet. The tablet holds a pineapple encased in acanthus leaves which in turn support a pinnacle top.

One of the oddest conventions of this period is the claw-and-ball. Many of these stools survive and sell for about $25 or more — five times their original cost. The eagle claw and glass marble foot was also used for side tables from about 1800 to 1810.

Although English furniture makers used all the motifs illustrated, they were generally used singly. North American taste was not as restrained. The apotheosis of this style was the table, made in Montreal by Reed and Mosh in for the Great Exhibition of 1851. In addition to beavers carved in low relief in side panels, it had four carved beavers, fully three-dimensional, supporting the tray across the bottom stretchers.

Hand - carved or machine-carved tables of this type determined the value of the piece. In the best hand-carved pieces the carving is very fine and similar, but not identical in each section.

Mid-century and later, machine-cut simulated carving was added to furniture to give a three-dimensional effect. Hairy dog legs were too complicated for Victorian machinery and applied carving is usually simple. In the 1890s and '90s what looks like carving is often made of a pressed wood composition applied as surface ornament.

Later in the century machines were developed for wood carving. Machines have never been able to achieve the depth of carving or detail of hand-carved pieces, and is one of the reasons early pieces are sought after and valuable.

That Strange Voice Which Others Hear

By DORIS CLARE

Have you ever listened to your own voice? Face to a corner with your hands pulled behind you? Don't answer that. The strange voice is what others hear when you open your mouth.

There are five major vocal shortcomings. They are: shrieking words; spasmodic hacking; a thin voice; a nasal tone; a too-high pitch.

You can overcome the second by taking care to enunciate final s's, f's, t's and th's by placing in front of a mirror first.

If your voice is shrill, breathe until you feel the tension in your cheeks and nose. The farther you open your mouth, the higher, fuller and lower your tone will be. Hum your favorite songs at odd moments every day.

That last I email be of tremendous listening to yourself when you talk, you can acquire a voice that has the most charming of inspects.

Dear Doris: Since we've adopted a baby whom we love dearly, we've constantly had people who are otherwise well - versed in the social graces fall miserably when it comes to greeting adoptive parents. We wonder if they realize how insulting and hurtful are questions like the following:

1. Was the baby illegitimate? 2. Do you know who the parents are? 3. Where was "it" born? 4. Is "it" from around here? 5. Why did "its" mother give "it" up? 6. It was so good of you to do something charitable like that. Why did you adopt? Why didn't you have one of your own? 8. You never can tell what traits "it's" going to inherit. 9. What will you tell children think of your adopting? 10. Plus a bevy of personal questions surrounding why and how we adopted, and how did we get our baby so soon while a friend of the questioner is still waiting?

Doris, these are the things we'd like to hear instead:

1. Oh, isn't he (she) beautiful baby! 2. You must be so proud of him (her)! 3. I couldn't think of a better set of parents for him (her) to choose. 4. We're so happy for you both.

Doris, not quite a year ago I wrote you asking about adoption. Your answers were so wonderfully helpful and helpful and encouraged us to go ahead. — Deeply Grateful.

Dear Grateful: — And many another adoptive parent will be grateful to you for this letter.

Let's hope these well-meaning friends will also take X to heart.

QUESTION: Would you have a recipe for "Monster Dough"? I have recently heard about it and the delicious biscuits and rolls that are made from it. I would very much like to know how to start it. I look forward to reading your column each day. — A.M.M.

ANSWER: You did not give your name or address or stamped envelope. To add to the puzzle I have never heard of Monster Dough. Regulars will you please come to A. M. M's aid my rescue and write out the definition and the recipe for Monster Dough if you know what it is and send it to me in care of this newspaper please?

QUESTION: This may seem like an unnecessary and wasting your time "sort" of question. I know soured milk can be used in recipes for cakes and biscuits. But in what recipes can one use breakfast milk that has been spoiled? Also is this soured cream acidic the same as Sour Cream one can purchase at the dairy counter? Will you give the recipe for Aristocrat pickles sometime in your column? — Mrs. R. F.

ANSWER: Somewhere, some time I have heard of Aristocrat Pickles but I do not know what they are or have the recipe. Readers? If you can will you please come to my rescue on this unknown too?

Sour Cream: Soured breakfast cream usually is not interchangeable with cultured dairy sour cream but it can be used in many instances where sour cream is required. One recipe where they are interchangeable follows. It was very popular in the summer of 1969.

JOHN'S SOUR CREAM COOKIES WITH BURNT SUGAR ICING

(48 large — easy to make in one bowl)

COOKIE DOUGH:
¼ cup butter

¼ cup shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup dairy sour cream or soured breakfast cream
1 tsp. vanilla
2¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt

ICING:
¼ cup butter (melted —see below)
1 cup sifted icing sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
1 tbsp. hot water

In large mixing bowl cream together until light and smooth the shortening, butter and sugar, then beat in eggs. Sift together the sifted flour, soda, baking powder and salt and beat in with the sour cream and vanilla. Chill dough. Butter baking sheets. For large cookies drop rounded dessertspoonful at least 2½" apart on pan. Bake at 425 deg. F.for. time depends on size — so you must watch cookies and test for doneness — they should be only tinged with gold. Cool on racks. Dough must be kept in refrigerator between the times you are filling pans.

ICING: Melt butter in saucepan until it is rich gold. Watch it all the time. Remove from heat and stir in icing sugar and vanilla and when blended stir in hot water. Cool until of spreading consistency. If it hardens a little too much before cookies are iced reheat stirring.

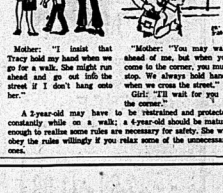
NEIGHBORS' AID

THURLOW — During the September meeting of the Neighbors' Aid, plans were made for the 40th anniversary celebrations to be held on Oct. 24. It was decided to hold a potluck supper on that date. Several members were among the first to join the aid 40 years ago.

The September meeting also featured a potluck supper and a clean up day with the president Mrs. Robert Atkins in charge. A list of jobs was read and each one volunteered to do the various tasks. Mrs. Robert Atkins and Mrs. Sam Peoples, secretary, were thanked for redecorating the Hall.



An invitation was extended to the second Thurlow Neighbors' Aid by the fourth Ameliasburgh Aid to attend their meeting to be held on Oct. 29 at the home of Mrs. Brass. A tour of Loyalist College will be enjoyed during the afternoon.

Mrs. Ralph Greatrix thanked the members for the gift of money she received from them. Mr. and Mrs. Greatrix have taken up residence in Belleville. Euchre will be played on Oct. 16 and 30 and Nov. 13.

A social time was enjoyed by all.

Points for Parents

Mother: "I insist that Tracy hold my hand when we go for a walk. She might run ahead and go out into the street if I don't hang onto her."

A 2-year-old may have to be restrained and protected constantly while on a walk; a 4-year-old should be mature enough to realize some rules are necessary for safety. She will obey the rules willingly if you relax some of the unnecessary ones.

"Mother: "You may walk ahead of me, but when you come to the corner, you must stop. We always hold hands when we cross the street."

Girl: "I'll wait for you at the corner."

Ann Landers

Unfeeling Advice Not Warranted

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are hard as nails. I can't understand why the newspapers don't get someone with a heart to take over your job.

Years came to my eyes when I read your brief, unfeeling advice to the stepmother of the 13-year-old boy whose father had died suddenly from a heart attack. The little fellow came to his stepmother's room at 11:30 and said he was lonesome for his dad. He wanted to get in bed with her. She says nothing wrong with his request and let him spend the night there. The next day she began to have second thoughts so she wrote to Ann Landers. You told her she should have refused and suggested, if the boy asks to sleep with her again, to take him to the kitchen for a glass of milk and a little talk.

Your comment that a 13-year-old boy should not be sleeping with his mother or any female proves you have a dirty mind. A 13-year-old boy is a baby. I think it is terrible the way you dragged this harmless act down in the gutter and made it look nasty. — ASHLAND READER.

DEAR ASH: Sorry, but a 13-year-old is no baby and he should not be sleeping with his mother or any other female. If you are unwilling to take my word for it, talk to a specialist who works with children. I've had letters from 13-year-old boys that would twist your turban, Kiddo.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in a new building — one of the most beautiful in this city. It makes me sick the way some girls wipe lipstick on the walls of the ladies room, put their smudgy fingers on ceramic pyrofied for their compositions and leave half-eaten fruit and stale sandwiches laying around. They even grind out cigarettes on the floor although there are plenty of ash trays.

I am annoyed by the sloppiness of these girls, especially those who come from very high class families. Would I be in the wrong if I spoke out and corrected them? I feel like a guilty wonder standing around like a dummy while they ruin company property. — L. K. OF NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J.

DEAR L.K.: Speaks up, by all means. Someone should tell the slobs that their bad manners are not going unobserved. Your signature reminded me that the most immaculate and best laid out ladies room I've ever seen anywhere is in your town — at Johnson and Johnson.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have an important question to ask. If a person has had a marriage annulled, what is the proper answer to the question, "Have you ever been married?"

An annulment makes a marriage null and void, as if it never happened. This is vastly different from a divorce which cancels a marriage and makes it no longer binding. Yet, when I tell people I am not married and never was, they say, "I remember when you got married. What happened to your husband?" Am I single, separated, never married, or what? — CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED: The correct answer is, "I was married but I had the marriage annulled."

Forces Decline Started After Berlin Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian armed forces are well into their descent toward the reduced manpower levels set by the government last year.

Figures released Friday by the defence department show that the strength of the regular services at July 31 was 91,721 compared with 97,944 on Sept. 30, 1958.

The drop of 6,223 in 16 months represented a fast start on the department's goal of cutting the number of servicemen to 82,000 in three years, announced Sept. 19, 1958, by former defence minister Leo Cadieux.

The new defence minister, Donald Macdonald, takes over a department with the smallest active service roll since 1947. At that point—early in the Korean War buildup—total strength of the regulars was 68,427.

The following year it had bumped to 74,304.

A postwar peak of 126,674 was reached in 1953—a year after the Berlin crisis—and since then there has been a steady decline.

When integration of the armed forces began in August, 1964, service strength was 119,998.

Canada hit its all-time peak in military strength in 1944 when active servicemen numbered some 780,000.

The postwar trough was in 1948: 34,000 men.

In the First World War, the number of enlisted men reached 331,000. The low point between the wars was 3,000 in 1923.

Canada's defence budget has been frozen by the government at $1,800,000,000 for a total of four years ending with the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The postwar low in expenditures was $196,000,000 in 1947-48, the postwar high $1,582,418,467 in 1952-53.

The all-time peak in expenditures was $2,938,377,608 in fiscal year 1944-45.

Compare this with the halcyon year 1920-21 when the defence budget was $13,320,037, lowest in the post-First World War period.

Not just the regular forces are being hit by current defence cuts. The reserves, which also had been declining steadily for a number of years, are in process of being cut to 19,000 from 23,000 last year.

English Course Said 'Insult'

TORONTO (CP) — A professor of English at Carleton University in Ottawa called Friday for the resignation of the chairman of the school's English department and for an immediate moratorium on the hiring of non-Canadian faculty.

Prof. Robin Mathews made the demands in a report he released as chairman of a subcommittee of the Montreal committee on the de-Canadianization of universities.

He called the university's English department an "insult" to Canada and said only one of 105 courses offered by it covers Canadian literature.

He called for the resignation of the department chairman, Prof. Millar MacLure, and the resignations of his counterparts at some other Canadian universities.

Among those he said should resign are Prof. Donald Theall, head of English at McGill University in Montreal, and Prof. Robert Jordan, head of English at the University of British Columbia.

Prof. Mathews said the manpower and immigration department should put a moratorium into effect immediately on admission of non-Canadian graduate students and the hiring of non-Canadian faculty.

Clay Admits Poetry Was 'Put-On'

CHICAGO (AP) — "It was all a put-on, and everybody bought it."

That's Cassius Clay, idolized as world heavyweight boxing champion three and one-half years, because of military draft evasion, spoke of his brash and invincible ars when he predicted in poetry the round and manner his foes would fall.

Clay was working hard on his new subject league when he appeared here in Chicago Friday to help promote the closed TV circuit phase of his now-banished proposed return to the ring against Jerry Quarry at Atlanta Oct. 26.

Even as Clay persistently brushed off questions about his draft case appeal and Black Muslim status, Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox Friday said he would seek a means to halt the controversial fighter's Atlanta bout with Quarry.

"We'll just have to go to the Garden (New York's Madison Square Garden);" was Clay's only comment to the possibility the Atlanta bout may take the count.

Clay is expected to be granted a New York boxing licence Monday in the wake of a federal court ruling against a previous refusal by the New York Athletic Commission to renew the licence of the fighter who prefers the Muslim name of Mohammed Ali.

Presumably, this is a prime step for a long-brushed match with Frazier, who owns the title stripped from Clay.

Clay was all business in his Chicago news conference to help Irv Schoenwald, longtime fight promoter, publicize closed circuit TV showing of the Clay-Quarry bout in this area.

Clay, his most black jacket loosely hanging, said 250,000 fans already are expected to view the fight nationally on closed circuit TV with a total of 1,200,000 seats to be available.

He got into the discussion of his old-time pre-fight theatrics when somebody asked if he would have a poem for Quarry's fate.

"First of all," snapped Clay, "Quarry is the world's No. 1 contender, and I'm making my comeback at Quarry the best man—out a stumble bum.

"As for what I used to say before a fight, it was all a put-on and everybody bought it. It just like your mayor or politician, kissing babies and looking up reporters to talk to on the street. But once they get elected, you have to make an appointment to see them."

Park, Sanderson Return to Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two hockey players who have been under suspension by their clubs have returned to National Hockey League training camps in an effort to settle their contract differences.

Defenceman Brad Park, one of four New York Rangers suspended by general manager-coach Emile Francis for failure to play in the Rangers' first exhibition game, returned to practice Friday and Francis said he will discuss his contract dispute to arbitration.

Park was suspended Sept. 17 along with centre Jean Ratelle and Wiz Tkaczuk and winger Vic Hadfield. Francis said details on Park's arbitration have not been made final. There is a clause in NHL contracts that any unsettled contract may be brought to arbitrators, one representing each side.

Meanwhile, centre Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins, suspended Thursday when he failed to return to camp in London, Ont. after visiting Montreal Wednesday to play a role in a movie being produced there, had permission to return to camp Friday.

Sanderson's lawyer, Bob Woolf of Boston, said he had talked to Bruins coach Tony Johnson who said the centre had permission to return but must join his own flying expenses until he settles his contract differences with the Boston club.

Woolf said he hopes to reach an amicable agreement with the NHL club on both the matters of Sanderson's suspension and his new contract.

There still has been no progress in salary disputes with at least three other NHL players.

Defenceman Harry Howell and Carol Vadnais are still at odds with the Oakland Seals management and NHL president Clarence Campbell said the appeal all evening aboard Incredible, the committee host, ruled that its original decision would stand.

But it was not until well after midnight that the NYCC committee notified Sir Frank Packer, head of the Aussie syndicate, that the Australian's case had again been denied.

The uproar overshadowed fifth race which would keep the Cup in Australia if won Saturday.

Southwest winds of 10-15 knots were forecast, the type of breeze Sir Frank Packer's sailor skipper, Bill Ficker, took in their sailing trophies. But a heavy fog lay on Newport overnight and fog has forced cancellation of one race already in this uproarious contest.

Light winds washed out another.

Protests have been a dime a dozen in this series which has seen a man fall overboard, a scare from a mistakenly-identified floating mine and a heckling that caused an Intrepid crewmen to be rushed ashore by helicopter.

There has also been some racing in which Gretel II has proven herself, if not the best challenger ever, then the best since Endeavour from Britain 36 years ago.

Stanfield, Ed Westfall and Dick Cherry also scored for the Bruins.

Charlie Burdeshaw scored two goals to pace the Blues over Oakland at Sudbury, Ont. Frank St. Marseille scored the other St. Louis goal while Ted Hampson and Dick Mattiussi scored for Oakland.

The Kings, in their first exhibition, got two goals each from Gord Labreche and Mike Byers while Bob Berry and Larry Mickey added the others.

Orland Kurtenbach, Len Lunde and Lesse Oleanon, a native of Finland's national team, scored for the Canucks, a new entry in the NHL.

Bears 'Sayer'-less; Bill Hopeless

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Bears might be without the great Gayle Sayers in their National Football League game Sunday. Buffalo Bills hope to be without Paul McGuire.

Sayers could miss the Bears' home opener against Philadelphia Eagles because of a bruised knee bone suffered in pre-season play. The brilliant halfback played in Chicago's 24-18 victory over New York Giants last Saturday, gaining 43 yards on 16 carries.

If McGuire doesn't see action, it will mean the Bills' offence is in for a battle against the powerful Los Angeles Rams' defence in their game at Buffalo. McGuire is a punter, and punting has been a chief weapon for the punter-less Bills.

Buffalo's main offensive threat, O. J. Simpson, could have his problems penetrating the Los Angeles front four.

On Monday night, Kansas City Chiefs will be at Baltimore Colts.

Gretel Faces Curtain

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Gretel II meets Intrepid, the United States defender, in the fifth America's Cup race and it could be curtains for the Aussie challenger following a long night of wrangling over a race she won, then lost, almost a week ago.

What had seemed to be a 3-1 American lead in the best-of-seven series was thrown into turmoil Friday when the judges decided to reopen the disqualification of Gretel II following a collision in the second race last Sunday.

Canada to Send Largest Team

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will have up to 450 athletes and officials at the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, next summer, says Bob Osborne, the man who will take them there.

Osborne, a vice-president of the Canadian Olympic Association and director of athletics for the University of British Columbia, will be chef de mission of the Canadian team in Cali.

Here for a COA meeting, Osborne said Canada's 1971 Pan-Am Games team will be "the largest team we've ever sent overseas—twice as large as any we've ever sent anywhere."

"The job now is to get enough money together to get the job done and to find athletes of high calibre to fill out the team."

The number of team sports on the program has accounted for Canada's large representation, Osborne said.

"We'll have teams in field hockey, soccer and baseball for men and in basketball and volleyball for men and women.

"In addition, we'll be represented in track and field, boxing, cycling, fencing, gymnastics, rowing, shooting, tennis, swimming and diving, synchronized swimming, water polo, wrestling, weightlifting and yachting."

The Olympic association has announced plans for a trust to be headed by George Mara, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, to raise and administer funds. Service clubs have been helping with campaigns also.

Osborne said, "We're going to be mightily selective and if we can't get a high calibre of athlete, we'll cut down on the team."

King Crowned

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Top women tennis players participating in an unsanctioned tournament here were suspended by the United States Lawn Tennis Association Friday.

Billy Jean King, one of the participants in the Virginia Slim $5,000 tournament here said she had received a telegram Friday from Alistair Martin, president of the USLTA, informing her of the action.

The telegram said that players participating in the Houston tournament will be ineligible for U.S. rankings maintained by the USLTA and will not be permitted to compete for the Wrightman Cup or the Federation Cup.

The women were all registered pros with the USLTA, which allowed them to play for money in tourneys sanctioned by the USLTA. However, they decided to skip the Los Angeles Pacific Southwest sanctioned tournament this week because there was only $1,500 in prize money.

Sport Briefs

KINGSTON (CP) — Mike Foreman shot an even par 70 Friday to lead Queen's University's A team to victory in the first annual Queen's University invitational golf tournament. Nine universities from Ontario, Quebec and New York State took part in the 18-team, one-day tournament. The Queen's A team won the trophy with a gross score of 291. Foreman was tied for the individual lead by Bruce Kennedy of Scarborough College, who also had a 70. In the team competition, University of Waterloo finished second with 303, while Queen's B team was third with 306. Other teams and their scores: Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Que. 308; Carleton University, Ottawa, 315; Scarborough College, 318; Sir George Williams, Montreal, 322; Jefferson County College, New York State, 340; St. Lawrence College, Kingston, 365.

EDMONTON (CP) Frank Morris, former all-star with Edmonton Eskimos and Toronto Argonauts, has joined the Eskimos to develop Canadian players for the Western Football Conference club. Morris, 47, will also work on special coaching assignments and scout for the club, R was announced Friday.

CFL Clubs Shift Starting Pivots

Two quarterbacks who started their seasons on the bench and two more who began the year in the National Football League will be given opportunities to show their abilities in weekend action in the Canadian Football League.

Of the six teams that face action in the West, only half of them are expected to go with the quarterbacks who started the season at that position.

Both Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders, who meet in Winnipeg Sunday, will name new signal-callers in the line-up, and Hamilton Tiger-Cats will make a record-shringe pitching for team when they go against Edmonton Eskimos in Edmonton Saturday.

The only contest in which the quarterbacking job appears to be settled is in Calgary, where the Stampeders meet Toronto Argonauts Saturday.

In Winnipeg, sophomore Ron Johnson, who started the season on the bench, is expected to get the starting call if a knee injured last week holds up.

Johnson's chances of taking over the first-string job took a dramatic leap Friday when Wally Gabler, the quarterback who was to lead Bombers out of the Western Football Conference wilderness, was placed on waivers.

Gabler, a five-year veteran of the CFL, came to Winnipeg in 1969 in a trade with Toronto which sent halfback Dave Raimey and defensive back Chip Barrett to the eastern club.

Bomber general manager Earl Lunsford said he is trying to make a trade for Gebler, and the fact that he has been placed on waivers "doesn't mean he's been cut."

Just in case he is, Bombers have a replacement ready in the person of Benly Dial, a six-foot, 190-pound veteran of the National Football League. Dial was signed to a five-day tryout contract by the Bombers this week, and the former Philadelphia Eagle and Washington Redskin impressed the coaching staff in practice.

Coach Eagle Keys of Saskatchewan is expected to counter with 27-year-old Gary Lane, a four-year NFL veteran signed earlier this month.

Keys says he will start Lane, who like Dial has never played in the CFL, to give Ron Lancaster's pitching arm a rest.

In Edmonton, John Eckman, who like Johnson started the season in a reserve role, will start in the place of Joe Zuger, who broke his wrist in Hamilton's 38-14 win over British Columbia Lions Wednesday night.

His opponent will most likely be Don Trull, another NFL veteran, who appears to be a fixture at quarterback after an impressive performance in Edmonton's last outing against Winnipeg.

Alouettes Looking to Stop Oldham in Sunday Meeting

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes head coach Sam Etcheverry, says his club will have "some scores to settle" in their Eastern Football Conference game here Sunday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

"After all," Etcheverry said Friday, "that was pretty humiliating up there in Ottawa when they beat us 31-7.

"To move the ball the way we did and still be unable to score and then to have them beat us with those long passes to Hugh Oldham—it wasn't much of an evening."

But Bob Geary, Montreal offensive line coach, said the Als have been working full speed during a defence to stop Oldham.

The slim but speedy flanker roamed the Als in their loss to Ottawa Sept. 2, scoring three quick touchdowns in the first quarter on long passes from quarterback Gary Wood.

"But we stopped him in the second half," Geary said. "We just weren't ready for him but I'm sure we're ready now."

Montreal hosts Sunday, which will not be televised, could breathe Als' current first-place tie in the East with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

It is also important for Ottawa, who have oil ythree wins and five losses in their eight starts this season.

Hamilton visits Edmonton Eskimos Saturday night and Toronto Argonauts will be in Calgary to meet the Stampeders Sunday.

Wins by the Eastern clubs in the weekend's interlocking games could give the Als sole possession of first place.

Montreal and Hamilton have 10 points each, while Toronto is in second place with eight and the Riders trail with six. Only Als, however, have played one less game than their three conference rivals.

But Etcheverry said he is not counting on the interlocking games and is ready for a lunch fight with Ottawa Sunday.

"They are a good club," he said. "Most of their defence is still in from last year and the same is true of the offensive line."

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta said Friday he is looking for strong performances despite a flock of injuries suffered by the club this season.

"If you take a look at my predictions I said I hoped the boys could finish the season with a 50-50 record."

"So far we're one loss off that pace," he said.

Ottawa was hoping to have running back Charlie Leigh, recently cut by the National Football League Cleveland Browns, back in the lineup. But Leigh injured his toe during an indoor workout last week and will not start.

Geary said Montreal will be "basically the same" Sunday as in Toronto last weekend for their 34-17 win over Argonauts.

The only change will be the insertion of offensive lineman Angelo Raffin in place of Joe McGrath who has been placed on waivers. Raffin is from Ma-ma-loke Sainthes of the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Pittsburgh 'Whistles' Ahead of Mets, Cubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leo Durocher and Gil Hodges were chuckling in the dugout but Danny Murtaugh is just whistling today after his Pittsburgh Pirates took a long stride toward nailing down the National League's East Division flag.

The Pirates moved three York Mets 4-3 Friday night to open a 3½ game bulge over both the Mets and Chicago Cubs, who lost to Philadelphia Phillies 5-3. Pittsburgh's magic number, with five games left to play, is three. The Cubs and Mets have six remaining, including four against each other.

Murtaugh, elated by his club's suddenly healthy position as the race moves into its final days, claims he isn't looking at the magic number. "I only believe," said Murtaugh, "in having them four out with three to go."

Durocher, manager of the Cubs, was gloomy but still hopeful.

"It's never over until it says so on the board," said Leo. "It was worse in 1951. We were five down with eight to play."

Hodges, Mets' batting members '51 and the Giants' miracle run pace and 40 of their 81 wins, can relish than Durocher, was also somber. "We have to win the next four," he said, "there's no doubt about it."

Elsewhere in the National League Friday night, Montreal Expos tripped St. Louis Cardinals 7-5, Houston Astros took Atlanta Braves 7-4 in 10 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers battered Cincinnati Reds 9-3 and San Diego Padres w l o p p e d San Francisco Giants 7-4.

Willie Stargell was the key man in Pittsburgh's big victory over the Mets. The Pirate left fielder threw out the potential tying run at the plate in the eighth inning and then singled home the clincher in the bottom of the eighth.

The Mets were trailing 3-2 with two on and two out in the eighth when Bud Harrelson singled to left. Stargell charged the ball and fired to the plate, beating Ken Boswell by several steps.

In the bottom of the eighth Manny Sanguillen ripped his third hit of the game, moved up on a walk and scored deciding run on Stargell's hit. The Mets got a run back in the ninth and had runners on first and second with none out. But Cleon Jones flied out and then Art Shamsky struck out as Sanguillen threw out Tommie Agee trying to steal third to complete the double play and end the game.

Rick Wise fired a five-hitter for the Phillies and consecutive homers by Tim McCarver and Don Money sank the Cubs.

Wise also drove in a run with a hit after the Cubs had walked Larry Hisle to get at him in fourth inning. Tony Taylor had three hits including a double for the Phillies.

Tommy Davis had a two-run homer for Chicago.

Ron Fairly's three-run homer with two out in the ninth inning carried the Expos past the Cardinals. St. Louis had rallied for three in the top of the ninth to take the lead before singles by Mack Jones, Bob Bailey and Jim Fairey closed the gap and Fairly delivered his 15th homer.

Houston broke a loose for four runs in the 12th inning to whip Atlanta. Harry Marlines' pinch-single drove home the tie-breaking run and then Doug Rader singled for two more and Norm Miller capped the rally with an RBI-double.

Tom Seaver had three hits, scored three runs and knocked in another in Los Angeles' victory over Cincinnati. Joe May homered for the Reds.

San Diego overcame four San Francisco homers, two by Willie McCovey, to whip the Giants. Rafael Robles recorded two hits to spark a pair of Padre rallies and rookie Dave Robinson crashed a home run.

Aparicio Has Early Ending

The long season is over for little Luis Aparicio, but big Frank Howard struggles on.

Aparicio, Chicago's 36-year-old banta, set a major-league record Friday night by playing his 2,218th game at shortstop as the White Sox trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader.

Then, as the Brewers bounced back to take the nightcap 3-2, Aparicio prepared to depart for his native Venezuela—with the Sox' blessing, a career high batting average of .313 and a signed contract for the 1971 season.

Howard, Washington's massive slugger, took an 0-for-4 color as the Senators bowed to Ray Culp and Boston Red Sox 8-1. He has gone hitless in five games and Boston now is the last seven days.

Yastrzemski slipper Ted Williams said Howard, who leads the American League with 42 home runs, is as tired he barely can swing a bat, but will not leave the lineup while the homer race is underway. Washington's Harmon Killebrew is just one behind.

Elsewhere, Baltimore Orioles topped Cleveland Indians 9-7 on Terry Crowley's 13th inning homer; Minnesota Twins nipped Kansas City Royals 1-0 on Jim Perry's five-hitter; New York Yankees won their doubleheader nightcap against Detroit Tigers 8-3 after losing 14-3 in the opener and Oakland Athletics beat California Angels 6-5.

Aparicio, winding up his 18th American League season, broke the all-time longevity mark for shortstops held by ex-Philadelphia star Luke Appling. Aparicio had signed his 1971 contract earlier Friday.

"I think I will be able to play at least two more full seasons, and maybe three, if my legs hold out," said Aparicio, who was given permission to leave the Sox and join his wife in Caracas next week for their 14th wedding anniversary. "Then, if I am fortunate, maybe I will be able to manage in the majors someday."

Tommy John scattered seven Milwaukee hits and catcher Ed Herrmann hit a three-run homer in Chicago's first-game victory. The Brewers built a 3-0 lead in the nightcap and held on behind Dick Ellsworth's solid relief pitching.

Culp held the Senators hitless until the seventh and finished with a four-hitter., while Rico Petrocelli and Reggie Smith connected for two-run singles in the sixth.

Crowley's two-run blast in the 13th lifted the Orioles past Cleveland after they squandered a 7-3 lead in the ninth. Dave McNally, trying for his 24th victory, left for a pinch-hitter in the top of the ninth and the Indians promptly raked relievers Eddie Watt and Tom Phoebus for five runs, with Ted Uhlander's three-run pinch homer the big blow.

Perry limited the Royals to a pair of singles by Cookie Rojas, scoring rookie Steve Mingo's run-scoring double in the fourth stand up for his 24th triumph. Baltimore's Mike Cuellar is the only other 24-game winner in the majors.

Mickey Lolich tamed the Yankees with a seven-hitter in the first game, but they erupted for five runs in the eighth to break open the nightcap.

The Athletics spanked the Angels behind the four hit pitching of John (Blue Moon) Odom to move within one victory of nailing second place in the American League West.

MADRID (Reuters) — The United States continued to play steady, consecutive golf and increased its lead in the Eisenhower Trophy world team golf championship to nine strokes Friday with one round to play. The U.S. had 214 for the day and a three-round total of 640, eight under par. South Africa moved into undisputed possession of second place with a three-round total of 649. Australia stood third with 651. New Zealand was fourth at 652 while Mexico, which shared second place with South Africa after the second round, dropped to fifth. Canada fared badly with 661 for the three rounds of 222 and now is in sixth place. Stu Hamilton of Brampton had his third straight 75, Gary Cowan of Kitchener shot 76 and 77 and MacDonald of Brampton and Keith Alexander of Calgary each carded 77s.

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP) — A field of 38 cars was ready today for qualifying runs to determine the 24 starters in the $20,000 Canadian-American Challenge Cup road race Sunday at Donnybrooke Speedway in central Minnesota. Dave McLellan, led by Denis Malone of New Zealand and Peter Gethin of England, sought to regain its domination of the Can-Am series. McLaren racers had won 19 straight victories in the rich series until Englishman Tony Dean drove his car home to first place at Atlanta two weeks ago. The 210-mile race is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. EDT Sunday at the winding Donnybrooke layout, a three-mile network of road six miles north of Brainerd. Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico joins the series in a new British-made BRM, a refined model of orb assigned to teammate George Eaton of Canada.

Expos Reach 70-Win Mark

MONTREAL (CP) — Before the 1970 National League baseball season, manager Gene Mauch of Montreal Expos made a simple prediction.

"I'll be very disappointed if we don't win at least 70 games in 1970," Mauch told a news conference.

The Expos reached Mauch's objective Friday night when Ron Fairly clouted a three-run, two-out homer in the ninth, giving the Expos a 7-5 victory over St. Louis Cardinals before 20,398 fans at Jarry Park.

Mauch displayed a rare show of emotion following the game when he heartedly raised his arms into the air and received hearty applause from the spectators on his way to the Expos clubhouse.

When asked about his actions, Mauch replied:

"The guys on this team had never played before fans like this before they came here. I want you guys to let the fans out there know how great they are."

"It was nice doing something you said you would do. It was only a number, but it gained special significance for the great fans here in Montreal as the season progressed.

"We are not going to limit ourselves. We'll try to win and get into fifth, but we won't die if we don't make it."

"This team really jelled after the June 15 trading deadline.

"Before the deadline, this was no team. With a half-dozen guys sitting around expecting to be traded before the deadline, there was no way we could generate team spirit.

"Right now the guys on this team with the season was a month longer, they'd blow high the spirit is."

Last season, the Expos won only 52 games while dropping 110 and they finished 42 games behind New York Mets, the East Division pennant winners.

The Expos now are in sixth place in the six-team East Division, 15 games behind first-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Expos finished with a 10-8 won-lost mark against New York Mets and were 9-9 against Pittsburgh. Last year, Montreal was 5-13 with both clubs.

Montreal's play against West Division teams also improved. They finished their 72 games against that opposition with a 31-41 mark compared with a dismal 16-58 ledger last year.

They finished with five victories in 12 games with the West Division pennant winner, Cincinnati Reds, one of the better marks against the Reds in 1970.

The Expos continue their three-game series today with the Cardinals with Steve Carlton pitching for St. Louis and Bill Stoneman for Montreal.

Montreal ends its home season with a single game against the Cards Sunday.

'Lip' Loses Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles S. Feeney, president of the National League, announced Friday he has disallowed a protest filed by Chicago Cubs in their 6-4 loss at Montreal last Sunday.

Cubs manager Leo Durocher protested the game, contending a ball boy had deliberately kicked a baseball hit by Ron Fairly of the Expos.

Fairly hit a ball down the right field line for a double, scoring two runs and putting Montreal ahead 5-4 in the eighth inning.

The setback was a severe blow to the Cubs' flag hopes in the frantic National League East race.

Durocher said the ball boy kicked the ball when it went past the right field bullpen and that the hit should have been a ground-rule double. That would have sent a runner who scored from first base back to third.

The umpires said they did not see any intentional interference.

Jockey Club Proposes Ban On Off-Track Betting

TORONTO (CP) — The Jockey Club, armed with evidence gathered after an investigation by its own security service, says that little of the money wagered through off-track messenger betting shops reaches the racetrack windows of its five Ontario tracks.

The club said it will ban from the tracks it operates for thoroughbred and standardbred racing all those it knows are associated with operating off-track betting. It also called for prosecution of the shops by federal and provincial authorities.

John J. Mooney, executive vice-president of the Jockey Club, made the announcement at a press conference Friday and said the evidence will be forwarded to Justice Minister John Turner and Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontario.

Mooney said in a statement:

"For a considerable period of time the Jockey Club has been of the opinion that very little of the aggregate money wagered through off-track messenger betting shops is being lawfully put through the authorized system of race tracks.

"Even messenger betting first commenced, evidence was observed in significant numbers with-in the wagering on a variety of horses. During the current year, very few of such messengers have been observed at the track despite the continuous surveillance by the management and by security personnel.

"Betting by such messengers has appeared to be sporadic and the aggregate amount wagered has been relatively small.

Randall Dick, deputy attorney-general, said Friday night his department and law enforcement agencies are aware of the activities of off-track betting shops.

"The police are working on this continually but they find it is very difficult to get the needed evidence," he said.

Mooney's charges are based on evidence collected by Jockey Club security officers who placed bets at 28 off-track shops at and near the Woodbine in Toronto area.

In two of three betting experiments the officers placed more money on specific horses than turned up in the track show pool for those horses.

Mo-Hawks Move Training Camp

This year they've been forced to haul for out-of-town ice.

General manager Robert Temple said the Mo-Hawks will open training camp in Trenton's Community Gardens tonight with an 8:30-10:30 open workout.

"We can't be sure of ice in Belleville until Tuesday, so we decided we better do some thing," said Temple.

The Mo-Hawks have also scheduled Trenton workouts for Sunday (1:15-9:15), Monday (9:30-10:30), Tuesday (7:15-9:15), and, in the event they have no Belleville ice available, Wednesday from 8:45 to 10:45.

The Belleville senior club has an exhibition with Trenton's Aces in the Memorial Arena next Saturday night and return the visit in Kingston Sunday. They open their 40-game schedule at home against Owen Sound Greenals Friday, Oct. 9.

Tackle That Tiger!

Safety Jim McNabb of Centre Hastings attempts to run down Trenton flanker Duncan Armstrong in his team's opening 77-0 loss to the Tigers. While it appears that the Madoc team will be chasing quite a few competitors this year, coach Joe Hogan's youthful team is gaining valuable experience.

Napanee Shows Improvement Centre Hastings Building

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

While the talked rich teams of the Bay of Quinte football league, such as Quinte and Trenton, appear to have gotten richer, is it equally true that the "poor" are poorer? In the case of Napanee High school, probably not. In fact, head coach Wayne Bedell thinks the football forward team this last season's sixth-place finishers.

It's a different story in Centre Hastings, however as coach Joe Hogan has resigned himself to a building job in light of his team's 77-0 loss to Trenton.

Bukak, who set the pre-season goal of "improving our offensive showing", in his team respond with a 45-point effort in their first game against Picton, Friday, Meanwhile, the defence came up with an equally decent showing, by holding the Prince Edward team off the scoreboard.

Napanee's main offensive strength lies in a speedy backfield that features four returning starters from last year's squad. A total of 15 players from last season's squad caught positions on the 35-man Napanee team.

Opening the holes for Bukak's double wing offense is the main concern of returning linemen Barry Hicks, Dale Dockridge and Mike Manson. George Harris and Brian Jackson supply most of the offensive punch from their twin fullback positions.

Defensively, the league's eastern entry expects to get outstanding performances from veteran lineman Joe Condron and linebacker Rick Todhunter. The secondary is relatively inexperienced with only one returning player from last season.

While the Napanee seekers of Picton's scalps, the latter school something to cheer about, scoring three touchdowns in the final quarter to come up with an 18-14 win.

Bob Hyatt was the man of the hour for Picton's offense, counting all three touchdowns to wipe out a 14-0 Napanee lead.

Hogan isn't harboring any illusions about his team's chances for this year. "We're short on size and speed," he admits, "the boys keep carrying back but there was no way that we could handle Trenton."

Hogan isn't worried about his team's outlook for the future, however. Of the 34 starters, 21 will be returning next year to play senior football and 13 of them are juniors with two years of eligibility. Accentuating the youth of the Madoc - based squad is the fact that the three quarterbacks Randy Rivers and Doug Rothermel are 15 and 16 years old, respectively. Also, the senior team has four players competing who are only in grade nine.

Certainly Hogan isn't writing off this season as completely hopeless. "Trenton has a good team, but to be held of the 77-0 loss, "but we weren't really ready for a game yet. If we had played later in the season I don't think we'd have gotten beat quite so badly."

He has a big size disadvantage (the heaviest player weighs 175 pounds) Centre Hastings is forced to go without outside plays and passing against their bigger opponents. "We tried to put the ball in the air against Trenton but their pass rush was just too much," said Hogan.

While the football road for Centre Hastings could be extremely rough this year, Hogan's coaching prospects could mean smooth sledding for the future.

Fairways Have Chance at Games

While the need for a fast start is important to any athletic team, the early season games at Hawe also significance for the six clubs operating in the Eastern Ontario Junior B loop this season.

The top team in the league standings as of December 7, will go to Toronto to compete in a tournament to determine Ontario's representative in the Canada games. The tournament will be held in late December.

While the opening of training camp is still being delayed until the ice surface at Belleville Arena is ready, coach Floyd Crawford has already received notes from 18 players that they plan to try out for the Fairways.

The Belleville team will get their first test on Oct. 11 when they entertain Golden Hawks visit Belleville. The Fairways other home exhibition contest will be Oct. 18 against Kingston, with an out-of-town game slated for Oct. 16 in Trenton.

Oshawa will be in Belleville for the league opener Oct. 25.

Gosger Finds Jarry Park Home After Tour of Major Leagues

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Gosger has clubbed 34 major league baseball stadiums in his career. Now it appears he's finally found a home at Jarry Park, home of Montreal Expos of the National League.

"For the first time in my life I feel completely relaxed," the chunky outfielder said.

Gosger, 27, was born in Port Huron, Mich., near the Canadian border. He signed a contract with Boston Red Sox of the American League in 1962 and spent most of that season with its Winston-Salem affiliate in the Carolina League.

He played only 19 games with Boston in 1963 and the following year he was with Seattle, Boston's Eastern League affiliate.

He divided his time in 1965 with the Red Sox and their International League team, Toronto Maple Leafs, and played with the Red Sox during the 1966 season before the merry-go-round started.

Gosger was traded to Kansas City Athletics at the end of the 1966 season and played in 1967 in the Missouri city. He then accompanied the Athletics when they moved to Oakland the following year.

In 1969 he found himself with Seattle Pilots (now Milwaukee Brewers) after being plucked in the American League expansion draft. He played only 29 games with the Pilots and was then shifted to Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast League, the Pilots' top farm team.

From there, he went on to play in Tidewater in the International League and wound up with New York Mets at the end of the 1969 season.

All that he has to show for the travelling about is a $1,500 World Series bonus for riding the bench with the Mets during the last month of that season.

"I've just never had a chance to play regularly and you simply can't do it playing every four or five days," said Gosger, now the regular centrefielder for the Expos. "Everywhere I've gone I had someone ahead of me and didn't figure in the team's plans."

He was purchased by the Expos and was sent down to Buffalo Bisons (now Wheaties Whips), the Expos' International League affiliate. He was called up to the Expos in mid-May.

At first he was used as a pinch-hitter, but then took over the centrefield job from Jim Fairey.

"He's got a good compact swing," said team-mate Bob Bailey.

"He's got great ability and he's just reaching the age where physical strength has matured to its peak," added pitcher Carl Morton.

Gosger said his swing was helped by Ted Williams's coaching at Boston and Joe DiMaggio at Oakland.

Minor Ball Swinging

Minor baseball will take its final 1970 swings tomorrow at the Belleville Minor Baseball Presentation Day at Park Dale.

Highlighting the program will be an exhibition game between coaches officials and the parents of boys participating in minor baseball this year.

Following the baseball (?) game will be the presentation of awards to members of the city's various teams.

The exhibition game will get under way at 1 p.m. with the awards ceremonies starting at four o'clock.

Vigorous Investigation Found No Impropriety Duke Hearing Told

TORONTO (CP) — A "vigorous investigation" by five members of the criminal investigation branch of the provincial police turned up no evidence of improper relations between George Claxton Duke and three men of alleged criminal background, a judicial inquiry was told Friday.

The former head of the Ontario Securities Commission, Harold Graham, testified regarding connections between the millionaire Oakville, Ont., businessman and two of the men—John Papalia and Donald (Red) LeBarre.

He said he knew little about Daniel Gasbarrini, the third person named by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic Party member of the Ontario legislature for High Park, in a June 4 legislature speech.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court is conducting the inquiry into Mr. Duke's relations with senior OPP officers and with persons of known criminal activity.

Of Mr. Gasbarrini, Mr. Graham said: "I have no direct knowledge that he is anything but a reputable businessman."

Mr. Gasbarrini, now living in Hamilton, was convicted in Vancouver in 1949 of conspiracy to distribute narcotics and sentenced to seven years in prison.

Mr. Graham described Mr. LeBarre as a bookmaker he discussed a narcotics conviction of Mr. Papalia's in 1962.

"His character is not good," he said, "I understand Duke has spoken to Papalia but I have been unable to uncover any improper relationship."

He said Mr. Papalia was deported from the U.S. in 1965.

Another senior OPP officer, Deputy Commissioner Dennis Whitely, told the inquiry that a policeman with a person to associate with a person who has a criminal record.

He said his view was unaltered by legislation passed by Parliament last May wiping out a man's criminal record five years after completion of his last term of imprisonment.

He was being questioned about instructions by OPP Commissioner Eric Silk in 1968 that all OPP personnel and social contact with Mr. Duke after the commissioner had learned that Duke was deported from the United States in 1941 after serving 12 years for first-degree robbery.

Two senior OPP personnel—Staff Sgt. A. M. Reiger and Supt. Walbert Wilson—have been suspended and face a hearing after the inquiry on charges of disobeying the order.

Dr. Shulman asked Mr. Graham whether the OPP intelligence branch had received a report from Police Chief Leonard Lawrence of Hamilton concerning associations between Mr. Duke and Mr. Papalia. Mr. Graham said the report was sent to Commissioner Silk.

He was then asked whether his investigators had interviewed Mrs. Duke.

Mr. Graham said they had not.

Mr. Duke has testified that she went to see Chief Lawrence and told him of her husband's meetings with Mr. Papalia and Mr. LeBarre. She told the inquiry she saw Mr. Papalia at Mr. Duke's office and Mr. Papalia and Mr. LeBarre at the Duke residence.

War Changes Course

Saigon's Peoples Army Playing Major Role

SAIGON (Reuters) — Arming South Vietnamese peasants to fight the Viet Cong would have been considered madness a few years ago.

But the Saigon government has already handed out 250,000 weapons and plans to distribute another million next year to a vast segment of the population traditionally considered most susceptible to Viet Cong pressure and recruitment.

The arms are going to a loosely controlled 3.5 million-strong army called the People's Self-Defence Forces. A type of militia, its members are pledged to defend their own homes and hamlets.

United States Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker has called the peasant army an increasingly important and psychological force in the search for peace in Vietnam.

"When the people take and bear arms publicly, they openly commit themselves to the government," he said." It also shows, incidentally, that the government of Vietnam has faith in the people that it is arming."

But what the move really means is that the war here has changed course, with the Viet Cong and Saigon competing for popular support in the countryside rather than trying to win on the battlefield.

Some Americans here are so confident that Saigon is on the right path that they see no reason why U.S. troop withdrawals cannot be speeded up.

Certainly South Vietnam's regular troops appear to be showing a aggressiveness over since operations in Cambodia started in March.

This may be responsible for the Viet Cong's apparent switch in recent weeks to selective and small-scale guerrilla attacks instead of the large battles waged a few months ago.

Or it could be—as many observers here believe—that the Viet Cong is so under strength that it has to be more economical with manpower than in the past. Still others suggest the guerrillas are merely giving the Americans the chance to pull out gracefully.

The Americans have seen comparatively little action in the last two months and their casualties are down to new low levels.

The United States now has fewer than 400,000 soldiers in this country, a drop of 143,000 in 18 months.

Gas Ruling Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is expected to announce next week a long-awaited decision on exports of natural gas in a ruling that will reflect new policy on Canada's energy resources.

Pipeline companies seeking a major expansion of gas exports to the United States had expected an announcement this week, but the ruling failed to emerge from the cabinet.

Together, the applications by five main companies involve a total increase in exports by almost nine trillion cubic feet of gas valued at more than $3 billion in the next 20 to 25 years. Also involved is potential construction of more than $250 million worth of pipeline facilities in Western Canada.

How does a farmer's wife cope with a 14-room house and 6 lively children?

"By choosing electric heating," says Mrs. G. Lalonde of Riceville.

You'd think Maureen Lalonde had enough on her hands with six young children. Yet she was overjoyed when the family moved into a new house twice as large as their old one—because, thanks to electric heating, it meant less housework. "Even the walls and drapes are an easy task now. I don't have to clean them as often. There's not so much dust, I'm sure. I have more time for other activities now."

"We looked at other heating methods when we planned the house," says Gerard Lalonde, "Apart from being clean, the best feature of electric heating is that you can set your room at any temperature you want. In the younger children's bedroom we set it higher. We like it a little cooler, ourselves. The office here I keep on the cool side because I'm in and out all day."

Since moving to the new home, the Lalondes find winter mornings a little less forbidding. "The air isn't so dry, we sleep much better, and we feel real fresh when we wake up."

Electric heating helps the Lalondes enjoy the kind of life they like to live. It gives them extra space (without a furnace, the children have all of the basement as a rec-room), extra comfort, extra safety—and extra time to enjoy it all. Your Hydro will show you how easy it is for you to enjoy the living warmth of electric heating in your home.

There's an electric heating system just right for every home.

Electric Furnace with air filter, combines with cooling and humidity control for year-round comfort.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I wish you would discuss tranquilizers. You haven't written about it lately. Thank you. — Mrs. A.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Don't you think you have been giving too much space to arthritis? How about some information about heart disease — Mr. B.

Comment: What interests most of us healthwise is what threatens us (or ours) individually. The man who suffers from heart disease would care for for all columns to be devoted to this problem. Understandable.

But the woman who bears the discomforts of rheumatic pains is not being unreasonable in preferring most discussions related to arthritis. Unfortunately, there must be some sort of balance depending upon the letters I receive from readers.

One week most of the requests for information are weighted with heart problems, another, with rheumatic problems. Some weeks the leaders are dermatological queries: acne, psoriasis, etc. In other periods problems such as psychoneuroses, psychoses, depression, chronic anxieties, pregnancy, menopause, child care, etc., will predominate.

Quite often I will receive a letter saying, "I wonder if you can send me a copy of your column on angina pectoris which appeared in your paper a few months ago. I wasn't interested at the time, but I am now. My doctor tells me that the chest pains I've been having are due to angina."

Although what I write here is often dependent upon what interests the majority of readers, minority interests in disease are not disregarded. Occasionally you will find here some relatively obscure disease of interest to a few readers only.

For example, one day I might discuss Reiter's disease — a form of rheumatic illness of no particular interest to millions of sufferers from the more common osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis. Or, I might write about congenital heart disease —of little interest to the millions who are burdened with hypertensive or coronary artery heart disease.

Unfortunately, sometimes a reader misses a column of personal interest, simply because it has appeared when he (or she) is out of town on business matters or vacation.

I tell you these things. Mrs. A. and Mr. B. with the hope that you will be patient. (Incidentally, your impatience is flattering.) Someday you will find here the words of advice you have been looking for.

Let me assure all of you that this column is yours as well as mine. Even though you may not always find the specific answer to your specific questions, you may be sure that what you find here is the distillate of what hundreds of thousands of readers write and want to know. My daily challenge is the hope that in helping one, I may also help the many.

• • •

For Mrs. Y.: A hysterectomy doesn't mean "the end of sex life." In most cases such problems are psychological rather than anatomical.

• • •

For Mr. B.: If your doctor has made "every conceivable test" it's more practical to believe him when he says your headaches are not due to a brain tumor — and more likely are caused by the tensions (which you admit) in your way of life.

Police Saw Coins Stolen

CALGARY (CP) — Allegations of loose security and descriptions of how money was stolen from the Calgary Transit System were unfolded this week before a public inquiry into management of civic affairs during the last 10 years.

The inquiry, before Mr. Justice W. J. Morrow of the Northwest Territories court, was told that until last year the city had a policy of not prosecuting employees found stealing from the system.

Detective - Sgt. A. T. Caines testified Friday that on several occasions in 1966 he monitored closed-circuit television in the city hall cash-counting room and observed employees stealing coins.

Questioned by commission counsel Ronald Neuman, Sgt. Caines said the senior transit system personnel manager, Bob Wray, deputy manager William Kost and administrative assistant Bertram Freeman, told him it was against city policy to prosecute.

James Phillip Kramer, a city employee, testified Friday under the protection of the Canada and Alberta Evidence Acts that he stole coins while he worked in the counting room in 1966 and knew three other employees who did the same.

Donald L. Ritz, assistant cashier at city hall said a former transit union executive told the inquiry Thursday that security was tightened in the cash room and slits in smocks worn by employees counting change had been sewn closed.

He said the change was made after chief cashier Henrik Vendenboom told the inquiry employees could take money by reaching through slits in their smocks to conceal coins in their street clothes.

Aw Shucks, Chief!

STRATFORD (CP) — Percy Schram, head of the parking meter patrol in Stratford, found himself in the exasperating position of only having left his car for a few minutes then returning to find it had been ticketed because he hadn't fed the meter.

"I was only away from the car for three minutes," he said as he paid his dollar fine at the police station Friday.

Mr. Schram parked at a meter behind the city hall Wednesday in order to deliver proceeds from a meter collection.

Mom Whyte Plans Centre for Youths

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Bertha (Mom) Whyte, fully recovered from gangrene and a stroke, announced Friday plans for a mission training centre in British Columbia.

Its students and eventual missionaries would be "youths who have broken the drug habit and accepted the Lord Jesus, but who don't have anything to do because they don't want to fit back into the rut they've broken out of."

A greying, soft-spoken woman of 54, Mrs. Whyte said her home in Nigeria for 100 orphans is operating normally.

She said she is planning an emergency centre for Biafran children and hopes to regain Whitehaven in Bowmanville, Ont., as headquarters for her mission work.

Whitehaven is the home where she cared for up to 150 children in defiance of Ontario regulations—until the government moved 10 years ago and removed the children.

MOVED TO B.C.

Mrs. Whyte, her husband Bert, and their family moved to British Columbia where they cleared a property on Glen Head Mountain near Penticton. The B.C. government also refused a licence for a children's home, and they left for Nigeria.

Mrs. Whyte said the non-denominational mission they founded there has survived both government opposition and "cures" put on them for setting on ancient sacrificial ground.

The mission, staffed by six volunteers, is supported by individual contributions from people like the ones who turned out for her announcement Friday.

She detailed her plans at a "Friends of Mom Whyte" meeting.

Mrs. Whyte has no association with any organized religion. "You couldn't fit me into any church I ever heard of."

Her death was predicted last spring when she was flown home to Bowmanville with a grungrenous leg and a stroke that left her totally paralysed.

Friday morning she was digging potatoes.

Mrs. Whyte's latest plans were sparked by a visit to her son in B.C. She said she met a U.S. youth leader who claimed a 70-per-cent success rate with spiritual therapy for drug addicts.

The training centre is to be on the property where she tried to establish her orphanage.

She has already decided to name it Mount Zion and expects that by the time she gets there enough money will have been donated to cover the $35,000 down payment.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 27

Your birthday today: The year ahead finds you holding your ground well against contrary current. Material prosperity is not the main issue, but it does have some challenge for you now. Direct approaches may not work — you may need to establish a better set of skills and connections. Today's natives tend to be fastidious, intellectual, optimistic, and prudent.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Get up early, join your community's expression of faith. It is a generally uneventful Sunday. There is much to enjoy in the afternoon and evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Cheer up, give your loved ones an expression of your true feelings. Creative personal projects and pastimes fill the day, giving your unconscious time to do its great recent experience.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Gather your friends for a party or picnic sort of Sunday. Appreciate the complexities, the juxtaposition of discrepent ideas. Stay fresh for the evening's fun.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Almost anything you tackle today promises to work out well. Attend the customs of your community, renew old contacts, catch up on the news.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your program should centre around your home. Look after the needs of your loved ones, enjoy shared progress. Finish uncompleted chores.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Social activity fills this many-directioned Sunday. Pursuing any one course for logic is improbable. Go along with the cheerful mood; change activities to stay with it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This should be a busy Sunday of weekend amenities, charitable activity. Keep your own affairs to yourself; offer no explanation even when you hear a story that is inaccurate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Some not-very-clearly articulated urge within you comes a little nearer reality in pleasant surroundings. Contacts developed now may later offer much advantage. Stay busy!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There is so much to do for your friends now. Visit everybody that can't get out to see you. Return borrowed items, bring symbolic gifts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): For once, forget about organizing everything; let others plan, notice what their ideas involve. It's a stirring, cheerful day, and you can learn a great deal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Take yourself out of the social activities from time to time today for a brief rest. Think over what you may do about things when you get back to work.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Opportunity arises to meet people you hadn't expected to see. Make a full round of friends. There will be some improvements to celebrate this evening.

For September 28

Your birthday today: You have considerably more energy available this coming year as you tap previously undeveloped inner resources. The goal now is to simplify your life pattern, wasting no time on unnecessary actions. Your community is apt to provoke you into doing something beyond your expected career activities. It's a busy, busy year! Today's natives are frequently the workhorses of their teams.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You are subject to annoyance today — see that it does not set off an angry, hasty response from you. Much good work can be done despite your sensitivity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Stick to routines during the day; channel emotional energy into diligence and reflection. Romantic, sentimental ventures are promising later.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Discussions pop up all around and disagreements are par for the course. Take nothing very seriously. Keep negotiating. Let your loved ones know your feelings.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): During this variable day, everybody is in a different mood. Each deserves individual consideration, and all are impatient. You can gather useful information.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your strong love-need for speculation or expansion today may take you far. If you can keep your ventures realistic. Facts and figures must be verified.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Don't let anything get in the way of romantic impulses or upset your mood. Stirring up people causes needless discussions — offer no provocation or explanation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Keep your schedule and your broads in balance. Give thought to your health habits. Confidential information could help your financial position.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Keep calm and tactful while your friends show their sensitivity. They are extremely important so what is happening now is your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Deal with officials, large groups; brush up on new career opportunities. The hard sell is out, find a more adroit method of persuasion. The evening is social, romantic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Care in travel and use of power equipment is essential today. Self-improvement promises exceptional results in the near future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your theories now lead you to take chances with group funds perhaps your own as well. Check your facts and figures. Pursue sentimental interests in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Move early to co-operation and prevent later bickering. Put in a stint — paced day. Take a brief respite, then enjoy a vivacious evening.

Commons Committee Recalled

Chicken-egg War Threatens to Spread to Other Commodities

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal Conservative party, traditionally strong in rural areas, appears to be taking a calculated risk on the government's national farm products marketing bill that could pay off politically or leave it with egg on its face.

Bill C-197 would establish a national farm products marketing council and set up national farm marketing agencies for various commodities where the provinces agreed to participate or delegate their powers.

The Conservatives dug in their heels before the bill received second reading in the Commons last June, fighting it mainly with the accusation that it does not guarantee farmer representation on either the council or the agencies which it would establish.

However, the Conservatives allowed the bill to go through second reading and on to committee where the fight was to continue.

So members were recalled this week to deal with C-197 on new grounds of urgency.

In the committee's opening session Tuesday, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson urged approval in time for speedy Commons passage this session. The session is to end soon after members resume sitting on Oct. 5, if government plans pan out.

Mr. Olson's plea was based on the chicken-and-egg war that has sprung up between several provinces, and the danger of it spreading to other commodities.

The chicken-and-egg war, essentially a defensive conflict, started last spring when Quebec grew frustrated trying to convince Ontario egg producers that they should restrict their exports to Quebec's high-price market, and turned to regulations to protect Quebec's expanding producers.

The Quebec egg market suddenly became less attractive, Ontario producers would call to have shipments approved and receive no answer, or would find their perishable product waiting in the hot sun while being cleared through red tape.

For the first time it became evident that provinces may be able to restrict imports of agricultural commodities from other provinces indirectly by having their marketing board controlling sales of the commodity. No province could accomplish this feat directly, by limiting imports, because inter-provincial trade is a federal jurisdiction.

Within the last few months other provinces have been retaliating against a Quebec surplus of broiler chickens that was glutting their markets.

Ontario, British Columbia and Nova Scotia now require outside producers to hold a marketing permit before they can sell chickens to retailers. Saskatchewan has similar machinery ready to put into effect.

As a result of this jockeying, Ontario and Manitoba egg producers are facing hard times with the loss of the Quebec market.

Other farmers now are becoming wary that interprovincial restrictions might shift to their field and leave them with a surplus.

This is where bill C-169 comes in. Although cattlemen have succeeded in opting out of the bill and many farmers' associations criticize the absence of guaranteed producer representation on the proposed agencies, many are generally in favor of the measure.

The chicken and egg producers are frantically in favor of it. They have been pushing it for a year and the bill was written because of egg producers' requests for a national egg marketing board.

A communique issued at the end of last week's federal provincial conference said the prime minister and the premiers were unanimous that the bill "should be expedited."

To the government, the bill is the vehicle through which the provinces, if they want to co-operate, could build a plan to end the war.

But to the Conservatives, the measure has the potential to do exactly the opposite of harmonizing inter-provincial trade.

Harold Danforth (Kent-Essex) and Jack Horner (Crowfoot) both said this week that the bill could balkanize Canadian trade by prompting provinces, which now depend on other provinces for particular agricultural commodities, to become self-sufficient.

Their reasoning: The act would allow provinces to opt out of commodity agencies if they did not agree with the agency's plan.

If a province fails, for example, it was unfairly loaded by quotas under a national marketing formula it might decide not to join the national egg agency and become self-sufficient in this commodity.

If enough provinces took this approach, the argument goes, all the efficient egg-producing provinces now over-producing for their own needs would have to cut back. Production nationally would then become isolated and inefficient.

The difference seems to be that the government thinks the provinces will co-operate, while Mr. Horner and Mr. Danforth, at least, aren't so sure.

Mr. Horner said at a news conference Thursday he would fight the bill to the end.

PIP Committee Has Pip of A Job

TORONTO (CP) — A London, Ont., businessman has taken on the job of bringing the structure and management of the Ontario government up to date.

"The structure today is not designed to cope with the problems of today and it's even less designed to cope with the problems of the next 30 years," 49-year-old John B. Cronyn said in an interview.

He conceded that when the structure was set up, about 100 years ago in the age of Charles Dickens, it was up to date. But now it lacks adaptability.

Mr. Cronyn is chairman of the Productivity Improvement Project (PIP), a committee of five businessmen and five civil servants who have been investigating the workings of the government since last November, when it was appointed.

The first thing that is wrong, he said, is that the government is structured vertically—meaning it is built up department by department—while problems the government has to deal with are horizontal. Many of them cut across departmental lines.

"Take pollution and look how many departments that cuts across—agriculture, municipal affairs, the provincial secretary's department, the attorney-general. . . . There has to be more circulation between government and government departments—between businessmen, civil servants and academics.

"I think we are going to have to come out with some sort of structure that will allow us to take people from various departments that are affected by a problem and place them on a task force headed by a high-caliber individual and have them attack a particular problem and resolve it. Then they can disband and go back to the departments they came from."

Hailed Detente in Europe Could Be Trifle Premature

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Reports in the last several days indicate that those who have been lauding the "detente" in Europe may have been premature.

West Germany, for one, is reported to have linked the Soviet Union's attitude in the Middle East with its future policies in Europe.

The Netherlands is another country feeling some concern about the situation in the Middle East as related to that of Europe.

With the flames of conflict scorching the Middle East, and with the UN celebrating its 25th anniversary while still unable to do anything about the Vietnam war, speakers in the recently opened General Assembly have been pointing to the one area where there appears to be hope —Europe.

West Germany has concluded a non-aggression treaty with the Soviet Union. There is hope for a peace agreement between Poland and West Germany. The West German foreign minister, Walter Scheel, said in New York Friday that his country intends to conclude an agreement with Czechoslovakia.

At the same time, a European security conference is being considered by East and West, although Scheel is reported to have poured a drop of chill water on this. He is reported to have expressed concern, to Canadian External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp for one, that the Soviet attitude toward allegations that Egypt is breaking the Middle East ceasefire may be reflected in its future attitude toward the recently-signed Bonn-Moscow treaty.

His thinking is this: Egypt, ally of the Soviets, and Israel, ally of the Americans, agreed on a ceasefire.

Egypt broke the ceasefire agreement by moving Soviet missiles close to the Suez canal. The Soviet Union did nothing to stop it.

If the Soviet attitude on this agreement is so loose, what will its attitude be toward the West German-Soviet treaty?

Scheel attracted considerable interest when he met Friday with Deputy Foreign Minister Josef Winiewicz of Poland for discussions on a possible peace agreement between the two countries.

This has been a depressing time for many at the UN. There has been nothing that the UN, dedicated to end the scourge of war, could do to end the conflict in Jordan. It has even been bypassed in the behind-the-scenes talks between involved powers, with most of the substantive discussions taking place in world capitals.

To some, the UN has never looked more ineffective than in the last week.

So almost as though they were grasping at straws during the silver anniversary celebrations, Europe has become a major topic for many speakers.

SOMEDAY - SOMEBODY WILL GIVE A HOUSE AWAY AS A PRIZE

(Sorry, we can't because the law doesn't allow us to give away anything)...But there's not much likelihood of that happening. They can pack all sorts of wheels and cruises under bottle caps, and into fillers and make them fit quite comfortably in there. But to give away something as REAL as a home, well it's time in the meantime, don't rush out and spend your dimes for that one-in-a-million chance of winning something. Put those dimes in a safe place and make them grow . . . and grow . . . and grow and make them build a REAL Estate. You won't even have to answer a skill testing question or say "thank you" to anyone. And you'll know for certain you got what you bargained for. Then you can even encourage your kids to do the same. Why don't you put YOUR dimes into a REAL Estate. See Brad Taylor at Fraser & O'Neil today.

Aces Have Answer To Skyjackers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four famed veterans of aerial combat agreed Friday that isolation of countries harboring air pirates would contribute to ending the hijacking menace.

Brought together at a news conference were Air Vice-Marshal J. E. (Johnnie) Johnson and Group Capt. Douglas Bader, both of the RAF; Air Commodore J. E. Fauquier of Canada and Lt.-Gen. Adolf Galland, Germany.

"You have to call their bluff sometime," said Bader, the legless ace, in reference to the hijackers.

Fauquier, the Bomber Command veteran known as the King of the Pathfinders, said that countries harboring pirates should be isolated from all commercial air traffic, denying the aircraft of those countries the right to land elsewhere.

All four are in Winnipeg attending a Commonwealth aircrew reunion. Galland as a special guest.

On the topic of anti-war feeling, Bader said there is nothing new about it, noting that prior to the Second World War Oxford University students agreed not to participate in the fighting out of protest against the carnage of the First World War.

"Some of these students were the first when it came," he said.

Bader predicted that much the same would likely happen today if the call came and an emergency threatened the country.

Politicians Forced War German Ace Declares

WINNIPEG (CP) — Germany's most famous fighter pilot of the Second World War was greeted like a brother Friday by the men who had shot at him while he shot back with deadly and devastating precision.

Lt.-Gen. Adolf Galland received a thunderous ovation as he was introduced at the Commonwealth Wartime Aircrew reunion being held in Winnipeg. He was made an honorary citizen of the city.

His voice quavering with emotion, the once commander-in-chief of the German fighter force said he was overwhelmed at the reception.

"If I remember 35 to 40 years ago . . . we were forced by politicians to fight and shoot each other," he said.

Galland, credited with 104 victories in the sky, was a general in the Luftwaffe at the age of 28.

Although closely associated with Reichs Marshal Herman Goering and Hitler, he had serious differences of opinion with both. He was dismissed from his post in 1945 but was brought back later to lead the world's first jet fighter squadron.

As an added gesture of goodwill, Galland presented a cheque for $1,000 to the Hall of Canadian Aviation History and RCAF Memorial to be built at Trenton, Ont., on behalf of the German Fighter Pilots' Association. He is honorary president of the association.

World War I Veterans Reminisce at Reunion

WINNIPEG (CP) — United comradeship, here from points Man., who shot down nine and all of the biggest and as far-flung as Hawaii, Texas, enemy aircraft during his postmost of all veterans' reunions is a quiet room where the talk, South Africa and Great Britconversation is kept low.

As more than 1,300 exobat Second World War aircrew flooded a Winnipeg hotel Friday, one room was set aside for 13 survivors of "the war to end all wars."

Two of those First World War veterans have waited 51 years for their reunion. T.W.B. Hinch of Winnipeg and R.C. Jackson of Port Perry, Ont., were flying mates in the Royal Flying Corps in 1918 and had not seen each other since.

They met again in the hotel corridor, letters disappearing into a swarm of their younger ain as top gunner in a Halifax bomber.

Still in the services, Cpl. Reginald Soweral are members of the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion at Edmonton.

Arabs Select Team To Supervise Truce

Pledge Given Italy

ROME (CP) — U.S. President Nixon told Italian leaders today the United States is committed to a strong presence in the Mediterranean, made an unscheduled visit to greet freed American plane-hijack hostages flying home from Jordan and then met with Pope Paul.

Nixon made the reaffirmation to Italian President Giuseppe Saragat in the start of talks on ways of seeking a lasting peace in the Mediterranean.

The meeting began hours after cars belonging to U.S. military men at two Italian bases were set afire.

Reporting on the Nixon-Saragat talks, U.S. presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon "reaffirmed to the meeting that the United States is committed to a strong NATO, and to a presence in the Mediterranean because of its importance to NATO and as the southern anchor of NATO."

Ziegler said he was not aware of any discussion of the Middle East situation.

Hours before the meeting started, cars belonging to U.S. military men at two Italian bases were set afire.

Two cars were burned in Verona and two at the NATO base in the Naples suburb of Bagnoli, which Nixon is scheduled to visit Wednesday after spending a day with the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The attacks on the cars followed a night of hit-and-run battles between police and roaming bands of leftist youths in Rome. More than 204 persons were taken into custody. Only 12 were detained.

Nixon and Saragat held a private meeting Sunday night after a welcoming ceremony in which the U.S. president said American military strength in the Mediterranean would be kept at levels "to preserve the peace against those who might threaten the peace."

Nixon's schedule for the rest of the day included a private audience with Pope Paul and a helicopter trip to the U.S. carrier Saratoga in the Mediterranean for an overnight visit.

"Someday they'll legalize it and when they do, we're ready!"

Campus Violence Report Ignored

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission's report on campus violence in the United States has been greeted with much of the indifference and cynicism the commission indicated is reflected in student unrest.

The weekend report by the president's commission on campus unrest blamed much of society—the student terrorist, the authority who shoots needlessly, the teacher who tolerates disruption, the college administration who forfeits discipline.

And it laid a large measure of the blame also on the U.S. government, not only for what it does or doesn't do, but what it says.

The report was submitted after a three-month study.

The commission, headed by former Pennsylvania governor William Scranton, a Republican, called on all of society to unite against the pressures that set off the mobs, bombings and even killings at universities and colleges during the last year.

But it was to President Nixon that the Commission, and Scranton in particular, looked for a solution.

"Only the president has the platform and prestige to urge all Americans, at once, to step back from the battlelines into which they are forming," the report said.

Hussein and Arafat Sign 14-point Pact

By JOHN CHADWICK

CAIRO (Reuters) — King Hussein of Jordan flew back to Amman today with the task of carrying out his side of the peace pact reached Sunday night with guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat.

President Nasser, who played a key role in bringing about the agreement, saw the king off at the airport.

Earlier, a follow-up team headed by Tunisian Premier Bahi Ladgham flew to Amman to supervise implementation of the 14-point agreement which calls for an immediate ceasefire and the withdrawal of all army and guerrilla forces from the capital.

It was not immediately known whether Arafat had left for Amman. A Palestine Liberation Organization official declined to reveal his whereabouts, but it seemed possible he flew back to the same plane as Ladgham.

Observers at Tiberias, Israel, reported that Lebanese troops were out in force along their border Sunday, apparently an-

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: More cool weather is in store for Ontario today with generally cloudy skies, some showers and a few periods of sun. Overnight temperatures dropped into the high 30s and low 40s in the lower lakes area. Skies will be clear in most areas tonight and there is a risk of frost in the rural portions of the south. On Tuesday, temperatures will begin to climb back toward more seasonable values. Skies will be mostly sunny.

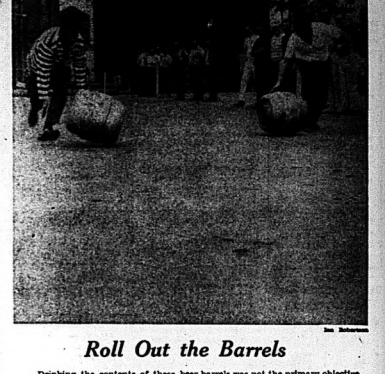
BOAC Passengers Had Bomb, Pistols

NEW YORK (Reuters) — Tightened security and an alert security officer apparently foiled an attempt to hijack a British airliner late Sunday night as officials arrested a man and a woman about to board the Israeli bound plane.

Police found five pistols and a hand grenade on the two who were identified as Gordon Rider, 25, of Los Angeles, and Nancy McGwyn, 20, who gave a fictitious New York address.

They were arrested after a security guard at the British Overseas Airways Corp. terminal spotted a bulge in Rider's pocket. The guard, Peter Murphy, searched Rider under a security program set up by the airline after the recent airline hijackings to the Middle East.



They were turned over to U.S. marshals and charged with attempting to carry a dangerous weapon on an airplane.

Police said the two, carrying U.S. passports, purchased one-way tickets to London on BOAC's Flight 506, a VC-10 bound for London and Tel Aviv.

Roll Out the Barrels

Drinking the contents of these beer barrels was not the primary objective as Ted Tedesco of Belleville and Walt Gargaro of Kingston participate in the Amerada Barrel Roll at Corbyville on Saturday. The rolling of the empty barrels was the first in a weekend of events scheduled by Canadian and American Jaycees when they met for a weekend convention in the Hotel Quinte.

Los Angeles Bush Fires Burn Hundreds of Homes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Huge fires spread on brush-covered slopes outside San Diego and Los Angeles today after destroying hundreds of homes and forcing thousands to evacuate.

Three persons were killed.

One blaze devastated 150,000 acres in southern San Diego County, advancing to the outskirts of several San Diego suburbs. A spokesman for the state division of forestry said this fire covered a greater area than any single fire in the state's history.

Another blaze blackened 115,000 acres around the Los Angeles basin.

Firefighters managed to check the western progress of the San Diego area fire Sunday night as winds, wildly erratic during the day, subsided. But the fire moved southward toward the Mexican border.

More than 50,000 residents fled the San Diego area fire and thousands of others were evacuated from canyon homes as flames raced along a 35-mile front northwest of Los Angeles.

Other fires, some believed set by arsonists, burned in various parts of Southern California for the fourth straight day.

Firefighters battled flames from the air and the ground. They faced another day of temperatures above 100 degrees and winds stronger than 60 miles an hour.

San Diego, Los Angeles and Ventura counties were declared disaster areas by Gov. Ronald Reagan, who urged Californians to donate clothing and toys for families left homeless.

Federal and state teams were ordered in to assess damage and pave the way for federal relief funds.

Evacuees were taken into the homes of friends and strangers.

Unionist Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial Police homicide detectives are investigating the stabbing death of a Montreal union leader.

The body of Andre Lahaise, 32, was found in a ditch in an uninhabited section of the south shore community of St. Basile-le-Grand. He had been missing since Sept. 22.

Kingston Girl, 13, Found Dead

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The body of 13-year-old Valerie Drew, missing since Friday, was found Sunday night near where she had last been seen.

Police said her body bore cuts, bruises and scrapes and part of her clothing was missing.

Two youths were being questioned by city police but no charges had been laid.

Hostages of Guerrillas Freed and Flying Home

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Twenty-eight Americans left Cyprus today on the last leg of their homeward-bound journey after being held by Palestinian Arab commandos for three weeks.

Four of the 22 Americans who arrived in Nicosia Sunday aboard a Red Cross airlift from Amman, Jordan, remained in the Cypriot capital. There was no immediate explanation why they stayed.

The 28 left aboard a Trans World Airlines jetliner for New York with a brief stopover in Rome.

Six other hostages remained in Amman, but diplomatic sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said Sunday that they also had been freed and were turned over to the Egyptian embassy, which has been acting as a go-between for the International Red Cross.

An Egyptian embassy spokesman in Amman said that the six were being freed unconditionally, but added he hoped the Western nations involved would free the commandos they held.

The guerrillas demanded as ransom for the hostages the release of Arab commandos held in Britain, West Germany, Switzerland and Israel.

Although Britain, West Germany and Switzerland have indicated they will free seven commandos held in their jails, diplomats said Sunday they will not go free until the release of all airline hijack hostages in Jordan is confirmed.

Reliable sources in Jerusalem said Israel was planning to free 12 Arab captives, apparently as part of a deal for the release of the hostages.

Palestinian guerrillas hijacked three airliners to Jordan Sept. 6 and 9. All but 54 of more than 400 passengers and crew members were released before Jordan's civil war erupted Sept. 17.

The hijackers, members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, later blew up the three planes, plus a fourth hijacked to Cairo. The loss was estimated at $50 million.

On Friday, 16 of the 54 hostages were rescued by the Jordanian army.

One of the 22 who arrived in Nicosia, Mimi Beeber, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y., said everyone aboard applauded and cheered when the Red Cross plane took off and again when it landed.

Another member of the group, David Raab, 17, of Trenton, N.J., said they passed their time in captivity playing chess and scrabble from sets made out of cardboard. To keep their morale up, he said, they would give each other a thumbs up signal from time to time.

"I'm so relieved to be out," said Miss Beeber, a student at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

She said the group also kept spirits up during their confinement by singing Beatles' songs and old favorites.

Another freed hostage, Barbara Mensch, 16, of Scarsdale, N.Y., said she was not afraid of the guerrillas, but became frightened when the shelling started Sept. 17.

She said the guerrillas tried to indoctrinate the group about Palestine, adding, "I must say I'm more sympathetic now that I've seen how they live in the refugee camps."

Raab said that during their captivity in a house somewhere in Amman, the hostages played cards, cooked their own special foods, and toward the end, rationed water.

Senior Citizens' Units Progressing

Construction of the new Senior citizens' apartment complex on Turnbull Street has progressed rapidly in the past three weeks.

Framework of the 45-unit structure is up, the walls have been closed in and the roof sheathing is going on.

But despite the rapid progress being made by the general contractor, Rollins Construction Ltd., W. James, local Ontario Housing Corporation supervisor, is not hopeful that the complex will be ready for occupancy much before next March.

"The exterior construction goes up quite fast—it is the interior work, plumbing, electric wiring and finishing that takes the time." Mr. James said.

The 45 new Turnbull Street senior citizen apartments each offer a combination living-dining room, kitchen, bedroom and bathroom, plus a small utility closet. Heating is by electricity.

The L-shaped two - storey structure with an outdoor patio enclosed on two sides by the apartment building, also features a ground floor recreation room with dimensions of approximately 20 by 30 feet.

Two Dead, Two Hurt In Crash

A single-car collision on Highway 401, 12 miles east of Belleville, Saturday evening, left two American youths dead and two in Kingston General Hospital with severe head injuries.

Dead are the driver, Michael David Suressi, 19, of Syracuse, N.Y., and a passenger, David Paul LaClair, 19, of Fulton, N.Y.

The two other passengers, both from Fulton, N.Y., are William Green, 22, in critical condition and Robert Charles Dexter, in satisfactory condition.

Belleville OPP received a call from a passerby, Larry New man, of London, at 6.15 It was reported that the Suresi vehicle, westbound, went out of control, struck a shale rock cutting and flipped over, coming to a stop in the median near Wyman's Road, three miles east of the Shannonville Road.

Constable Larry Farrar of the Belleville OPP was the investigating officer. An inquest is pending.

'Only Way to Fly'

George Hees, MP for Hastings-Prince Edward, and former transport minister, took his first glider ride at the Belleville Flying Club yesterday afternoon. Following his flight he compared trips with Hilary Brown, 15, of RR 5, Belleville, Hilary's three sisters, all Intelligencer carriers, were with a group of carriers the flying club sent aloft. Mr. Hees commented that "It's (gliding) a great way to get kids occupied in something useful; that energy is there and they have to have somewhere to use it." "Tremendous sport, the only way to fly," were his first comments following his descent from an altitude of 3,400 feet.

Fisherman Found

TRENTON (Staff) — An American man was found safe yesterday following an air search of La Verendrye Provincial Park about 100 miles north of Hull, P.Q.

Harold Degrass of Rochester, N.Y., did not return to his lodging Saturday afternoon from a fishing spot deep in the park.

The Rescue-Co - ordination Centre at Trenton was informed and a CH113 Voyageur helicopter was dispatched from CFB Uplands to comb the area.

Search ended Sunday morning when the lost fisherman came wandering out of the bush.

of the usurping Israeli enemy."

The agreement came after a week of meetings among the leaders of Egypt, Tunisia, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, North Yemen, Lybia, South Yemen, Sudan and Lebanon. Hussein and Arafat arrived Sunday, and the final draft was completed during two sessions.

The delegate from South Yemen left before the signing ceremony, and the governments of Syria, Iraq, Morocco and Algeria failed either to attend the conference or to sign the agreement.

Sporadic fighting was reported in Jordan. Arafat's Fatah guerrilla organization said at its Beirut, Lebanon, office that its forces were shelled in Amman and Zarqa but were not retaliating. Amman radio said commandos had fired on government troops there.

Along the Jordanian frontier with Israel, hundreds of peasants began returning Sunday to tend their neglected crops. Farmers fled the Jordan Valley southeast of the Sea of Galilee a year ago because of daily Israeli forays against the guerrillas, but there have been no incidents reported since the war in Jordan started.

The agreement, signed Sunday night, was greeted with rejoicing and almost disbelief in Cairo.

It seemed impossible 24 hours earlier that Hussein and guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat could be induced to sit in the same room, let alone reach agreement on the future of Jordan.

But observers noted that the pact contains a giant escape clause which could shatter the peace—that there may be exceptions which call for guerrilla activity.

Constructive Individualism Is Urged at Moira Graduation

"Long hair, loud clothes and muscle cars" are not the marks of individualism, Ernest Shipton, the new principal of Moira Secondary School told the school's graduating class Saturday.

Mr. Shipton, as the convocation's guest speaker, indicated to the gymnasium crowd of graduates and their parents that to engage in social service work, however, is such a mark and that the capacity for this lies within them.

The new principal, who comes to Moira from Toronto's East York Collegiate, exhorted the 70 grade 13 and 107 grade 12 graduates "to act like individuals" and "to demand much of their schools."

Individualism and demands of the student body were also themes of the valedictory address by grade 13 graduate Bob Maybee, now at the University of Toronto.

"The present system does not retard growth of individuality and independent thinking, but neither does it expand the qualities to their fullest extent" he said.

"In the years that this graduating class has been in high school, Moira has progressed somewhat in developing better courses and greater educational responsibility — but we cannot stop at this. Our system must be constantly examined, updated and expanded. Improvement must be made on the foundation of the past" he concluded.

During the convocation Ontario Scholarships were received by 10 Moira grads: Ted Fret, Bill Gullfoyle, Bill Janitsch, David Lenny, Bob Maybee, Ken Monteith, David Nelles, Paul Osborne, Dave Thompson and Peter Thompson.

Forty - nine scholarships, bursaries, prizes and awards were also given out.

A Brock University Scholarship for $400 was presented to Bill Gullfoyle, a "Governor Scholarship" from McMaster University valued at $400 went to Ken Monteith, David Lenny received the $250 Thomas A. Russell Scholarship of University College, University of Toronto.

The Hal Wisbert Memorial Scholarship of $150 went to Robert Rolston, the Winnifred Hay Memorial Award to Susan Bishop, The Intelligencer Scholarship of $100 to Peter Mills and Paul Osborne and the $100 Belleville Kinsmen Bursary to Jim Cochrane.

Forty - eight Moira graduates of the class of 1970 enrolled in Canadian universities this fall.

Eight chose Carleton, Toronto and Western respectively, seven Waterloo, five Queen's, four McMaster and three Trent.

Quinte Area Veterans At Aircrew Reunion

Three Quinte area men were among the 1,500 veteran flyers of two world wars parading along Winnipeg's Portage Ave. Sunday at the close of the four-day British Commonwealth wartime aircrew reunion.

Dale Smith of Bancroft, William Menzies of Trenton and Lorne Shelter of Napanee attended the gathering — largest of its type in Canadian history.

In Sunday's parade, veterans were saluted by Maj. Jim. W. K. Carr, commander of the Canadian Forces' training Command, as they proceeded to a memorial service in front of the Manitoba Legislature.

Among other distinguished veterans on the saluting base were top British flying ace Air Vice - Marshall J. E. Johnson and Canada's Air Commodore J. E. Fauquier, the man who led the first 1,000 raids over Germany in the Second World War.

Air Vice-Marshall Johnson suggested Friday that a grand reunion be held in London in the near future, adding that he would work to bring this about.

Air Commodore Fatquier, in his speech the same evening to the 400 flyers in the newly-opened Winnipeg Hotel, requested that preparations begin to hold another reunion in Canada in the next three years.

The Air Commodore told Willam Menzies that "Trenton would make an ideal choice to coincide with opening of the RCAF Memorial, if sufficient space could be found to accommodate the several thousand that would probably attend".

Lt.-Gen. Adolf Galland head of the Luftwaffe's Fighter Command during World War II, marched in yesterday's reunion march through Winnipeg with his one-time enemies.

Earlier, in an address to the assembled Commonwealth air veterans, Lt.- Gen. Galland presented a $1,000 cheque to the building fund for Trenton's Hall of Canadian Aviation-RCAF Memorial on behalf of the German Fighter Pilots' Association.

'This Is Urban Renewal at Grass Roots'

Was Mayor J. Russell Scott's quip as he and District Commander Eric Hogg turned symbolic sod at the consecration of the site of the new Royal Canadian Legion building on Pinnacle Street. At the Saturday afternoon ceremony, the mayor commented on the position of the legion in the city. "Our citizens are very proud of our veterans and are aware of their contribution to the city, the country and the world." The new three-storey complex replaces the small legion building and the old, recently demolished Holland building.

Council's Name Honors Indians

The Telephone Pioneers of America recently formed a chapter in the Quinte area under the name of the Mohawk - Loyalist Council of the TPA. The annex to the national name was chosen because of the loyalty of the Mohawks during the American Revolution.

It was on May 22, 1784 that Chiefs John Deserontyou, Aaron Hill and Isaac Hill settled with their Mohawk tribe on the shores of the Bay of Quinte.

Because of this historical background, the name "Mohawk - Loyalist" was added as a prefix following approval received from a council meeting of Mohawk Indians at the Tyendinaga reserve.

To the first executive of the 600 - member council, Leo Logue of Bell Canada was elected president, and Mrs. Jean Scott of Northern Electric, vice - president.

Child Therapy Toy Displayed

Mrs. Anne Stafford, advisor of family services and co-ordinator of school planning for the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, operates "Go-Play", a toy developed for the observation of a child's finger co-ordination. A weekend conference, held by the Belleville Volunteer Bureau at Bridge St. United Church, included the outlining of courses, films, group and panel discussions. Present for Mrs. Stafford's discussion are Mrs. Ruth Burrows, Mrs. Betty Exelby, director of the early childhood development course at Loyalist College, Mrs. Miriam Bishop, and Mrs. Margaret Maddocks.

Hearings Begin At Courthouse

An inquiry by the Canadian Transport Commission into the causes and circumstances of three Ontario train derailments opened this morning in Belleville at the Hastings County Court House.

The inquiry moved here for sessions from Ottawa where it opened last Thursday and ran for two days.

Panel Chairman, D. H. Jones and commissioners R. March and J. M. Woodard opened this morning session hearing evidence concerning the collision Aug. 7 between a track motor car and the CNR Toronto-Montreal through passenger train just east of Brockville.

Throughout the inquiry two other railway mishaps will be investigated — a derailment of 21 freight cars on the mainline of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Cobourg July 30, and a derailment at Port Hope Aug. 6 of 14 CNR freight cars.

The inquiry is designed to reveal maintenance and operating practices and other factors that might contribute to train derailments and collisions in order to find a solution to the problem.

Realism Or Heresy?

The World's Theological Congress in Brussels has heard some expressions of view on contemporary society that are both challenging and shocking — the latter in the sense that they appear to condone latter-day concepts of permissiveness.

Two hundred theologians and 700 observers at the conference were told that the Roman Catholic church must come to terms with sex and eroticism as legitimate expressions of present-day society. They heard the Rev. Gregory Baum, professor at St. Michael's College in Toronto say that the one-sided dominance of reason over feeling and sexuality had caused a dangerous split in the consciousness of western society. He criticized the "traditionally negative attitude of the church towards sex," and noted that the present crisis in the priesthood and religious life "inevitably raises the sexual question, and eventually demands a personal decision." This, he said, was not simply, whether to get married or not, "but rather what to do with one's sexual energies."

Prof. Antonie Vergote, of Louvain University, Belgium, took a similarly nonconformist approach, one so out of line with traditional church discipline as to verge on the heretical. "Contemporary eroticism," he said, "is a revolt against every form of slavery and segregation, and the plea for the right to enjoyment is a major moment in our society."

These are the sentiments of men who would permit recognition of the facts of life as being worthy of respectability — at long last. At the same time they cannot be regarded as an open invitation to society at large to travel any farther along the path of licence than it does at present.

The same sense of responsibility that society has always demanded, if not necessarily followed, still confronts parents and children. For in the working out of contemporary permissiveness it is only too painfully apparent what the consequences of licence are. The startling increase in the incidence of venereal disease of course is the most obvious barometer of this.

That is the still choice . . . but choosers and the thus . . . ts of other people must remain paramount in making such choices, today as ever. Basic requirement, please, even death can be the result of wrong decisions.

Bleak Region

When we read that helicopter-borne search teams recovered the capsuled moon material on windswept steppe brushfields in Kazakhstan, following the recent Soviet space feat, we are reminded that this and previous explorations have started out from one of the most desolate regions on earth.

Two years ago United Press International writer Frank Newnham toured the Soviet Union and in a dispatch from Alma-Ata, capital of the region, he wrote: "Except for the Russian republic, Kazakhstan is the largest of all the Soviet republics, stretching from the Caspian Sea in the west to Sinkiang province of China in the east.

"It is a land of arid steppes where howling winds and dry vast dust storms and the heat is suitable only for grazing fat sheep and camels.

"Of the salty marshlands along the Caspian, a Russian writer once said, 'when you look at the grey, barren steppe, you are seized with such a feeling of depression that you want to hang yourself — but there is nothing to hang yourself on.'

"A bush pilot's whirling compass led to the discovery of huge iron deposits. Kazakhstan's total wealth is still unmeasured but it is said that every element known to science can be found beneath its soil. It produces lead, copper, coal, gold, aluminum from its bauxite mines, zinc, molybenum, wolfram and other non-ferrous metals."

Alma-Ata rich desolation, if it may be so termed, Alma-Ata appears to be an oasis of sorts. Newsom describes it as a pleasant city of hard-surfaced streets, "of tree-lined streets, of rattling tram cars and an air of sophistication brought about both by the fact its people are an industrialized, relatively high-paid society and by its university, the Kazakh Academy of Science and other institutes of learning."

Here is a glimpse then of Kazakhstan, where the winds blow and where yet another link has been established between the planet earth and the moon.

'March for Victory' Rally

U.S. Upset Over Private Visit of South Vietnam's Ky

WASHINGTON (CP) — If, as the critics charge, South Vietnam's Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky is nothing but a puppet, then he is doing a good imitation of a puppet who has definitely taken control of his own strings.

For, barring some last-minute, face-saving compromise, Ky seems bent on a visit here despite the icy disapproval of President Nixon and Thieu, of South Vietnam.

The occasion is the Oct. 2 "March for Victory" to be staged in Washington by Rev. Carl McIntire, a fundamentalist, right-wing radio preacher.

McIntire, who has accused the Nixon administration of being "soft" on communism and has styled the "Vietnamization" policy as a "fiction," went to Saigon personally to invite Ky to join him in the demonstration.

It is an open secret that the White House is firmly opposed to the visit and even McIntire has acknowledged that "we are sure was put through the state department" to deter Ky from making the trip.

In Saigon, friends of Thieu are reported concerned Ky sees the visit as a politically profitable move in his ambitions to regain the presidency.

Still, it would be unthinkably embarrassing for either Nixon or Thieu to publicly denounce what is, after all, a private visit of a vice-president to a friend and ally.

As Ky himself pointed out, no one invited Vice-President Spiro Agnew to Saigon—he just went.

The closest the White House has come to expressing official disapproval was Agnew's remark in Indianapolis Wednesday that the Ky visit will not serve any "useful purpose . . . it may be a mistake."

The Ky visit—and the rally itself—would come at a particularly inopportune time, during sensitive peace talks in Paris and gradual U.S. withdrawal from the war in Vietnam.

The touchstone of McIntire's war philosophy is that instead of withdrawing, the U.S. should go in and win the victory by intensified use of conventional military force.

As for Ky, officials apparently are more concerned over any counter-demonstrations — and other violence his appearance might spark than anything he might say.

Filipinos and others have promised to be on hand and threaten to "arrest" Ky as a war criminal.

The flamboyant, high-living Ky has always been a source of embarrassment to official America.

His playboy style, tainted with charges of heroin involvements, has always seemed out of focus against the background of a tortured country scarred by war.

Although he has abandoned his Captain Midnight flying suit with inverted scarf and black baseball cap for a more disciplined demeanor, he recently has been quoted as saying in the limelight after a period of self-imposed absence following his fall from grace.

Although reduced to a largely ceremonial figure in the vice-presidency, he still is regarded by many as an ambitious seeker of the presidency. As one Saigon official has been quoted as saying:

"The president (Thieu) is at least as worried about Ky as he is about the Viet Cong."

"We can be thankful our son's a high school drop-out and won't be exposed to all those radical elements and riots on campus this fall!"

City Finds A Neglected Slum

Peterborough Examiner

People who watch television or read the newspapers often learn about primitive places where there are no sewers, no running water, no flush toilets or other comforts of modern life.

Seeing people carry water home from the river, in containers on their backs, or reading about others who cannot take a bath at home because they don't have water let alone a bathroom is shocking.

The thought of how illness and deadly disease can spread under such conditions is enough to make any doctor or public health official turn pale.

But these things always happen somewhere else.

In Asia or in Africa, or, maybe, some where in the jungle towns of South America. In remote places where fearful looking, bemedalled dictators in fancy uniforms rule over a largely uneducated and subservient people who don't know much about civilization anyway.

As was reported by The Examiner, a number of families on Harper Road in the south end of Peterborough have been living under similar conditions for some time.

They carry water in pails and other containers. They can't flush their toilets. Taking a bath is difficult because they use the tubs as reservoirs.

They boil the water before drinking, but there are children there and children aren't very careful, or just don't know what can happen if one drinks dirty water . . . or what can happen if toilets remain unflushed for extended periods of time in the summer when temperatures can come along . . . or what can happen to people who cannot wash themselves properly.

Children may not know what can happen in cases like these, but doctors, public health officials, public utilities officials or any adult, including the victims, definitely do know.

Yet, in the seven years since the city annexed the area, no one thought of it. Harper Road was forgotten. It's hard to believe that anything like this could happen, in our city, but it did

Estate Plans

A Man's Duty To His Family

Canada Trust Bulletin

Why is it that a man will discuss his estate plans with his advisers, his business associates or his golf partner, but not his wife?

Recently we administered an estate of a man whose widow was completely unaware of her husband, in the few years prior to his death, had transferred to her a large interest in his company and several parcels of real estate.

Sometimes a husband might think he has valid reasons for not discussing such things with his wife. Perhaps he feels he is shielding her from worry and concern.

However, if he could foresee the administrative difficulties she will be confronted by and action, not the least of which is the tax complications involved, he would not take such an attitude.

We realize that some estate plans are complicated, but many are not. If the testator can explain the plan to his family, he should do so. If he cannot, an estate adviser should be asked to explain it.

Some matters between husband and wife might be top secret, but we do not believe estate planning to be one of them.

A social hour followed the discussion.

UK Pubs in Doghouse

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The British pub has often been cited to the Ontario public as the example of what the Ontario beverage room should be. In wartime memories of the cosy pubs in rural Sussex and Hampshire, or tourist memories of sprightly pubs in central London, it is easy to make comparisons unflattering to some of the depressing beer outlets we find here.

We may not have quite the right picture in our minds, according to some matter-of-fact Britons. A report from the National Catering Inquiry, which surveyed a 296-pub sample of Britain's pubs, say they are too noisy, crowded and unclean.

A sample of the report's language would give an idea of its tone: "The washing of bar glasses in cold, beery water, after which they sometimes receive a perfunctory wipe with a grubby tea-towel, is too commonplace."

If this kind of shattering condemnation alienates millions of hundreds of thousands of Canadians who have warmly notated memories of evenings to the Wheat Sheaf or the Jolly Plowboy, there may be an explanation. The majority of British pubs must be in industrial and workingclass areas of big cities, where neither the wartime Canadian in uniform nor the peacetime tourists would normally go.

Visitors to Britain do not see the pubs that must accord the greatest part of the population.

If the harsh language of the NCI report is true, then some of the pubs we don't know up to the bright and cheery level of those we do, so much the better for visitors to Britain.

It remains a good object for Ontario to make our beverage rooms into places where people go for a bit of sociability and a little drinking, instead of the other way around.

Another Look At Youth Problem

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Concerning the much talked about drug scene.

Once again I say our young people are rebelling against their forefathers' notion —Do as I say and close your eyes to what I do, for we don't live up to the orders we give you.

I feel the educational system has not helped the attitude of our young people say, for it is getting harder to find any moral principles left in the system.

Our young people have been taught the free society bit without any sense of responsibility— so they are taking this freedom as expressing desires in action, philosophies and rebellions.

All but a few they are going at it is not proper and constructive, you say. Well many of those kids don't understand that, or really do not care for they have not been taught otherwise. The parents have chosen an inferior way of life leaving many of those kids lacking good principles. They are left to grab at a way of life for themselves, with no help or encouragement, or good grounding.

I also realize there are those young people who have had everything they needed materially and perhaps morally in advice but how about spiritually? This to me is the most important for this is the foundation of a well-grounded life. A life with this foundation is not easily led, although many have failed with it. A life has something substantial to hold onto. This life is better taught through example. Our young people want to see a sermon in more and fuds lives, not be told.

I am not talking about religion or room and dad's church membership. This holds no water at all in their lives for this alone will root rebellion. Why, you say? — because religion is outward works with no heart experience, personal lives don't change with religion. Being called religious is no compliment to them.

As for church membership, some adults do inside a church just long enough to sign their name and hardly darken the church doors again except for weddings and funerals. They ride along on the name of a church member. This is not enough to establish themselves and their young people.

I feel what is wrong here this is no strong, firm foundation to ground a life. When we do this we are leading our youth the way of sham. No wonder our young people stray for adults have become a moral, in the sense that their lives are the only ones that show them the way.

Our nations are falling apart because of our spiritual slackness.

The spiritual ground I am talking about is a personal contact with God. Not a religious one, means every man for himself. we do not ride along on each others coat tails. Only a holy life brings goodness, not any of man's efforts only a hungry open heart.

Young people do not need hypocrites who have had nothing with drop - in centres! What they need is people who love Yoet Love as they are and are old enough to be available to listen to their problems, even though they could not listen before and have gotten themselves in a terrible mess. Many will say "What Yet God can help" Remember though: they are our kids and we are responsible. We need a solid grounded life. A life with this foundation is not easily led, although many have failed with it. A life has something substantial to hold onto. This life is better taught through example. Our young people want to see a sermon in more and fuds lives, not be told.

I am not talking about religion or room and dad's church membership. This holds no water at all in their lives for this alone will root rebellion. Why, you say? — because religion is outward works with no heart experience, personal lives don't change with religion. Being called religious is no compliment to them.

As for church membership, some adults do inside a church women filled with the Spirit and love of God who make themselves available for the youth of our drop - in centre. They share their burdens and help them if they need help. You cannot help a person who does not want it. Many do want help, many don't but it is the ones that do you try to reach.

Teen Challenge's help is present in helping youth the power of the Living Christ in lives which has been known to deliver drug addicts, alcoholics and those that are despondent.

This is the answer to our adults and future generation. Men evade Christ, who would be power in their lives.

Rev. D. Wilkerson founder of the first Teen Challenge in New York City, wrote the book The Trial. I recommend this book to every parent. I dare them to read it. My wife and I can be the same after. It can be purchased in any bookstore for a very small sum.

Last year when we read an article in Maclean's about our city, I wrote to Teen Challenge and they requested the names and addresses of any high school principals, that they could send to them information on very constructive aims for our teens on the dangers of dope. They would have seen real live cases. The addresses were forwarded to them, and information was mailed out.

These men wish-ed not to go further with the information we have given. This is an example of our adult interest.

Belleviliians must face the facts. Are we willing to pay for the real answer to our problems.

Conservation Authority Gets $7,750 in Grants

Provincial grants totalling $7,750 to the Moira River Conservation Authority for various projects on the watershed have been announced by Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins.

The grants include $4,750 for improvement work at the O'Hara Mill Conservation area, the main project being dredging of the mill-pond to clean up the water storage area.

Another grant of $2,500 has been approved for development work at the Thurlow Wildlife Conservation Area where Authority owns a total of 475 acres on what is commonly known as the Madoc Lane east of Foxboro. The money will be used to construct an access road from the county road to the Moira River.

A grant of $1,000 has been given to undertake a cleanup of the Deer Creek channel running through Madoc village to Moira Lake. The cleanup will be phase I over an overall project which will include construction of two small weir dams, possibly next year.

Another $500 grant is to be received for improvements at the Price Conservation Area at Actinolite, and for improvements of the picnic grounds at the Flinton Conservation Area.

Last year the Authority repaired the old dam at Flinton with approximately $3,500 being spent to replace stoplogs and do other necessary work to restore the old mill-pond.

Summer Reading Is On Increase

Summer reading is becoming more popular, at least that's the way it seems, according to statistics released by the Corby Public Library.

For June, July and August, book circulation increased in adult readership in all three months.

June of 1969 saw 14,830 books in circulation and in 1970 that figure increased to 15,740. July saw the 1970 figure rise to 17,237 compared to 1969's 15,393. August's reading rose from 15,875 books in 1969 to 17,965 in 1970.

Total circulation for the three months this year was 50,939 books. In 1969 the figure was 45,797.

The children's book situation was different, however, with total circulation for the three months dropping from 23,063 in 1969 to 22,850 in 1970.

June and July were the two summer months that initiated the over-all drop. In June circulation dropped from 7,696 in 1969 to 7,536 in 1970. July saw circulation drop from 7,895 in 1969 to 7,560 this year. Only August worked against the trend with the figure from 1969 — 7,475 in circulation — to 7,633 in 1970.

Former Forester Gets New Post

Norman Patrick, former district forester at Tweed, will become the new director of the Conservation Authorities Branch on January 1 next year following the retirement of A. S. L. Barnes.

The announcement of Mr. Barnes' retirement was made at the 12th biennial conference of conservation authorities held in Sudbury.

Attending the conference from the Moira River Conservation Authority were chairman W. G. Bell, vice-chairman James Spry, members Ernest Kells, J. Thompson, Harold Varty, secretary-treasurer J. H. McLeod and resources manager John M. White.

The theme of the convention was "Conservation in the Seventies" and was featured by a tour of the Sudbury area showing what the nickle and mining industry is doing in the field of environmental control.

Tour members were shown the growing of rye and hay on once sterile mine tailings.

Hon. George M. Kerr, minister of Energy and Resources told the conference that conservation in the seventies was everyone's responsibility and that conservation authorities would play an increasingly greater part.

The minister challenged authorities to become more involved in the fight of environmental control and to carry a greater responsibility.

Boy Injured

Thomas Brian Empey, a 10-year-old Marmora boy was injured Saturday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding was in collision with a motor car at the intersection of Highways 14 and 7 at the village main corner.

Madoc provincial police said the boy was taken to Kingston General Hospital.

ANAF News

A number of Quinte district comrades are looking forward to Thanksgiving weekend, Oct. 10, 11 and 12 when those who are members of the Hasty-P Regimental Association will be heading for the annual reunion in Picton. This is rather a special occasion as, not only is it the 25th reunion, it is also the 50th anniversary of the formation of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment when the Hastings Rifles and the Prince Edward Regiment were amalgamated. It is hoped that a good number of the 1920 members will be present. Picton executive is all ready for a big crowd.

The Saturday evening live entertainment socials just starting for the winter months are getting a good turnout and when the Mr. and Mrs. Darts start next month it should make for a lot of enjoyable evenings.

Another sad report was received last Thursday when that well beloved old comrade W. "Bill" Heard suddenly passed away. His friendly smile and kindly words will be missed around the club especially the old 14-18 sweats. All members join in extending their deep sympathy to the bereaved family. Chairman of the sick committee reports the following Comrades in the Belleville General Hospital; Frank Cronin, Ed Gardener, Irving Browning has been rushed to intensive care with absolutely no visitors. Cdr. J. McNaught is slowly recovering and is still in the Victory Ward in the Kingston Hospital. Cdr. H. Feather still invites visitors.

All those interested in playing in the Belleville Dart League this winter are asked to attend a meeting in the ANAF lower lounge tonight at 8 p.m. to discuss plans for the coming season and arrange for the election of officers.

The past weekend the ANAVET Ontario Provincial Golf Championships were held at Barrie. The following members were chosen to represent the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Cdrs. Mike Acquafreddo, Jack Assenhiemer, Dave Feeney and Reg Workman. They had a real good time and met a lot they put up a courageous battle and turned in some good scores, with Mike having the low score for the Belleville team, they were not quite good enough to get in on the prizes. They all agree, though, that they met a fine bunch of sportsmen and hope that in the near future the golf tournament can be held here in Belleville so that the fine hospitality shown them can be equalled by the friendly city and the Unit. Better luck next time, comrades, the members know you did your best.

Make up a party and spend a couple of enjoyable hours at the club's Tartan Lounge on Fridays and the lower lounge on Saturdays. Members and their guests heartily welcome. Live entertainment on both nights.

Medical Secretaries Attend Workshop

A number of Quinte medical secretaries, along with Kingston and Brockville medical secretaries, attended an OHSIP workshop and party on Wednesday in the Bellevue South Room, Holiday Inn, Princess St., Kingston.

Representatives of OHSIP Central Agency, designated agents and service agents discussed all matters relevant to the plan and its administration. A colorful slide presentation outlined the OHSIP plan and its benefits.

A panel discussion followed which consisted of Dr. J. L. Johnston, Queen's University, Mrs. Mildred Wilding, OHSIP, Mr. H. McKeever, Kingston, Mr. Ron LeBlanc, Regional Co-ordinator from Ottawa. Also present and available for the question and answer period were Wally Betz, moderator, Mrs. Mary MacGregor, Information officer OMSIP and OHSIP, and Dave Buchanan, agency co-ordination branch. Several other members from insuring agencies answered queries.

The claims adjustment branch of OHSIP and several insurance companies assist in providing a continued health care program for all residents of Ontario. Numerous questions were fired at the panel and answered promptly. It must be noted that approximately 75,000 claims are processed daily by OHSIP, and that enquiries will be slowed up accordingly. However, Mrs. Wilding assured members that if the enquiry forms were used in each and every instance of no payment, under payment, over-payment, etc., all claims would be expedited on these forms.

Medical secretaries were also informed that new self-addressed envelopes for OHSIP and the Insuring Agencies would be out shortly to facilitate any mailing problems. These envelopes are available now from some of the Insuring Agencies and only have to be requested.

Appeals to the Health Insurance Council for temporary assistance on the part of any individual can be made. This assistance lasts only three months, and, therefore, must be requested at three - month intervals.

It was also pointed out that some of the Insuring Agencies are not using social insurance numbers. This will be rectified shortly as eventually all numbers will be social insurance numbers.

Mrs. Wilding further emphasized the importance of correct insurance numbers and insuring agency. The IBM machines to not know when the mistake is — only the most efficient medical secretary can insure the information is correct by double checking numbers with the charts and if necessary, with the patient's ID card.

A social hour followed the discussion.

Request for Volunteers By Community Services

Langman – Clements

On Sept. 19, Grace Sharron Jacqueline Clements, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wood of Belleville, became the bride of Gerald George Langman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Langman of Belleville. Father Warren officiated at the ceremony held at Holy Rosary Church. Tibor Csaszar played the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white cotton crochet lace over taffeta. Her cathedral length veil was caught up by a cluster of organza flowers in front and organza flower streamers at the back. She carried a prayer book crested with a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses with streamers of the same flowers floating down the sides.

Matron of honor Mrs. Elizabeth Merew, sister of the bride, wore a floor - length dress of lace over green taffeta. She wore a wedding ring headpiece and carried a bouquet of cross-shaped 'mums.

Bridesmaids Miss Brenda Langman, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Sharon Sarret and Mrs. Karen Clements, were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in yellow. Miss Arla Wood, sister of the bride and Miss Micheline Langman, the bridegroom's sister who were also bridesmaids wore green dresses and green flowers in their hair. Both had bouquets of green flowers.

Flower girl Miss Michelle Merew, a niece of the bride wore a floor - length white and yellow dress with yellow flowers in her hair. She carried a basket of flowers.

The best man was Roy Clements and the ushers were Dennis Gierapetz, Paul Langman, the brother of the bridegroom and Paul Merew, brother - in - law of the bride.

For the reception held at Christchurch Parish Hall, the bride's mother wore pink two-piece suit with a matching psychedelic scarf and pink flowers in her hair. She also had a corsage of white carnations. A turquoise and gold dress with a matching duster and a corsage of white carnations was the choice of the bridegroom's mother.

For travelling to Points East, the bride wore a deep purple dress with bone-colored accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. Upon return the newlyweds will reside at 151 Dundas St. West, Belleville.

Horticulture Society Hears Show Report

STIRLING — The first autumn meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society was held Monday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall with 30 members in attendance. Several colorful vases of flowers were in evidence.

Vice - president Mrs. Raymond McConnell was in charge and Mrs. Kenneth Ray and Miss Gena Spry welcomed the guests as they arrived. Mrs. Percy Craighead and Mrs. Margaret Ware convened the kitchen refreshments.

Reports were given by the secretary Mrs. Ted Reynolds and treasurer Mrs. Grant Hubble. The report on cards sent to the ill and bereaved was given by the Friendship secretary Mrs. L. Bronson. The correspondence included copies of bulb catalogues and other material of interest.

A full report of the June flower show was given. Although the event proved quite successful, it is hoped that more members will take part in this phase of work next year. The society also realized a nice amount of money in their CNE bus trip.

Five members including Mrs. Milford Wrightman, Mrs. Oscar Merrick, Mrs. Violet Rose, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Ivan Fairfield read articles pertaining to various phases of horticulture.

Club Activities

MOIRA BELLE TOPS

Twenty - three members of Moira Belle Tops were present at the last meeting of the club held in the Recreation Centre, following the summer recess.

The queen for the summer months for losing the most weight (8¼ lbs. in eight weeks) received a prize. One new member was honored and a bracelet was presented to the one for losing the first ten pounds.

Do's and Don'ts of the club were explained and an invitation was received to attend an open house in St. Thomas Parish Hall on Tuesday, Sept. 29. At this time slides of the convention held last May in Windsor will be shown.

Regular meetings are again in progress and anyone interested in taking off pounds is welcome.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. R. Terry and family 182 Avondale Rd. and Mrs. H. Thomson, RR 6, Belleville recently attended the second annual graduation exercises of the Osler School of Nursing, Toronto, Ontario.

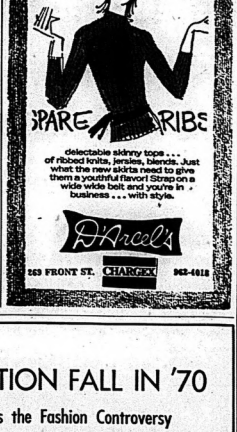
* * *

Before her wedding, Mrs. Gerald Langman (nee Grace Clemens) was honored at a miscellaneous shower with Mrs. Genevieve Richardson and Sharon Sweet as co-hostesses. Mrs. Karen Clements and Mrs. Susan Clements held a cup and saucer shower in honor of the bride-to-be.

Happy 60th Anniversary, IODE!

Mrs. A. B. Duffy, one of the Past Regents of the Argyll Chapter, IODE, pours tea for Mrs. H. L. Kokesh, the present Regent, while Mrs. J. K. Bradford lights a candle on the anniversary cake.

Mrs. O. Allan, immediate past Regent looks on. The occasion was the tea which was held on Saturday to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the chapter.



Anniversary Tea, Bake Sale Held by Argyll Chapter IODE

The Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Argyll Chapter celebrated its 60th anniversary with a tea and bake sale held at the spacious home of Mrs. J. K. Bradford, 91 Victoria Ave., on Saturday, Sept. 26. The proceeds of the tea and sale will be used for educational purposes.

With Mrs. H. L. Kokesh as Regent, Mrs. B. Milroy as social convener and Mrs. O. Allen in charge of publicity, the chapter consists of nearly 30 members. Formed in 1910, the chapter originally consisted of the wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of active officers of the Argyll Light Infantry Regiment. In 1954, the Argyll Light Infantry was amalgamated with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment but the chapter retains its original name although the membership has been revised to include the wives of officers and ex-officers as well as mothers, sisters and daughters of men in the Armed Forces. The chapter spends a large portion of its funds on education and assists in community projects as well.

It was reported that the tea was financially successful. The anniversary cake was won by Mrs. D. G. Burr of Belleville.

Several of the Past Regents poured tea and past members of the Chapter from Peterborough and Toronto were present. Members from the Campbellford, Stirling, Picton and the local St. John chapter also attended the tea.

Professional Help Brings an Answer

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It has taken me a long time to write this letter. Years, perhaps. But now I am ready.

I was always considered mature and highly intelligent for my age. My grades were excellent. I was one of the prettiest girls in any crowd. Whatever I wanted I got. This was the face I presented to the world. Inside I was a different person — restless, unsure of myself and I trusted no one. My parents had both been married several times; they were heavy drinkers and constantly at war with each other. People often remarked, "Isn't it extraordinary that with HER hectic family life she is so well adjusted!"

Well adjusted! At age 15 I was on drugs. All kinds of junk. At 17, I was pregnant. Luckily I had a miscarriage and my parents never knew. At 18 I married a real nut. He was a speed freak with a violent temper. One night he beat me up so severely I was convinced if I didn't divorce him he'd kill me.

It was a lawyer who changed my life. He told me if I didn't get professional help I'd end up at the bottom of the Hudson River.

I've been seeing a professional analyst for only a few weeks, but I now understand why my life has been such a mess. I now know that my father is an alcoholic and my mother is as sick as he is. I know, too, that it's up to me to stop looking for scapegoats and to make something of my life.

For years I've been reading your advice. "Get professional help" . . . "see a psychiatrist" — etc. I thought you were copping out, but I realize now how right you were. If I hadn't waited so long to get professional help I wouldn't have all these scars at age 19. — RESPECTFULLY, L.A.U.

DEAR L.A.U.: Don't knock the scars, Honey. They can do more for you than medals. I appreciate your letter and thank you for writing. . . .

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I think it is rotten the way fruity, woman-hating designers have conspired with the greedy manufacturers to lower the hemlines.

Aside from the fact that the mid-calf skirts are ugly and anti-feminine, they are uncomfortable, a hazard to driving and difficult to walk in. Worse yet, the "new look" has made millions of dollars worth of wardrobe obsolete and the average woman cannot afford to throw out everything in her closets and start again.

I hope you will do what you can to urge American women to refuse to buy the long look. If enough women leave these monstrosities on the racks, the style-setters will get the message. — MINI FOREVER.

DEAR MIN: Thanks for writing. Here's another point of view:

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank God the mini is out and decency is in. I am an executive secretary (age 26) and, I might add, my legs are good. I wore my skirts four inches above the knee because it was considered the "in" thing but I am delighted to see the mini pass out of the picture.

Every time I sat down I worried about what was showing. My hosiery bills were murder. Now, with longer skirts and boots, I'll save a fortune. I've discovered I can use most of my minis by wearing them as tunics over a longer skirt. For the first time in four years I feel like a lady. And if the guys don't whistle — so what. Let 'em guess. — RELIEVED.

Welfare Costs Up

TORONTO (CP) — John Anderson, Metropolitan Toronto social services commissioner, said recently $1.3 million must be raised by November to pay for additional welfare costs. He said the previous budget of $74 million for 1970 will be exhausted by the end of October because of an unexpected additional demand in the last two months.

SPECIAL MUSHROOMS

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — The mushrooms you will be savoring this winter in soups and sauces are the result of a meticulous growing process being conducted near here, about 15 miles southeast of Belleville. The mushrooms, grown for a soup company which formerly imported them from the U.S., are spawned on cooked rye grain. They are then put in utter darkness where they complete their growth to maturity.

Successful Living

Family Is Captivated by Adopted Child

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: We have just adopted a lovely baby girl and would appreciate your reprinting a poem you once published. The last line is "You grew not beneath my heart but in it."

Our baby is now four months old and is a constant delight. Our two boys ages eight and 10 are completely captivated by her and her daddy is wound around her little finger.

There are so many homeless little ones around. If more people would realize the joy and delight a child brings, there would be no need for foster homes or orphanages.

We have given our baby a home and our love, but she has given us a thousand times more just by her smile. — A Mother.

Dear Mother:

The poem goes:

"Not flesh of my flesh,
Nor bone of my bone,
But miraculously still
My own."

Never forget for a single minute

You didn't grow under my heart, but in it."

Such a babe is as much one's "very own" as one could ever hope for. When adoptions are engineered with skill and judgment, this is the miracle that can and does happen.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 16. I weigh 135; measurements - 37-28½ - 39. I have given up without breakfast for about three months now. I take one sand which only to school for lunch. I have cut out snacks and I have cut down on supper meals.

Why, I ask you, am I not losing weight

I am mainly concerned about losing weight around my waist, as I now have a disgraceful roll hanging over the top of my two - piece bathing suit briefs — Too Much.

Dear Too Much: Then roll it off. The combination of diet and exercise is bound to work.

I take a dim view of that no - breakfast routine. If you diet, without protecting your health, you may end up skinny, sallow and pepless.

Nutritionists tell us to divide up our calories into three meals, keeping the proteins high. This means a poached egg for breakfast, no butter on the toast. Brown bread for that luncheon sandwich, and no butter. Sandwich filling should be protein — eggs or cheese or lean meat.

At dinner - time keep the servings small, avoid the sweets and starches.

Unless you are really counting calories you could be making faulty judgments about how much you can eat. Cut down to a reliable 1200 calories daily. Keep track for two weeks. Exercise.

If you haven't lost a single ounce after a fortnight, get to your doctor for more detailed guidance and some consideration of your individual chemistry.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'd like to have my baby's shoes bronzed. Some friends tell me it should be his very first pair and others say it should be his first walking pair.

What do you think? And where can I have this done? — Mrs. G. R.

Dear Mrs. G. R.: It's Baby's very first pair of shoes that get the royal treatment. Send me a stamped, self - addressed envelope, and I'll gladly send you an address where you can have the bronzing done. Repeat your question.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

Many Ways of Preserving Tomatoes

By MARY MOORE

With half a bushel of tomatoes patiently waiting for me to attend to them I had to stop answering readers' letters and go to the kitchen.

HERB SCALLOPED TOMATOES

4 med.-large tomatoes
1 cup soft white bread crumbs
1 tbsp. melted butter
¼ tsp. garlic salt
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. oregano
1-16 tsp. rosemary (optional)
⅛ tsp. pepper
Butter for doting top
Scald, peel and slice tomatoes. Half of them may be sliced directly into baking dish. Combine crumbs, melted butter and garlic salt. Mix together all remaining ingredients except butter for topping. Sprinkle half of mixture over half of tomatoes. Sprinkle with one-third cup crumbs. Repeat, finishing top with all remaining crumbs, and dot with about 1½ tbsps. butter. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 25-40 min.

In response to appeals for ready-to-use sandwich spreads here is Tomato Sandwich Spread by popular request.

TOMATO SANDWICH SPREAD (Serves 8-oz. Jars)

12 med.-large ripe tomatoes scalded and peeled
2 med.-sized Spanish onions
2 sweet red peppers
½ cup flour
5 tsps. dry mustard
1 tbsp. salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup cider vinegar

Quartered, the prepared tomatoes measure six cups. Press gently and tip off excess liquid. Peel and quarter onions. Quarter and remove seeds from peppers. Grind all three vegetables through med. knife of food chopper into heavy pot. Place over med. heat while you mix together dry the flour, mustard, salt and sugar and then stir in vinegar. Stir into hot vegetables constantly until thick, then reduce heat to "low" and simmer until nearly thick — about 1 hrs. stirring very frequently. (This spread thickens more after it is cold.) Pour into seven sterilized 8-oz. jars, cover with clean hot paraffin - and seal. Put on lids, wash, cool and label.

NOTE: Wonderful with bacon in toasted sandwich.

Points for Parents

Neighbor: "Little boys always scream at the barber-shop."

Mother: "We're going to the barbershop with Ted. If little Teddy sees his father get a haircut, we hope he won't be frightened when we take him to the barber."

If a trip to the barber seems like a friendly routine that father enjoys, a little boy may decide he enjoys it too.

Quebec Cabinet to Study Plan For Opting Out of Medicare

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec cabinet will study a proposal for an entirely new opting-out scheme for doctors in the province's medical care insurance plan, Premier Robert Bourassa said Sunday night.

The premier, in an interview recorded for broadcast today by radio station CJMS, said a decision on the new proposal will be made Wednesday.

The premier's statement is the first break in the medical deadlock since negotiations between the medical specialists—the strongest opponents of the plan—and the government broke down during the weekend.

Mr. Bourassa declared last week the government had no intention of changing its position.

However, the cabinet is scheduled to meet today and if the proposals—presented by the specialists' federation—are accepted, a "distinct strike possibility" by the doctors could be averted.

However, Mr. Bourassa said in the radio interview that money is the real reason for the specialists' refusal to join the plan.

If the government agreed to meet the monetary demands, questions such as doctors opting out or control of standards of medical practice would quickly become of secondary importance, the premier said.

Disagreement over these two questions has been cited by the specialists as being at the root of stalled negotiations.

"There is no question that the government can shell out more cash and place an added tax burden on the taxpayer just to meet their (the specialists') demands for parity with Ontario," Mr. Bourassa said.

But the premier said he feels there is a possibility of a compromise agreement on the opting-out clause, and he sees no objection to further discussion on the issue.

But no matter what happens, the government cannot delay any longer the setting of a date for the introduction of the medicare scheme.

"I only hope that we're not headed for an open collision," he said.

Dr. Raymond Robillard, president of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists and the most dynamic opponent of the medicare plan, said Sunday a financial pool has been set up by the doctors to be used in the event of a strike.

He said various measures have been drawn up to provide emergency services at selected hospitals in the event of a strike.

The public would be informed well in advance, he said, indicating there would be no general withdrawal of specialists' services in the early part of this week.

Dr. Robillard said that since the discussions with the government on an opting-out clause and monetary considerations have broken off, "we now must consider government intention of passing special legislation to enforce their plan.

"So far, in all our meetings in negotiation, mediation and conciliation the government has not been dealing fairly and they were not telling the truth about everything.

"There was no real truth. No sense," he said.

Dr. Robillard said the next move "is up to the government."

Dr. Robillard said a strike is a "definite possibility since we have made no progress. The government could have told us more than a year ago it wasn't going to accept changes instead of going through all these discussions unnecessarily."

This plan will not benefit the government. It destroyed the Saskatchewan government and the one in Belgium. They both fell after similar legislation."

Your Car

Limited-slip-differential Great Aid in Winter

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"I am in the market for a car and have been looking at the new models. Recently, I heard steel-studded tires are going to be banned. For the last couple of winters I have had studded tires on my car and enjoyed the additional traction they give. With the new car, I wouldn't want to invest in studded snowtires if a ban goes into effect.

"A friend tells me I can have a limited - slip - differential installed on a new car and forego the purchase of new studs. I understand this type of differential prevents one driving wheel from spinning without the other, a good idea when I will be faced with slick, dangerous driving conditions.

"However, I talked to a dealer about this, but he tells me it is not a very effective unit and just another expense when repairs are called for.

"How can I evaluate the cost and effectiveness of a limited-k against that of studded tires in light of the possible ban?" —Mr. P.G.C.

Shortly after I received this letter it was announced that the use of studded tires would be banned in Ontario on April 30, 1961, to prevent an estimated $177 million in damage to highways over the next 10 years.

This decision was greeted with dismay by all safety - minded people. However, it is my hope the authorities will, verse their stand entirely — or at least allow their use in Northern Ontario, where ice remains hard-packed on highways all winter.

It can be argued that in southern Ontario the main highways are mainly clear and dry in winter and studded tires unnecessary. On the other hand, if the use of studded tire crash or skid accident is once, then cost is a minor consideration.

The safety - minded motorist who purchases steel-studded tires has the comfort of lose his entire investment. If the ban remains in force, the studs can be removed and the tires used as ordinary snowtires.

What are the advantages of a limited - slip - differ-tial? Located inside the centre of the rear axle assembly, there is a device called the differential. It allows the rear axles to turn at different speeds and, at the same time, deliver an equal amount of driving force to both rear wheels when the car is manoeuvring.

For example, when a vehicle is turning to the right the left wheel must turn faster a-nd farther than the right. If axles and tue wheels could not turn at different speeds when the car was cornering, the tires would drag and scuff on the pavement and the car would be difficult to control.

While the differential provides full traction from both rear wheels when starting off on dry roads, it can pose a problem. For instance, when we try to pull away on ice or snow it can cause the driving wheel without traction to spin uselessly while the other wheel, which may be on clear pavement, remains stationary. The limited-slip differential was designed to overcome this problem.

On current, this improved device functions in the same manner as the conventional differential, but when starting out or moving forward the limited - slip arrangement engages both wheels regardless of whether one or the other is on mud, ice or snow, and traction is greatly improved. In winter, it is an invaluable aid on vehicles that are not equipped with snowtires.

I have spoken to several service managers and they tell me that, with rare exceptions, there have been no major problems with this improved method of traction.

In my opinion, the ideal combination would be steel-studded tires together with this limited - slip - differential.

Ottawa Priests Favor Optional Celibacy Rule

OTTAWA (CP) — A vote on optional celibacy for the priesthood, held at a Roman Catholic diocesan meeting here Saturday, ended inconclusively.

The vote, tabulated Sunday, was 77 in favor of optional celibacy, 35 against and 138 abstentions.

The recommendation, contained in a report by the commission on the laity in the synod of the Ottawa diocese, urged optional celibacy for diocesan priests and asked that married priests be invited to return to the church ministry.

Michigan Universities Sue Against Controls

LANSING, Mich. (CP) — Michigan's three largest universities are suing the state legislature, which finances them, to remove state control of the schools via purse strings.

In a suit set to be heard Dec. 17 in circuit court, the University of Michigan, Michigan State University and Wayne University have reactivated a 1957 suit in which the schools argue for autonomy as guaranteed by the state constitution.

In the past year the legislature, in granting its funds to the schools, ruled the universities must expel students for willful destruction of property, cut off funds for students or faculty members who interfere with normal operations and laid down work standards for professors which included telling them how many hours they must devote to teaching.

Other complaints include the legislature fixing tuition rates and dictating how many non-Michigan students could attend the schools.

Good For Quebec, It's Good for GM

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — What's good for Quebec is good for General Motors, Premier Robert Bourassa said Saturday.

In a question-and-answer session, at the 38th annual convention of the Association des Hebdo ds Canada-Association of French Language Weeklies of Canada—Mr. Bourassa said his government is determined to make French the province's working language.

The 37-year-old premier had been asked to comment on complaints by union leaders that General Motors refused to make French the language of work at its a s s e m b l y plant in St. Therese, near Montreal.

About 95 per cent of the 2,400 workers employed at the plant are French speaking.

He acknowledged that, because GM has only one plant in Quebec and s e v e r a l others throughout North America, the head office in Detroit sometimes presents management with a "special problem".

However, he added, GM must recognize once and for all that "Quebec is different from the rest of North America".

The General Motors situation has been a repeated source of embarrassment to the premier, who believes in co-operation between business and private enterprise for the good of the province.

He has asked GM's management twice to provide a translation service for the company's English-speaking representatives so that the workers could negotiate in French.

Public Should Know About U.S. Influence

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal member of the Ontario legislature said Sunday the public has a right to know the extent of foreign domination of the internal decision-making within each department of every Canadian university.

Tim Reid, member for Toronto Scarborough East, said in a statement that public disclosure of the information "is necessary for our survival as a people with our own creative, historical and cultural vehicles."

Mr. Reid was commenting on York University's decision Friday to refuse a request from the Ontario government for detailed information on the citizenship of its professors.

P. E. BOARD O FEDUCATION STATEMENT ON COUNTY EDUCATION PLAN

While the public has been aware that the Prince Edward County Board of Education has been considering a kindergarten to Grade 13 school complex in Ameliasburgh township, few details of the proposed plan have been released. The following is now in a position to release all the facts.

The Ontario Department of Education is implementing the County School Board concept in January, 1960, stated the board's statement. This will provide new educational opportunity for each student in Ontario. Attempting to implement the County School Board concept in Prince Edward County, the Board of Education has begun to examine the educational opportunities offered to students within the county. The following findings have been revealed:

Some students were overtime French and Music Instruction while others were not. Some schools had the benefit of Physical Education or swimming while others did not. Kindergarten was not available in all schools.

The study revealed that the Board was able to rectify with adjustments in staff and programs.

There were however, certain inequalities which could not be adjusted without the provision of additional school accommodation.

1. The students attending Queen Elizabeth, Pinecrest and Wellington schools have the benefit of library-resource centres, gymnasiums, Home Economics and Industrial Arts.

The children attending Demorestville, Rednersville, Mildred Corbe, and South Marysburgh schools did not have gymnasiums.

The children attending Ketele and Sophiasburgh schools did not have Home Economics or Industrial Arts accommodation.

2. In some cases permanent accommodation, portable classrooms are in use at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute and Bloomfield schools. The provision of permanent classroom accommodation would demand more portables almost immediately.

To provide the required equal educational opportunity for County students and to ensure each County ratepayer received full value for his tax dollar, the Board considered that it was necessary for the Board to consider some method of accommodation for secondary students.

Enlarging individual schools to provide the necessary new accommodation would involve the following difficulties: Sometime soon all teachers that are employed on a temporary basis will be required to have their Ontario Secondary School Graduation Diploma. Temporary teachers are not favorably endorsed by the Department of Education.

Alternative plans were given due consideration the most practicable of these appeared to be a proposal to build a kindergarten to Grade 13 school complex in Ameliasburgh township.

Combining the present Ketele elementary school with a new additional building to provide extra classroom space would allow the Board to close the Ameliasburgh and Bloomfield students to Ketele school where library and gymnasium facilities are available. This would also allow the Board to put the students of Grade 7 and 8 in Prince Edward Collegiate Institute and the opportunity to consolidate the Ameliasburgh and Bloomfield schools.

By building the remainder of the proposed complex to provide secondary school accommodation including technical shops, the elementary students from Ketele, Mildred Corbe, Demorestville, Rednersville and South Marysburgh schools are facilities for Grade 7 and 8 students, Industrial Arts training and the secondary schools in Hillier, Wellington, and Sophiasburgh, this would free the present Grade 7 and 8 students no later than Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, could be transferred to this complex.

This transfer of secondary students from Prince Edward Collegiate Institute would relieve the student population there to a point where the present portable classrooms at that location could be eliminated.

There would also be room to accommodate all the grade 7 and 8 students presently attending Queen Elizabeth, Pinecrest, Wellington, and Hillier schools. When these grade 7 and 8 students in P.E.C.I. there would be provided with a library-resource centre, gymnasium and Home Economics and Industrial Arts accommodation, not now available. This transfer would relieve the student population at these schools to a point where present accommodation could be utilized to avoid future portable classroom and construction costs for the kindergarten to grade 6 students remaining in those schools.

A further benefit of the proposed complex would be to provide accommodation for the approximately 225 Ameliasburgh township students presently attending Picton schools. This would eliminate bus travel for these students, relieve them from Belleville and would give them the opportunity to take part in extra-curricular activities. The new secondary education would also provide adult training and recreational facilities for Ameliasburgh and other citizens.

The Board decided this plan was worth detailed examination, and in this connection took the following action:

(1) Checked acreage and water requirements of the Ketele site and confirmed that it met present Department of Education regulations.

(2) Obtained an option to purchase the necessary additional land to house the proposed addition to Ketele elementary school and the new secondary school. This action was taken to eliminate the possibility of land speculation at a later date. The option is for a period of 90 days and the other land is purchased or could be obtained at least at the purchase price.

(3) Discussed the proposal with Department of Education officials. The Director of Education Office in Kingston met at the Board Office with the Board members. The proposed plan was sympathetically viewed, that no better alternative existed, and that the proposal was sound, financially and educationally, and deserved consideration.

The Department officials were quite insistable approval to the Board that the proposal was sound and safeguard the Board only as much definite information as possible. The Board was advised that the final approval of the plan rested with the Minister of Education and the facilities of the Hastings County Board of Education concerning the final disposition of the Ameliasburgh secondary students.

(4) The Board attempted in consultation with the Department of Education, the Assessment Department and the Municipal Board to forecast the future population of the county. This population figure would be used as a guide by the Department of Education substantiated a student population sufficient to justify a need for a new complex over the next five years. There was however, no definite assurance that the population would increase to the extent of over the next five years. No alternative was made for any possible increase in County population.

(5) Definite costs of the proposed building could not be established without tenders, developing final building plans and letting tenders to contractors. As none of these steps could be taken without approval in principle of the Department of Education, the Board estimated the total floor space of the proposed building and other necessary accommodation in consultation with the Department of Education, and several architects and consulting engineers. The Board has set the cost of building the high school and Grade 7 and 8 at $2,500,000.00. A total cost of $2,500,000.00. To allow for unforeseen costs the Board increased the estimated figure to $3,000,000.00. Included interest and debenture charges over a period of 20 years, the total cost would be approximately $5,000,000.00.

(6) Th Board also examined the capabilities of the proposed complex to ensure that all the required courses could be offered in the new school.

(7) The Hastings County Board of Education was queried regarding the possibility of transferring the grade 7 and 8 students in Hillier, Wellington and Sophiasburgh when suitable accommodation was available in Prince Edward County and at least the interest of the Board to continue providing education for them.

(8) The Board attempted to ascertain public feeling concerning the proposed complex through interviews with municipal officials, discussions with interested groups and public meetings held in the various townships. Generally speaking the plan was received with a certain degree of support and enthusiasm.

(9) The Board tried to assess the financial effect of the plan on the local taxpayers both in connection with the Ketele school and the Ameliasburgh area with interest of $3,000,000.00 and assuming the provincial grant under the Education grants calculations appear each ratepayer in the County would be required to pay $1.12 per $100 assessment each year for the next 20 years. This would be in addition to the taxes the ratepayer would, of course, be required to pay for the new school. Because of the reduction in school bus routes and annual maintenance costs of portable classrooms at the site of the Ketele and Ameliasburgh schools.

(10) The Board also studied the first formal request to the Department of Education for tentative approval to proceed with the plan. This request was made in a letter dated September 15, 1959. The Board is now awaiting word from the Department of what financial assistance might be forthcoming. The Department replied to the Board's request in the following letter:-

"This is to advise you that our staff of the proposal for the KENTE COMPLEX in Prince Edward County in the Township of Ameliasburgh. We have met with the Board of Education for the County and feel that it does meet many of the problems created by the Board's wish to provide adequate secondary school facilities for the County.

We are aware concerned, however, with the definite trend downwards in enrolment projections, AT PRESENT ENROLMENT, in some secondary schools, and the possibility that, by the second decade, this trend may be reversed. Therefore, we feel that we cannot make definite regarding the feasibility of the plan at this time.

It is our opinion that you may consider consolidation of the present secondary school until recognition of the trend in enrolment is established and that you may consider the possibility of providing some of the extra facilities in your present schools. This will avoid, of course, providing the extra facilities for the present pupils in the future.

In the meantime, we would like to assist you in every way possible."

(11) Despite the comments of the Department of Education, the Board decided to proceed with the plan. Those who were in favor of the plan felt that the Board had a responsibility to provide adequate secondary school facilities for the students in the County. Those who were opposed to the plan felt that the Board should not proceed with a new proposal to erect an entirely new complex.

Note: The Department of Education has not yet given approval to the plan. The Board has not yet received any financial assistance from the Department. Those who are opposed to the plan feel that it is the only logical method of providing adequate secondary school educational opportunities for the students in the County.

(12) In the meantime school committees and other persons interested in the proposed plan have been invited to attend meetings of the Board. These meetings are open to the public. Persons desiring to attend the meetings should contact the Secretary-Treasurer of the Board, Mr. Ross Bowerman, at the Board Office, Picton, Ont. Telephone 476-2161.

(13) The meetings will be held as soon as possible after the Board receives word from the Department of Education regarding the proposed plan.

(14) The Board is also considering the possibility of providing a new personnel to cover all aspects of the proposed plan.

Note: The Department of Education has not yet given approval to the plan. The Board has not yet received any financial assistance from the Department. Those who are opposed to the plan feel that it is the only logical method of providing adequate secondary school educational opportunities for the students in the County.

Persons desiring to attend the meetings should contact the Secretary-Treasurer of the Board, Mr. Ross Bowerman, at the Board Office, Picton, Ont. Telephone 476-2161.

(13) The meetings will be held as soon as possible after the Board receives word from the Department of Education regarding the proposed plan.

(14) The Board is also considering the possibility of providing a new personnel to cover all aspects of the proposed plan.

It is the opinion of the Board that the proposed plan would provide adequate secondary school facilities for the students in the County. The Board is convinced that the plan would provide the best possible educational opportunities for the students in the County.

The Board is convinced that the proposed plan would provide adequate secondary school facilities for the students in the County. The Board is convinced that the plan would provide the best possible educational opportunities for the students in the County.

In view of the present economic situation in the County the Board feels that the local ratepayers do not have the financial ability to support the proposed plan. Therefore, until either the Department of Education or the Hastings County Board is required or economic condition in Prince Edward County improve to the extent that the ratepayers have the financial ability to support the proposed plan, the Prince Edward County Board of Education is unable to provide the necessary additional secondary school facilities requested, but have the benefit I equal educational opportunity.

Vance Does Night's Work in Only Five Races

Harness driver Al Vance crammed a full night's work into only five races, Saturday, as the leading driver on the Belleville track came up with three wins in the rain-shortened Quinte Riding and Driving Club card.

Nobody who has anything more than a nodding acquaintance with Dave Jones could ever accuse him of seeing with optimism.

As is customary among hockey coaches, Jones spends most of his winter beating and tearing down the nightmares of the team driver slumming a less than on his starting goalkeeper's catching hand, or of his top scoring winger contracting malaria in the wilds of Owen Sound.

But Sunday night Jones had to admit he had high hopes for the 1970-71 Belleville Mc-Hawks.

"We had a rush out there," Jones was saying following Sunday's second training camp workout for the Belleville Seniors in Trenton's Community Gardens. "I think I counted 11 of last year's players, and one thing we've never had is a club that everybody'd played together so before."

Jones was one shy on his count. A dozen of last season's shift-pieces Mc-Hawks made appearances in two weekend workouts held in Trenton because of Belleville arena ice problems.

Aside from Jones, who is thinking of playing himself sparingly, if at all this winter despite 32 points in 34 games last season, returnees included the "Brand-and-Butter Line" of George Godson, Lorne O'Donnell, and Trenton's Al Ferguson.

That threesome netted the Mc-Hawks 59 of their 134 regular-season goals last year.

Wayne McConnell, Ralph Plane, Ray Johnston, and Ray Summers were shaking, and Wayne Brown showed up at Saturday night's workout just to remind everyone that he was ending his unpotcouth consecutive retirement.

Lionel Reily, Greg Marchen, and Lou Kanawki were on hand, with Bob Wilson coming as soon as he bags a few mallards.

"It looks like we've got at least four defencemen to start — that's better than we had last year," enthused Jones, recalling the injury problems that of one point had the Mc-Hawks down to two regular defencemen.

Wilson should give valuable service. The Haverhead hardrock was hitting his stride by the end of last season after joining the club in mid-season without playing hockey for a couple of previous winters.

Like Wilson, Bill Armour was also in the march this weekend, but expected to attend tonight's 8.30-10.30 Trenton workout. Armour and Greg Marchen shouldn't need much conditioning — they played lacrosse all summer for the Peterborough Lakers, and last week returned from the Lakers' unsuccessful Mann Cup jaunt to British Columbia.

Although the two opening sessions consisted mainly of skating, Jones was confident enough to go out on a couple of limbs.

He was impressed with Meehan Bonnar, the 25-year-old former Trenton Bruins first amateur draft choice now stationed with the Belleville OPP detachment.

Bonnar attended Sunday's workout, his first time on shinny since last February after what he hopes will be the last of a series of operations on a trick knee.

"He looked good out there," Jones cautiously assessed. "We'll see more when we start scrimmaging."

Overage junior John McConnell also caught Jones' eye. "I don't know if his skating is good enough for this league, but he sure knows what to do with the puck."

At 20, McConnell is barely too old to play for the Belleville Junior B's for whom he picked up 18 goals and 32 assists last season. Despite playing only 22 games of the 36-game schedule, the Ficion centre finished sixth in the Eastern Ontario Junior scoring race.

If one Ralph Plane was enough to keep some of the OHA Senior A opposition honest, Jones hopes two of them will go even further. Les Calligan, a former Kingston Aces' star, is in the Mc-Hawk camp and Jones is impressed with his capacity for work.

"He's a lot like Ralphie and could help us a lot," Jones noted. "And he plays on either side."

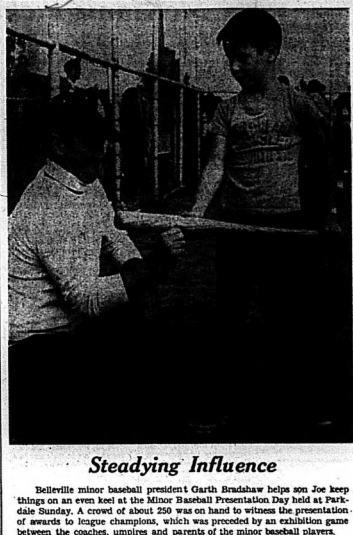
Reserving mention also went to Barry Titterson and Bob McAlpine, both city policemen whom Jones feels stand a chance to catch berths if they can get into senior hockey playing shape.

Titterson, who had Junior A experience, is trying out on defence, while McAlpine, who did some scoring when the Mc-Hawks formed five winters ago, is gunning for a wing position.

"We still need a centre ice man or two," Jones observed. "If we could get a good one we'd be 100 per cent improved."

A windfall could be in the offing if the Mc-Hawks lead Doug Senior, a middleman with last year's Kingston Aces who has scored 28 goals in all hockey company he has played right up to the American League.

Now living and working in Trenton, Senior, 23, says he will attend tonight's 8.30 Mc-Hawk workout.



One place the Mc-Hawks look set as they prepare for a Saturday night Belleville exhibition with the Aces is in goal. Steve Revie and Bob Mesa were the only goaltenders set on the weekend, and only signatures separate the Mc-Hawks from their services.

Bet Reye, already in prime shape after attending Minnesota North Stars' Winnipeg training camp is considering a good offer to join the Stars' Eastern League affiliate in Clinton. His absence would leave a gaping hole in the Mc-Hawk lineup, not to mention their net.

"It looks like the best club we've had in three years," Jones predicted. ". . . If we can get everybody here signed."

Steadying Influence

Belleville minor baseball president Garth Bradshaw helps son Joe keep things on an even keel at the Minor Baseball Presentation Day held at Parkdale Sunday. A crowd of about 250 was on hand to witness the presentation of awards to league champions, which was preceded by an exhibition game between the coaches, umpires and parents of the minor baseball players.

West Hill Takes Baseball Lumps At Closing Day

While West Hill supporters may not agree, everyone appeared to get their just rewards at the Belleville Minor Baseball Presentation Day.

West Hill's only reason for dissent, however, was the 13-4 shellacking suffered by their coaches, umpires and fans at the hands of their East Hill opposition.

The losers were somewhat comforted by the fact that they picked up most of the individual awards as Ron Lapenette, John Emerson and Ed Christopher Jr. were nominated for the Community Chest Trophy as the Most Generous Mound Staff.

East Hill backers Carl Coons and Bob Revoy were able to muzzle the devasting (?) West Hill hitting attack for most of the game.

The awards ceremonies saw trophies and crest presented to the team champions in each division, as well as the Coach of the Year Award to Lorne Cronkwright of the Plane's Concrete Tadpoles and a special Appreciation Award to Mrs. Jean Reid, association statistician.

Plane's Concrete tadpoles were the tadpole champions, with the Golden Mile tykes winning their age division. In peewee play K was Legion Branch 99 coming out on top, while the West Hill Bantams copped their league title.

Hockey School Delayed Week

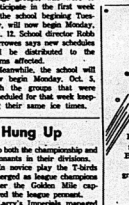
Warm weather has put a damper on ice - making plans at the Memorial Arena, and on the opening week's schedule of the Belleville Hockey School.

The Aces, Hawks, and Wings groups, who were to participate in the first week of the school begining Tuesday, will now begin Monday, Oct. 12, School director Robb Burrowes says new schedules will be distributed to the parents affected.

Meanwhile, the school will now begin Monday, Oct. 5, with the groups that were scheduled for that week keeping their same ice times.

Eagles Get Boot

Belleville Parsons moved into the finals of the Trenton Challenge Cup competition Sunday by stopping Belleville Eagles 6-1.



Despite the wide margin of victory the ten - man Parsons team were given a strong battle by the nine - strong Eagles as injuries, suspensions and university commitments left both teams short handed.

Parsons struck quickly as Kevin Kirby scored after two minutes of play and brother Trevor added another score six minutes later. Kevin counted twice more in the final minutes of the first half to give him a hat trick performance.

Not satisfied with his threegoal effort Kirby added his final goal of the game to make it 5-0, shortly after half-time.

Dennis Jones ran the score to 6-0 before Eagle forward Kevin Perry broke through the middle to score with only three minutes remaining.

Thurlow Trail Ends

The end of the OBA playdown trail came abruptly for the Thurlow Foster peewees as they dropped a 14-1 decision to Wheatley in the first game of the "C" division final series.

Rather than incur the expenses involved in making a return visit to the Windsor - area community, Thurlow decided to forfeit the series' second game, giving Wheatley the Ontario championship.

The new Ontario champions left little doubt as to their rights to the title as they banged out a 17-hit attack to bury the considerably smaller Thurlow team.

Bill Omstead, a burly right-hander fired his fastball past Fosters for most of the game to record the four-hit win. Omstead struck out a dozen Thurlow hitters, and added a pair of doubles to his own attack.

Bruce McDonnell started for Fosters, giving way to Ted Foster, who in turn was relieved by Terry Holgate. Between them they allowed 17 hits and four walks, while fanning three Wheatley hitters.

Bill Arthurs banged a pair of doubles to lead the Thurlow batters, with Bruce Masterson getting a double and Brad Sullivan coming up with a single. Catcher Farley Vader was the outstanding defensive player for the losers.

No Place to Go

Thurlow peewee Brad Sullivan finds his route to the plate firmly clocked in the opening game of Foster's final series against Wheatley. The big, Western-Ontario team proved too much for Thurlow as they won a 14-1 decision.

Alouettes Give Etcheverry Heart Failure...and First Place!

MONTREAL (CP) — Four quarters of football seemed like 12 to Sam Etcheverry Sunday as his Montreal Alouettes spotted a 16-15 win over Ottawa Rough Riders and sole possession of first place in the Eastern Football Conference.

"I feel like I just played three games," the rookie head coach said forward passer of brilliant football with some elementary blundering, got a fourth-quarter touchdown from Dennis Duncan and the extra-point by George Springate to beat the last-place club which swamped them 31-7 in their only previous meeting this season.

A crowd of 26,677 fans saw the game, bringing the home attendance for the Als this season to more than 105,000 in four games. The team drew only 84,000 spectators in seven home games last year.

Etcheverry gave credit for the win to the Als' defensive unit, which picked off four passes by Ottawa quarterback Gary Wood and recovered both Rough Rider fumbles.

The Montreal attack, which gained 407 yards and 22 first downs to 288 yards and 16 first downs for Ottawa, was blunted by four Rough Riders interceptions off the Als' Sonny Wade.

The Montreal coach thought his team's ground game, which accounted for 240 yards of the Alouette's total offence, was the only bright spot offensively for the winners.

"We moved the ball well on the ground but every time we threw the ball we lugged down," Etcheverry said. "I don't think we really had a sustained drive."

After recovering an Ottawa fumble on the opening kickoff, the Alouettes powered their way to the visitors' one-yard line before Duncan dropped the ball as he dived for the goal line. Rough Rider Jerry Campbell recovered it before being dropped in the end zone for a single point.

Ottawa jumped into the lead before the first quarter ended with a 61-yard touchdown by Hugh Oldham, who took a pass from Wood and scampered past several Montreal players on his way to paydirt. Ivan MacMillan, the slight, 18-year-old placement specialist was good on the extra point.

The only scoring action of the second quarter was an 11-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Wade to Dick Smith and the convert by Springate which boosted Montreal to an 8-7 halftime lead.

Wade booted a 53-yard single for the Alouettes early in the third quarter but Oldham picked up his second major of the game and MacMillan his second convert to extend the Ottawa lead.

MacMillan's field-goal kicking fell short of his ability to kick converts. He missed on a 19-yard attempt late in the third quarter.

Ottawa picked up a single on the play and carried a 15-6 lead into the final 15 minutes of the game.

After Duncan's touchdown on a six-yard run and the one-point lead on Springate's extra point, Ottawa called on MacMillan to put them ahead but his 32 and 36-yard field goal attempts were off the mark and snuffed out the Rough Riders' last-minute bid to win the game.

Montreal's victory gave them a two-point margin over second-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the EFC standings. The Alouettes have a game in hand over the Tiger-Cats, who have 10 points in nine outings. Toronto Argonauts have eight points and the Rough Riders six.

The only serious injury during the game was to Montreal defensive end Steve Booras, who left the field during the third quarter with damaged knee ligaments.

Etcheverry said Booras' injury constitutes a "big loss" and came after the Alouettes had "had a lot of luck" as far as injuries are concerned.

Lion Fans Too Fussy?

Cincinnati Bengals aren't bad on paper but become paper tigers in Detroit's hair.

The Bengals invaded Lion country Sunday and lost the National Football League game 31-7 before 53,000 fans.

"They're better than we are, let's not make a federal case out of it," said coach Paul Brown of Cincinnati's proud tenders. "My guys are just proud to score against that team."

The Lions were roundly booed by their fans after letting Cincinnati score a goal with 27 seconds left in the game, which gives an idea of Detroit's defensive chaves.

The Lions have allowed six points—two field goals—in the last four regular-season games dating back to last year. The Lions booted Green Bay Packers 40-0 in the 1970 season opener.

Elsewhere Sunday, Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams threw up iron-curtain defenses in an artful day of 12 National Football League games. Minnesota Vikings shackled New Orleans Saints 27-0 and Los Angeles Rams smubbed Buffalo Bills 13-0.

In other games, San Francisco 49ers clipped Cleveland Browns 24-21, Boston Patriots spanked Atlanta Falcons 27-24, Denver Broncos turned back Pittsburgh Steelers 16-13, Miami Dolphins topped Houston Oilers 20-16, Chicago Bears thrashed Philadelphia Eagles 20-16, New York Jets jolted Boston Patriots 31-21, Dallas Cowboys clubbed New York Giants 28-10, St. Louis Cardinals rushed by Washington Redskins 31-10, and San Diego Chargers and Oakland Raiders fought to a 27-27 tie.

Lem Barney bolted 61 yards on a punt return down the line in second quarter and fleet Mel Farr blasted over a pair of touchdowns for Detroit. The Lions had a 21-0 lead at the half and were 38-0 before the staggering Bengals answered with their field goal.

The Saints failed to score for the first time in a regular season game. Tony Baker of the Vikings picked up 50 yards on 15 carries.

Fred Cox, stretching his NFL field-goal record to 27 straight games, connected from 22, 14, 15 and 47 yards after Minnesota's offence stalled.

McKinnis Picks Holes in Argos

FullBack Hugh McKinnis ran for 172 yards Sunday to put Calgary Stampeders a step ahead in the three-team scramble for second place in the Western Football Conference.

McKinnis and the Stampeders rushed past Toronto Argonauts 27-17 to put Calgary two points behind Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Edmonton Eskimos and British Columbia Lions.

The Eskimos had tightened things up Saturday night, blasting Hamilton Tiger-Cats 34-13 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game before a record Edmonton crowd of 32,001. The Lions were idle.

Meanwhile, Saskatchewan Roughriders stayed six points ahead of Calgary with a 5-2 win, over the last-place Blue Bombers in Winnipeg Sunday.

In Calgary, 21,292 fans turned out for a CFL interlocking clash that left McKinnis in first place in the WFC rushing derby. He has 721 yards, one more than George Reed of Saskatchewan who collected 70 yards Sunday.

McKinnis, Dave Cranmer and quarterback Jerry Keeling scored the Calgary touchdowns, while Dave Cutler added three converts and two field goals.

Quarterback Don Jonas and Dave Ramsey scored the Toronto touchdowns in the last six minutes of play, after the Stampeders had piled up a 27-0 margin. The loss dropped the Argonauts into third place in the Eastern Conference, two points behind Hamilton.

Robinson's four converts gave him 266, four behind Don Sutherin's CFL career record, and his two field goals gave him 112, two behind Sutherin's CFL career record.

In Edmonton, quarterback Don Trull and an interception happy defence humbled the Tiger-Cats.

In his best performance of the season, Trull threw touchdown passes to Jim Thomas and Mike Eben and Mac Hamilton of Edmonton with masterful signal-calling.

Eskimo defenders made six interceptions. Jim Henshall and Dick Dupuis had two each, with the others going to John Wydarney and Joe Hernandez.

Henshall made his first interception at the Edmonton 51 yard line in the third quarter. He ran to the Hamilton 46, then interfered to Hernandez who galloped for the touchdown. Dave Cutler kicked four converts and 47 and 43-yard field goals for Edmonton.

For Wydarney, it was his 10th interception of the season—one short of the CFL record he now shares with Sutherin, one with Toronto The Eskimos have five games left to play.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Charley Boswell of Birmingham, Ala., the defending champion, won his 17th United States blind golf championship Sunday, edging Joe Lazaro of Waltham, Mass., by a stroke.

Boswell had a 36-hole total of 93-107—200 and Lazaro 101-100—201.

Third place went to Pat Browne Jr. of New Orleans, who shot 99-108—207.

Claude Patterson of Hamilton, finished fifth with 104-113—217.

Nick Genovese of Dundas, Ont., was eighth with 114-114—228.

The end came at 2:47 of the round after Numata had spent nearly two full minutes covering himself in the corners.

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP)—Denis Hulme of New Zealand took the lead at the first turn Sunday and swept to a decisive victory for Team McLaren in the $83,000 Minnesota Tribune Cup road race at Donnybrooke Speedway. Peter Gethin of England, also in a McLaren, was second and Peter Revson of the United States finished third in a Lola T-220.

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Bob Hewitt, South African tennis ace, said Saturday he denies legal action against a 75-year-old man who allegedly struck him at a tournament in Los Angeles Monday.

"I have a lawyer collecting evidence and formulating charges," the Australian-born Hewitt told reporters on returning to Johannesburg for a rest.

There are quite a few witnesses and the witnesses and the evidence keeps pointing in our favor," said Hewitt. He was released from hospital Thursday after treatment for what was described as a brain concussion.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ron Hill of Bolton, Eng., world record holder for the 10-mile run, pulled ahead of Toronto's Jerome Drayton Sunday to win the open 12-mile race of the Springbank International Road Races in a record 55:34.6.

Drayton, who beat Hill in Japan's Fukuoka Marathon last December, ran side-by-side with Hill throughout the race near the course which is actually 12 miles, less 708 yards. The athletes ran four laps of the two mile and 1,383 yard course.

Drayton placed second in 55:49.6, Andy Boychuk of Sarnia who won the gold medal in the 1967 Pan American Games at Winnipeg, was third at 57:17.8.

TORONTO (CP) — Charlie Chase of Montreal won a unanimous decision over Paul (The Investment) Neilson in a 15-round heavyweight bout here Friday night.

Both fighters took some solid punches, but there were no knockdowns.

Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo, said after the fight that Chase might get a chance to fight Chuvalo.

"After tonight's win, he has to be ranked No. 1 contender," said Ungerman.

He said, however, that such a bout likely would have to be sanctioned the Canadian Boxing Federation orders Chuvalo to defend his title. Until then, Chuvalo is looking for bouts that would produce more money.

Gabler Joins Cats

EDMONTON (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference have traded quarterback Wally Gabler to Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Conference.

In a telephone interview Sunday from Winnipeg, Blue Bomber general manager Earle Lunsford said Winnipeg will receive two running backs, Charlie Bryant, a five-year veteran of the National Football League, and Frank Quale.

To ensure this year, the Canadian Nordic team will confine itself to North American competition, but that five coaches would be expected during camps in Norway and Sweden during December.

World's Top Nordic Skiers Coming to Barrie

OTTAWA (CP) —The biggest cross-country ski competition in Canadian history will be held Jan. 30-31 at Horseshoe Valley, near Barrie, it was announced Sunday.

The coach of the top eight Nordic skiers in the world has accepted an invitation from the cross-country division of the Canadian Ski Association to compete in the North American Nordic championships.

Following a weekend meeting the cross-country executive decided at Val Morin, Que., a spokesman said it was expected that the eight champions would include Italian, Swedish and Norwegian skiers on their way to a pre-Olympic competition against Russian, Japanese and East German skiers in Sapporo, Japan.

The spokesman said it would be the only North American stop for the Europeans and that a strong U.S. entry was expected to take advantage of the opportunity to test them.

Coach of the all-male European team is Bengt Hermann-Milsson. A Swede who coached the Italian team.

The weekend meeting also decided that instead of travelling

Albacore Race Full of Upsets

PORT CARLING, Ont. (CP) — It was bottoms up for 180 sailboats Saturday when a freak windstorm hit Lake Rosseau and every boat entered in the national Albacore championships capsized.

The crews—360 persons in all —were rescued by Ontario Provincial Police boats that had been standing by and private boats launched by cottagers.

The windstorm hit about 5 p.m. during the last race of the first day's competition. Spectators said the lake was cresting at seven and eight feet.

Police said the winds lasted only about 20 minutes but it was three hours until all sailors were accounted for. No one was seriously injured.

About 15 boats were damaged with broken rigging, lost rudders or centreboards but the remaining 165 were back in competition Sunday. Final results were not immediately available.

Port Carling is 35 miles north of Orillia.

Lots in Store

TORONTO (CP) — John Storr of Montreal's Ile Perrot Yacht Club crossed the finish line first Sunday to clinch the Canada North American Sailing Championship.

He placed second twice and third once in the four-day championship sailed on a six-mile course, in winds ranging from light to 15 knots Saturday to Sunday's 20-knot gusts.

Storr's clubmate, Keith Robinson finished second over-all with two first-place finishes and two fifth-place races. Graham Dodd of Toronto Sailing and Canoe Club, which conducted the match, finished third with a 21-6 record.

Thirty-two boats were entered, including entries from Buffalo and Detroit.

Pirates Scuttle Mets to Top East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two short weeks ago, the National League's East Division championship was a prize catch nobody seemed willing, or able, to win.

Today, Pittsburgh Pirates hold the prize in their hot hands . . . and the twinkle in Danny Murtagh's Irish eyes is brighter than it has been, in a decade of treasure-hunting.

The swaggering Bucs scuttled New York Mets 2-1 Sunday to capture the elusive division crown . . . their first title since Murtagh steered them to a World Series conquest of New York Yankees 10 years ago.

"This had to be more exciting—because it was nip and tuck all the way," said the jubilant skipper, who returned to the Pirates' helm this season following a two-year hiatus. He found himself embroiled in one of the most desperate races in National League history.

"We had breathing room in 1960," he said. But the feeling's the same—great!"

In completing a three-game weekend sweep, the Pirates mathematically eliminated both the Mets and Chicago Cubs, whose hopes expired despite a 5-3 victory over Philadelphia. The Pirates have a 4½-game bulge over Chicago with three to play.

Cincinnati's West Division champs, who will take on the Pirates in the pennant playoffs beginning Saturday at Pittsburgh's new Three Rivers Stadium, beat Los Angeles Dodgers 8-5. Elsewhere, Montreal Expos nipped St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 in 11 innings, San Francisco Giants topped San Diego Padres 3-2 and Houston Astros bombed Atlanta Braves 10-7.

The Pirates, hobbled by injuries to key players and without either a 20-game winner or 100-RBI man, earned their half-pennant by winning 10 of 14 games down the stretch . . . including six of seven against the defending champion Mets.

After seizing the division lead last Aug. 2, they plodded along at a 19-20 clip for the next six weeks. But neither New York nor Chicago could win often enough to dislodge them.

On Sept. 13, the Cubs rallied for two runs after centre fielder Matty Alou dropped a two-out fly ball in the ninth inning and stunned the Pirates 2-1. But the Mets, with a chance to grab the top spot, bowed to St. Louis 1-0 in 12 innings. That left Pittsburgh clinging to a half-game lead, with the third-place Cubs just one game off the pace.

Obviously, the critics declared, it was a race nobody wanted to win.

The Pirates have been disproving that theory ever since.

Pittsburgh's much-maligned pitching staff allowed only 23 runs in the decisive 14-game stretch run. They continued to hit in the pinches.

Sunday's clincher was their fifth one-run decision in the seven games against New York . . . and third in as many days.

"Everybody says we don't have any pitching," said Dock Ellis, the winner Sunday with late-help from relief ace Dave Giusti. "But that's just not true. How can anybody knock our pitching now?"

The Mets nicked Ellis, 13-18, for their lone run in the first inning, ex-Pirate Donn Clendenon driving it home with a one-out, bases-loaded single. But Ellis got Ken Boswell to bounce into a double play to end the damage and worked out of a none-out, bases-loaded jam in the fifth.

In the eighth, he gave way to Giusti, who picked up his 36th save.

A record Pittsburgh crowd of 50,489 saw the Pirates tie the game in the third on Dave Cash's single and a run-scoring double by Clemente. An inning later, they pushed over the winning run against Jim McAndrew on Richie Hebner's double, a walk, Matty Alou's single and Cash's bases-loaded sacrifice fly.

The Mets stranded 6th base-runners and hit into 24 double plays in the seven critical games against Pittsburgh.

Cubs' ace Ferguson Jenkins nailed his 21st victory with a four-hitter and doubled home a seventh-inning run before scoring what proved toe the winner on a single by Don Kessinger.

Gary Nolan, Cincinnati's probable starting pitcher in the playoff opener, broke a 6-6 deadlock with a two-run single in the fifth, leading the Reds past the Dodgers and gaining the 101th victory. Lee May clubbed his 34th homer for the Reds.

Carl Morton, Montreal's rookie pitching flash, also won his 18th, scattering nine St. Louis hits before the Expos broke a scoreless knot in the 11th on Adolfo Phillips' run-producing single.

The Giants moved one game ahead of Los Angeles in their battle for second place in the West as Gaylord Perry scattered seven hits for his 23rd triumph and Alan Gallagher's double keyed a two-run comeback in the sixth.

Jarry Park Jammed for Expos' Last Stand

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos couldn't win 'em all, or even most of them, but their 71st National League victory of the year made their fans happy Sunday as they completed their last home stand.

The Expos beat St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 and 30,629 of their supporters, the second-largest Montreal crowd of the year, jammed Jarry Park—it has 28,456 seats—for the 11-inning windup.

Rookie right-hander Carl Morton won his 18th game in 28 decisions by scattering nine hits. Adolfo Phillips singled home Ron Brand with the winning run.

As soon as Brand scooted across the plate, Expos attendants wheeled out tables and the microphone for the closing ceremonies.

Expos president John McHale thanked the Montreal fans for their support during the season. The Expos drew 1,424,683 in 74 dates at Jarry Park this year compared with 1,312,698 for 72 dates last season.

"This has been the most wonderful year of my baseball life," he said. "Merci, merci, merci."

As manager Gene Mauch stepped to the microphone, he received the largest cheer of the afternoon from the fans.

Mauch promised the crowd that things would be better for the Expos in 1971.

"A year ago we promised you we would win a lot more games. We did that and we are going to make the same promise to you again.

"Most people think of professional athletes as being selfish, indifferent, heartless and hard-nosed but in the clubhouse today's game the players felt this game held a special significance for the city of Montreal, the province of Quebec and all of Canada."

After his speech, Mauch introduced all the Expos players and coaches and each of them left his cap on a table and drew a ticket stub to award fans with the cap.

Ticket stubs were also drawn for several other prizes including a color television, a snowmobile and a boat.

Birds Break Out Bubbly At the Drop of A Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Orioles must have held a baseball record hook in one hand and a champagne glass in the other to justify the celebration they had Sunday, but manager Earl Weaver spouted the background like a sextuplet hit by a wild pitch.

The occasion was a 4- Baltimore victory over Cleveland Indians.

Obviously after taking a deep breath and a lot of research, Weaver said:

"We've got a lot to celebrate.

"We've just crushed Cincinnati in the won-loss column and there's no way they can catch us now. And we also broke a baseball record for winning the most games over two seasons.

"But that's not all. We also set a team home-run record today. And our pitchers broke the club's complete-game record. And that's not enough to celebrate, here's another one . . . our pitchers broke our base-on-balls record.

Now, if they beat Minnesota Twins in the American League playoffs next weekend, the Orioles can have a biggie and better party.

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Kansas City Royals trimmed Minnesota 4-3, Boston Red Sox bombed Washington Senators 10-1, New York Yankees downed Detroit Tigers 4-2, Milwaukee Brewers whacked Chicago White Sox 9-3 and California Angels took Oakland Athletics 9-4.

Curt Motton's run-scoring single capped an eighth-inning Baltimore rally that beat Cleveland and Sam McDowell and set off the clubhouse celebration.

The victory was the 104th this season for the Orioles and assured them of being 1970's winningest team in baseball. It might be noted that they were also 1969's winningest team in baseball at 109—when they lost the World Series to New York Mets in five games.

The Twins, who will be host for the opening game of the American League playoffs Saturday, rallied for three runs in the eighth inning but fell one short against Kansas City.

Bobby Floyd had four hits for the Royals and Jim Rooker won his 10th game, blanking the Twins on five hits until the eighth.

Rookie Bob Mitchell drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and a single as the Yankees knocked off Detroit. Mel Stottlemyre won his 20th and the Yankees took their ninth in the last 10.

George Scott drove in five runs with a pair of homers and Gary Peters socked a three-run shot and pitched Boston to Washington. Tony Conigliaro, who hit his 35th homer of the year, contributed four hits to the Red Sox attack as the Senators absorbed their 10th straight loss.

Milwaukee exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning and whipped Chicago behind Marty Pattin.

Jose Arcue's bases-loaded double chased home three runs and Tony Gonzalez tagged a two-run homer as California

Yanks Run Away from World

MADRID (Reuters) — The United States team ran away with the 1970 Eisenhower Trophy, symbolic of world amateur golf supremacy, with a seven-under-par aggregate of 537 that was 12 strokes better than that posted by runnerup New Zealand.

The U.S. fashioned a 717 with 72s Saturday by Marvin Giles and Lanny Wadkins, and a 73 from the last man in, Allen Miller.

Kite's score was not needed with Miller coming up behind him to finish one-over-par 73. Only the three best performances count.

South Africa finished third at 870, Australia fourth at 871 and Mexico fifth at 872.

Canada was sixth at 880 after posting a 218 total on the last day. Wayne MacDonald of Brampton shot a 72, Stu Hamilton, also of Brampton, a 73 while Gary Cowan of Kitchener had 73. Keith Alexander of Calgary had a last-round 77.

Rudolph Did Fast Figuring on Green

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Mason Rudolph, a quiet Tennessean, was lining up a tricky 15-foot downhill putt on the 15th hole Sunday when he realized he was four strokes behind Texan Chris Blocker in the $60,000 Green Island open golf tournament.

"I thought I had to make it to protect second place," said Rudolph, "but then I saw him get in trouble on 16 and I knew if I made it I had a shot at him."

The putt sneaked into the hole, giving Rudolph a birdie three, and, when Blocker, who had entered the final round with a two-shot lead over Cesar Sanudo and Harry Toscano, went one over on No.16, Rudolph was only two strokes behind.

Rudolph then closed with short birdie putts on the final two holes to win his first tournament since the 1966 Thunderbird Classic. His final round 33-31—64 over the 6,711-yard, par 35-35—70 Green Island Country Club course gave him a 274 total, six-under-par.

Blocker staggered home in second place with a closing 76 for a 276 score.

Rudolph earned $12,000 for the victory.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver won $263 after shooting 70 Sunday for a 288 total. Ben Kern of Toronto was out of the money with 295.

Coast Guard Tested

DETROIT (CP) — It's all only practice, but the U.S. Coast Guard played a James Bond game with a group of saboteurs, smugglers and secret agents over the weekend.

The mission of the pseudo-agents began Thursday somewhere in the Great Lakes area, officials said, with less than a dozen cloak-and-dagger appointees sent out to smuggle make-believe narcotics, smuggle liquor, plant fake bombs on bridges and piers and make illegal entries — all from Canada.

Cuba Is Prepared to Return Hijackers If Boats Included

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cuba says it is willing to enter an agreement with the United States to return airplane hijackers, but only if such a pact also covers the hijacking of boats.

This could involve Cubans who steal boats to come to Florida, and the state department declined immediate comment while it studied the statement by Foreign Minister Raul Roa.

In the past, such Cubans have been granted haven in the United States.

Roa's statement was broadcast by Havana radio Saturday night.

"The problem of the hijack of planes could not be solved by simple publicity measures," Roa's statement said.

"If the United States government wishes to discuss this problem in a serious and definitive way, the Cuban government is willing to subscribe immediately to an agreement on the basis established in the Cuban law No. 1,226 Sept. 16, 1969, which includes besides the hijack of planes, the hijacking of ships and other violations of regulations and laws ruling the international traffic," Roa said.

"We do also express in a final and categorical way that we will not accept and will not respect any international agreement relating to the hijack of planes, unless it concretely includes all piracy forms and violations without any exception."

Roa also said that Robert Labadie, 27, a U.S. Army private put aboard a U.S. plane at a Cuban airfield and returned to the United States last Thursday as an accused airplane hijacker, should be treated as a mental case rather than a criminal.

Labadie has been charged with hijacking a Trans World Airlines jetliner with 85 passengers aboard to Cuba Aug. 24. The hijacking occurred as the plane flew over Fort Wayne, Ind.

Roa said Labadie was turned over to the United States as the result of a note to Cuba through the Swiss Embassy.

Hamilton Girl Slain

HAMILTON (CP) — Gail MacDonald, 17, of Hamilton was found slain early today in the recreation room of an east-end home where she was babysitting.

Police said the girl's throat was slashed and a knife was found on the scene. A pillow was found nearby and police speculate the victim may have been smothered before the knife wound was inflicted.

Police said they may have a description of the slayer from Kasei Van Eyk, 10, who was awakened by noises and went to the recreation room to investigate.

She received a minor cut to the head from the slayer and was treated in hospital and released.

Miss MacDonald was babysitting for three daughters of Klaas Van Eyk, 39, a steelworker who is separated from his wife. He was working the night shift when called home by police.

Howe No Holdout; Signs for $100,000

While scores of the younger National Hockey League stars are holding out for more money and submitting their contracts to arbitration, Gordie Howe, the veteran Detroit Red Wing, has signed a two-year contract estimated at $100,000 for each season.

Howe, who celebrated his 42nd birthday March 31, will be starting his 25th season in the NHL and club owner Bruce Norris said Saturday he "deserves more than we can give him and really more than the league can give him for all that he has done for the Red Wings and for hockey."

"I've always said I've been paid satisfactorily, but not enough," Howe said. "I can honestly say it's quite enough this time."

However, there are some players who are not as satisfied with their contracts and are still unsigned. They include four New York Rangers, camping since Sept. 16 for refusing to play exhibition games.

The four, centres Walt Tkaczuk and Jean Ratelle, winger Vic Hadfield and defenceman Brad Park, now have agreed to submit their contracts to arbitration and their suspensions have been lifted.

GORDIE HOWE

Another young star, Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins, returned Saturday, to the Bruins training camp in London, Ont. after being reinstated following a five-day suspension.

Sanderson, whose contract negotiations with the Bruins did not go smoothly, has refused to say how much he is asking for. Denied reports he is holding out for $78,000. He was suspended when he failed to return to training camp Thursday from Montreal where he was shooting scenes for a movie.

Howe, who has been the league's top scorer a record six times and most valuable player six times, has played more seasons than anyone else. He has also scored more goals, played more games and got more assists.

Last season he finished ninth in NHL scoring with 31 goals and 40 assists for 71 points, the first time in 21 years he finished out of the top five in the season-end scoring statistics. He has spent his entire NHL career with the Red Wings, with whom he broke in during the 1946-47 season.

Meanwhile, the NHL exhibition schedule continues with nine games played during the weekend.

In games Sunday, Philadelphia Flyers defeated Boston Bruins 2-1, Montreal Canadiens shut out Chicago Black Hawks 3-0, New York defeated St. Louis Blues 4-1, Toronto Maple Leafs beat Minnesota North Stars 2-1 and Los Angeles Kings edged Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Saturday, Oakland Seals nipped Buffalo Sabres 2-1, New York Rangers beat Detroit 6-4, Minnesota downed Toronto 5-4 and Los Angeles Kings whipped Vancouver 9-2.

Jim Johnson and Bobby Clarke each scored a goal Sunday to give the Flyers their win over Boston at Quebec City. Reg Leach, Bruins' 21-year-old choice, scored for Boston.

Yvan Cournoyer led the Canadiens' attack against the Black Hawks at Chicago with two goals. Claude Larose got the other Montreal goal. Referee Ron Wicks called 22 minutes in penalties in the first period, including four fines for fighting.

At Winnipeg, Darryl Sittler, Toronto's No. 1 draft choice, scored his first two goals. Dick Redmond scored for Minnesota when his shot appeared to hit defenceman Jim McKenney and deflected past the goalie.

Mike Robitaille scored two goals, one late in the third period, to give the Rangers victory in their win over St. Louis. Mike Partizan and Don Luce also scored for New York. Barclay Plager and Ron Anderson scored for St. Louis.

The Kings, who took their third victory in as many days over the Canucks, got goals from Bill Flett, Bob Berry and Gordon Labonsiere. Orland Kurtenbach for New York Maki replied for Vancouver.

Grid Scoring Scarce

The offensive spark was missing in two of three football games opened Saturday in Quebec Athletics Association season Saturday while in the third game two favored teams played to a tie.

McMaster University Marauders and University of Waterloo Warriors had little to show offensively in a game that produced only one point, a safety scored by Alec Lockington for McMaster midway in the first quarter.

Meanwhile, Queen's Golden Gaels and University of Western Ontario Mustangs battled to a scoreless tie.

Warriors had little to show offensively in a game that produced only one point, a safety scored by Alec Lockington for McMaster midway in the first quarter.

At Waterloo, the Warriors came close to tying the game on the second-last play in the game when a single kicked by Chuck Wakefield was wiped out by a penalty.

Mistakes settled the game at Kingston when Keith Eamon scored Kingston's first touchdown after centre Camm Innes picked up a fumble on Western's 17-yard line midway in the fourth quarter.

Two minutes later an interception by Mike Lambrel led to Kingston's second touchdown. Lambrel returned the ball to the Western five-yard line and two plays later Carl Leest scored on a screen pass from quarterback Art Rochette.

Kingston's other points came on two converts and a field goal by Doug Conac and single by Lambrel. Western scored on a 42-yard single by Paul Ridill and a field goal by Steve Stefanko.

Campbell Wins Title

Rocky Campbell won the CFB Trenton Club championship, this weekend by carding a 72-hole total of 310.

Other winners among the 62 golfers competing in the two - day tournament were "A" flight winner, Howard with a 312 total; Labrie in "B" flight with a 342 and Dr. Griffiths with a "C" Flight best mark of 364.

Piston Pushers Join Sports Parade

The Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club proved to be "active" participants in the Sports Ontario parade held in Toronto Saturday.

The Piston Pushers were accompanied by the new St. John's Ambulance which was purchased with the money raised in an April city walkathon. During the course of the parade the Piston Pushers and St. John's personnel drew plaudits for their handling of an emergency case which they transported to a Toronto hospital.

The Sports Ontario parade was part of an Olympiad held organized by the Rotary Clubs of Toronto to raise one million dollars for Canadian athletes. The six - mile parade travelled from Varsity to C.N.E. stadiums.

Tourney Suggested To Decide Allan Cup

WINNIPEG (CP) — Senior Hockey in Canada may abandon the Allan Cup playdowns in favor of an annual tournament with six to eight teams participating.

Earl Dawson, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association president, said Sunday the senior and intermediate committee proposed the tournament at the CAHA's board of directors meeting here.

He said plans are expected to be finalized in the next two weeks. The tournament would bring together all the regional winners.

Dawson said it would probably be six or eight teams and said the senior committee was considering Edmonton and Calgary as possible sites for the first tournament which could take place next year.

He said the tournament could be held either in one of the two cities or they could split them.

BELLEVILLE parents say:

"EVERY FAMILY BENEFITS when you SHOP LOCALLY"

It stands to reason that a thriving community has more to offer any family ... with prosperous stores and markets that are able to provide you with the services and merchandise you need ... You'll find it a pleasure shopping in Belleville ... and remember people who work here benefit too, from jobs your dollars help to create.

YOU'LL FIND EVERYTHING YOU NEED RIGHT HERE AT HOME!

Local firms offer a wide variety of goods and services for the same prices you'd pay elsewhere and often for less!

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Exercise in Heat Is Hard on Hearts

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: We keep hearing that cold weather exertion is bad for the heart. This is one reason why I was shoveling snow - shoveling to my children and now to my grandchildren. It seems to make good sense to pass the shovel on to the younger set when the snowdrifts pile up around the house.

But what about hot weather? How does the heart stand up under that? I should think that when a person gets all tired out exerting in hot, humid weather that he may be straining his heart, too. Am I right? — Mr. B.

Comment: Right you are. And so right. Much has been written to caution people who are unfit (whether they know it or not), against straining the heart while working outside the house during mid-winter, when the temperatures numb the hands and freeze the nose. Although we continue to read about such deaths I have a hunch they have been fewer in number because people have been forewarned.

Meanwhile, I believe that the potential danger of exertion in excessive heat and humidity has been overlooked. So right here and now (to repeat what I have said at other times — but perhaps not often enough) I hold out this warning: hot, humid weather can be dangerous for those who are aware (or unaware) that they have heart disease.

Statistics show that heart deaths soar during heat waves. Although heat stroke and heat exhaustion may be one source of these mortality statistics, for the most part they are due to the actual effect of heat and humidity on the heart patient.

A weakened heart has to pump harder and faster to neutralize the effects of the heat. The demand for this extra work output is what may cause the heart to decompensate and fail.

Therefore, I offer these suggestions: Keep remembering that a heart does not tolerate extreme heat any more than it does extreme cold. (2) Avoid, if you can, all outside activity on days that are hot and humid. (3) Take advantage of air - conditioning. (4) If this is not available, use fans, wear light clothing and eat lightly. (5) Avoid sunbathing and hot baths. (6) Inactivity on such days is also advisable for those with apparently strong hearts. Vigorous, competitive golf, tennis or other sports can prove fatal for those who are not actual athletes in top form.

Yes, Mr. B., thanks again for bringing it up. How right you are. Heat should be respected as much as cold.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A few years ago I heard something about sterility in men caused by regular and continual motorcycle riding. I'm personally interested now, because my fiance has owned a motorcycle for over two years.

With so many motorbikers on the road these days (often with girls sitting behind the drivers) is it possible we are overlooking a method for preventing overpopulation? Seriously, I wonder if there's anything in it. An "old wives' tale," perhaps? — Miss Z.

Comment: I don't know of any scientific studies that have proved there is a direct relationship between motorcycle riding and potency, virility or sterility. What you should be more concerned about is the increasing frequency of motorcycle accidents and injuries.

For Mrs. S.: Yes, it was a typesetting error. The word is "infarction" and not "infraction." For example, the patient who has just had a coronary thrombosis may have suffered an infarction. (A part of the heart muscle dies because a coronary artery has been blocked, partially or completely. This is why recovery from a heart attack takes so long.)

Canadian Control Of Unions Sought

TORONTO (CP) — The Council of Canadian Unions announced Saturday it is planning regional meetings to encourage Canadian control of unions.

Dr. Ken Rowley, secretary-treasurer of the council, told a news conference the council is also writing a brief to oppose planned amendments to the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

The council represents nine unions with a membership of 20,000, which are independent of the Canadian Labor Congress and have no affiliation with unions based in the United States.

"We feel that there is swiftly-growing sentiment among the American unions (in Canada that the workers want to go independent," Mr. Rowley said.

"We feel there is no such thing in Canada as an international union," said Frank Jamieson of Vancouver, representative of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada. "They are American-controlled unions."

Mr. Rogers, who represents the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union, added: "In the brief 10 years of reporting Canadian dues to the international unions, as required under the Corporations and Labor Unions Returns Act, $68 million has been siphoned into the U.S."

He said the CCU will oppose an Ontario labor act amendment to lower the decertification vote requirement to 35 per cent of a plant's employees, from 45 per cent.

Mr. Rowley said the CCU also wants representation on the labor relations board.

Comforting Thoughts

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Comforting Thoughts for a Columnist who Confronts his Typewriter with Aversion on a Daily Day:

Goethe considered his literary works as so much fripperry, and Mozart felt his finest fame would rest on his scientific theories.

Shakespeare disliked the theatre and resented writing plays — actually several times that only his sonnets printed privately for his friends, had any lasting value.

Benjamin Franklin, who penned the world's most popular maxims on frugality, wrote them to obtain money because he was hopelessly in debt so much of the time.

Fashionable stuff couldn't stand to hear his inferiority famous "Prelude in C Sharp Minor"; and Ravel would leave the room if the orchestra began playing his equally tiresome "Bolero."

Conan Doyle bee-me so bored with Sir Sherlock it tines that he killed him off - and was forced to revive him much against his will, because of public indignation

Sir Arthur Sullivan dismissed his operettas as so much fluff, and concentrated virtuosity on his more ponderous compositions.

Bach was unhappy as an organist and left the profession when his surly employer imprisoned him for refusing to continue playing.

Balzac turned out copious manuscripts only to keep one jump ahead of the sheriff.

Lewis Carroll was convinced that his mathematical treatises would be imperishable, and put "Alice in Wonderland" on paper only after considerable pressure.

Da Vinco wrote the 7,000 pages of his notebooks in a mirror script, completely coded, to make them unintelligible to the general reader — and they were not recovered and transcribed until 400 years after his death.

Tschaikowsky confided to his diary that when he heard Mozart's music, he wanted to give up composing forever, in recognition of his vast inferiority.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 29

Your birthday today: The search for creative self-expression dominates your entire coming year. Your past achievements are foundations of the present and encouragement for the future, but nonetheless past. The new paths you follow now are defined more by instinct than logic. Today's influences include many obvious instances of fate taking a dominant hand in our history. Many possess great theatrical ability.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Slow down a bit, master your impulses, then you can be more effective in the responses you do make to the vexations of today. Plan for a quiet evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Use your head rather than your feelings to meet provocative stresses. Gambling is almost certain to involve loss and other than the loss itself.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There is no simple, magic solution for today's complex atmosphere. Take one thing at a time in finding the smoother path through routine.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Caution in travel and use of equipment is urged. You are pursuing a rather solitary course now. Think what you are doing, take the risks into account, and go ahead.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Take the most conservative course. It may be better simply to ride along with circumstances than to attempt drastic solutions. Get the facts before you make changes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Drama is in the air — capture it constructively in creative projects. People are tempted into needless bickering. Passive resistance, disinvolvement are essential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Creative experience is the thing today. Secrets, neglected chores complicate routine matters. Your money has too many places to go; just wait a while.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Start early, settle things before your friends indulge an emotional need to interfere. Use your talents for their highest application. The later hours can be great fun.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Pause once in a while today to let intuition catch up with the insistent stimuli all around you. Don't let squabbles deteriorate into serious arguments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your system of organizing runs a collision course with other promise, acceptance. It is a tense but very rewarding day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Continue to avoid any action which would endanger your partnership or marriage. Your intuition now is your finest guide despite your very active logic.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Going along with others may be the quickest way to advance your own plans. Look ahead to judge when you must diverge to follow your own path some what later.

Plain Facts About Boys in Business

Thousands of independent young businessmen throughout Canada today are finding out firsthand how our economic system works. They're making a profit, learning the rewards of saving and managing their own money. They're newspaperboys.

But the biggest "profit" in a newspaper route is not dollars and cents. It is the lessons in service, self-reliance, courtesy and resourcefulness —all qualities of a successful adult and a good citizen.

That newspaperboys generally achieve success as they move into their chosen fields shouldn't be surprising.

Quiet Power Slide Rejected by Lewis

OSHAWA (CP) — Stephen Lewis, candidate for the Ontario New Democratic Party leadership, Sunday said he rejects suggestions from within his party that policies should be "blurred so we can quietly slide into power."

"The electorate is restless . . . ," Mr. Lewis told an audience of 60 at a union hall. "There is no room for equivocation and no room for confusion. They don't want a party, that sounds even a little artificial."

The provincial party meets in Toronto Oct. 3-4 and Mr. Lewis still face Walter Pitman of Peterborough in a race to succeed retiring leader Donald C. MacDonald.

"I would like to give workers rights that up to now have been the prerogative of government and industry . . . the right to bargain prices, pollution controls, everything that most affects their lives."

He criticized living conditions for International Nickel Co. of Canada employees at Sudbury.

He said about 800 Marthimers, lured to Sudbury by promises of jobs and housing, are cramped 20 to a trailer on a muddy area outside the city in conditions "that we wouldn't impose on animals."

He said the men sleep on army cots, use a communal washroom and must produce identity cards to receive mail. He said he toured the site with Mr. Pitman, Friday and found it like "a prison camp compound."

OTTAWA (CP) — Walter Pitman, a candidate for the Ontario leadership of the New Democratic Party, said Saturday there are about 800 men living in Sudbury in accommodation "not unlike concentration camps."

Arab World Weeps As Nasser, 52, Dies

Nasser Their Hero

Gamal Abdel Nasser who died Monday in Cairo of a heart attack, was a hero to Arabs even in the days of his not infrequent defeats. (AP Photo)

Middle East 'Game' Is New

UNITED NATIONS — (CP) — The death of President Nasser of Egypt brought expressions of grief and shock at the United Nations and some dire predictions on the chances now of bringing peace to the Middle East.

"It's a whole new ball game," was the frequent comment heard Monday as starred delegations from 126 countries attempted to assess the effect of the death of the strongest and most influential man in the Arab world.

Immediate speculation was that there will be a power vacuum in Egypt and that the Middle East for some time. Without strong leadership negotiations for peace will founder.

Palestinian Arab sources said that their fight for a homeland, which in the last few weeks involved the whole Middle East in conflict and confrontation, will continue.

A power struggle in Egypt was accepted as a foregone conclusion.

At least some Arabs, however, said the outcome will be a continuation of Nasser's policies. Some said in interviews that the West long has overestimated the power of Nasser outside Egypt.

One said there "will just be a change in tactics."

But Western sources said that Nasser was the only figure in the Middle East with the strength and stature to accept a peaceful settlement of the war with Israel and bring other Arabs into line.

Despite years of increasingly bitter anti-Western words, Nasser was regarded as a moderate among the Arabs. Canada, once feted as having been ordered out of the Sinai Desert with the rest of the UN Emergency Force just before the 1967 war, has had good relations with Egypt in recent years.

News of Nasser's death hit the UN like a thunderbolt. Soon afterwards, there were a flow of tributes that observers said were matched only by the reaction to the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy seven years ago.

Canadian Ambassador Yvonne Beaulne left Western fears seep through when he said in the General Assembly's main political committee:

"It is a tragedy, not only for the Egyptian people and for all Arab countries, but also fills us with sadness and apprehension at such a point in history when we were counting on his qualities as a leader and a statesman to bring peace to a region too long tortured by such a prolonged conflict."

Secretary-General U Thant said in a statement that Nasser's death was an "incalculable loss."

"As a leader of the Egyptian people and as an outstanding figure in the Middle East and in the world, Nasser played an historic part in the events of the last two decades in his area."

Nasser's death will stall peace negotiations, one Arab said. This will give the Americans and Russians time they need to accept the Palestinian reality.

Egyptians Stunned By Loss of Leader

CAIRO (Reuters) — Hundreds of thousands of Egyptians, many weeping only, flooded into Cairo today to join a mammoth demonstration of grief for their dead leader, Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The body of the 52-year-old Egyptian president, who died of a heart attack Monday night, was lying in state at the Kubbeh Palace, on the outskirts of the city, where wailing crowds started to assemble as soon as they heard the news.

The ranks of the stunned mourners swelled dramatically as the news spread until all roads leading to the former royal palace, set in a park outside the capital were blocked.

The Middle East news agency reported that troops and tanks were called in to control the crowds, some of whom pleaded hysterically: "Take us to where he is, we need to be near him."

A state funeral is scheduled Thursday in the Egyptian capital. Among those attending will be Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram said the precautionary move was taken to face any eventuality.

The government radio read condolences from world leaders, political enemies and friends alike, most of them addressed to Anwar Sadat, who as vice-president became provisional president under the constitution. His term will be for 60 days, during which Nasser's Arab Socialist Union will choose a successor.

It was Sadat who announced Nasser's death almost in tears over Cairo radio and television. Al Ahram said Defence Minister Mohamed Hassanein Heykal, a close friend of Nasser, had personally taken the scene at Nasser's bedside as his doctors finally gave up attempts to save him 15 minutes after his death. He suffered a coronary thrombosis—blood clot.

The doctors burst into tears along with everyone else in the room after "medicine and science had surrendered before the will of God," the newspaper said.

The newspaper also revealed that Nasser suffered a first heart attack in September of last year and it was then agreed, because of several considerations, to announce that he had an attack of influenza.

He spent six weeks in bed and

For Other Stories On Nasser's Death See Pages 12 and 24

was advised against overwork. Soviet doctors also warned him against hard work during his visit last June to the Soviet Union "but he never heeded their advice," the newspaper added.

Nasser's Death Likely To Shelve Peace Talks

ABOARD SARATOGA (Reuters) — Nixon administration sources today said they believe the death of President Nasser would effectively shelve the American Middle East peace initiative—perhaps for months.

The sources, speaking aboard this aircraft carrier where President Nixon is visiting the 6th Fleet, said a new leader would have to emerge in Egypt before the peace moves could progress.

Nixon administration sources also disclosed that Nixon will not go to Cairo to attend Nasser's state funeral Thursday.

It also was officially announced that Nixon will go ahead with his two-day visit to Yugoslavia, scheduled Wednesday and Thursday.

Tito, a close friend of Nasser's, will remain in Belgrade to

Kremlin Urges Unity on Arabs

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Kremlin pledged today continuing support for a political settlement in the Middle East and called on Arabs to strengthen their unity in "the best possible tribute" to the dead Egyptian president.

California Winning Fight Against Fires

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fierce battle to beat back the largest brush fire ever in California was being won today near San Diego while a favorable weather outlook encouraged firefighters on dozens of other fronts across Southern California.

The death toll from the five-day siege in six counties rose to eight Monday night when a pilot and four firefighters were killed in a helicopter crash while heading for a fire in the Angeles National Forest outside Los Angeles.

A number of new small fires were dlamed on arsonists.

Thousands of evacuees returned to their homes, Hundreds had none to return to.

The U.S. small business administration estimated the over-all property loss in the state at $175 million, with fire damage to 1,500 homes, businesses or other buildings. California was declared a disaster area, making victims eligible for low-interest loans.

greet the U.S. president.

Sources said they believe that Nixon decided not to go to the funeral because he could not attend such a ceremony in a country with which the United States has no diplomatic relations.

President Nixon again stressed "power for peace" in a speech to men of the 6th Fleet today, but silenced the guns except for one 21-gun salute out of respect to Nasser.

The president said the "power and mobility of the 6th Fleet" in this period of danger and tension in the Middle East have been "indispensible in keeping peace."

After his address, Nixon went to another platform set up for his review of the fleet. U.S. warships of the Mediterranean force began steaming by.

Israelis Alarmed

TEL AVIV (AP) — "What will happen now?" Israelis on the streets of Tel Aviv asked each other Monday, stunned by the death of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

"On the one hand he was our number one enemy," a shopkeeper, Rachel Shitrit, said. "But on the other hand, he was the only man who had the power to change the situation for the better. I think that is some ways I'll miss him."

Those on the street were no less surprised than the government.

Aides of Premier Golda Meir said she was dumbfounded by the news but that she would make no immediate statement.

Canada's Policy Unchanged

MONTREAL (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau expressed shock Monday at the news of Egyptian President Nasser's death, but said it will not change Canada's policy in the Middle East.

Mr. Trudeau told a student audience in his home riding of Mount Royal that Canada's position is to help whoever will bring about a peaceful solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict."

He added that it is "anybody's guess" who will succeed Mr. Nasser as spokesman for the Arab world, and expressed the hope that a successor to the Egyptian president will be found peacefully.

Survey Ship Navigates Arctic Strait

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian survey ship Hudson Monday was reported apparently to have navigated the Northwest Passage

On a scientific exploration cruise, the 4,700-ton vessel was reported by department of energy, mines and resources spokesman to have "cleared Prince of Wales Strait and is steaming toward Resolute."

The department spokesman said a telegram was received from the vessel that "was jubilant" about the feat as the reinforced steel ship cleared the west of the pack ice and appeared heading for relatively clear sailing.

Breath Test Held Illegal

TORONTO (CP) — A charge of refusing to take a compulsory breath test was dismissed by Provincial Judge Maurice Charles Monday on the grounds that the federal law clashes with the Canadian Bill of Rights.

In dismissing the charge against John Leonard Carr of Locust Hill, Ont., Judge Charles said the legislation "purports to abrogate, abridge and infringe on the common-law right of an individual to incriminate himself."

The judge also ruled:

"If a person refuses to give a breath sample, such refusal is not admissable and no inference adverse to the accused can be drawn from such refusal."

Labor Body Rejects Proposed Legislation

TORONTO (CP) — The 600,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor has rejected as anti-labor every major amendment the government proposed in June to make in provincial labor legislation.

The proposed legislation does nothing to help the two-thirds of the labor force in this province that is unorganized and unable to achieve justice in the work place," the OFL said Monday in a brief to Labor Minister Dalton Bales.

Power Fight Seen

PARIS (AP) — Experts on the Arab Middle East predict a struggle in Egypt to succeed President Nasser, and some diplomats forecast a Soviet move to install a pro-Russian as his successor.

The uncertainty of the situation was summed up today by the official who said: "Nobody is going to know what's happening until somebody reads the will."

Arab, Israeli and Western diplomats in Paris agreed, however, that Vice-President Anwar Sadat, one of the original members of Nasser's 1952 junta and now provisional president of Egypt, would emerge as Nasser's successor.

An Israeli embassy official predicted that members of the right-wing Moslem Brotherhood, holdovers from what the diplomat called the old military class, would move to establish a claim on Egyptian leadership. He did not rule out violence on the brotherhood's part.

An Egyptian, however, discounted the strength of the brotherhood in Egypt and mentioned the possibility of a bid for power by Ali Sabry, a Moscow protege. Sabry heads the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only party, and directs the country's civil defence militia.

The Egyptian's reaction was seconded by senior Western diplomats in the French capital. They said the Russians would be forced to move to protect their military and political investment in Egypt.

This feeling was strengthened by the news that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin would attend Nasser's funeral.

THE WEATHER

ped below freezing in parts of Northern Ontario early this morning. Across the lower lakes area the mercury dropped to the high 30s and low 40s. A few showers will occur in southern Ontario late today and overnight. Maximum temperatures today should be a few degrees higher than those of most localities. On Wednesday cloudy skies are expected to predominate in the south.

Flying Browns of Belleville

In the family of St. John Brown of RR 5, Belleville, the only member who hasn't flown is Mrs. Brown. Adrian, 16, took his first solo flight in a glider at the Belleville Flying Club on Sunday, Sept. 27. His sister Hilary, 15, soloed two weeks ago. And not to be outdone, the other children participated in the free rides for Intelligencer carriers at the club. Left to right they are Hilary, Mr. Brown, Warren, 13, Rosalyn 11, Mrs. Brown and the twins, Beverly and Robin, both nine.

1967 Letter Stalls Rink Start

A local resident's letter to the Ontario Municipal Board back in 1967 objecting to the construction of the then-proposed $1¼-million community centre, could conceivably hold up a start on the city's second ice rink.

A week ago council approved the award of a contract for $283,000 to Carr - Brainst Construction to build the new rink on Harder Drive and approval of the OMB was sought.

Prompt OK of the project was almost taken for granted by city council, but the letter of objection against the $1¼-million community centre was still on file and the Toronto officials read this matter cleared before approving the rink.

Pending OMB approval, city council yesterday held up bylaws authorizing the expenditure of the $283,000 for the arena, and also establishment of the permissions on the north side of Harder Drive as a community centre.

The city will now ask the Ontario Municipal Board for the name of the person whose 1967 letter of objection is on file in Toronto.

When the name of the objector is known, this person will be approached with the view of having the objection withdrawn.

If the objection to the rink still stands, the Ontario Municipal Board could conceivably direct that a public hearing be held before giving its approval to the rink project.

Alderman Concerned Over Committee System

A Belleville alderman is concerned over recent comments with respect to the action of city council committees and will ask for a council investigation to determine whether the present system is satisfactory.

Alderman Donald Souter, chairman of the city recreation and arena committee, told council that he was concerned about comments regarding the action of his committee and their recommendations in connection with the new covered rink.

He said if committee decisions and their recommendations were open to question it could place city staff members in a difficult position.

He could foresee important committee decisions in the future in connection with the development of East Zwick's Island, the development of the proposed park complex in the Palmer Road - Bridge Street area and also the purchase of a computerized traffic system.

"Possibly council itself should be making the decisions," he suggested.

The alderman later introduced a notice of motion for tabling at the next council meeting asking that council appoint itself as a committee to investigate whether its committee system was working satisfactorily.

Alderman Souter today said that he personally was well satisfied with the present system. And said the committee system had been criticized on more than one occasion and it was only fair that the committees know where they stand.

Alderman Arthur Keegan also introduced a notice of motion asking that council take some action with respect to a clean - up of the Moira River.

He said that the river between the Lower Bridge and the CPR bridge was "a mess".

His notice of motion asked that council obtain the necessary expert advice on whether a dam, a 50 foot river channel or whatever was required to effect a permanent cleanup.

Plan Lack Is Concern

Lack of an official plan for the city of Belleville is causing concern for the subdivisions section of the community planning branch.

Mrs. D. Santo, senior planner with the branch has written to the city in reference to the increasing number of subdivision applications being submitted which are not covered by an official plan.

She said that in the absence of such a development policy it is difficult to assess each proposal in relation to the present and future development in the city.

"We would be hesitant to approve any large scale development schemes until such a program is initiated," Mrs. Santo advised.

"When will our official plan be ready?" queried an alderman of city planner Bert Kenny.

"I don't know when the plan will be ready, but I hope a draft plan will be ready by the end of 1970," he said.

Shoe Thieves Hit at Night

Somewhere in the city someone might be saying the cost of footwear.

At least, this may be the case following a report from the Belleville police department.

Some time around 9:45 p.m. last night, four pairs of shoes disappeared from apartment at 342, 354 and 364A Sidney Street.

It was reported that these shoes were placed outside, at doors following last night's rain.

Police also report the apprehension of the daylight lawn mowers who entered the home of Orville Matthews, 436 Bridge St. E. on Sept. 24, apparently disturbed nothing, and then mowed his lawn. The juveniles have not admitted their purpose in cutting the grass.

Hees Flays Liberal Economic Policy

FRANKFORD (Staff) — Hon. George Hees, member of parliament for Prince Edward - Hastings, previewed the impending fall session of the House of Commons by outlining the position to be taken by the opposition Conservative party when parliament convenes Monday.

Mr. Hees told the Trenton Conservative Association at Frankford last night that "the Liberals must get this economy moving again."

"Unemployment," he charged, "is at its highest level in nine years. 6.7 per cent of the work - force", although he did concede that the state of the economy was of such complexity that it could not be totally blamed on the government.

The Conservative caucus chairman contended that "the government has used old, stereotyped methods of fighting inflation, methods in operation for hundreds of years"; and have failed to combat the inflationary spiral by the method of cutting employment levels, he mentioned.

One approach to be taken by the opposition, he said, is to demand that chartered banks "stop hoarding the investment profits they have been making over the past three years".

Mr. Hees said that the Bank of Canada had, since May 11, reduced its lending rate from 8 percent to 7 percent and American chartered banks have clipped rates materially.

The high cost of money is holding back the economy, stopping development projects in several sectors, he explained.

Besides demands for lowered bank rates, Mr. Hees said Conservatives would call for an increase in industrial productivity. "Our costs and prices have gone too high," he said.

The former cabinet minister maintained that the only way to increase productivity at present conditions would be to give "some incentive to industry" as has been done in both Japan and West Germany.

Hon. Pierre Trudeau's government has "destroyed business confidence" in this country by producing the White Paper on Taxation". Mr. Hees maintained that "people will not going to invest until they know how they are going."

Government intention to tax small businesses at a rate of 50 per cent on the first $15,000 of earnings would deter young people from entering the business world and that is bad for the country, he contended. The proposal to tax at 21 per cent on the first $35,000 of gross earnings.

Mr. Hees said that the principal architect of the White Paper, Robert Brice, is "a socialist ... the second in our kind of socialist, a millionaire socialist".

Pollution and its prevention would also be a central issue this fall, the veteran MP explained. "We will try to get the government to introduce a workable anti - pollution program" he said.

Ontario and British Columbia are doing a fair job in the pollution fight, he said, "but nothing is being done elsewhere".

The federal government, Mr. Hees continued, has done nothing on pollution since it introduced its Canada Water Act in June.

A crucial factor in government inaction on the pollution problem is that the government departments share responsibility for its control, he said.

"To bring order out of chaos", Mr. Hees disclosed that his party would demand establishment of a pollution control co-ordinator, after the British model.

This officer would co-ordinate efforts of government departments, provincial agencies and work closely with U.S. states bordering Canadian waterways, he explained.

Mr. Hees said the opposition would take the government to task over failures to institute a "Just Society" particularly for the elderly, pointing out that old age pensions had increased at a rate of 2 per cent annually over the last three years, while the cost of living climbed through that period at a rate in access of 4 per cent.

The Prince Edward - Hastings MP contended that this was particularly objectionable in view of the fact that the government had spent $138 million for jet aircraft they "have no use for".

This was a reference to the 74 CF-5s being built by Canadair in Montreal as part of a contract for 115 - the government is undecided as to what should be done with them.

The CF-5 "is not worth a hoot" Mr. Hees charged, presenting a parallel to a similar situation in 1958-9. "What should they (the government) do?" he asked.

"We did it in 1958" he said.

Five-year Forecast

Board of Education Estimates $11 Million Needed for Building

Hastings county board of education last night unveiled an $11-million capital building program spanning the next five years.

It calls for building of eight new senior and junior elementary schools in the county, additions to seven schools, renovations to four old schools and construction of a new $4.5-million secondary school in the Sidney - Thurlow area.

Trustees decided to study the report and vote in two weeks on the first recommendations — submission of the 1970 needs for approval by the Kingston regional office of the department of education.

Administration told trustees that approval is needed this year for a new senior school in north Hastings costing $550,000 and an addition at Stirling senior elementary school costing $250,000. A request for approval of an addition at Avondale school to accommodate retarded children has already been submitted. Its cost is estimated at $55,000.

The board will also decide whether or not to seek approval of a $5,370,000 capital works program for 1971.

Included in the figure is $1 million for a new secondary school to serve the increased number of students expected from Sidney and Thurlow.

Other school construction projects that will be needed in 1971 includes a junior school for Sidney and Thurlow costing $400,000 and a Haig Road junior school costing $300,000. A $280,000 addition will be needed at Queen Elizabeth school in Trenton and Frankford senior school, built in 1923, will have to be replaced at a cost of $400,000. The 1916 classrooms at the former Tweed high school will have to be renovated in 1971 at a cost of $240,000 and a retarded children's school costing $50,000 will be needed at L'Amable to serve the north Hastings area.

The board's building needs are based on population projections made by its staff. The statistics show that the elementary school population is decreasing by about 200 a year, but the secondary school about 300. These figures do not include immigration into the county, which is adding a considerable number of students each year.

Although the over - all picture is declining, there will be increase in school enrolment, the opposite is true in Hastings, where a natural population increase and an influx of new families is straining school accommodation.

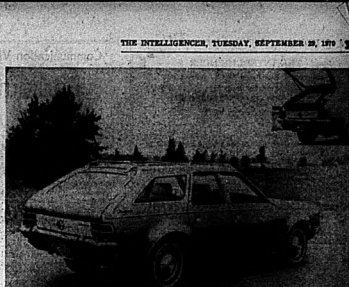
The new secondary school now under construction at Bayside is expected to operate at capacity when it opens next year. It Bayside and Centennial in Belleville are not to become "portable schools", the board was told, a new secondary school will be called for by 1972 or 1973.

By 1972, the new construction will total $1,930,000 for a senior elementary school in West Park Village in Belleville costing $500,000, an elementary in Indian in Dufferin Development in Trenton costing $300,000 and replacement of Queen Mary school in Belleville, built in 1914, costing $330,000.

Additions will be needed in 1972 to V, P. Carswell school in Trenton ($180,000), Prince Charles in Trenton ($180,000) and Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Belleville ($220,000).

Renovations will be needed in 1972 at Queen Alexandra Belleville, ($100,000), Marmora St. Trenton, ($100,000) and Trenton High School ($400,000).

By 1973, the board's capital works budget will total $1,110,000 for a $500,000 east Trenton junior school and a $300,000 Sidney - Thurlow area junior school; additions costing $300,000 to Coe Hill, $100,000 renovations to King George and replacement of Queen Victoria at a cost of $410,000.



In 1974, a new school costing $420,000 will be needed in Belleville's Tracey St. area and Dufferin St. school in Trenton will need replacement at a cost of $340,000. Additions amounting to $220,000 will be needed at Bayside elementary school and renovation of $100,000 each will be required at Prince of Wales and Bancroft schools. Centennial Secondary School will be due for addition for a $500,000 addition to accommodate increased secondary school enrolment, or county growth may dictate construction of another secondary school.

The building program for 1974 is estimated at $1,440,000.

The five year capital works budget was prepared in response to a department of education request for a survey of accommodation needs throughout the province.

Since formation of count/ boards in 1969, a freeze was put on capital projects. But with schools throughout the province bursting at the seams, the government has asked for a survey of all needs.

After the board has proved its accommodation need to the provincial department, it must submit sketch plans for approval before debentures cap be issued.

AM's New Wagon

A new Sportabout model, combining the usefulness of a station wagon with the styling of a sedan, has been added to American Motors' compact Hornet series for 1971. The four-door Sportabout provides seating for five and is powered by a standard 232 CID Six. A 305 CID V-8 is also available. An easily operated rear liftgate (inset photo) provides access to a spacious cargo area. Custom options include a full-length roof rack and wood grain side trim. The Sportabout will be in AM dealer showrooms Oct. 6.

But Not with Money

Gas Rate Increase Opposed by Council

Belleville city council will give moral support to other communities objecting to the proposed increase in natural gas rates, but there will be no financial involvement.

This was made clear by council yesterday following receipt of a bill from the Confederation Ontario Municipal Association for $992.79 suggested as being this city's share of the costs in fighting the gas rate increase.

Alderman Donald Soutter moved that the city pay $500 toward the legal fees as evidence of its good faith.

This brought strong objections from Aldermen E. A. Orr and Gerald Joyce who wanted no part of any financial commitment.

Alderman Orr said he was opposed on the grounds the invoice had been sent despite the fact the city earlier in the year had written giving its moral support but stating there would be no financial participation.

"I am amazed that they had the nerve to ask us," added Ald. Joyce. "Never in my shape or form should we indicate agreement (in financial participation)."

also won the open class for seniors only.

Chris Donnan won Eaton's junior championship trophy for the best plowed land, and Don Mumby the International Harvester special for the best plowed land in the utility class.

John W. Gibson, Imperial Oil Farm Service, provided the gasoline and diesel oil for all competitions.

Stirling Plowmen

Dominate Match

Miss Margaret Sills, 17-year-old Stirling area girl, has won the title "Queen of the Furrow" for Hastings County as a result of prowess shown at the annual Hastings county plowing match.

The plowing match, held at the Glenn Rowe farm on the Ridge Road, west of Stirling, saw 17 contestants competing in six different classes.

Approximately $300 in cash prizes and merchandise was won by contestants.

Although billed as a competition, the primary purpose of the annual county plowing match is to give young farmers a few pointers in the art of good plowmanship. During the morning demonstrations are held followed by the utility and regular classes.

Ed Thompson, RR2, Stirling won class 2 for contest'ants under 16 who had not previously plowed at a plowing match.

The utility class for competitors under 18 was won by Chris Donnan; the over 18 utility class was won by Don Mumby, RR2, Stirling, who

ARE HOUSE PRICES HIGH?

ED McKINNEY F. E. McKINNEY Realty Ltd.

Well, yes they are, if you compare them with prices of even a few years ago.

Why? The explanation lies in comparing them with the rise in other prices generally caused by the rise in consumer demand. When you do, you'll find house prices merely reflect the rising price levels of our inflated economy.

If it is any consolation, houses are often the last commodities in the price parade to show any rise. Property prices respond to the demands of more affluent purchasers willing to spend more to satisfy their wants.

Prices were low in the depression of the thirties when buyers had little money and scaled down their wants accordingly. They have risen steadily since the Second World War, as incomes have risen, buyers have become plentiful and houses relatively scarcer.

Will they go up much further in the future? If a run of price increases on house surpasses the demand, then prices will drop for a time. But virtually all economists expect steady price rises in the years ahead.

This is a major reason real estate is excellent long-term protection against currency inflation. It also explains why putting off a purchase for another year usually means you will pay more.

Parking Price Increase Approved by Council

Members of the Belleville Parking Authority yesterday justified the 100 per cent increase in meter parking fees which this year has been put into effect in "prime" downtown areas.

Parking authority members had been asked to appear before the city council to justify the increase and state what they expected to do with their surplus.

Last year's authority chairman, Glencoe E. Thompson, said he wasn't sure there would be a surplus.

But if there was, he assured there were many places for it to go.

"We are facing the worst three months of the year," said Mr. Thompson, noting that some parking lot a r e a needed new blacktop. Also a traffic light was needed at the Front Street entrance to riverside parking.

Mr. Thompson said council last spring had approved an authority request to spend $25,000 for new meters, the understanding being that meter rates in "prime" areas would be increased from five to 10 cents per half hour.

The former chairman said the authority had had deficits in the past and the increase in parking rates was an attempt to get it back in a paying position.

Operating costs had increased in the past 20 years and it was not reasonable to expect that rates should continue the same.

However, it appeared that council did not all understand that an increase in meter rates was to go into effect with council approval of the $15,000 capital expenditure for new meters.

One who did not have this understanding was Acting Mayor Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, who nevertheless said she approved.

Ald. Donald Soutter said he had favored the increase, noting that the authority needed the money to help alleviate downtown parking problems.

Prisoner Refuses Return to Jail

WARKWORTH (Staff) — A 19-year-old prisoner failed to return to jail on penal institute last night, called at the home of Hiscox's relatives about 8 a.m. this morning, but he was not there.

Dennis Hiscox, who is serving three years for robbery at the medium security prison, had been in Belleville on a regular leave as part of his rehabilitation program.

He was scheduled to be back at Warkworth by 9 p.m. Monday, but did not show up.

Mr. Hiscox contacted a Belleville clergyman and told him that he wouldn't be returning. The minister telephoned Warkworth authorities to inform them of the prisoner's decision.

Belleville police, contacted late last night, called at the home of Hiscox's relatives about 8 a.m. this morning, but he was not there.

Dennis Hiscox is the second of two prisoners at large currently. Paul Allen, 30, of Albany, N.Y., has not been seen since his prison break Aug. 17 with Peter Zivkovic, 30, of Toronto, who is now in the custody of Metropolitan Toronto police, following his apprehension in Toronto a few days ago.

Egypt and the World

The death yesterday of Egypt's strongman Gamal Abdel Nasser could not have come at a more crucial time.

As the self-appointed yet effective leader of the Arab world his personal involvement in the middle East crisis was of such a dimension that his death leaves a dangerous vacuum.

It was under Nasser's guidance that King Hussein of Jordan and the Palestinian guerrillas came to some semblance of agreement within the past few days. Will the absence of his strong hand allow this split in the Arab world to widen again?

It was under Nasser's leadership that Egypt swung from its position of trading with many countries of the world to near economic, military and political dependency on Russia. Does his death now pave the way for an even stronger pro-Russian leader to emerge as a Mediterranean strongman?

It was under Nasser's sabre rattling that Israeli-Arab discontent flared into brief but violent open warfare. Its prime result was that Egypt lost one third of its territorial possessions and the mideast unrest has not quieted yet. The question is yet to be answered as to whether his successor will inflame or subdue the passions of this portion of the world.

It was under Nasser's insistence that the U.S. peace proposals gained enough popularity to allow them to be a starting point for further discussion. Will his successor take a similar moderate stand?

The world will be keeping its eye on Egypt for the next 60 days as the power struggle for control shapes up while vice president Anwar Sadat, in his role as interim president, attempts to keep the lid on the volatile mideast.

His is not an enviable job. But it is one in which much of the world has a stake.

Tolerance, Good or Bad?

One of the mystiques of our times is the oft-expressed intolerance of the North American as an individual as contrasted with his Jekyll and Hyde permissiveness and tolerance when acting as a member of a gregarious society.

The U.S. presidential report on campus unrest is a case in point.

It places the blame on a collective society — one which allows the student terrorist to exist, one which tolerates disruption on campus and one which fails to react to college administrations which forfeit discipline.

And what was the reaction?

The report, calling upon all of society to unite against the pressures that set off the mobs, bombings and killings, has been greeted by those very individuals which make up society with callous indifference and cynicism.

It truly is a strange world we live in.

Legion Initiative

Belleville and district has always had a proud military heritage which has been perpetuated by the various organizations among us.

The Royal Canadian Legion is one of them and the length and verve with which it is building its new quarters on Pinnacle St. must for many of the members be reminiscent of days gone by.

The building itself will be another example of downtown renewal undertaken by enterprising members of this community. With urban renewal of the downtown core still a major factor in this city's plans it is encouraging to see such a building materialize at this time.

The Miniskirt

Fashion designers have been pushing the "big put-on" of the Seventies with their attempted swing to the midi style so it is only fair to lend support when you can to the proponents of the mini.

Charging to the rescue of mere man has come Detroit chiropractor George Goodheart who claims miniskirts improve the posture of girls wearing them.

He argues that miniskirts force their wearers to stand more gracefully and this improves their posture. They used to stand with their knees back — causing a pelvic tilt, a sway back and a potbelly — and he is afraid they will resume this sloppy posture if the miniskirt goes out of style.

So there you go, girls. It might be getting a little cooler but hang in there with your minis. We love you the way you are.

Communication Vital Too Says Stanfield

Parliament Awaits Emergence of Tougher Opposition

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Realistically, if ruefully, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield has confessed failure to get through to the voting public.

It has been a lack; he concedes, of communication.

A practical man, he promises to do something about it at once.

Immediately, he discloses, as next week's re-assembling of Parliament.

It is his top personal priority.

The Conservative Leader believes he has taken several good solid positions on various national issues.

"And generally," he says, "our position not only has been firm, it has been right."

But this has not been coming across to most of the more than 12,000,000 Canadians who will be marking ballots in the next election, now only between 18 months and two years away.

Or at least the political, popularity polls show no flashing sign of it.

For Robert Stanfield and his Conservatives are as badly off now, sagging in the polls, as they were in the last election when they took such a hammering.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and his Liberals are riding as high as ever.

Those polls may be dead on or wildly out. They have been both.

But whatever their accuracy or lack of it, they can not be ignored.

Robert Stanfield the other day illustrated his difficulty.

He had been visiting The Albany, in Toronto, that most Conservative of all Conservative clubs, its members the very archetypes of Conservatism.

For months he had been crusading all across Canada against Finance Minister Benson's controversial some tax-payers spell that confiscatory — White Paper on Taxation.

And for months evidence had been piling up that at least he had been getting through to Benson.

For the Finance Minister has been in long, slow retreat from his White Paper position, giving up his cumpendium plans for many new tax areas.

So this was at least one front — if perhaps the only one — where Robert Stanfield had attacked and won ground.

But that evening, when he walked into what has to be the Progressive Conservative party's unofficial national headquarters, one of the members asked him what to Robert Stanfield was a pretty stunning question.

"He wanted to know," reported Mr. Stanfield with a wry smile, "when I was going to criticize the Benson taxation paper."

If the Conservative Leader might have been wondering before this what could have been wrong with his pipeline to the public, he no longer had to surmise.

It was plain plugged, he confessed.

How, then, to clear it?

He contends that perhaps his low-key approach to the public, Parliament, the press and most of all, the majority Liberal Government, could have been a bit overdone.

So he is going to be a little more hard-cosed.

A more critical, less reasonable Robert Stanfield will emerge next week in Parliament.

Less reasonable, that is, in the sense of not being as willing to co-operate with the Government.

Co - operate perhaps, is not the completely accurate word for it.

Because the term has different meanings for different people.

The way the Government — any Government, Liberal or Conservative — uses "co-operation," it means non-opposition.

To not co-operate is to obstruct.

And Robert Stanfield as Opposition Leader may have been many things, but obstructionist was not one of them.

There is no point in changing the Stanfield image. For it can not be done convincingly.

But its edges can be sharpened and its public projection hardened.

And the Liberals are about to discover it.

Who Is in Control?

Unionism In Canada

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

On Sept. 15, in a major policy speech, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert F. Nixon made an eloquent plea for "labor itself to strengthen Canadian identity and to gain more direct control in the Canadian Labor movement." He convincingly argued:

"A Canadian identity in the labor movement becomes increasingly important as we see the growing flavor of present day American unionism. No longer the protector - in principle of the rights of the working man, the American union has often become the epitomy of the wave of conservatism in the United States. American unions have moved ideologically to the right . . ."

Mr. Nixon contended that Canadian union members can respond in the real issues in Canadian society only if they have "the real, not taken, power to do so." He urged, among some other good things, the "Canadian dues should be invested according to priorities determined by Canadians."

As The Labor Relations Act stands, a Canadian worker should indeed be "free to join a trade union of his own choice and to participate in its lawful activities." Perhaps Mr. Nixon can help persuade his Ontario Government that the discriminatory practice of exclusive and coercive unionism contravenes our civil rights and liberties and violates the legal equality of worker and association opportunity for all. He would then be doing the many, many Canadian workers who neither believe in coercion nor in liberalistic socialism as positive, liberating service, for if these citizens would finally be "ideologically" free to organize and act according to their own "priorities," be they christian or other life principles.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 29, 1950

Under the wreckers' hammers for the past two weeks, the former Lafferty Service Station and car storage on Pinnacle St. has now completely disappeared and a huge mechanical shovel has moved in to commence excavation, for the new Loblaw Store to be built on the site.

Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, owner - driver of Miss Canada IV, was due here today for trial runs in preparation for another stab tomorrow at the world's speedboat record.

The Women's Christian Club held their first open meeting of the autumn season in the assembly room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where a fine audience, representative of the deep interest and patriotic spirit of the club, were privileged to hear Dorothy Howarth, staff reporter of the Toronto Telegram, speak on "Reporters are People."

30 YEARS AGO

Further evidence of the generous response of the Belleville and district public to humanitarian causes was seen when the Tag-Day sellers of the Argyll Chapter, IODE netted the sum of $528.

Shortly after midnight last night an unknown prankster opened the hydrant at John St. and Victoria Ave. flooding a large area of that district. Police are investigating.

This month has been a very light one in the issuance of building permits in Belleville. Only seven were issued, with a total value of $5,175.

Sales agent for Prince Edward County Holsteins, Duncan Foster reported that exports of cattle from Prince Edward County, which were very heavy during the spring and last year, have greatly decreased since the UN tariff was raised a short time ago.

Newspaper paragraphers are making merry over the fact that Belleville's new chief of police is named Captain Kidd. Kidding Captain Kidd at long distance is safe enough but from all accounts it would not be wise to kid Capt. Kidd too much at short range.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sept. 29, 1970 . . .

Walter Rathenau, German statesman, was born in Berlin 103 years ago today—in 1867—the son of an industrialist. His father had made his fortune out of the European rights to Thomas A. Edison's patents. Rathenau came to prominence when he was in charge of the supply of raw materials to German industry during the First World War. After the war, he helped to found the middle-class Democratic party and advocated the democratization of industry and establishing normal relations with the U.S.S.R. These beliefs and his Jewish blood made him anathema to the new nationalist groups springing up and Rathenau was assassinated in 1922.

Expropriated Beaches

A 20-year-old Skeleton in the Government's Closet

The Globe and Mail

In 1951 the provincial Government on the motion of Lands and Forests Minister H. R. Scott, expropriated beaches in many parts of Ontario from the public. It wasn't a normal expropriation; in fact, it wasn't even called an expropriation. The bill was entitled An Act to Amend the Beds of Navigable Waters Act. It was introduced in the Legislature on March 27, 1951. Nine days later it was law.

No one debated the bill. Apparently no one objected to it. No one was compensated for what he had lost. The whole event went unreported in the press.

The bill revoked sections of the Beds of Navigable Waters Act, which had been passed in 1960, making the high water mark the boundary line for abutting property owners. The revocation meant that the low water mark became the new boundary line and the land between the high and low marks was transferred to the property owners. No longer did it belong to the Crown. From that moment on the public became trespassers if they dared set foot on it.

This didn't mean that every beach in the province became private. But it did make private every beach where the original Crown patent granted property "down to the water's edge" or "to the shore" or "the border of the lake (or river)". Sometimes the Crown grant specified the low or high water mark or some other definite boundary. But often, especially in the older grants, the boundary is the water's edge. Under the 1940 legislation this would be the high water mark; after 1951 it was the low water mark.

Mr. Scott's explanation for the change was cryptic. He told the Legislature when he introduced the bill that: "Under (the 1940 law) the department has found it practically impossible to properly interpret the boundaries of these properties which front on navigable waters and are withdrawing the 1940 amendments."

It is where there are beaches that the real impact of this change is felt, for in most cases there is a substantial distance between the high and low water marks only where beaches exist.

A recent case before the Supreme Court of Ontario illustrates what the change means. Four American owners of summer cottages on Ontario side of Lake Erie near Crystal Beach asked Mr. Justice Alexander Stark to rule that they owned all the beach in front of their cottages.

Until recently they hadn't been bothered by members of the public trying to use the beach. But, as Mr. Justice Stark noted, "three or four years ago, a road allowance . . . was opened up, at least to the extent that the public could reach the beach . . . In effect, large numbers of the public are now using these beaches as public property by picnicking, camping, building bonfires, and, in the eyes of the applicants, trespassing generally and committing nuisances greatly to the applicants' detriment."

Under the old law the public could have continued to use the beach, Mr. Justice Stark said. However, the 1951 change banned them from it.

The Government has decided to appeal the case, as well it should. However, the appeal court can't change the legislation, so no matter what the outcome is in this case the Government should be prepared to revert legislatively to the high water mark rule.

Rene Brunelle, the present Lands and Forests Minister, says that a return to the old law is unthinkable. It would be discriminatory and unreasonable.

Nonsense. It was the 1951 change that was confiscatory. The entire public suffered — without compensation. As for unenforceability, indeed there may have been difficulty applying the old law. The high water mark is often hard to place. But the difficulty surely was with the wording of the old law.

Instead of changing the law in 1951, Mr. Scott should have looked for a better definition of high water mark. In extremely difficult cases, provided for a compromise solution. Instead, he took the easy way out and substituted an unjust law which could be easily enforced.

Mr. Brunelle now has an opportunity to restore to the public its lands, this time with a law that does work. He shouldn't be one to cast aside his inability to draft it.

Ann Landers

Anti-spouse Dialogue Always Self-defeating

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Wow! I read your reply to the woman whose husband has been having a three-year affair. I thought for a moment this was 1930 and Kathleen Norris was still alive.

So you believe a mother should cover up for the rat, pretend him even though he doesn't deserve it, eh? The kids will think, when they get older, that their mother has class, will they?

Your definition of class — "grace under pressure," — killed me. How do you like my definition? Class is: Grace under pressure is the Serene Highness, the Prince of Wales, courting her first girl.

Sorry, but I think you've all wet. When a man cheats, I see no reason why his wife should protect him from the kids. This particular woman stated herself: "Certain Good Children Have Good Wives." If their vision is really good they're probably looking ahead six years wondering when one of them will be elected to support Mom, when Dad decides to dump her. — NO CLASS BUT GOOD VISION.

DEAR NO CLASS: You missed the point, Bright Eyes. Even kids who have severe myopia will see after awhile that their father is behaving like a skunk. No one will have to draw them a diagram. I say let the guy's deeds do him in. Why should Mom demean herself by talking against him? Children are taught by either mother or father, in their self-defeating and it encourages the kids to choose sides. It can also produce ulcers, migraine and other unpleasantness.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a travelling man who reads your articles in several newspapers around the country. I've seen about ten different pictures of you and I wonder what you REALLY look like — as near as possible.

In some pictures it appear to be an average housewife about 45. Then again, i've seen pictures that are much younger looking — you might even say downright sexy. The Detroit Free Press carries a picture that makes you look like an old hag. Long Island Newsday and the Washington Post used to print your picture but they stopped. Is it because you have fallen apart and they don't want the public to know? My sister who lives in San Francisco says they have never printed your picture because you are a nun.

The Sun-Times in Chicago has the best pictures of all, and they change them around a lot. I would like to ask the following questions:

(1) How old are you?

(2) Is the picture that appears in the San Bernardino paper a recent one? Has it been touched up a lot?

(3) Why don't you send all the newspapers your latest photo? Will the real Ann Landers please stand up? — A PEOPLE WATCHER.

DEAR WATCHER: (1) I was 52 on July 4. (2) I don't know which picture the San Bernardino Sun-Telegram is using or if they are "touching it up." That paper is very much on the ball re 74 wager they are using the latest. (3) I have sent all the papers a recent picture but some prefer to use the old ones.

Points for Parents

By MARY BREYSON

Mother: "Timmy used to be such an affectionate child. But now he doesn't seem to care for us at all. He doesn't even like to have me pat my arm around him."

Grandmother: "Some teenagers are just naturally standoffish."

Mother: "Timmy is at an age where he's embarrassed by an display or affection. He was so irritated when I hugged him at the airport after his vacation trip."

Father: "I can remember when I felt that way about my mother."

Very young children are warm and spontaneous and often seem more affectionate than teenagers who are apt to dislike any public show of emotion.

Leftover Sour Cream Has Many Uses

By MARY MOORE

The Pitts family were visiting me for a week. My education in feeding seven takes another jump every time they march through the Moore door.

Later, in the office, Marianne caught sight of my recipe for Aunt's Sour Cream Cookies which I gave here last week. She said "What do I do with that leftover sour cream? And another thing I don't have time to chill cookie dough."

Keeping these points in mind and with Sue (11) doing the mixing and shaping and Marianne the baking they made marvellous cookies that I hope all cookie makers in this audience will try.

SUE'S CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

¼ cup butter
¼ cup shortening
1¼ cups granulated sugar
2 med-large eggs
2-3 cup dairy sour cream
1 tsp. vanilla
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
1 cup chocolate chips

In large mixing bowl cream together until light and smooth the shortening, butter and sugar, then beat in eggs. Sift together the sifted flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt and beat in with sour cream, vanilla and chocolate chips. Butter baking sheets. Drop dough from teaspoon in 1 or 1¼" mounds at least 2¼" apart. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. Time depends on size — you must watch these — as soon as edge is ringed with gold they are done and should be carefully lifted from pans with lifter to cake racks to cool. Do not let this one last pan of cookies burn. Hover near the oven until each one is perfectly baked. Makes five or six doz. Let your daughters and sons make a batch.

LOOKS AFTER SHEEP

PENNAL, Wales (CP) — Mary Tudor is one of the few girls to leave the city lights for the country. But when her father died this 24-year-old Martinethaire girl, a nurse in London, returned home to look after her father's 700-acre sheep farm. Her assistants — one man and two sheepdogs.

Successful Living

Every Home Should Have Its Suggestion Bin

By DORIS CLARK

Every home should have an idea bin. This is simply a small box with a pot pad and pen ready for instant use.

An idea bin may not develop genius in your home, but the possibility should not be excluded. Every parent is aware of the ferment of thinking that bubbles out of its members. Mad moments will see an idea flash in one or another noggin; ideas can happen at any time, and they can be lost as quickly as they appear. For this reason they should be fixed on paper and stored in the bin.

Ideas should be left to marinate for a few days, then brought out for a family review. It is best to have a regular day for going through the "think - slips." Family members and others may help decide which ideas should be dropped, and which need longer maturing or some research, study or test.

Noting an idea on a slip of paper doesn't call for laborious writing. Just a brief line like: "Need For Nov - Skid Soap Dish" — "Control Good To Squirt When Pounded" — "Home Trout Tank" — or "New Twist For Pretzels."

Most perhaps all, brainwaves will be in the fun - but - no - cash - value class. But this doesn't suggest that ideagetting should be stopped. After all, what separates you from the earthworm or the yak? You can get ideas. A home, office, store, or mill that doesn't encourage ideas is in a vegetable state. — Bob Ludwig, The Idea Clinic, Vancouver.

Dear Doris: My children are on their own, so my selfish, cruel husband has no longer any hold on me. I am leaving soon, as I have grown to hate him, which he does not believe. The children know something is wrong.

I am afraid if I play it will end up in the mental home. There is nothing worse than hate. Could a woman of 48 get a job in a city? — Filled With Hate.

Dear Filled: Leave him by all means — but as soon as you can manage it, get rid of that aura of hatred.

Women of 48 have been known to get back into the working world and make a bowling success of things. But don't ruin your break for freedom with a resentment which could practically knock a fellow down.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 18 and going with a 16 year - old guy. I feel quite self-conscious when I am with him because of the age difference.

He is cute, taller than I am, and is really nice and polite, but I can't help thinking all my friends are laughing at us when I'm with him. What should I do? — Confused.

Dear Confused: What you have confused is whether you should worry about what people think or about what you think — of him! Do you like him? Do you laugh over the same jokes, enjoy the same kinds of entertainment, reading?

The usual thing is for a girl to be the same age or a bit younger than her boy friends; but if this rule, tall fellow is older in his thinking, actions and manners than most of the boys his age, enjoy him.

Packaging Researched

TORONTO (CP) — There is sometimes more to a package than meets the eye, says Lyn Jamison. That's one of the reasons the packaging industry has not yet developed non-polluting, disintegrating plastics and glass.

Mr. Jamison, executive vice-president of the Packaging Association of Canada, says most packaging research is done in the United States, and that researchers have been working on the problem of producing glass and plastic containers that will disappear harmlessly without further fouling the environment.

There are a number of problems. There must be no harmful vapor or residue and the container must be made stable enough, perhaps with a coating, so that it does not disintegrate before its contents are used.

In addition there are the problems involved in any kind of packaging. Will contents and container combine to produce an unwanted reaction? What do light and air do to container and product?

As an illustration, he explains that there is a coating on the film bags for potato chicken. Without the coating, ultra-violet rays would reach and bake the cookies in the package.

Soda crackers are expensively wrapped in sealed wax paper inside the box because they are stored in the moist humid place in the home, in a kitchen cupboard, and they would get soft if they weren't doubly protected.

Mr. Jamison maintains that the search for a non-polluting, dissolving package will go on, but he says none of the research efforts to date has provided a completely practical sort of answers to all the questions.

Quebec's GPs Stay on Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Gilles Desrosiers, executive secretary of the Quebec Federation of General Practitioners, said Monday GPs will remain on the job even if Quebec's medical specialists strike in opposition to the provincial medical care insurance program.

"As of today, all the general practitioners we have consulted say they will continue to give their services even if the medical specialists take a strike action," he said in an interview.

The 4,000-member specialists federation is at odds with the government over points of the medicare program it feels need revision and has threatened to strike if the changes are not forthcoming.

The specialists are primarily concerned about the lack of an opting-out clause in the legislation and keeping control of medical standards within the profession.

Premier Robert Bourassa met with his cabinet here Monday night to discuss a new opting-out formula suggested by Dr. Raymond Rebillard, president of the specialists federation.

There were hopes that the meeting would result in a breakthrough in the lengthy dispute. Mr. Bourassa is expected to give a news conference on the discussions in Quebec City today.

Although the general practitioners would not join a walkout by the specialists, they also aren't completely satisfied with the government plan which was passed by the Quebec national assembly in July.

"We are still continuing to negotiate with the government, and the negotiations are long and tough," Dr. Desrosiers said. "As of today there is no deadlock. But tomorrow or next week, who can tell?"

He said the negotiations between the group and the government deal mainly with fee schedules and professional controls.

Dr. Desrosiers warned that if the specialists strike, the province's 2,300 GPs will be able to fill only some of the gaps.

"Our members would offer their services only within the limits of their fields of competence."

Officials of four Montreal hospitals—the Royal Victoria, Montreal General, Jewish General and Queen Elizabeth—said Monday they would not curtail admissions in the event of a strike.

'Keep Faith' Plea Made By UAW

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The head of the United Auto Workers in Canada appealed to members at General Motors of Canada Ltd. plants Monday to "keep the faith" in a rally that featured the UAW president.

The Canadian executive, Dennis McDermott, later said he expects the Canadian Labor Congress to contribute benefits for strikers in the event of a long strike.

Leonard Woodcock, the UAW president who has made a series of speeches to plant workers in the United States, was welcomed with an ovation and repeated his statement that the union is ready for a long strike.

About 2,000 UAW members from GM plants—including busloads from Toronto, St. Catharines, London and Windsor in Ontario and Ste. Therese, Que.—were in the 3,479-seat civic auditorium here for the 1½-hour rally. Contracts with the Big Three—GM, Chrysler and Ford —expired Sept. 15.

Mr. McDermott said the 47,000 workers in Canada and more than 700,000 in the U.S. cannot get what they need alone "and collectively they cannot get it peacefully."

The UAW, he said, sets a pattern for the rest of labor.

"They know if they could put the UAW down, the rest would be a pushover."

At a news conference later, the union executives were asked if other unions would contribute strike benefits to UAW members striking GM plants.

"There is no question in my mind that the CLC will rally to this cause in a very real and significant way."

It has been estimated the union's strike fund will last six to seven weeks.

Mr. Woodcock told the meeting: "It's true we don't have enough money for a long strike."

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds the healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing ointment (Shark Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Wells Reverses Position, Publishes Index of Approved Drugs

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Allan Wells Monday reversed his position on publication of an index of prescription drugs available in Canada and released the index to the public.

The index lists 440 products under 139 groupings of drugs available on prescription by doctors.

But Mr. Wells said Monday copies of the index may be obtained from the Queen's Printer at $3 each. They also will be available in libraries.

The index lists drugs in groupings according to their nature, strength, dosage of active ingredients and price.

In making the index more freely available, Mr. Wells warned that it is not intended to be all-inclusive, and that it is based on the voluntary co-operation of manufacturers.

Products may not appear in the index for any of the following reasons, Mr. Wells said:

—The first edition covers only those groups of drugs that represent about one-half of the total amount spent on pharmaceuticals in the province.

—There are entire categories as well as smaller groups of drugs that have not yet been included.

—There are a variety of dosage forms and package types that a committee on drug quality believes products to be situated costs without offering additional therapeutic advantage.

and In these areas the index lists only those drugs which are most commonly used.

—The committee has excluded preparations of which the therapeutic value has not yet been proven to its satisfaction and which still are under investigation by food and drug authorities.

—Some manufacturers were unwilling or neglected to provide evidence to satisfy the requirements of the drug quality committee and the committee was unable to establish to its satisfaction sufficient confidence in some products to recommend them for listing.

"While certainly some have been scrutinized and did not meet the requirements of the programs, one cannot assume that all of those not included fall into this category or that failure to meet these requirements necessarily implies the product is substandard or hazardous," Mr. Wells said in a statement.

When the index was announced early this month, there was a public demand for publication of the names of 85 drugs which had been excluded from the groups listed. Grounds for the demand were that persons using those drugs should be aware the products had failed to meet committee standards.

Mr. Wells said some products excluded from the first list "for one reason or another" may be included when the index is revised at six-month intervals.

Judge Is Defence Witness in Murder Trial

OTTAWA (CP) — A few days before he was charged in the April 19, 1961 death of Seskars Pilat, first secretary to the Indian high commission, Shanti Feriat told Judge Livian Sherwood he was being persecuted and forced to commit criminal acts, the provincial court judge said Monday.

Judge Sherwood, the first defence witness in Feriat's non-capital murder trial, said he spoke to Feriat in the Ottawa police station days before Pilat's death.

The judge, then a city magistrate, said Feriat told him certain things he had invented had been taken from him and that he was being persecuted.

Mrs. Pilat was shot twice with a .303-calibre rifle while sitting at his office desk.

A psychiatrist, Dr. Harold Lowe, said Monday he examined Feriat in 1959 and found he had a schizoid personality, though he was not psychotic.

A second psychiatrist, Dr. W. A. Cardwell of Barrie, examined Feriat after Pilat's death.

Dr. Cardwell testified that the accused seemed upset by political conflicts in Albania, Feriat's birthplace, and that after emigrating to Canada in 1951 he constantly shifted from one city to another to escape what he thought was persecution because his Italian civil engineering degree was not recognized.

Dr. Cardwell said in a report that Feriat eventually started to think he was being doped by injection while he slept. He said the accused returned to Europe in 1958 and stayed with his wife Amy.

Amy Feriat wrote a letter to a Niagara Falls, Ont. hospital in 1959 when she learned her husband had been committed, Dr. Cardwell said.

In the letter, read Monday by defence counsel Leonard Max, Mrs. Feriat said her husband had had a mental crisis when he visited her in Switzerland. The trial continues.

Sudbury University Faculty on Strike

SUDBURY (CP) — The Laurentian University senate decided Monday to close down classes this week in a dispute over university government.

The formal motion, which amounts to a faculty strike against the board of governors, calls for a "recess" of classes, beginning Thursday.

The senate also called for a meeting Wednesday of the entire university community to explain the action.

"The whole structure of university government is in question," said Prof. Wesley Cragg, one of two non-voting senate representatives on the board of governors.

He said the senate wants assurance that "the views of faculty and students and administration will be reflected in university policy as determined by the board."

The feud between the board, made up of appointees from the community, and the senate has been simmering since spring.

Some 400,000 Children May Have Lead Poisoning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George S. McGovern, Dem. S.D. said Monday some 400,000 American children between the ages of one and six may have dangerously high levels of lead in their blood from lead paint.

"Thousands of these children suffer some form of permanent brain damage from this poisoning," McGovern said as his select committee on nutrition and human needs opened a week of hearings on the problem.

Dr. Laurence Finberg, head pediatrician at New York's Montefiori Hospital, said lead poisoning ranked third as a threat to infants behind auto accidents and "the trauma of birth itself."

He added, however, that a new instrument now under development may provide "partial solution to a problem confined almost exclusively to inner-city slums.

The instrument, said Finberg, enables a single technician to enter a building, focus a radiation beam on a surface and tell within seconds whether lead concentration is above acceptable levels.

Finberg and other witnesses said there are three main sources of lead ingested by children: flaking exterior paint, crumbling plaster of walls in houses built before the second World War and flaking paint and caulking compound from window sills and frames.

Band Scene Brought Back to Life

Maynard Ferguson, a 42-year-old Montreal-born jazz trumpeter, claims he has brought the British band scene back to life. He went to England in 1968 after a sojourn with the high priest of LSD', Timothy Leary, and a period of meditating with the Maharishi in India. (CP Photo)

Duke Used Tie Clip from Silk To Try to Avoid Car Charges

TORONTO (CP) — J. J. Robinette, counsel for a judicial inquiry, asked Commissioner Eric Silk of the provincial police Monday about an OPP tie clip that the commissioner gave George Clinton Duke at the Duke home in April, 1968.

The clip was given after the Oakville, Ont., businessman gave the commissioner and his deputy each a brass letter opener.

Mr. Robinette noted previous evidence at the inquiry which is looking into the disappearance of Mr. Duke with senior OPP officers and with persons alleged to have criminal connections.

These witnesses testified Mr. Duke had attempted to use the tie pin to discourage officers from charging him with traffic offences.

"The tie clip by itself is a minor matter," said Mr. Robinette. "But is there not a danger that in the hands of such a man it would feed him with ammunition and blackmail?

"The answer to that is pretty clear:" the commissioner replied.

Earlier, Mr. Robinette asked Mr. Silk for his opinion on the subject of a police officer accepting gifts, regardless of how small a gift or inexpensive they might be.

Mr. Silk said the OPP had no written order prohibiting the practice but it was something an officer should make every effort to avoid.

"Yet you accepted the letter opener?"

"Yes."

"Do you think there's anything inconsistent in what you said and did?"

The witness said he would leave that to Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court, who is conducting the inquiry, to decide.

Mr. Silk said he did not receive a letter from Chief Leonard and Secretary of the Hamilton police force two years ago which said that-actions by OPP officers had made normal law enforcement impossible in Burlington, where the Duke firm is.

The commissioner said he only learned of the letter's existence two or three weeks ago.

"A mort thorough search and inquiry was made and no such letter appears in our files," he said. "I am satisfied that no such letter could have arrived."

He said Chief Lawrence told him of it when they had lunch together. They agreed that the 1968 mail strike might have accounted for its non-delivery.

The chief told him the letter was written after a conversation the chief had with Mrs. Duke when she became alarmed because of her husband's association with John Papalia and Donald (Red) LeBarre.

Police have testified that Mr. LeBarre is involved in hockmaking and that Mr. Papalia was deported from the United States in 1968 after being convicted of a narcotics offence. But they also said there was no evidence of any improper association between the two men and Mr. Duke.

Mr. Silk said he learned in August, 1968 that Mr. Duke had a criminal record. He immediately ordered all OPP personnel to break off all social contact with him and sales personnel of his firm.

Two senior OPP officers, Staff Sgt. A. M. Rodger and Sgt. Albert Wilson, senior officers in the Burlington OPP district at the time, have been suspended and after the inquiry will face charges of disobeying the order.

Mr. Silk testified that Mr. Duke could not possibly have influenced the transfer of Supt. Wilson to Burlington from London, Ont., as Mr. Duke was reported to have boasted.

Mr. Silk also said Mr. Duke could have played no part in the transfer from Burlington to Northern Ontario of Sgt. Ken Roberts, who was responsible for laying a careless driving charge against him.

Mr. Silk was questioned about the fact that Mr. Duke's criminal record was known to the OPP's weapons registry in 1967 —possibly as early as 1965—yet it did not get into the OPP's central criminal records file until 1969.

"Certainly this is not desirable," the commissioner said. "I don't think we'll have that problem again."

The hearing will resume at 10 a.m. EDT Wednesday.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Doctors Sometimes Produce Ailments

In a book published 20 years ago (now out of print), I wrote about iatrogenic disease. disease produced by doctors. I began one chapter as follows:

"Doctors sometimes produce imaginary ills and troubles in their patients. To quote Dr. R. D. Gillespie in the British Medical Journal: 'There is a chapter omitted from medical textbooks which might be headed 'Iatrogenic Disease,' that is to say, disease produced by doctors.'

"This condition," I continued, "may be found wherever there are doctors and patients — anywhere from Arabia to Zanzibar. It re-pects no national boundaries. The physician needs to keep reminding himself that what faces him across the desk is not an emotionless, unthinking machine in the form of — but another human being. He needs to remind himself that he himself on some occasions knew fear and "hopelessness when he or a member of his family was ill.

"Remembering, he will tread lightly and watch his step. He will guard against putting even a drop of gasoline on the patient's smoldering fire of anxiety. Unguarded words, long silences, quizzical facial expressions — these are the measure of the gasoline."

* * *

Why do I reminisce? Because I have been happy to read much lately in the press about iatrogenic disease. It is being human to find some small satisfaction in having written about it as long as 20 years ago when the term "iatrongenic" was practically unknown.

For those of you interested in learning more about it, I recommend an excellent article, "Can Doctors Cause Disease?" in the Aug. 22, 1970 issue of Saturday Review, written by Norman Cousins, editor. It will benefit doctors as well as patients.

Here are some pertinent quotes:

"The late Dr. Emanuel Libman said: 'I am always dumbed sure that if what I prescribe doesn't help, at least it isn't going to hurt.'

"A cardinal rule for physicians, ancient even in the time of Hippocrates is primum non nocere (first: do not harm)"

"It is the doctor's philosophy of medicine that has to serve as the solid basis of his practice. The doctor's respect for life, his special qualities of compassion and tenderness — even under the most devilish of circumstances — these are the vital ingredients of his art."

Doctors reading this article by a layman in the Saturday Review will cone away better doctors, and patients readers. It will be better patients.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have coarse skin, enlarged pores, and pitting left by acne. I had as a youngster. I've been told there is an operation for it that can be done in Mexico called "dermabrasion." It consists of scraping and planing the outer skin, removing blemishes — and new skin grows. Do you advise it? — Edgar.

Comment:- I recommend a visit to Mexico as a potentially delightful vacation, but there is no need to go there specifically for dermabrasion. It is performed in Canada.

Why not ask a dermatologist (skin specialist) about your problem? If you need to have it done, he will set you straight about procedure, cost and other facts.

I often wonder why people believe that medical treatment received thousands of miles distant is somehow better.

Arabs Monitor Jordan Truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — An Arab truce team today monitored the cease-fire in Jordan between government troops and Palestinian guerrillas that was worked out by Egyptian President Nasser.

The peace force of 10 officers from Egypt, Sudan, Saudi Arabia, Tunisia and Kuwait arrived in Amman, Jordan's capital, and immediately set up truce observation posts.

Shooting stopped there at dawn and inhabitants poured into the streets in desperate searches for food and water.

Israeli Troops Fire on Rioters

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Israeli troops opened fire in the Gaza Strip today while police supported by water cannon made repeated billy club charges in Jerusalem to disperse stone-throwing demonstrators during mass mourning processions for President Nasser.

One 57-year-old Arab woman was shot and wounded in the A-Shati refugee camp in the Gaza Strip when troops opened fire after demonstrators built barricades, hurled stones and refused to disperse.

New Egyptian Leader Helped Overthrow King

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — One of Gamal Abdel Nasser's most loyal followers will be Egypt's leader for the next 60 days.

Vice-President Anwar Sadat, one of the "free officers" who joined Nasser in 1952 to overthrow King Farouk, took over Monday as interim head of state under the provisions of Egypt's 1964 constitution.

No one knows who will eventually emerge as Nasser's successor.

Within 60 days, the 360-member National Assembly is required to nominate a new president by a two-thirds majority. According to the constitution, the new president's term would be five years. Nasser was elected president for life following his brief resignation after Egypt's defeat by Israel in the 1967 war.

Diplomats in Paris said today that Sadat is most likely to emerge as Nasser's final successor. One Egyptian official mentioned the possibility of a bid for power by Ali Sabry, the pro-Moscow head of the Arab Socialist Union. But a Western official commented: "Nobody is going to know what's happening until somebody reads the will."

Of all the officers who helped Nasser launch his revolution, only two survive in power — Sadat, 52, and Hussein Shafei, 51, who has little popular support. Both are members of the Supreme Executive Committee of the Arab Socialist Union, the only authorized political organization in Egypt.

Sadat was one of four vice-presidents named by Nasser in 1964. They were ousted following the 1967 war, but Sadat remained as president of the National Assembly. The next year he was named to the Socialist Union executive committee, and last December he advanced to become Nasser's only vice-president.

Sadat, brought up in a devout Moslem family and known as an Arabic scholar, was graduated from Egypt's military academy in 1938.

British authorities arrested him in 1941 on charges of helping an Egyptian general escape to Nazi Germany. He was imprisoned for two years before escaping, but was arrested again in 1946 and accused of attempting to assassinate Amin Othman, then finance minister. He was acquitted, became a reporter for a Cairo newspaper, and left that job in 1949 to rejoin the army.

After the coup against Farouk, Nasser appointed Sadat in a succession of key posts. In 1953, he was a member of a tribunal created to try politicians of the old regime. A year later, he was on the people's tribunal hearing the case of Muslim Brotherhood members accused of trying to assassinate Nasser in Alexandria.

P.E. BOARD OF EDUCATION STATEMENT ON COUNTY EDUCATION PLAN

While the public has been aware that the Prince Edward County Board of Education has been considering the Hastings Report to Grade 13 school complex in Ameliasburg township, few details of the proposal have been released. The Board has purposely refrained from other than general statements to the public because the proposal has not been finalized, approved, and detailed information to be released was both factual and complete. The Board is now in a position to release the following:

The Ontario Government and Department of Education in implementing the Hastings Report, which was released in early 1968, stated the entire plan was an effort to provide equal educational opportunity for all children in the County, according to capacity with this policy, immediately following its implementation, the Department of Education has been actively assisting all boards whose schools were affected by the plan within Prince Edward County. The following inequalities were revealed:

Some students were receiving French and Music Instruction while others were not. Some students had the benefits of Principals free to supervise while others did not. Kindergarten was not available in all schools.

This type of inequality the Board was able to rectify with adjustments in staff and programs.

There were however, some major inequalities which could not be adjusted without provision of additional school accommodation:

1. The students attending Queen Elizabeth, Pinecrest, and Wellington Schools had the benefits of library-resource centres, gymnasiums, and Industrial Arts facilities.

The children attending Massassaga, Redeerville, Mildred Corbe, and Marysburgh Schools did not have these. These schools did not have library-resource centres nor Home Economics and Industrial Arts facilities.

The children attending Massassaga, Redeerville, Mildred Corbe, and Marysburgh Schools did not have gymnasiums.

The children attending Keeta and Sophiasburg schools did not have Home Economics or Industrial Arts accommodation.

2. As opposed to permanent accommodation, portable classrooms had been used at Picton Rural Collegiate Institute and Mildred Corbe School, and an increasing school population would present more difficulties immediately.

To follow the concept of equal educational opportunity for County students, the Prince Edward County Board of Inquiry reserved full value for his share of County education costs, and the Department of Education also matched their portion, providing the required accommodation.

Analyzing the educational needs to provide the necessary new accommodation would require nine separate building additions to existing schools, and the cost would be prohibitive. This possibility was studied in detail but proved to be a makeshift and costly solution and one that was not in every respect suitable for the County's needs.

Alternative plans were sought, and after considerations the most practical one seemed to be a central school to build a kindergarten to grade 12 school complex in Ameliasburg township.

Combining the present Keeta elementary school with a new additional building to provide the classroom space would allow the transfer of Mildred Corbe, Redeerville and Massassaga schools to the new school. Picton Rural Collegiate Institute would then be relieved of its overcrowding problem, and Sophiasburg, who would then reside closer to the new school complex than Picton, would have their students from there transferred to that complex.

This transfer of secondary students from Prince Edward County to a point where they could receive the education they needed should be relieved.

There would also be room to accommodate all the grade 7 and 8 students presently attending Queen Elizabeth, Marysburg and Athol Schools. By transferring these grade 7 and 8 students, they would be provided with a library-resource centre, gymnasium and Home Economics and Industrial Arts accommodation. Queen Elizabeth, Athol and Pinecrest Schools would reduce the student population at those schools to a point where present accommodation would be adequate to provide library-resource centres and gymnasium space for the kindergarten to grade 6 students remaining in the schools.

A further benefit of the proposed complex would be to provide accommodation for the Adult Education and Community activity programs, which are presently overcrowded. This would stimulate their use and could be the start of a Community Recreation Centre where students could go to take part in extra-curricular school activities. The new accommodation would be available to the public for use of the school facilities after school hours.

The Board decided this plan was worth detailed examination, and in this connection took the following action:—

(1) Checked several of the new schools of the Kente site and confirmed these met the required standards and regulations.

(2) Obtained an option to purchase the necessary additional land for the proposed expansion of the Keeta elementary school and the new secondary school. This step was taken because the land was for sale, and the Board could buy it at later date and at the same price. The land would not either be used as intended or could be resold at least at the purchase price.

(3) Discussed the proposal with Department of Municipal officials both in Prince Edward County, Toronto, and at the Main Office in Toronto, to ensure the proposed plan would receive approval. This was done before the Board proceeded with secondary school preliminary plans and otherwise, could be avoided.

The Department of Education gave tentative approval to the educational aspect of the plan and suggested that the Board proceed with preliminary plans, and if possible get the Minister's approval in principle on the size of the proposed building, local support for the project, and the financing of the Province County Board of Education concerning the final disposition of the Ameliasburg secondary school.

(4) The Board attempted in conjunction with the Department of Education, the Assessment Commissioner, the Minister of Municipal Affairs, a representative of Ameliasburg township, and a representative of Picton to forecast future student population sufficient to justify a need for the proposed new school complex. This was done by a survey, using the services of the Ontario Department of Education as to the effect of the declining birth rate on County student population over the next five years.

No allowance was made for any possible increase in County population.

(5) Definite costs of the proposed building could not be obtained without hiring architects, developing final building plans and letting tenders, however, the Board had all of these steps (which involves committing the Board to the expenditure of funds) carried out on behalf the Board. The cost of the proposed complex after obtaining current square foot costs from the Department of Education, and consulting with architects and contractors, the Board arrived at a figure of $2,000,000 for the complex, including the cost of the land involved. A year ago the cost was $1,500,000. Since then building costs the Board increased the estimated figure to $2,000,000. This included the cost of the proposed new school buildings, land, and establishment and somewhat over $2,500,000.00.

(6) Th Board also examined the capabilities of the proposed complex to provide for the Adult Education program to be offered. This was confirmed.

(7) The Hastings and County Board of Education, was quested concerning Ameliasburg secondary students. That Hastings County Board would be willing to pay County fees when suitable accommodation was available in Prince Edward County schools for Hastings County students.

(8) The Board attempted to establish public feeling concerning the proposed complex (Ameliasburg township and municipal) Councils, discussions with interested groups and public meetings were held in the various townships. Public opinion appeared to be divided with a scattering of some opposition and some support.

(9) The Board tried to assess the financial effect of the plan on the local ratepayers. Estimates indicated the real estate future including debentures costs with interest, of the proposed complex would be approximately 4 mills. Provincial grant, administration and transportation costs the County would be required to pay $1.50 per equalized assessment dollar for the total cost of the project. This assessment would be in the taxpayer would, of course, be reduced by the amount of the present debt and the reduction in school accommodation and transportation requirement consequent upon the sale of the three small schools involved.

(10) The Board then initiated the first formal request to the Department of Education for assistance and made an attempt to obtain in writing the Department's support for the proposal. This was not obtained because the Department of Education felt the time was not yet expected. The Department replied with the following letter:—

"This is to advise you that our study of the proposal for the KENTE SECONDARY SCHOOL PRINCE EDWARD has now complete. We are impressed with many of the proposals contained in the study. We feel that this will be a most desirable development and the Board's wish to provide equal program opportunities for students in County.

We are greatly concerned, however, with the definite trend developing in the enrolment in secondary schools. Alliesecondary schools show decreasing enrolments in grades 9 and 10 from 1970 to 1971 and increases from 1971 to 1975. The Picton Collegiate Institute, a considerable trend increasing amount of available classroom space will soon develop requiring the feasibility of the use of this space.

It is our suggestion that the Board consider postponing construction of Ameliasburg Secondary School until the population trend in Prince Edward appears more positive. This will result in more economical and efficient utilization of unique secondary pupils in Hastings, at least for the meantime.

However all other program goals of the Board could still be implemented:

(1) Move the 7s and 8's from Athol, N. Marysburg and S. Marysburg into Queen Elizabeth, Pinecrest and Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, (15) pupils in 7S, 15s to 7S, 14s to 7S, 7s to 8s.

(2) As proposed by the Board, convert the classrooms gained by the above moves into special facilities as described for these schools.

(3) As proposed by the Board, close Redeerville, Mildred Corbe, Massassaga, moving the pupils into Keeta Elementary.

(4) As proposed by the Board build the classrooms on Keeta elementary site to accommodate the three closed schools.

(5) As proposed by the Board, convert Mildred Corbe for use as a school for the retarded.

(6) It is recommended that the Board further investigate all the educational aspects of the alternatives suggested above, before proceeding with a new proposal to serve all secondary pupils.

Note: The Department of Education letter refers to, "the Board's wish to provide equal program opportunity across the County." This is certainly the aim of the Board and it is hoped that the statement by the Department of Education indicates that the Board is trying to comply.

The Board considered the Department of Education proposal and found it unrealistic. Rooms does not exist in Queen Elizabeth, Pinecrest High School, Picton Collegiate, and South Marysburg students; and building classrooms for these students would not provide equal educational opportunities for students in Ameliasburg.

(11) In the meantime school population and class requirements would dictate the need for Keeta elementary and Prince Edward County. The Board was forced to purchase relocatable classrooms for Keeta and Picton Collegiate at P.E.C.I. with student and local contracted help.

(12) A this point, while the Board was considering the next step, the Board of Education received a request from the County school area to have the property at the old Quinte Milk Products and Edgewater Canners, and the failure of previous attempts to purchase the property, the Board off the facts outlined above the Board is forced to build a new school.

To provide equal educational opportunity for all students in Prince Edward County, the Board of Education considered the alternatives. The most satisfactory solution was the building of a kindergarten to grade 12 school complex on the property at the site of the Keeta Schools. This proposal although deemed educationally sound is not completely supported by the Department of Education.

In view of the present economic situation in the County the Board of Education considered the feasibility of postponing the construction of the proposed complex, but did either the Department of Education provides the financial support for the proposal as outlined above, or the Board of Education improves to the point where the ratepayers can consider such a project, the Board of Education will be forced to build a new County High School to accommodate the Secondary students. A new school accommodation to allow each County student to have the benefit of equal educational opportunity.

Weekly French Language Camp Is Not Altogether Bilingual

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Centre Hastings' experiment in bilingualism last week turned out to be a typical Canadian compromise.

The French camp at Quin-Mo-Lac on Moira Lake featured both languages, but English predominated.

The reason, suggested camp director David Weir, elementary school French consultant for the Hastings county board of education, lay in the absence of one bi in the bi and bi experience. Bilingualism was there, but biculturalism was missing — a factor Mr. Weir hopes to correct next year by importing 50 French - speaking pupils to mingle for a week with 50 local pupils.

The last camp of the season conducted at the premises rented from the United Church of Canada was designed to give grade 6, 7 and 8 pupils from centre Hastings a "living experience" in Canada's second language. Most campers had had a year or two of oral French in school, but the artificial environment of school had given them little feeling for French as a working language.

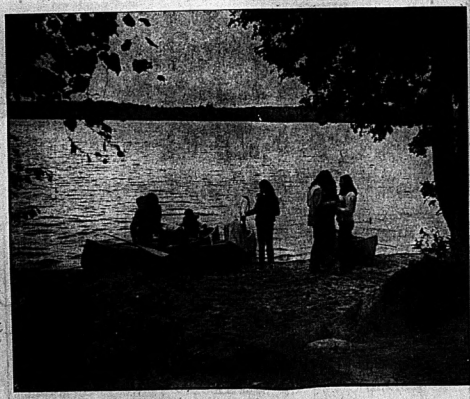
Chief drawback in conducting a week - long residential camp in French, organizers found, was lack of sufficient numbers of bilingual teachers and the differing levels of French competence achieved by pupils from several different schools.

Keeping the pupils from reverting to English when out of earshot of their instructors can only be accomplished, organizers believe, by mingling them with an equal number of residential pupils who speak no English.

The French camp was organized into groups of campers assigned to cabins — each group named after an early explorer. Each group was given 100 "furs" at the beginning of camp, and each day a number were taken away for good behavior — clean cabins and the like. The best traders, those who disposed of the most furs during the day, were temporarily awarded Mr. Weir's antique ceinture flechee, a courieur de bois sash, for good behavior.

Camp activities included all the sports and classes that have become standard in centre Hastings' outdoor education program — canoeing, swimming, water skiing, ecology, woodcraft, archery, overnight hiking.

Something new was added at the camp when two pupils brought their horses with them. A volunteer from the community taught riding to campers who had never had an opportunity to try the sport before.



The camps are financed by the $15 fee charged each camper. Although regular teachers staff the week-long camps, their success depends on the volunteer services of interested people in the community who come in to give extra instruction and supervision.

Rail Inquiry Continues Here

A Canadian Transport Commission inquiry into the causes and circumstances of three summer railway accidents moved into its second day this morning, beginning testimony on a CNR freight derailment at Port Hope Aug. 6.

The inquiry, now moving into its fourth day and second day in Belleville, yesterday completed questioning concerning a collision between a track motor car and a CNR passenger train five miles east of Brockville Aug. 7.

Panel commissioner R. March and panel chairman D. H. Jones yesterday spent the entire day listening to evidence by the train crew in the Brockville incident as well as expert evidence from CNR officials.

Witnesses were asked what their jobs were in situations similar to the Brockville mishap and what they did on the day in question.

The inquiry is designed to search out and assess maintenance and operating procedures to ascertain better methods of preventing railway accidents. The panel is expected to report its assessment of present procedures and recommend improvements two or three months after the inquiry's close.

The inquiry will also hear details concerning a CPR freight train derailment which occurred at Cobourg July 20.

Belleville is headquarters for the CNR Rideau Area in which all three accidents occurred.

Met Comeback No Good Now

Wayne Garrett's dramatic home run came too late to help New York Mets after their lost weekend in Pittsburgh but it did get the defending world champs one even with Chicago Cubs.

The Mets, who dropped three straight to the Pirates, including Sunday's 2-1 loss which unsaddled the Pirates to clinch the National League East Division title, were on their way to dropping another Monday night when first Don Clendenon and then Garrett exploded.

The Mets pulled it out in the 18th inning, winning 4-3 on Garrett's 12th homer of the season, sticking the Mets and Cubs in a flat-footed tie for second place with three games remaining against each other.

In the only other National League game, Houston Astros blanked San Francisco Giants 3-0.

In the American League, Minnesota Twins edged Kansas City Royals 1-0 and California Angels nipped Chicago White Sox 4-3.

Clendenon gave the Mets a life Monday night when he slammed his 22nd homer—a two-run shot-in the ninth inning off Ken Holtzman, giving New York a 3-3 tie. The pair of runs batted in gave Clendenon 85 for the season, a club record.

Holtzman had been breezing on a four-hitter until Cleon Jones slammed a two-out single before Clendenon's shot. The left-hander was given a 3-1 edge in the sixth when Tommy Davis connected for a three-run blast.

Then in the 10th, Jerry Grote doubled off Hoyt Wilhelm and after two outs, Dave Marshall walked. Garrett then followed with his game-winner.

Starter Gary Gentry issued only three hits in six innings and Met relievers Tug McGraw and Danny Frisella stopped the Cubs the rest of the way without a hit.

Jack Billingham tossed a six-hitter for his 12th victory and struck out 13 Giants. San Francisco holds a slim one-half game margin over Los Angeles for second place in the National League West behind runaway winner Cincinnati.

Intrepid Keeps Cup in Breeze

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It was another breeze for the United States in the America's Cup yachting classic — and the question is: Who'll be making waves as challengers in the future?

After Intrepid beat back Australia's Gretel II by one minute and 44 seconds, or roughly 19 boat lengths, Monday to take the best-of-seven series four races to one, speculation turned to the probable 1973 challenger for the Cup which has never left America.

A spokesman for the Gretel II assured the New York Yacht Club, the Cup's governing body, that Australia would come back for another crack at the treasured 118-year-old trophy.

The French, who challenged for the first time this year and lost in the preliminaries to Gretel, were expected to be back under pen magnate Baron Marcel Bich.

British yachtsman Eric Maxwell also is interested and a West German group has been reported watching the race with interest. The yacht club has 90 days to announce participants for 1973.

Monday's final race was nose-to-nose two thirds around the 24.3-mile course here. The wind and the steady hand of helmsman Bill Picker took charge as the Californian bested Australia's Jim Hardy at his own game on wild 4.5-mile home-stretch.

Pirate Pitchers in Full Bloom

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates are both known for their offensive weapons. But when the National League played open this weekend at-Three Rivers Stadium, pitching should be the key.

Pittsburgh's pitching has suddenly blossomed after mid-season injuries hit the staff.

During the last 17 games, Pirate pitchers have allowed only 40 runs—35 earned—for an earned-run average of 2.30. The opposition has been held to one or fewer runs in six games and has scored more than three runs in just three of them. The Reds, on the other hand, have won eight of their last 10 games, but have not had one complete game.

Gary Nolan, 18-7, recently the steadiest pitcher for the Reds, will start against the Pirates' Dock Ellis, 13-10, who won Sunday's game against New York Mets that clinched the title for Pittsburgh.

Jim Merritt of the Reds, who was hit on the elbow three weeks ago and had been sidelined, pitched three innings last week. If he is healthy he is expected to start the second game against Luke Walker.

Merritt, with a 20-12 record, is the first 20-game winner Cincinnati has had since 1925.

Flyers Could Be Dark Horses

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers, though they've only five games under their belt, could be a surprise package in the 1970-71 National Hockey League season.

The Flyers rolled to a 3-1 victory Monday night in their rubber match with Montreal Canadiens. It was Philadelphia's fourth straight exhibition victory after losing 3-2 to the Montrealers.

Since then, they reversed the setback to the Canadiens, 4-2, blanked their Quebec Aces' farmhands 4-0 and nipped Boston Bruins 2-1.

The eight points they've amassed in exhibition play equals that of Montreal and New York Rangers, 4-0 victors over the Bruins Monday, but the Philadelphians have played fewer games. Montreal has played six games, the Rangers seven.

At Winnipeg Monday, -third period goals by Jean-Guy Gendron and Garry Peters locked the game up for Philadelphia as the Flyers victimized Montreal goalie Ken Dryden who played the entire game.

Lew Morrison gave Philadelphia a 1-0 first-period lead before Montreal's Jim Ferguson got the equalizer on a second-period power play. Ferguson was sitting out a penalty when Gendron notched the winner.

The third period developed into a donnybrook as Montreal defenceman Terry Harper and rookie Pierre Bouchard traded punches with Flyers' Ed Van Impe and Serge Bernier.

At New York, Ted Irvine, Dave Balon, Bob Nevin and Don Luce share the Ranger scoring as the defending Stanley Cup champion Bruins suffered their third exhibition loss.

In the only other game, Pittsburgh Penguins rode Bryan Hextall's two-goal effort to a 5-1 win over Oakland Seals at Binghamton, Ont. Duane Rupp, Val Fonteyne and Lowell MacDonald also scored for the Penguins before Harry Howell snapped the shutout with Oakland's lone goal late in the game.

Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere returned home from Winnipeg Monday to have his ailing right knee treated. He injured it Sunday night and is not expected to play against the Maple Leafs in Toronto Wednesday.

Veteran goaltender Roger Crozier came to terms with Buffalo Sabres, signing a two-year contract for an undisclosed salary. Crozier, 28, played six seasons with Detroit Red Wings and was rookie of the year in 1964-65.

The exhibition schedule resumes tonight with Vancouver Canucks at home against Chicago Black Hawks, Detroit going against the Rangers at Kitchener, Ont., and Philadelphia playing Oakland at Oshawa, Ont.

Minor Trials Set

Minor hockey takes to the ice this Saturday when practices for three of Belleville's all-star teams will be held.

The novices, coached again by Dave Coates, with Bob Cook's assistance, lead off the minor hockey parade with a 1 p.m. practice.

Em Brooks will handle the peewees this year, with help from manager Glenn Hamilton. The first practice session for the peewees will be Saturday at 2:45 p.m.

Frank Hanlon's bantams will be practising at 4.30 p.m. Saturday.

Sunday, coach Bob Burrowes and manager Jerry Murphy will be putting the midget all-stars through their paces at 9 a.m., followed by Lou Smirke's juveniles at 10.45 a.m.. If there are enough juvenile registrations to warrant a team.

Each practice session will last one-and-a-half hours and will cost the players 50 cents each. Candidates for the teams are instructed to bring their own equipment.

LOOK "DOWN" IN PUTTING

Putting is a precise part of the game. And it pays to be precise in your setup for any putt.

Because I want a square hit . . . the putterface absolutely perpendicular to the intended initial line of the putt . . . I always take a stance in which my eyes are directly over the ball. I concentrate on the back of the ball, but my eyes are nevertheless directly over it.

Any other eye angle is apt to cause a miss-hit, and as you know anything less than "perfect" in putting is a complete loss. Look down and try to see the pattern of the ball on that square angle. You'll sink a lot of putts this way.

Golden Hawks in Full Flight Already

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

TRENTON — The Golden Hawks were just dead ducks at the end of last winter's Eastern Ontario Junior B schedule, but if the team's new management has anything to say about it, the Hawks will be nobody's pigeons this year.

The club has added a new coach, Norm Calkns, and a new manager John Yott. Both men have extensive experience in minor hockey and are taking a business - like approach to the upcoming season.

"It's going to be a fun year. Hockey has to be fun if you're going to play it, but at the same time we're going all out to win," says the new coach.

With 26 years of hockey experience under his suspenders Calkns appears to be well qualified to undertake the rebuilding job required in Trenton.

A retired air force major, he played up to Junior B level hockey, before his flying commitments forced him to give up active participation in the game.

After learning his hockey in Ottawa, Calkns competed with teams in Quebec, Orillia and western Canada as his military career kept him constantly on the move.

He has established some definite ideas on the type of hockey required to bring the Golden Hawks back into contention after a season where they won only seven of 30 games and finished in the basement of the six - team eastern Ontario group.

"For one thing you have to have discipline. One or two players don't make a hockey team and everyone is going to play by the rules," says Calkns. Among his rules are no swearing or smoking in the dressing room and notifying the management beforehand when a player must miss a game or practice.

CHRIS LONG

The new coach also leans towards a hitting style of hockey. "If you're going to play on this team you're going to hit," he adds. "Hockey is a relatively simple game; if your control the puck 60 per cent of the time you're going to win."

Coupled with the hitting style of play that he plans to encourage, Calkns also emphasizes the importance of defence. "I don't go along with the theory that the best defence is a good offence," he explains, "if your defence can't get you the puck, then you have no offence."

The Hawks began workouts Saturday with a total of 35 players on hand, with the number hopping to 50 for Sunday's full - equipment practice.

Much of the credit for the large turnout must go to Yott, who has managed to bring in prospects from Brighton, Stirling, Frankford and other surrounding areas, as well as the Trenton boys.

"I spent close to four hours on the phone one night," says Yott, "but if we can get even a few players as a result of those calls, then it was worth it."

JEFF HOWARD

Included among the 50 players awaiting through Calkns' early drills on fundamental hockey, such as skating and passing were a number of standout performers from last year.

Top goal scorer from last year, Jeff Howard, will again be wearing Trenton's black and gold colors. Howard counted 15 goals and added 30 assists to pace Golden Hawk's point production.

Other first-line forwards on hand for the workouts were Chris Long (15 goals; eight assists), Ben McFall (seven goals, nine assists), Mike Hall (nine goals, three assists) and Peter Uhman (six goals, three assists).

Only one defenceman, Carey Webb, is returning from last year's team and Calkns will be faced with finding another four rearguards from the midget, juvenile and cut-down candidates.

Goaltending, which was a Trenton problem for most of last season could very well be a team strong point, with five contenders vying for the starting position.

Included in the competition are Jerry Jowett, who turned in a number of strong performances at the end of last season, and Bill Innes, back-up goalie for the Ottawa 67's Junior A team in 1969-70.

With the abundance of big, apparently talented hockey players on hand, the Golden Hawks could very well get airborne this year.

Fairways Start Camp Friday

The Belleville Fairways are hoping to make up for lost ice time when they begin their practice sessions Friday.

Coach Floyd Crawford will be faced with picking the the cream of the 60-applicant crop to the Junior B team.

Practice time Friday will be from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. Other practices will be 9 a.m. Saturday, Sunday at 3:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday at 8:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. Friday.

The Fairways open their exhibition schedule on Sunday Oct. 11 when they take on the Trenton Golden Hawks in Belleville.

All candidates for the team must be under 20 as of Dec. 31, and all are instructed to bring their own equipment.

Mo-Hawks Sign Marchen, Eye Forward Prospects

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Senior hockey just wouldn't be the same in Belleville without Greg Marchen.

The long lean Peterborough hockey product has been a defensive mainstay for Belleville's Mo-Hawks since they were formed, and last night signed for his fifth season.

Marchen, 28, was the third player to officially join the 1970-71 Mo-Hawks as they continued their training camp in Trenton's Community Gardens.

Defenceman Bob Wilson and coach Dave Jones have also signed, although Jones stressed he will be doing more coaching than playing.

Marchen has always enjoyed healthy opposition respect around the OHA Senior "A" league for his policeman's approach to hockey, but last winter he blossomed as a puck - handler.

In addition to coming up with three goals and 17 assists, Marchen was also a durable performer. He and Trenton's Al Ferguson were the only Mo-Hawks to play all 40 regular - schedule games last season. Despite suffering a painful shoulder injury, Marchen also played jst all 11 Mo-Hawk playoff games.

GREG MARCHEN

Meanwhile, a couple of new Mo-Hawk prospects loomed large at last night's two-hour Trenton workout. Doug Senior a 19-goal, 17 - assist contributor to Kingston Aces last season scored two goals in scrimmage. The 23-year-old centre is now living and working in Trenton.

And Mickey Donaldson, fifth - round amateur draft choice of the Minnesota North Stars, skated without equipment and negotiated with Mo-Hawk general manager Robert Temple. Donaldson was a winger with the OHA Junior A Peterborough Petes last winter.

On the minus side of the scale, the club may miss out on the services of winger Meehan Bonnar, who five years ago was Boston Bruins' first amateur draft choice.

Bonnar looked impressive in a weekend skate with the Mo-Hawks, but the Belleville OPP Constable is still awaiting clearance from his superiors to participate in senior hockey.

The Mo-Hawk training camp continues tonight in Trenton with a 7:15-9:15 session.

Duck Hunters Enjoying Better Luck

Quints area sportsmen were kept busy mastering mallard, tripping teal and walloping woodcocks as the duck hunting season opened this weekend.

According to the Department of Lands and Forests in Tweed between eight and nine hundred hunters participated in the opening shoot collecting a total of 1,369 birds. The average of 1.7 birds per hunter was slightly up over last year's statistics.

Mallards proved to be the most plentiful species with 329 shot, followed by blue - winged teal, 264 and woodcock (261). Other species taken were black (155), green - winged teal (95), widgeon (13), pintail (10) and two geese.

Santo Lifted After Threat

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Sun-Times said today Chicago Cubs third baseman Ron Santo was removed from the lineup in New York Monday night, apparently because of an anonymous threat against his life.

Santo did not take the field for batting practice before the Cubs game against New York Mets. Instead, the Sun-Times said in a story by sports Writer Jerome Holtzman, Santo changed into street clothes and said he was returning to Chicago because he was not feeling well, and on orders of Dr. Jake Suker, the Cubs' team physician.

The star third baseman is expected to miss the remaining games of the season, the newspaper added.

Cub officials in New York refused to confirm or deny that a threat had been made on Santo's life.

Holtzman gave this account of events preceding the game, which the Mets won 6-3:

At least six detectives were in the Cub clubhouse prior to the game, obviously there to guard Santo.

The detectives rode out to Shea Stadium on the Cub team bus, but were not officially identified by Cub officials.

Holtzman said a fan, apparently angered because the Cubs didn't win the National League pennant, is reported to have written an anonymous letter advising Santo he would be shot when he took the field for Monday night's game.

Colts Sent Reeling By Explosive Chiefs

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Colts had entered worse defeats, but none seemed quite so humiliating.

Even the rabid Baltimore fans were streaming out of Memorial Stadium long before the world champion Kansas City Chiefs administered a 44-34 pasting Monday night.

The first half of the National Football League game ended with the Chiefs on top 31-7 and they increased the bulge to 41-10 before Baltimore added two meaningless fourth-quarter touchdowns.

The Colts were stomped 70-27 back in 1950, but that was their inaugural season in the National Football League. Since 1954 they lost to Chicago Bears in 1963 didn't seem to carry the same sting as the walloping by the Chiefs.

The time was ripe for a good showing by Baltimore. After posting the best record in the NFL during the last 11 years, 112-63-4, the Colts were one of three old-guard teams shifted to the American Conference under the realignment.

In their first home game against a team from the old American Football League, the Colts were taking on the Super Bowl champs. The Chiefs had lost their 1970 opener to Minnesota and Vikings the week before and Baltimore had beaten them in an exhibition 17-3.

The Chiefs exploded. They were tricky, elusive and explosive on offense, ferocious on the attack tacks. They were devastating on defence.

"We're champions and we're acted to last week's loss," said Kansas City Coach Hank Stram, trying to take everything in stride.

Quarterback Lenny Dawson of the Chiefs picked apart the Colts' defence for nine pass completions in 12 attempts for 153 yards and four touchdowns. Frank Pitts caught three passes for 63 yards and two TDs.

Place kicker Jan Stenerud booted three field goals and scored 14 points.

Safety Johnny Robinson grabbed three of Kansas City's five interceptions, setting up 10 points with his runbacks of 14 and 27 yards. He also scored a touchdown after running 46 yards with a Colt fumble.

The massive Chiefs also crashed through to toss John Unitas and Earl Morrall a total of seven times for 73 yards in losses.

Unitas, who didn't play the last 35 minutes, undoubtedly had the worst day of his 15-year career. He had five completions in 15 attempts for a net of just 28 yards after his three losses behind the line were subtracted.

McKinnis Does Footwork

Calgary Stampeders, a club which has worked for years to develop a running attack to complement a devastating aerial game, has finally done it.

Hugh McKinnis, a six-foot, 210-pound halfback out of Arizona State, is—by the margin of one yard—the leading rusher not only in the Western Football Conference, but for the entire league.

Not since Lovell Coleman was ripping apart Canadian Football League lines from 1954 to 1958 spot five years ago has Calgary come up with a leading rusher.

CFL statistics released Monday show McKinnis, a rookie, with 731 yards on 137 carries, one more than Coleman. Gene Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders and 27 more than Jim Evenson of British Columbia Lions.

Top runner in the Eastern Conference is Dave Rimmey of Toronto Argonauts with 607 yards. Reed carried 169 times and Evenson 134. Rimmey has been called upon 92 times.

In scoring, the lead still is held by Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats with 81 points on four touchdowns, 20 converts, 11 field goals and four singles in nine games.

Ted Gerela of the Lions also has 81 points on 22 converts, 16 field goals and 11 singles kicked in 10 games.

Herm Harrison of Calgary has the lead in pass receiving with 709 yards on 48 catches; Jim Thorpe of Toronto is second in the CFL with 652 yards on 46 receptions.

Calgary's Jerry Keeling leads the passers with 2,119 yards on 153 completions in 305 attempts; Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan has passed 2,003 yards on 118 completions for 226 tried.

In third spot is Gary Wood of Winnipeg Blue Bombers; tops in the East with 1,946 yards on 111 successful tosses on 218 attempts.

John Wydarony of Edmonton Eskimos is one away from tying the record for pass interceptions: He shares the season mark—at 11—with Don Sutherin of Toronto.

Off-track Operator Charging Jockey Club

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — William James Nunnally, owner of four off-track betting shops, Monday night charged the Jockey Club Ltd. with discrimination after he was escorted from Garden City raceway.

The 36-year-old Toronto man said he will also consult his lawyer regarding punitive damages. Nunnally operates two Metropolitan Toronto shops and one each at Coborg and Peterborough.

Nunnally, standing at the Canadian $7 daily-double wicket 10 minutes before first-race post time, said he was approached by a track security man.

"He showed me a badge and asked me to come with him now. I followed him into an office where I was asked questions then met by a Mr. Bill Taylor who identified himself as chief of the track security police.

"Taylor asked me if either I or any of my employees had any criminal record. I told him we didn't. He then handed me a notice which said I could be charged with petty trespassing."

The notice advised Nunnally that he not enter or remain "on any land of the Jockey Club Ltd. or the Fort Erie Jockey Club Ltd . . ." The lands in question include Woodbine and Greenwood racetracks in Toronto, Mohawk Raceway at Campbellville, Garden City and the Fort Erie racetrack.

The notice was signed by G. H. Emery, listed as a director of operations for the Jockey Club Ltd. and Fort Erie Jockey Club Ltd.

Nunnally, who said he was treated courteously, said he intends to hire personnel to place his bets at an estimated cost of $300 to $400 a day.

He said he hoped to recover that expense in his suit.

"I also plan to petition the Ontario government for a clear-cut definition on precision as off-track betting-shop operators."

After being detained, Nunnally said he was escorted off the grounds and was refunded his admission price before being taken to a taxi.

"I found it most interesting when Chief Taylor told me I as the only off-track betting manager in Canada to be escorted," said Nunnally. "The other day, one shop operator claimed its messenger was escorted from the track and failed to place a daily double ticket which paid $81.50.

"This bears out Mr. Mooney's (J. J. Mooney, executive vice-president of the Jockey Club) statement that not all the money wagered in the off-track shops is going to the track."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

After 45 Years as an Actress Judith Anderson Plays Hamlet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dame Judith Anderson, after 45 years on the stage, achieved her dearest wish Monday night: She played Hamlet himself.

After the opening of a three-week run at the Geary Theatre, Miss Anderson, 72, was exhausted in her dressing room from the demanding role that had her onstage most of 2½ hours.

Asked whether she felt at home in the role the world has associated with a male for 350 years, she blurted to a reporter: "Oh, for goodness! Please! Give me four or five more days. We've got three weeks in this — and actually it's not long enough."

Aside from the technical problems of an opening night, she said, doing the role "was the most marvellous thing.

"It's the greatest role in the world. I'm so thrilled."

She played Hamlet's mother 34 years ago.

As the melancholy Dane, Miss Anderson wears leather boots that go a few inches above the knee, black leotards, black velvet doublet, grey tunic and white blouse open at the neck.

The garb is in striking contrast to the red-and-white costumes worn by the other performers in the Shakespearean tragedy.

For the part, the actress wears her brown hair down to the middle of the back.

Audience reaction was mixed. "I think she really gets the job done," said one man. His companion, a woman, gave him an arched-eyebrow look.

Others said: "She makes me nervous" . . . "I'd rather see Richard Burton in the part" . . . "the voice was too high" . . . "She absolutely dominated all those big guys on the stage with her."

Dame Judith, if she was looking for an opinion of her performance, heard five minutes of applause at the end of the American Conservatory Theatre performance. There were no curtain calls from the almost-full house.

Critics will review the play at a later performance.

After San Francisco, the company, the city's repertory group goes on a 26-week tour.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock exchange moved higher in light, mid-morning trading today as it entered its second consecutive declining session.

TSE was down .66 to 182. CPR ¼ to 26¾, Algoma Steel ¼ to 21¾, United Fels 15 cents to 24.00 and Aquitaine ¼ to 23¾.

Trans-Mountain Oil Pipeline rose ¼ to 21¾, Asamera ¼ to 5(7¼), Pyramid five cents to 8 cents and Pacific Pete ¼ to 23¾.

More complete information was not available from the exchange due to computer problems.

Prices were fractionally lower Monday.

On index, industrials dropped .46 to 183.33 and western oils 1.05 to 185.83. Golds were up .89 to 152.38 and base metals .29 to 96.72.

The weakening interrupted three successive advancing sessions.

Volume was 1.82 million shares, down from 2.63 million Friday.

Losers outnumbered gains 239 to 202 with 215 issues unchanged.

The market moved downward under pressure from Wall Street and throughout most of the day, reaching its lowest point during early afternoon trading, but showed signs of recovery before the close.

Weakest sectors were banks, beverages, chemicals, communications, merchandising, real estate and steels.

Ten of the exchange's 17 sub indices were lower.

Among losing issues, Reader's Digest was down ¼ to 36½. It was reported that the special senate committee on mass media will recommend to the federal government that it abolish the special tax considerations which Reader's Digest now enjoys.

Among other declining stocks, Falconbridge was down 2 to $148, Pacific Pete ¼ to $7¾, CPR ¼ to $26¼, Lake Dufault ¼ to $15¾, Opemiska ¼ to $12¾, Labrador ¼ to $23¼ and Central-Del Rio ¼ to $13¾.

Acklands gained 1¼ to $7¼, Norcen ¼ to $4, Dickson ¾ to $24½, Endako ¾ to $14¾, Pyramid 57 cents to $3 cents, Interprovincial 25 cents to $9.25 and Kerr-Addison ¼ to $10¾.

Girl Died Of Head Injuries

KINGSTON (CP) — An autopsy Monday showed that a 13-year-old girl, whose body was found Sunday night, died from multiple fractures of the head.

The partially-clad body of Valerie Drew was found by searchers in a wooded lot near the home she was last seen before her disappearance Friday.

Police have questioned several persons but no charges have been laid.

Coroner Stewart Patterson said the investigation so far did not indicate there was a sexual attack.

Valerie was one of 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Drew.

Pregnancy Pay Discriminatory Says Executive

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's proposal to pay unemployment insurance benefits to women on maternity leave from their jobs discriminates against bachelors, the Commons labor committee was told Monday.

"Why should everyone take responsibility for pregnancy?" Ontario mining executive E. R. Mather asked at a committee hearing into the white paper on unemployment insurance.

"I think most of us would agree that pregnancy nowadays is more a matter of choice than ever before," said Mr. Mather, who did not indicate his own marital status.

Sea Cadets Start Training

A new training year for the Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps has started, it was announced here.

This year the corps will consist of 45 cadets, 10 veterans and 11 newcomers.

Training will be designed to inspire the young men in the highest standards of citizenship, hard work, sailing, boat work, first aid and drill with Armed Forces drill and ceremony.

A highlight of this year's activities will be a sunset ceremony with the 24-piece RCSCC Quinte Band and the guard and color party.

Trenton Club Gets Award

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Ontario flying clubs received 14 of 22 awards of merit presented by the Royal Canadian Flying Clubs Association.

The awards, presented at the association's 41st annual meeting, are based on flight safety.

Quebec and Manitoba picked up four awards each, Alberta and British Columbia two each and Saskatchewan one.

Ontario winners were clubs from Brampton, Brantford, Hamilton, Kingston, London, North Bay, Stirling, Oshawa, Picton, Rockcliffe (Ottawa), Thunder Bay, Trenton, Waterloo-Wellington (Kitchener) and the Windsor Flying Club.

Quebec Workers Can Use French

MONTREAL (CP) — "No one is denied the right to speak French" in any part of the General Motors plant at nearby Ste. Therese, a spokesman for the firm said Monday.

Lucien Arnold, information officer for the General Motors plant located 15 miles north of Montreal, said in an interview French-speaking employees at the plant have never been denied their linguistic rights.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Each Makes Own Reception

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There is an old saying (I forget in which language) that goes: "I went forth looking for enemies, and I found, no friend; I went forth looking for friends, and I found no enemies."

Trite as this approach may be to the difficult problem of personal relationships, the old saw is, of course, perceptive. I become that each person generates his own atmosphere, and that the mood he projects on the world is the mood that is returned to him.

This sense of "spiritual retribution," if you don't mind a rather pompous phrase strikes me most forcibly while driving an automobile.

On Monday, if I am grim and unfriendly, all the motorists I meet are grim and unfriendly. Cars in the left-hand double-parkers block my way; cabbies swear at me for weaving between lanes.

On Tuesday, if I am relaxed and friendly, I find no enemies: the driver at the intersection waves me ahead; the double-parker becomes part of an amusing obstacle race rather than a menace; the man who crosses a street reading a newspaper evokes my tolerant shrug rather than my vicious contempt.

Obviously, all human problems cannot be solved so easily; nor can we control our moods by a simple exercise of the will power, as certain writers — ways - to - gain - happiness preachers are fond of telling us.

But, while objective reality often deflects and distracts us from co-operative living, it is equally true that we are masters of our own fate more than we commonly recognize — not, perhaps, in determining what will happen to us, but in determining how we will treat what happens to us.

One man's calamity is another man's mild vexation; and often it is the same man on two different days. We create, in short, by our own incidents of daily living, as we react to the events themselves our own personality emits into the atmosphere around us.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Ask for whatever benefits you have earned. Bring along your statistics, but use them only if questions require documented evidence to back up the news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you have confused matters with hasty moves, move immediately to restore the balance. Avoid philosophical games; let people make their own choices.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Now you can make some order out of the chaos if you know what is or is not yours to claim. The evening is excellent for a quiet social get-together, good news to share.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For September 30

Your birthday today: Your course through the new year is a sharp departure for you. Events require personal management, sometimes suddenly with some inconvenience. All changes are ultimately for the better. Romantic interests bring numerous poignant moments of stress. Today's natives generally talk fluently, often far too much. Other questions frequently involve the handling of volatile, aromatic liquids, paint, ink, perfume and the like.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Co-operation now is of more value than the actual work achieved. Take and give your share. Everything is rather unsuccessful, the more interesting.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 19): Early, unsettled conditions make it possible to do just about what you please. Seize any such opportunity, present your petition, ask for whatever is owed to you.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Spend the day organizing creative projects and setting up arrangements. After work, seek interest, projects going for you and your favorite companion.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Matters become more favorable as you work your way through the day. Expect complications and changes of tempo. Plan for a sociable evening of mild celebration.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Steady effort produces progress. Relatives, neighbors are co-operative if you restrain your whims. Your sense of humor is your helpful ally in the moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 17): Plan for a quiet day of normal effort with a few extra rest periods. Accomplishment takes over at midday and produces a fairly interesting and easy time of it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You get unexpected bouquets and favor — for something you had little or nothing to do with. Keep your sense of humor and make adjustments in a graceful way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You have lots of healthy self-interest projects going for you, full with others, particularly influential individuals who wish no public notice.

Nasser's Death Occurs at Inopportune Time for Arab World

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

For Arabs and perhaps all who are directly concerned with the dangerous Middle East crisis, Gamal Abdel Nasser's death Monday night probably could not have come at a more difficult time.

To the Arabs, it means loss of the only real leader they knew for many years, even though his authority had been on the wane in recent months in the backwash of critical developments.

Desperately in need of some heroic figure to cling to, many who consider themselves Arab nationalists and fighters for "liberation" are going to be lost. It can mean new frustration, new confusion and perhaps even more violence in a currently violent Arab world.

Despite Nasser's recent troubles with his followers, there is no Arab on the horizon who can take his place.

The whole Arab world is in the process of upheaval because of a civil war in Jordan. Nasser had found himself in a dilemma. He was, in a sense, on the same side as a bereaved young King Hussein of Jordan in that he felt negotiations were possible to ease the overall Middle East crisis.

Yet he must have been torn in the other direction by the knowledge that his stand was disgusting him from Arab politicals whose organizations were pledged to war to the death against Israel.

Nasser's figure as a leader of Arabs had been such that not even disaster could permanently tarnish it in the past. He had led his adoring followers to defeat after defeat, yet his passing can mean only profound shock for the Arab cause.

He was to many an Arab undisputed El Rais, or chief, the boss.

In his stormy career he mounted plots and weathered plots against him. He was thrice humiliated in wars with his most hated enemies, the Israelis. He opened Egypt and much of the Arab East to Soviet political and military penetration. He saw Egypt reduced to the brink of economic and military ruin.

But for millions of Arabs there was only one leader and only one Nasser. After him, the prospect could be for chaos in Egypt and in the Arab world, more disunity than ever.

Arab unity was Nasser's dream, but it remained only a dream.

As a young officer he dreamed of being that hero, perhaps of uniting a world of 170 million Arabs, perhaps even uniting the world's hundreds of millions of Moslems. He saw Egypt as the centre of two vast geographical circles—the Arab world and Africa—and thus in a position to play a major role in the developments of the world of politics. It was shot to be, not in his lifetime, and perhaps not in his generation.

Instead of rising to glory, Egypt in June, 1967, found herself plunged into despair. For Nasser, it was the low point of his career as the leading spokesman for Arabdom.

In six days of fighting war, Israel knocked out Nasser's army, expensively equipped by the Soviet Union. The Russian-built air force was wiped out on the ground in the first hours of the war. His poorly-trained army lasted only about four of the six catastrophic days. By the time a ceasefire took effect, Israeli soldiers faced him across the Suez canal.

But from then on the rule of the United Arab Republic was an even more difficult proposition for him to handle. There were plots against him. One of his closest friends, Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, was arrested in September, 1961, along with 50 other officers, accused of plotting Nasser's downfall.

Shortly afterward Cairo announced that Amer was dead—suicide by poison.

Low in spirits, Nasser began frequently to be afflicted by minor ailments; influenza for a while, a bad leg inflammation, other troubles for which he was treated from time to time by Soviet specialists. Each time he fell ill or was away for treatment, there were rumors of counter plots and attempted coups against him.

He ran into yet more disappointments. There were two attempts at Arab summit meetings to further Nasser's cherished dream of pan-Arab unity, and each was a failure—one at Khartoum, Sudan, in late 1967, the other at Rabat, Morocco, in 1969.

The princes of the Arab East, rich with the income of oil, were niggardly in their promises to help Nasser with his plans to avenge himself for the humiliation he had suffered at the hands. Nasser at one time in 1969 described himself as having been both tired and sick.

As the leader of the principal Arab state, he felt he had to have costly armaments and he accepted Soviet offers to replace the enormous amount of arms he lost in 1967.

But Nasser seemed to grow more moderate toward the idea of negotiating some sort of Middle East peace. This summer, he accepted United States proposals in that direction, involving observance of a cease-fire line in the Suez canal zone.

The arrangement was superficial at best. Soon Israel charged Nasser with violations, with shooting missiles and rockets in the cease-fire area, and Jerusalem pulled her envoy out of indirect peace discussions at the United Nations.

Nasser was born Jan. 15, 1918, in a little village in Upper Egypt. His father, Abdel Nasser Hussin, was a postal clerk who eventually became postmaster in Alexandria, where he died at 75 last year.

Young Nasser—one of four brothers, was reared at lower-middle class levels, but this was enough to afford him a fair education. At eight, Abdel was sent to Cairo for schooling, the same year his mother died. Eight years later he finished his secondary school education, at 17 he was up to his neck in violence against British rule of the Suez canal zone.

Nasser's part in fomenting riots against the British in 1935 landed him in jail, but as soon as he got out he was at it again, protesting against a treaty giving Britain the right to keep her troops in Egyptian soil. Because of this, Nasser was refused entry into military college and he resigned himself to study of the law. Suddenly however, the decision against him was reversed and his career was decided. He entered military college in 1937 and emerged a year later as a second lieutenant.

Nasser was a captain during the second World War, attached to British forces which scored the key victory over the Germans at El Alamein in 1942. He also served in Sudan, where 10 years of plotting against the British-dominated royal Egyptian regime began.

After a hitch as teacher in Egypt's military college, Nasser went to the army staff college, but he never lost sight of his plot nor contact with the plotters.

When the Palestine war between the Arabs and Israel broke out in 1948, Nasser resigned his commission and volunteered for the fighting. The resignation was rejected. Risking court-martial, Nasser ignored the rejection and went to Palestine anyway, and there his wrath against the royal court at Cairo increased. He saw the incredible incompetence of the Egyptian army, its miserably poor arms and equipment, the shameful ignorance of the Egyptian command. He and his fellow officers were enraged.

It was at this time that his pals in that directive

Canada Will Sell U.S. More Gas

Energy Deal Seen Likely

By The Canadian Press

Industry spokesmen generally approved increased exports of gas and oil to the United States but political critics hit hard at Ottawa in first reactions Tuesday.

One comment on the gas deal was that it appeared to be the first step in a continental energy deal and the Liberal government had shown itself as incompetent in arranging it.

Ottawa announced Tuesday four pipeline companies were granted licences for additional exports of 6.3 trillion cubic feet of gas over terms of 15 to 20 years, raising total export commitments more than 50 per cent to more than 18 trillion feet.

The four had sought total exports of 7.4 trillion feet over 20 to 25 years. It was the biggest single increase in natural gas exports to the U.S. since pipeline exports began in the late 1950s.

Just before the announcement, the U.S. said the ceiling of 805,000 barrels daily of Canadian crude oil east of the Rockies may possibly be raised by about 40,000 barrels a day.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Canada should have insisted on a fair share of the U.S. oil market before granting the gas exports.

T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, predicted the gas ruling will raise the price in Canada and leave the country without adequate supplies.

James Laxer of Kingston, Ont., a spokesman for the NDP political Waffle group, said the sale appeared to be the first

Nixon Praises NATO

From AP-Reuters

NAPLES, Italy (CP) — President Nixon took time out from top-level discussions on the Middle East today to tell a NATO audience that the Mediterranean should not be an American sea but one "that will belong to all peoples."

Before flying to Yugoslavia, the next stop on his European tour, Nixon strongly reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in an address at Nato's southern command headquarters in a Naples suburb.

Nixon said that "in a period of instability, uncertainty and a possible lack of confidence," people need an instrument they "can hang on to."

He said NATO is that instrument, and the United States remains strong and firm in its commitment" to the alliance.

He said the world is going through a period of change, which could replace confrontation with the Soviet Union with an era of negotiations, or it could hold great danger because of instability and lack of confidence.

Officials said that when he met the NATO commanders privately he gave an assurance that the U.S. defence commitment in the Mediterranean and Western Europe remained as strong as it was when NATO came into being 21 years ago.

Export Limits Raised by Half

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved an increase of more than 50 per cent in exports of natural gas to the United States in the next 20 years while saying in effect that if the U.S. wants more it should buy more Canadian oil.

A long-delayed cabinet decision, announced Tuesday, approved an increase in export commitments by 6.3 trillion cubic feet of gas to 18.3 trillion feet through four pipeline companies.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene said a bigger U.S. market for Canadian oil would stimulate development of petroleum resources, resulting in more gas for export.

Five companies had sought total additional exports of 8.9 trillion feet of gas in hearings before the National Energy Board between last November and March.

One, Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha, Neb., was turned down outright in a bid to tap Canadian resources for the first time through its subsidiary, Consolidated Natural Gas Co. of Calgary.

The other four companies, all present exporters, had sought total additional commitments of 7.4 trillion feet on top of existing export rights to about 12 trillion cubic feet over terms of up to 25 years.

In general, the government and the energy board gave the four successful companies the additional amounts they wanted on a daily and annual basis, but cut down the duration of the export licences to 15 or 20 years from the 20 to 25 sought.

In addition, the cabinet announced new regulations requiring the energy board to recommend revision of the export prices of the gas should market prices in the United States for competing forms of fuel rise significantly during the terms of export contracts.

The shorter duration of the export licences and the provision for price review are in line with new policy to avoid long term, fixed-price export commitments in energy resources.

At the same time, however, the energy board announced it had adopted a more free-handed method of calculating Canadian gas surplus available for export.

In tallying available reserves of gas, it has started counting in half the reserves now considered beyond economic recovery by reason of remoteness or difficulty of access—an accounting method recommended by western Canadian producers.

The board will also count some of the so-called deferred reserves previously regarded as unsuitable for conservation reasons.

The upshot, of complicated calculations for the present export decision, was to increase estimated available Canadian gas reserves by about five per cent to 54 trillion cubic feet.

Cortege of Gamal Nasser Belongs to Egypt's Masses

CAIRO (CP) — Kings, presidents and diplomats from all over the world gathered in Cairo for Gamal Abdel Nasser's state funeral Thursday, but the cortege of the fallen Egyptian president will belong to the people.

The government requisitioned Cairo's major hotels to house the dignitaries, including Senator Paul Martin of Canada, who began arriving Tuesday night. Millions of Nasser's subjects also poured into the city and its suburb, Kubbeh, where his body lay in state in the presidential palace and will be buried in a public mosque.

Cairo radio said the funeral procession will begin at the old revolutionary headquarters of Gezira Island in the Nile River and will end at the mosque, five miles from Kubbah Palace.

The high-ranking foreigners will march across Kasr el Nil Bridge into Cairo, through Liberation Square and on to the premises of the Arab Socialist Union, by Nasser's decree the only political party in Egypt.

There the heads of state and official representatives will withdraw, and the mourning Arab multitudes will take the procession through areas which Nasser had developed early in his reign to symbolize change in Egyptian life.

Burial will be at Manshiet el Bakary Mosque, built with public donations two years ago. Nasser himself contributed to the project.

Moslem tradition says Nasser's interment should have been within 24 hours of his death Monday of a heart attack at 52. It was delayed to allow representatives of foreign governments to arrive. Prime Minister Trudeau designated Senator Martin to represent Canada.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union, Nasser's most prominent patron during the last few years, was among the first to arrive. Weeping as he left the plane, he was embraced by Anwar Sadat, the acting Egyptian president, and Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, commander-in-chief of Egypt's military, their eyes reddened by tears.

As they arrived, the foreign leaders were taken to view Nasser's body lying in state at the Kubbeh Palace.

The grief-stricken crowd has blocked off all roads leading to the palace since early Tuesday afternoon, moving aside only to admit a steady stream of dignitaries arriving to pay their last respects to the Arab leader.

Israel Ready To Extend Truce

TEL AVIV ((CP) — Israel has expressed its willingness to extend the ceasefire with Egypt after it expires Nov. 7.

Israel's foreign minister, Abba Eban, said Tuesday his government is prepared for an open-ended extension of the 90-day ceasefire with Egypt, provided the impetus for reopening peace talks comes from Cairo.

Meanwhile, the United States was expected to appeal to Israel, Jordan and Egypt to carry on the Middle East peace talks, suspended Sept. 4 after Tel Aviv charged Cairo with moving Soviet missiles into a standstill zone along the Suez Canal.

Pravda Calls Talk of Base Propaganda

MOSCOW (Reuters) — In the first Soviet press comment on American allegations that Russia is building a submarine base in Cuba, Pravda today charged that Washington "thoughtlessly fabricates hollow sounding propaganda campaigns without thinking about their consequences."

The Communist party newspaper did not specifically mention the charge made last Friday that the Soviet Union is constructing a submarine base at the Cuban port of Cienfuegos, but it clearly referred to this.

Jordan Towns Shelled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (CP) — Jordanian troops shattered the peace agreement today by shelling the northern towns of Irbid and Ramtha, an Al Fatah guerrilla spokesman alleged.

The allegation came as word was still awaited that King Hussein's troops and Palestinian Arab guerrillas have started pulling out of Amman, as required by the Arab ceasefire observers

Jordanian artillery opened up at dawn on the northern provincial capital of Irbid, Ramtha and nearby villages, the scene yesterday of the heaviest fighting of the nine-day Jordanian civil war, Fatah alleged. Firing was still going on hours later, it said.

California's Fire Ordeal Seems Over

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firefighters aided by cool, moist weather drew tighter lines around burning brush and timber tracts today and California's worst ever blazes appeared near an end.

Shortly before dark Tuesday the last of the 147-mile perimeter of the blaze northwest of downtown Los Angeles was surrounded. Near San Diego officials said a 200,000-acre fire was largely contained.

The death toll stood at 18 damage since the outbreak Friday was estimated at $175 million and almost 500,000 acres were scorched. More than 400 homes and 193 other structures were destroyed.

Smoothing the Road to College

Workmen yesterday were paving Wallbridge-Loyalist road in the third and final stage of improvements to the former gravel road. The road past Loyalist College was widened by stages, with installation of a bridge completed last year. The pavement had reached the new CNR crossing by 5 p.m. yesterday. The signals were installed late this summer.

Last of Guerrillas' Hostages Freed

ATHENS (AP) — The last six hijack hostages released by Palestinian guerrillas in Jordan left today for New York.

The six United States men arrived from Amman via Nicosia, Cyprus, aboard a Cyprus Airways flight and then switched to a TWA jetliner for their direct flight to New York.

The six are Gerald Berkowitz, 31, a professor from Bronx Community College, a branch of New York University; Rabbi Abraham Harari-Raful, 35, and his rabbi brother, Joseph, 33, both of Brooklyn; Robert Schwartz, 48, and James Wood, 38, both defence department employees, and John Hollingworth, 41, of Sacramento, Calif., a state department employee.

They had been held most of the time in the city of Irbid, in northern Jordan, a scene of fierce fighting in the Jordanian civil war. They were quartered in a school basement out of the way of the fighting.

The release of the six cleared the way for Switzerland, West Germany and Britain to free seven Arab commandos, as demanded by the Palestine guerrillas.

Switzerland released the three it held, a West German spokesman said its three probably would be released Thursday and a British spokesman said Leila Khaled, an Arab girl hijacker, would be released as soon as arrangements can be made

Thirty-two other Americans held as hostages in the hijacking of three Western airliners early in September were freed by the Jordanian army and flew home from Amman Sunday.

Rabbi Abraham Harari-Raful said that "at no time were we threatened by the Palestine commandos."

"You are being held because our people are being held," he said a guerrilla told him. Berkowitz said that although the hostages were told they would be questioned, there was no questioning and "we were never touched."

"We heard plenty of shooting, rockets, bombs and shells exploding," Berkowitz said. "There were fairly close hits, but we were safe in the bomb shelter of the school."

Building Own House Started Construction Firm

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A "do-it-yourself" bungalow built during the post - war housing shortage was the small beginning of what is now one of the biggest residential construction businesses in Central and Eastern Ontario.

It was back in the early 1950s that Maurice H. Rollins built his first house on East Bridge Street near where St. Joseph's Separate School now stands.

He built the bungalow for the accommodation of his own family but with the demand for housing was able to sell at a profit—and build another.

It was from this rather modest start that Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. was born.

Today the local building firm each year constructs housing worth several million dollars and provides year-round employment for upwards of 200 men.

In the comparatively brief period of just over 15 years, Mr. Rollins has built more than 2,000 housing units and his construction firm is known throughout the district.

He has built housing throughout the Quinte area and also in Peterborough, Cobourg and Kingston.

"We have built at least 2,000 housing units — either single family or apartment structures," Mr. Rollins says.

Rollins Construction has erected multi - family dwelling projects for low rental family housing and senior citizens' apartments in the Quinte district.

The company built the initial single family low rental units in Belleville several years ago and also the first 37-unit senior citizens' apartment complex on Turnbull Street.

This year Rollins Construction built town housing low rental units on North Park Street and on Pine Street and currently has a 45-unit senior citizens complex underway on Dundas Street.

This week he commenced construction on a $1,250,000 housing contract for the city of Kingston.

Scheduled for June completion next year, the 76-unit town house development is to be built on Highway 33 at Portsmouth in Kingston's east end. Seventeen separate two-storey structures of from three to six units each will be erected.

In Belleville Mr. Rollins has built houses in all the newer parts of the city and is currently planning town house and condominium projects on at least two locations in the city.

According to Mr. Rollins, the trend in housing construction is away from single family units to town houses or apartments.

The reason for this is the high cost of serviced land together with high down payments and carrying charges.

Indicative of this trend in town housing and apartments is the fact that at least 80 per cent of the residential building now being done by Mr. Rollins is this type of construction.

He feels that condominium housing with its individual ownership of the units is one of the answers toward providing lower cost housing for the low and medium income families.

But Maurice H. Rollins Construction is more than a housing builder.

The firm has a subsidiary company — The Rollins Lumber Company — located at the former Canadian Explosives plant at Foxboro.

Here lumber requirements for the construction firm are maintained and where prefabrication is carried on to help reduce building costs.

Besides providing the lumber requirements for the parent construction firm, Rollins Lumber Company also carries on a home renovation and repair business and will build summer cottages on the customers' site.

And as a cost saving offer to the "do-it-yourself" home builder, Rollins Lumber will do the heavy exterior construction and let the owner do the easy sub trades and interior finishing.

Rollins Re-elected Scout President

Joe Rollins was re - elected president of the Belleville district of the Boy Scouts of Canada at the association's annual meeting in St. Thomas Parish hall. Gordon Riddle, Wilfred Reid and Frank Follwell were named vice-presidents. Harold Bankier was re-elected treasurer. Les Shore will be registrar and the Rev. H. M. Davis is the new padre.

Commissioner Arnold Welch's report detailed the major yearly activities. Four scouts attended the Bermuda Jamboree and two scouts also went to the Arctic Jamboree. Colored slides of the latter event were shown after the business meeting. It was also stated that 85 boys took first aid training; 60 scouts attended gun safety classes and approximately 40 took swimming lessons. Outdoor camping at Sagataska amounted to a total of 2,197.

Council Supports Water Ambulance

Belleville city council will continue its efforts toward having ambulances dispatched to LaSalle Ambulance for Bay Shore service.

Two weeks ago council learned that the Emergency Health Services had directed that radio equipment using the ambulance frequency be removed from the boat and promptly forwarded a letter pointing out the importance of the water ambulance for safety to the community.

But Emergency Health Services Director Dr. N. H. McNally replied that the water rescue service could not be in any way detract from the efficient management of the ambulance service for which LaSalle Ambulance is in receipt of provincial financial support.

In his reply, Dr. McNally again ruled that the water ambulance service shall not use radio equipment operating on any of the provincial ambulance service frequencies.

"Finally, if Mr. Meeks is to continue the operation of this rescue service, all costs (personnel and equipment) must be specifically excluded from the budget of the ambulance service operation," the letter read.

Ald. Donald Soutter took exception to what he said were inferences in the letter that the water ambulance service was being financed with government support.

"Mr. Meeks was operating the service on his own and assuming all costs," Ald. Soutter said. "The paragraph is unfair, Mr. Meeks never asked for any grant or subsidy."

The alderman said Mr. Meeks' water ambulance service had the support of Police Chief Angus Crosbie and Angus Duffy, EMO co-ordinator who considered it an essential service.

He said it was desirable for the water ambulance to have a radio and that it enhanced rather than detracted from the regular ambulance service.

Council directed that the city manager again write to Dr. McNally to ask if he would reconsider his ruling regarding use of the ambulance radio frequency.

Moving Day

It was moving day at the site of the new Bayside Secondary School on Highway 2, midway between Belleville and Trenton. Large earth movers were gouging earth from the site and levelling off the surface by the ton. The $4.5 million, 1,200-pupil-capacity school is scheduled for completion by January of 1972. Establishment of the new hall of learning was announced in 1969. Linton D. Reid, formerly principal of Moira Secondary School, will serve as the first principal.

Gas Export

the next quarter century, for which calculation methods are unchanged, are estimated at 31.8 trillion cubic feet.

That leaves a surplus available for export of 18.4 trillion cubic feet—100 billion feet more than total commitments for exports.

Mr. Greene, treading a delicate political path between western Canadian demands for more sales and eastern fears of a sellout of resources to the United States, stressed the substantial cash benefits of the additional sales while underlining the new provisions designed to safeguard Canadian interests.

He said the new gas exports add up to the biggest single increase since exports began in the late 1950s.

Mr. Greene said the approved additional exports were worth about $2 billion and accompanying pipeline facilities would involve about $300 million in construction, 80 per cent of it Canadian content.

By way of assurance to consumers east of Alberta, who opposed substantial exports that might raise Canadian prices and leave Canada short, Mr. Greene said the newly-authorized exports constituted an amount that would be discovered in less than two years if current discovery rates continue.

In the context of Canada's efforts to persuade the United States to match Canada's provision of more gas by lowering trade barriers against oil, gas products petrochemicals, Mr. Greene drew attention to a Washington announcement Tuesday that would effectively open the way to about 10 per cent more Canadian crude oil imports east of the Rockies.

In considering gas exports, the minister said, the government proceeded in the expectation that the United States would provide satisfactory access for Canadian oil.

Energy

step up a continental energy deal.

"Even on its own terms the Liberal government has been inconsistent here," he said.

Mr. Laxer said the move does not follow a nationalistic speech by Energy Minister J. J. Greene in Denver when he said gas would be sold only if the U.S. agreed to changes in its oil import quotas.

However in Calgary, A. R. Neilsen, chairman of the Canadian Petroleum Association board of governors, said the gas move was the "first real breakthrough" in attempts to increase exports to the U.S.

Carl Nickle, publisher of the Nickle Daily Oil Bulletin, said the relaxation of natural gas restrictions will mean an increase in Canadian oil exports of more than 40,000 barrels a day beginning Oct. 1.

A NEW WAY OF UNDERSTANDING YOURSELF

According to "TA" (Transactional Analysis), everyone has three typical behavior patterns — that of Parent, Adult and Child. At any given time one of them predominates. Surprisingly, two of these patterns are actual recordings from your past. When Parent is the driver's seat, what you do, say, feel and think is an actual recording of what your parents used to say in your childhood. When Child takes control, you're being once again the child you were.

A revealing article in October's Reader's Digest helps you learn how to identify these patterns — and make them work for you for a new understanding of yourself and achieve happy, more fulfilled relationships with others.

IN MEMORIAM

LAFALM — In ever loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Lafalm, who passed away on this day, September 30th, 1968.
The day that takes its memory
Will never take the love we cherished
As it should.
A beloved face we'll never forget,
A voice we'll always remember still.
Kenny, Kenneth and Kathleen and Family.

BAIRD, Vera — In loving memory of a dear mother, who passed away September 30th, 1969.
Memories linger and days of pain,
But no parting words are said.
And in our aching hearts we know,
We'll meet you when we're dead.
Sadly missed by her family, Hazel, Donald, George and Barry.

MARAULE — In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away one year ago, September 30th, 1969.
God put your arms around her,
And took her home.
Make up for all the suffered,
All the pain she knew.
She's taken to a place of comfort,
Secured by a million tears.
Where the sun always shines,
Just a few more years.
Sadly missed and remembered by daughter Eva and family.

BAIRD — In loving memory of my dear wife Vera who passed away one year ago today.
Sadly I send a message dear,
To bring you to my mind,
For there is not a day I think of you,
Are very hard to find.
Time has passed and time alone to give,
To fill you and heart,
To see your face dear Vera,
Would be happiness complete.
—Sadly missed by husband Clarence.

Society Receives Society

"Society" Pet Foods for "Society" animals seems quitely appropriate, particularly since the Quaker Oats Company recently donated 300,000 cans of Society Brand cat food to the Ontario Humane Society.

The donation was made to the Society by W. A. Pretious, sales manager for Society Pet Foods.

Receiving the donation on behalf of the Ontario Humane Society, T. I Hughes, general manager, said, "This is a most magnificent donation and one which will help the Society to care for the many thousands of unwanted cats for which we care every year, particularly in our unique, open-air cat sanctuaries in Whitby, Mississauga, Belleville, Smiths Falls and our other shelters in Scarborough, Aurora, Brantford, Barrie, Orillia and Owen Sound."

Prince Edward County Board Shelves Kente School Project

Prince Edward county's Kente school project has been called off.

The plan to build an expanded elementary school and a new secondary school on the site of the present Kente school has been cancelled by the county board of education because of lack of funds.

"In view of the present economic situation in the county, the board feels the local ratepayers do not have the financial ability to support the proposed plan," reads an advertisement appearing in today's Intelligencer.

"The board's statement cites "a severe blow" to the county's economy because of the closing of two industries as the reason it has given up the project.

With department of education approval and full grant the Kente project would have meant an increase of 11 in the tax levy on every $1,000 of assessed value of a property.

Owner of a house valued at $20,000, for instance, would have paid $20 a year toward the Kente school construction. Prince Edward is now on equalized assessment.

The provincial department of education has refused to support the Kente plan. In a letter received two months ago, it expressed concern about the "definite trend downward" in enrolment, and said this decreased school population "raises doubts regarding the feasibility of the plan at this time".

The department recommended postponement of plans to increase secondary school space in the county until "the population trend in Prince Edward appears more positive".

It suggested an alternate plan to provide needed elementary school accommodation.

But a board spokesman said this morning that it finds the alternate "demeaning" and school plan unacceptable and the board has no intention at this time of carrying it out.

Return of Ameliasburg's 255 secondary school students from Belleville to county schools would be only a "trivial benefit" of the Kente plan, not its main objective, the spokesman said.

The Kente-Kente addition would have accommodated the secondary students and elementary pupils from three small schools, Hillier, Carlow, Redneersville and Maisonneau.

Secondary school students from Hillier, Wellington and Sophiasburg would have been transferred to the Kente school from Prince Edward Collegiate.

This would have opened space at PECI for grade 7 and 8 pupils from North Marysburg, South Marysburg and Athol school. The senior pupils would have had the advantage of improved programs using the high school facilities. The Marysburg and Athol schools would then have room for libraries and gyms for the remaining kindergarten to grade 6 pupils.

The department of education's alternative plan calls for closing of Mildred Corke, Redneersville and Massassaga schools and busing of their pupils to Kente, where the department would be prepared to approve an addition to accommodate them.

It agrees with the board that Mildred Corke school be renovated for use by retarded children.

But it suggests that the Sophiasburg and Athol grade 7 and 8 pupils be sent to Queen Elizabeth School in Picton instead of to the high school. The department, in its letter, says the number of grade 7 and 8 pupils from these three schools will decrease from 151 in 1972 to 140 in 1974.

Here the board disagrees, claiming there is insufficient room at Queen Elizabeth to house the students.

In its advertisement, the board also says that building additional elementary classrooms at Kente "would commit the local taxpayer to a considerable expenditure for a minimum solution that would not provide equal educational opportunities for all county students."

The board's spokesman said this morning it was on the point of returning to the department for further discussions when announcement came of the closing of two local food industries.

The decision was then made that the county's economy could not support further school construction, and the decision was revealed to the public through the board's advertisement.

Family Moves to Puerto Rico

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rawlings and their children, Ruth Ann and David, Palmer Road, Belleville, leave this week for a four-year term in Puerto Rico, where Mr. Rawlings will teach at a school for deaf children. A teacher at Ontario School for the Deaf here, Mr. Rawlings took a year's leave of absence from the institution three years ago to work in Puerto Rico. Now, he is returning under the sponsorship of the United Missionary Fellowship, Luquillo, P.R., to continue his work.

Solution Difficult

OHSC Commissioner Says Emergency Problem Usual

Belleville's emergency care situation is no different than any other community in Ontario, D. J. Twiss, commissioner of hospitals for the Ontario Hospital Services Commission said Tuesday.

Members of the board of governors of the Belleville General Hospital were told last Friday that the case load at the emergency department of the hospital has more than doubled in the first six months of 1970.

It has led administrators at the hospital to recommend that citizens consider the department an emergency one and one not to be used for outpatient treatment.

"It is not only a problem for Belleville," said Dr. Twiss. "It is very general across the province. It is being looked at in a very careful manner by doctors, administrators, hospital councils and the provincial government."

Dr. Twiss pointed out that the solution to Belleville's problem and that of other communities was a complicated one. Still not clearly delineated is the question of whether it is a hospital problem or a problem that should be resolved in the medical office.

"It should be recognized that the function of the Ontario Hospital Services Commission is to provide adequate facilities. The provision of adequate medical care thus becomes the responsibility of the board and it must make decisions in consultation with medical staffs as to how this problem is to be attacked."

Dr. Twiss said there was no immediate solution in sight and the supply of doctors is not likely to be materially increased in the next five years. "We won't feel the effects of our new programs (to graduate more doctors) for six to 10 years," he said.

The spokesman said any immediate solution would be up to "the board but did agree that some communities are attacking it in different ways.

Asked if the local board could hire medical staff outside Canada, Dr. Twiss said there are no regulations preventing this as long as the doctor can meet the qualifications set down governing the practice of medicine in Ontario.

"This might be a method of looking at it but it has many ramifications and would have to be assessed in detail. It is not usual to pay a man a salary in the medical field and by tradition the medical profession is on a fee-for-service basis."

Dr. Twiss did agree that almost all some hospitals have developed teams of doctors working out of an outpatients' department on a fee-for-service basis. This is a possible alternative.

Dr. Twiss did agree that although the commission is primarily responsible for providing facilities it recognized the use to which these facilities are being put.

"Fees for patient treatment in emergency or outpatient departments go to the doctors who treat the patients." The hospital or the province gets no part of the fee and Dr. Twiss said the province recognizes the problem of overhead involved in providing facilities for such treatment by the provision of grants.

Dr. Twiss could hold out no hope as to whether a temporary solution would be forthcoming before the expected influx of doctors is felt six years hence. "The basis is still being worked out as to what the need and what is the manpower," he said.

Letterboxes Shut Down

Roy Wainwright, Belleville postmaster, wishes to remind the community that effective 9 a.m. tomorrow, six letterboxes will be taken down.

These boxes are located at the corners of James and Colborne, Albion and Station, Forin and Ann, Southview and Herchimer, McLaurin and University and McFarland and Cannifton.

Mr. Wainwright explained the post office's position regarding the removal of the boxes. "They are not being used by the public enough to warrant the service."

Emergency vs Outpatients

The Belleville General Hospital and its administrative staff have made it clear that the hospital's emergency department is not to be considered as an outpatient's department.

This may be the case. The board may know it. The doctors may know it. And the public may even know it. But it does not provide the answer to the more than doubled case load now being handled.

It obviously is a time for action. The doctors say it is not fair they be harangued publicly. The board ponders the advisability of an outpatients department knowing that one of its members already has said there are no government grants.

Dr. D. J. Twiss, commissioner of hospitals for the Ontario Hospital Services Commission unhappily adds little to the peace of mind of the many newcomers to this area who have had some difficulty in obtaining a family physician. Dr. Twiss says any appreciable increase in the number of doctors graduating from Ontario medical school will not be evident before 1976. In addition, a basic premise which he points out is that the responsibility of the OHSC is to provide adequate facilities while the responsibility of the hospital board is to see the medical staff is to provide adequate medical care.

It puts the problem right back where it started — in the hands of the board of governors.

It also suggests that the board might have to reconsider its position.

The board and the administrators say that the outpatient function of the hospital should be minimized, leaving the field to emergency treatment only.

Any one who has had reason to be involved in some post-operative ambulatory care knows that doctors make appointments with their patients to see them in the emergency department. This seems to be a logical and reasoned development if the doctor is going to program his time for maximum efficiency. Built in to this, of course, is a contributory factor which could create friction. This is that the hospital is providing medical care facilities at no cost to the doctor who collects his fee-for-service charge without having to apportion a part of it towards overhead.

It would seem reasonable in the position in which the Belleville General Hospital finds itself that the board recognize that the emergency-outpatients' case load is not going to decrease appreciably and that rather than trying to make the situation go away they accept it as inevitable and bend their energies to living with the situation and trying to improve it.

The board is faced with some immediate alternatives it should explore. Can they find and hire doctors — no doubt only available if located outside the country — and set up an outpatients department staffed by hospital employees? Or as Dr. Twiss suggests as an alternative other communities have adopted, can the board locate and set up a team of doctors operating out of the emergency-outpatients' department on a fee-for-service basis?

The doctors themselves should pose a question to themselves. Is there any reason further they can do to attract additional doctors to the Quinte area to alleviate the complaint of residents they cannot establish a family physician relationship with Belleville's already overworked doctors?

The hospital administration should also review its stand. The case load is there because it is the only apparent way that residents in the hospital's service area can gain the medical attention they require. Starting from this premise, the administration should ask itself are there any additional steps it can take to facilitate such medical attention being rendered?

These are all questions which the three parties may have discussed endlessly. If they have, their discussion and the conclusions have not been made public. When it comes to the operation of hospitals and the actions of the medical society there seems to be a built in hesitancy to tell the public what alternatives have been explored.

Good health belongs to the people. It is not the prerogative of hospital board or medical staffs. Every person who may have occasion to call upon these services should be assured that every alternative to optimum medical attention has been explored.

Divisions Deepened

Defence to Come Under Attack After Cabinet Shuffle

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Because personalities figure prominently in parliamentary politics, last week's cabinet shuffle, while relatively minor on the surface, could have a profound impact on day-to-day activity in the Commons.

Opposition MPs, for instance, are already predicting a far heavier attack on the defence department. Donald S. Macdonald, the new minister, is almost certain to face more hostile questioning than his predecessor, Leo Cadieux.

Mr. Cadieux, after the storms of unification, guided the department through three calmer years partly because of his high personal popularity.

Mr. Cadieux was also closely identified with the interests of the servicemen and he was widely credited with fighting firmly on the side of the armed forces during any cabinet discussions affecting them.

Mr. Macdonald, who has freely admitted having always qualified in the give-and-take of parliamentary warfare, comes into the department without any built-in safeguards against political attack. His views on the military are not well known but there are some signs he is down.

And he also takes over defence at a time when the Opposition is priming its guns to fire at the new CF-5 aircraft, many of which are flying straight into mothballs from the production line. The planes are costing a total of $213,800,000.

There are also unconfirmed rumors, circulating widely in the Opposition, that further manpower cutbacks are planned in the armed forces.

"There are going to be a lot of sticky questions about the defence department in the next few months," said a Conservative spokesman.

While events and personalities appear to be combining to direct more political action at the defence department, the opposite seems the case for the post office. Jean-Pierre Cote, a placid politician, takes over the post office from blunt-spoken Eric Kierans after that marathon postal workers dispute has been settled.

Unless some new developments turn up Mr. Cote, former minister of revenue, may continue having a relatively uncontroversial parliamentary life and there likely will be fewer questions about the post office.

The changes will likely make things much easier for Mr. Kierans whose other responsibilities — have never caused him much trouble in the Commons.

With former manpower minister Allan MacEachen returning to his old job as government House leader, there will be—on the surface, at least—a more relaxed approach to the scheduling of Commons business. Mr. MacEachen, unflustered and comfortable in the way of parliamentary rules, is generally regarded as the best procedural expert on the government benches.

But his successor in Ottawa manpower and immigration, Jean Marchand, is a different kettle of fish—Otto Lang—could face a hectic session.

Without Mr. Cadieux's inherent ability to defuse explosive questions, Mr. Lang has faced heavy fire over the last two years as minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board. Now, along with the wheat board, he takes over responsibility for such areas as unemployment.

He could, observers agree, face a rough session.

Mother Shocked by Plight Of Jailed U. S. Deserter

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Reading a heading in The Intelligencer "Deserter in Jail One Month" shocks me, as a mother of five sons, who served overseas in the last war, one shot down and badly wounded, the other three in public school too small to go, that this young boy of 18 years should be called a deserter. Call it what you will, this boy has no quarrel with anyone, so why should he be forced to commit murder in Viet Nam or any other country to satisfy those who send him. We have hundreds of Americans in Canada because they do not want to fight, and murder some woman's husband, or some mother's sons. If every one in every country refused to fight, there would be no wars.

This boy is upholding God's commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

This boy needs an understanding friend, instead of red tape. All he wants is to go home. How many boys have said the same thing? Surely there must be someone in Belleville who can do something for this teen-age boy.

It's people like us who do know what war is all about, that need to help some one like this young boy. He is some mother's son.

"A MOTHER"

Women Over A Barrel

The Globe and Mail

The danger that always lurks around the idea of greater workers and Indians are sugar beet workers. "Class jobs are considered to be inferior jobs and the people performing them are considered to be inferior as a group," she said.

The solution, as Miss Macotis sees it, is to apply to more women en masse to a better class of work, thereby freeing them from boredom. Great. But diapers will still need changing, dishes will demand a washing and floors a vacuuming. No matter who takes on such chores, they will inherit the unfortunate classification bestowed by Miss Macotis.

Is there no way out?

Tito Talks of Stepping Down

Ottawa Journal

Marshal Josip Broz Tito is an original type of Communist leader. He demonstrates it again, at age 78, by announcing that he will retire as president of Yugoslavia, a position to which he was named for life in 1963.

Communist heads of state customarily die in office, as Stalin did, or are ousted by palace coups, as was Kruschev. (Or by Soviet intervention, as in Dubcek's case.) Tito sets a precedent in deciding on his own initiative to turn over his mission's affairs to a collective leadership.

His most dramatic precedent was his 1948 defiance of Stalin's dictates, when Yugoslavia broke with the Comintern, sent Soviet diplomats packing, and defied invasion threats from Russia and its satellites. At that time, Western observers thought Tito could get away with it. But he did.

Since then he has guided Yugoslavia's foreign policy pragmatically, steering it alternately hot and cold in relations with the United States and the Soviet Union, and getting aid from both.

Internally, he scrapped the Soviet totalitarian model. Workers' councils help manage industry, which operates under a market economy; the powers of the political police are shorn, and intellectuals enjoy an outspoken. But the system at best is a "participatory authoritarianism." Over-zealous critics can still land the critic in prison.

Yet Yugoslavia is by far the most Communist nation and this can be credited to Tito as another precedent.

However, it is difficult to believe his retirement will be complete. His prestige as wartime leader against Hitler's forces and as post-war defier of Stalin, has made his opinions within Yugoslavia unassailable whenever he cares to voice them. We suspect his voice will still be heard.

Conditions Have Changed

Relief Workers Can Not Assuage Bitterness of Jordan War

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The ceasefire ordered in Jordan may help relief workers in their struggle against the horrors inflicted on the civilian population by the battles between King Hussein's forces and the Palestine Arab Guerrillas.

But it will do little to way assuage the profound bitterness produced by the mass bloodshed, a fact certain to worsen the deep divisions within the Arab world.

Shortly after Hussein and guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat ordered the ceasefire, a top spokesman for the commandos blamed the Jordan upheaval squarely on the king and promised death for those Jordanian officials with blood-stained hands.

Arabs in Israeli-occupied territories on the west bank of the Jordan River have joined in the anti-Hussein denunciations.

This makes the monarch's position seem more isolated than ever despite the good showing of his crack army in the field.

Some observers suggest Hussein was ill-advised about the strength of the resistance he would encounter in a showdown with the guerrillas.

The king himself is quoted as attributing the bad advice to commando supporters who had infiltrated his government and deliberately set out to lead him into disaster.

But despite the possibility that his military achievement was ultimately hollow, the performance of Hussein's army testified to its stature as among the best in the Middle East —sufficiently potent for some officers to defy the wishes of the king himself.

Ancient hatreds may have played a role in the way Hussein's Bedouin soldiers apparently revelled in smashing the guerrillas.

The nomadic Bedouins have long populated the area east of the Jordan, which was forged into the present Hashemite kingdom by Hussein's grandfather after 1921.

Their latest performance under the king's colors, after alleged guerrilla provocation for the last three days, may have been further spurred by antagonisms between many Bedouins and the non-nomadic Arabs from the west bank.

This in turn would be another manifestation of the deep-rooted potential for disunity among the Arab peoples generally and indicate that even without the present spreads of bitterness the chances of a united Arab front against Israel in future are far from good.

The guerrillas consider Hussein's forces to be the hatchet men of Western imperialism and in that sense, friends of Israel.

Egypt, Sudan and Libya hastened to try bringing about an end to fighting within Jordan, although they had scarcely little warmth for the military side of Hussein's regime after what has happened.

Conspicuously absent from the peace-making efforts was the United Nations, doubtful though it is that anyone but the Hussein's regime even in a position to end the slaughter in Amman and elsewhere.

The apparent inability of the UN to do anything but wring its hands over the Jordanian bloodbath is contrasted in some quarters as a further example of the world organization's weakness in such situations and a poor omen for its future.

Gas Firms Fight Over Taking Lead Out

TORONTO (CP) — A low-key war of words between Canada's leading oil companies over lead-free and low-lead gasolines has left the ordinary motorist somewhat bewildered.

Three firms—Shell Canada Ltd., Imperial Oil Ltd., and Sun Oil Co. Ltd. (Suncor)—have introduced these types of fuels in recent weeks.

But others, such as Petrofina Canada Ltd., Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. and BP Canada Ltd. have declined to follow suit. Texaco Canada Ltd. has made no announcement, although its United States parent firm is doing research on lead-free gasolines.

The new fuels are designed for 1971 and future model automobiles which the oil companies expect will have lower compression-ratio engines. Exhaust systems of future models, designed to eliminate pollution, will not be able to operate with leaded gasolines.

One oil company spokesman suggested that motorists with pre-1971 models seek the advice of a qualified mechanic before attempting to use no-lead or low-lead gasolines. With proper readjustments, some cars that now use regular-grade gasolines can use the new fuels."

In addition, the new fuels will cost more. Shell has already announced the wholesale price of its new lead fuel, due to go on the market next month, will be 3½ cents above the price of a gallon of regular-grade gasoline. The American Petroleum Institute says lead-free gasolines could cost motorists two to four cents more a gallon.

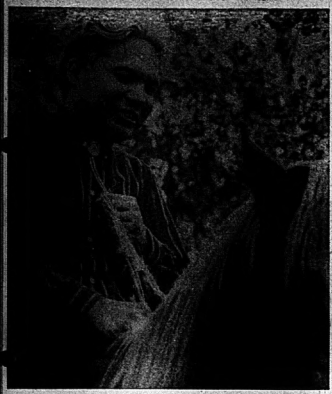
Both Petrofina and Gulf claim the introduction of the new fuels is premature, adding they will be ready to supply motorists when the fuels are necessary, possibly by 1971.

In a full-page newspaper advertisement, Gulf said emission-control devices won't be on the market for another year or so "and taking the lead out (of gasolines) now will reduce exhaust emissions by only a modest amount."

A Petrofina spokesman in Montreal said this week the promotion of no-lead and low-lead fuels by the three firms left the impression that they were the only ones fighting pollution with cleaner fuels.

He said it was this implication that led to Petrofina producing a full-page newspaper advertisement Sept. 24 defending the company's position. The ad claimed that eliminating the lead content in gasoline, which only accounts for 0.2 per cent of total emissions, would not stop pollution, nor was lead emission a health hazard.

Petrofina was objecting to advertisements by some firms which used such terms as "air care", "motor cleaner" and "harmful exhaust emissions" which Petrofina claimed implied a fight against pollution.



A spokesman for Suncor, which is selling low-lead and no-lead gasoline at its outlets in central and western Ontario, said low-lead fuels tend to reduce unburned hydrocarbons by as much as 10 to 12 per cent.

"It's a step in reducing automobile exhaust emissions, but it is not the total answer to pollution."

An Imperial spokesman described lead emissions from automobile tailpipes as "a pollutant in the sense that it is fired out into the atmosphere but it is not an important pollutant."

A spokesman for Ontario's air management branch said the province gave up testing the atmosphere for lead pollution after discovering it was a negligible factor in contaminating the air.

Regular-grade gasoline contains two to three grams per gallon of tetraethyl lead. Low-lead gasoline, which Imperial is introducing, contains 0.6 grams. In the United States, regulations call for 0.5 grams, but there is no limit set in Canada.

Farm Union Approves Federal Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Farmers Marketing Union approved federal bill C-197 as a step towards restructuring agricultural marketing along national lines Tuesday, but called for amendments to ensure greater farmer control of the process.

The bill would establish a national farm products marketing council to oversee farm marketing in general and set up national marketing agencies to deal with particular commodity groups.

Roy Atkinson of Landis, Sask., president of the union, maintained that the bill should be amended to allow his union to represent farmers in collective bargaining with the proposed agencies at regular intervals.

The bill, he said, should also provide for guaranteed prices for farmers, prices which would be negotiated along with other policy matters between the agencies and the union.

The union also recommended that:

—No agency be formed before the wishes of a majority of primary producers in the affected commodity group are clearly assessed.

—Cattle be included under the legislation.

—Passage of the bill be delayed until the meeting of the Canadian agricultural congress in November and the annual meeting of the farmers union in December.

—The national farm marketing council be responsible to Parliament, rather than to the government.

—Members of the council be appointed for fixed terms of from five to 10 years, rather than at the government's pleasure.

Recorders Replace Reporters

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will substitute tape recorders for court reporters in some of its higher court cases to eliminate costly delays in producing transcripts, an official said Tuesday.

Joseph Cornish, chairman of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Bar Association, said Tuesday the delays "are a fact of life and we have to do something about it."

"We have done considerable research into mechanical recording and there is no doubt that such a system is the answer to some of our most serious problems."

He said a shortage of shorthand reporters, combined with a fast-growing volume of court actions, has created a bottleneck and widespread complaints from the legal profession.

Nutrition Defects Will Be Reported

OTTAWA (CP) — The national nutrition survey may undergo quick revision to ensure that individuals are told of any alarming symptoms that may require doctor's attention.

The point arose at a news conference held Tuesday to announce the formal launching next Saturday of the $1,730,000 survey aimed at learning whether the nation is properly nourished.

The present intention is that anything unusual found by the medical - dental - nutritionist teams in examining and testing 21,000 Canadians will be communicated to the individual's doctor or the nearest public health unit.

However, Dr. J. A. Campbell, assistant director-general of the federal food and drug directorate, told reporters later that individual notification will be considered, possibly in the form of a notice that the survey subject see his doctor or public health authorities.

Survey co-ordinator Dr. Z. I. Sabry and associate co-ordinator Dr. D. P. Bray defended this on the grounds that the public is unqualified to interpret the data and laboratory tests.

Red Cross Branch Donates Funds for Swimming Pool

MARMORA — The Marmora Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society met recently in the Marmora Public Library with the vice-president, Mrs. Granville Mathieson, presiding.

Mrs. Francis Rotherwell, treasurer, reported $250. had been donated to the Marmora Recreation Committee to assist with the swimming program. The proposed budget for 1971 was reviewed and passed, and it was estimated that a total of $530. will be required for Red Cross activities in the community. It is hoped that this 1971 campaign will be successful in collecting this amount.

Mrs. Tom Shannon stated that the use of the loan cupboard continued to increase over previous years. A new wheelchair, also bandages and splints have been purchased to supplement the loan cupboard. The Branch is grateful to Mrs. William Regan for the donation of a portable oxygen attachment for home or hospital use, for persons suffering from emphysema or asthma.

It was reported that the Red Cross swimming program conducted by the recreation committee had been very successful — 149 children registered for classes, 127 swimmers examined and 79% of the students passed the tests. There is also co-ordination of effort with the Royal Life Saving Society, with 18 swimmers passing the tests. Films on water safety and safe boating practices were obtained by the Water Safety chairman, Mrs. A. M. Jones, and shown in the schools.

A vote of thanks was moved to Mr. Clint Nickle who donated the supplies for the first aid kit at Legion Park again this year.

Club Activities

WHITE CANE CLUB

White Cane club members resumed their activities at the newly renovated quarters in the recreation centre following the summer recess.

The main event at one of the September meetings of the club was the showing of colored slides of Japan by Harold Seldon. The travelogue began with a view of the snow-capped Canadian Rockies taken from a CPA jet flying at an altitude of 39,000. The party of 20 with whom Mr. Seldan travelled were the first Canadians to go through the new domestic terminal at Tokyo which was opened on the same afternoon of their trip. June 1. The pictures included those of Expo '70, some showing rural life in Japan and some taken in Tokyo and Kyoto. For the benefit of the visually handicapped, Mr. Seldon gave a running commentary. He was thanked by Helen Wardhaugh on behalf of the club.

President Pat Baverstock chaired the recreation and business meetings held in September. Bingo was played at the recreation meeting and lunch was provided by the ladies of the Kiwanis club. The names of members who had celebrated birthdays in September were read by Wilma Hinds. Both meetings were well attended and members are enthusiastic about the proposed bus trip to O'Hara's mill early in October.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Jeffrey M. Post (nee Anne Marie Wilson) was honored at a community miscellaneous shower held at Bethany Community Centre with Miss Holly Walker as hostess and Mrs. Kathy Rupert as co-hostess.

MR. AND MRS. JEFFREY MURRAY POST

Post — Wilson

Rev. William Lamb officiated at the recent wedding ceremony in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, when Anne Marie Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Belleville, RR 6, was united in marriage to Jeffrey Murray Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Post, Belleville. Miss Linda Johnston played traditional nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white venise lace over nylon taffeta with the fitted bodice featuring a natural waistline, shirred stand - up collar of lace and long fitted sleeves with snug fitting cuffs. The bouffant skirt flowed into a flowing chapel train which was accented at the back with a large self bow. Her headdress was a crown of pearls and rhinestones with attached four - tier bouffant veil. She carried a bouquet of shasta daisies and pink sweetheart roses.

Sister of the bridegroom, Miss Karen Post attended the bride wearing a pale green floor length gown of chiffon over taffeta featuring a lace bodice with the waistline accented with a large bow. She wore a wedding ring - beaded dress and carried a bouquet of yellow mums and streamers. The bridesmaid Miss Holly Walker, and junior bridesmaids Miss Donna Marie Sinclair and Miss Darlene Dempsey, cousins of the bridegroom were identically attired in maid of honor, but in pale yellow shade. They also carried similar bouquets.

For the reception at Club Canara, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a matching coat and dress ensemble in purple lace with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations and pink roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a navy blue crimplene dress with white and navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations and pink roses.

On return the couple will reside at 65 Donald Street, Apt. 5, Belleville.

Chairs Associated with Authority

TORONTO (CP) — Chairs tell a lot about a person's character and his frame of mind, says a Toronto designer who has been studying chairs for six years.

Stephen Hoghin, 28, an instructor at Sheridan College School of Design, started a two-year research program on the chair when he was a design student in 1964. He found the psychology behind chairs so interesting that it has become a lifetime hobby.

Chairs are associated with authority, Mr. Hoghin said. Judges or magistrates give their judgment from their "high - backed bench" and the focal point of any meeting is "the person in the chair," he said.

Chairs also are associated with personal status. The best example of this, Mr. Hoghin said, is the throne "which elevates a human being and makes him more important than other human beings."

"The executive chair" is another piece of status furniture. A chair that bends, swivels and wheels about is bound to carry with it a feeling of importance, he said.

Mr. Hoghin pointed out that the head of a family usually has his own easy chair and dining room chair that are "taken off" to other members of the family.

Many theories are being developed that say what people choose to buy or sit in certain types of chairs.

The ultra-modern space chair is Mr. Hoghin's recommendation for insecure people. The bamboo cage chair that swings from the ceiling can also do a lot for a person's confidence, he said.

"You can either sit on or sit in a chair—and there's definitely something nice about sitting in a chair. When you climb into a chair it's like returning to the womb, I suppose, and gives you a feeling of security."

Mr. Hoghin also commented on the fact that people often show their feelings by sitting down. "It seems that the best way to show opposition to authority in riots these days is to sit down. Young people often sit down to protest."

People who buy chairs without considering the "wiggle factor" run the risk of frustrating their friends, the designer said.

"If you buy a chair that's like a straight-back one where you can't move—it will eventually build up frustrations, make you feel cramped and give you claustrophobia.

"You must be able to cross your legs and sit forward or back in a chair. You don't want a fitted chair."

Most people choose chairs according to their frame of mind, Mr. Hoghin said, and this can change from day to day.

MUST BE SOUND

To choose a chair one should look for four things, he said: It must be structurally sound, visually satisfying, economical and comfortable.

As for the future, chairs must become more flexible, functional, smaller and lighter, he said. People on the move will want collapsable chairs that can be used for more than one purpose.

Mr. Hoghin described the car as "a moving chair" and said soon the car will be replaced by a chair with a motor in it.

He also said the day when things such as bookshelves are housed in chairs. At the press of a button out comes the book you want to read.

Exciting Jewelry for Fall Wear

NEW YORK (CP) — The trend to longer skirt lengths not only changes clothing styles but also affects accessories, especially jewelry. As the legs become more covered, the focal point of interest naturally moves up.

Fashion authority Eleanor Lambert puts it this way: "This fall will be the jewelry year of all times for many years."

The baguette—one to three inches below the knee—also needs balance, and jewelry can help achieve this by long necklaces that draw the eyes up. These necklaces or ropes are a reversal from the fashion of the last couple of seasons when necklaces were tiered to jewel boxes in favor of the large pin and ear-ring idea.

Now necklaces are back, often a barbaric arrangement of beads or heavy beads, metal studded with uncut stones. A leader in this style is Cadoro. Cadoro's two partners and designers were winners of a 1970 Coty Fashion Award for their original and offbeat jewelry.

Already Cadoro has made fashion history with African-inspired wooden bead necklaces, introduced last year, and now extremely popular for fall. The huge beads are polished, sculptured or sometimes silvered, with small glittering jewels embedded.

This fall Cadoro is featuring necklaces that look as if they cost a fortune, but don't. In rows of swelled beads mixed with pearls and intricate gold work.

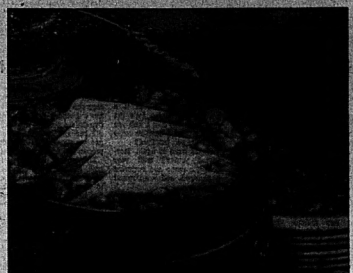
Kenneth Lane, another Coty Award winner, introduces the new long—stabilize—lengths in necklaces in a trip that can be worn together or singly. A beaten gold pendant hangs from the long necklace of beads in two of them, while the third has large polished beads interspersed.

Another important name in fall entered the costume jewelry field and should wield a lot of influence. This is Lanvin of Paris, known for haute couture clothes and perfumes. Among some of the jewelry items shown was a necklace composed of tortoise shells in various odd shapes, linked in a pendant effect and suspended from a chain.

Tortoise shells are extremely popular this fall. In small squares and threaded with leather, they are a novel tie-on dog collar.

These dog collars are fashionably new again. The height of Edwardian elegance, they had a brief revival a few years ago and now have come in strong for fall. They are an obvious foil for long skirts.

They can be made of ribbons or soft leather or they can be in silver, gold or textured metal combinations, such as Lane's hammered gold ring chokers, worn singly or two or even three at a time. Dog collars are intended, of course, for late-day and evening wear.



Pins haven't been entirely overlooked with the return of necklaces. They will still be worn with sportswear, suits, soft dresses, or on evening costume coats. And there is a great variety, as Miguel proves, such as dimensional, sculptured, bows, flowers, small animals.

Rings continue to bedeck as many fingers as you like. Started last year, this more-the-merrier look has created great interest. Ring-laden hands are conversation pieces.

Bracelets, too, are back. This fall they add a special touch to long-sleeved wrists or bare-arm evening gowns.

Wiener-bean Casserole Fills Economical Need

By MARY MOORE

Your letters reflect your needs: economical meat recipes, nourishing meals, dishes to be prepared in advance and of course, popular flavors with children. Quite a tall order.

Occasionally I can please all of our readers in one recipe and I think today is one of those times.

Wiener-Bean Bake Barbecue Style fills all of the requirements mentioned with a plus that the adults will like it too.

WIENER-BEAN BAKE
BARBECUE STYLE
(Serves 8)

1½ cups white navy beans
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. finely chopped onion (or bottled flakes)
2½ cups peeled, chopped tomatoes or one 20-oz. can
One 6-oz. can tomato paste
½ cup water
1 tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ cup brown sugar
1 lb. wieners cut in ½" pieces diagonally
8 triangles Canadian processed cheese

Wash and soak beans in water to cover by at least 2" above beans, for 4 hrs., or overnight. Cook covered in simmering salted water until tender — about 1½ hrs. Drain. In very large frying pan melt butter and add onion and cook until soaked with butter but not brown at all. Add and mix in tomatoes, tomato paste, water, chili powder, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, sugar and wieners. Turn into large 3-qt. casserole and bake covered at 250 deg. Fahr. 2-2¼ hrs. Then cover top with triangles of processed cheese, cover, and return to oven and heat until cheese melts.

NOTE: If it is your part to take something filling to a barbecue party or to a church supper Wiener-Bean Bake is a good choice.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE WI

The September meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at Scott's Uniondale Hall with Mrs. Ross Fenning as hostess. Correspondence was read by Mrs. Grenville Sine who was replacing Mrs. Edison Sine. A short course (desserts) will be given at Stirling with Mrs. Pat Tracey as leader from Uniondale.

A tour is planned for Oct. 1 to Campbellford to tour the chocolate factory and a jewellery factory.

Short readings were given by Mrs. Grenville Sine, Mrs. Howard Richards.

District presidents, Mrs Cecil Jeffery was present and chose as her topic, "Who's Delinquent?" She dealt with the raising of children through love and discipline; teaching that young people can and will if their parents are the true citizens they should be.

A contest; demonstration of quilt, net hat, and knitted vest concluded the meeting.

LILIES LAST

Lilies are usually the last plants to go in the ground before winter because growers get fatter bulbs if they dig them as late as possible.

Ann Landers

Still Some Discussion On Male Operation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband as well as the husbands of several of my friends would like you to answer some questions about the male operation, called vasectomy. We are all in our late 30s and early 40s and do not want more children.

Can you tell us why this completely foolproof operation cannot be performed in an Illinois hospital? According to someone who knows, vasectomies are done only in the office of certain physicians — after hours, behind closed doors.

Why should respectable citizens be forced to behave like criminals in order to terminate their child-bearing days? And why can males in California or New York have this surgery openly, while in Illinois they are forced to go underground? May we hear from you on this? — PAST 40.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR PAST: Your letter is an excellent example of accepting as fact hearsay stuff which is not true.

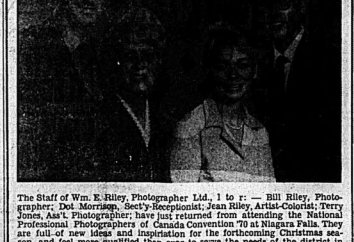
According to Dr. James Campbell, the President of Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, the vasectomy is a legal operation in Illinois and about half of these surgical procedures are performed in hospitals. It is such a simple operation that it can be performed in a physician's office, and end is relatively painless. The patient can walk away and return to work in a couple of days. And now may I add a word to correct another mistaken notion. No operation is completely foolproof. Please read the next letter.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 38 years old. My husband is 40. After five children and three miscarriages, we decided to have a vasectomy. That was in March. I am now in my fourth month of pregnancy. What happened? Well, it seems my doctor decided it wasn't necessary to go back and have his seminal fluid checked six weeks after the surgery.

At first I couldn't believe I was pregnant. I told my doctor it was impossible because my husband had had a vasectomy. The doctor said I must be seeing someone on the side or the operation was "unsuccessful." When he asked if my husband had returned to his physician for a sperm count I said I didn't know but I would ask.

If all, I asked, and of course he had not. So please, Ann, tell your readers that they should not assume the operation was a success until they get the doctor's word for it. — JUNE IS BUSTING OUT ALL OVER.



DEAR JUNE: Thank you. You told them, and in a most convincing manner.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am going with a man who is separated from his wife. He pays rent for a cheap room where he hangs some of his clothes but he is never there. He stays with me from Monday through Thursday. On Friday he takes a suitcase and goes to his wife's place. She is a big slob and Ike cares nothing for her but he is nuts about his children.

When he moved back here on Monday we got into a big fight. I told him the next time he goes to his wife's place he can stay there because I am fed up with spending every weekend alone. He got mad and yelled, "Women are a dime a dozen but a man can never replace his children." I love him but I don't like being second in his life. Should I insist that he make a choice and take my chances? — GREEN EYES.

DEAR EYES: He has already made the choice. You fall in the dime-a-dozen category because "a man can never replace his children." Get smart and replace HIM.

Marmora IODE Chapter Enjoys Talk on Weaving

MARMORA — Mrs. Antoinette Sutherland, of the YWCA in Peterborough, was guest speaker at the September meeting of Marmora Chapter, IODE.

"Handwoven by Antoinette" is a familiar trademark to those who know weaving, for Mrs. Sutherland is the Eastern Ontario representative for the Ontario Handweavers and Spinners, and has represented them recently at meetings of the World Crafts Council in Peru and in Ireland. She is also a former IODE officer in the Dawson City, Yukon, Chapter.

During the course of her talk, she demonstrated the old "Irish" method of spinning, still used in remote parts of the world, the common spinning wheel, and carding and rolling the wool. She used wool from Willie, her grey poodle, and "grease wool" from the merino sheep in Australia. She also exhibited a sports coat made of mink-tweed, material custom-made for a fishing club in New Brunswick, of which she had woven the first eleven yards. A lively question period followed.

Mrs. Sutherland was introduced by Miss Penny Wright, a former student of hers at Bishop Strachan School in Toronto.

The meeting at the home of Mrs. H. H. Wright, was preceded by a potluck supper of infinite variety and excellence, with the Regent, Mrs. W. M. Regan, conducting the business after Mrs. Sutherland's presentation.

Donations were voted to Marmora Public Library, Beechgrove School at Kingston Psychiatric Hospital, and various other projects.

Mrs. Gordon Bennett, educational secretary, asked for used dictionaries to be sent to the IODE adopted school at Davis Inlet. She has IODE 1971 calendars on hand now.

Mrs. Howard Bleecker distributed materials for the CNIB canvas, and announced plans for an opportunity sale in October.

Doll Museum Fills Need and Gains Friends and Funds

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Thank you from the bottom of my heart for granting my request for old dolls and toys for my "Museum of Yesteryears' Childhood". Many tourists from the U.S.A. and Canada have visited and been overwhelmed by all the nostalgic childhood memories.

For me, just to see people's reactions to my collection is payment enough for me as my husband, our son and I are fortunate to have healthy limbs, so this is why I want to give the money to help those less fortunate. All the contributions (in admissions) have gone into a sealed bank provided by the Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Manitoba.

Through your column I've added many wonderful friends across Canada and also some lovely old dolls, a miniature desk, oodles of old story books, precious little china doll dishes, and a doll's corset! Still needed badly are boys' toys (trains, cars, trucks, games, 35 years old and older). In the doll family there's "always room for one more".

I'd still appreciate hearing from anyone who has a treasured plaything (even a wee pair of baby boots from long ago) who would be interested in putting it into my collection. — Centennial Rae.

Dear Rae: Good for you. It is wonderful what one person with a big idea can sure to happen, if she is willing to believe in it and work for it hard enough.

* * *

Dear Doris: "Ardent Music Lover" is a person who shares the same views as I have. It was the book by Dale Carnegie which also opened my eyes.

I believe that one can face any difficult situation with the right attitude of mind. I am also interested in music. I play my guitar. Music has a magic, especially when your spirits are down.

I am eager to meet my sibling. — Fred.

Dear Fred: O.K., it is a lovely thought, but let's get practical. How can I link you two up when I have no other name for you but Fred?

Please write in again, identifying yourself with your complete name and enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: My sister - in - law made a great fuss when our first son was born, sending cards and flowers. Then she said she was never thankful for all this — which is simply not true.

We don't exchange gifts of any kind because we don't speak, so why take gifts? She says she is going to send our son a birthday present with five dollars because she treats all her nephews the same. Are we supposed to keep the present or return it to her?

My brother (who is very frail and nervous) does not say anything because he wants to keep his family together. She has destroyed all friends they ever had because of her bossiness and everything must be done her way. — Family Row.

Dear Row: Oh, brother! Scorn is one thrives on mischief-making. It is a sort of excitement which keeps life popped up for her — but on what a level!

If the gift comes, break your end of the silence barrier by taking it back to her. Tell her your son will enjoy it if it is a token of love, but if she does it for appearances, why bother?

"Not speaking" is a self-narrowing technique which belongs in the dim ages. Your Sis - in - law should be reminded that she hurts everyone, including herself, by carrying a chip on her shoulder.

(Please make letters as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYDON

Mother: "You just sit there until you eat your vegetables. You have to learn to like things that are good for you. You can't live on hamburgers and fruit."

Serve a tiny portion of vegetables on a child's plate and have her try at least one taste, not because it's good for her, but because she might like it. Eventually she may even like it.

Make as little fuss as possible about a child's likes and dislikes of food, and don't use punishment to force her to eat a certain food. This will not help her learn to enjoy it.

Many Commercial Driver-training Schools Are Profit-conscious

MONTREAL (CP) — Commercial driver-training schools are more profit-conscious than they are safety-conscious, in the view of the general manager of the Provinces of Quebec Safety League.

"Commercials schools don't care about motor safety or rules of the road," said Paul Lebeouf in a recent interview. "All they care about is selling lessons."

Although provincial governments require that commercial driving schools be licensed, they generally do not require that each instructor hold a teaching permit.

"Often the commercial instructors are men who just teach in their spare time, to earn a little extra money," said Mr. Lebeouf.

Dealers provide the cars and the instructors are paid "about $2 for the first three hours of lessons, $3.25 for the next couple of hours, maybe $2.50 for the sixth and seventh lessons, and so on."

"Naturally they want to sell as many lessons as they can. But it's the schools, not the instructors, who are making the real money."

Most schools offer a minimum of one hour of driving rules and theory and the remaining time is spent behind the wheel, steering and turning corners.

"Steering the car is nothing," said Mr. Leboeuf. "Visit any farm area and you'll see seven-year-olds driving the tractor. They don't have any trouble steering. It's the judgment they lack."

Such youngsters were similar to persons who drove cars without a thorough knowledge of the rules, pourtesies and customs of the road.

The safety league, sponsored by numerous large firms whose employees drive trucks and cars, offers a 27-hour driver-training course for $35. Only six hours are spent behind the wheel.

The other 21 hours are taken up with tests of a driver's vision and reflexes, his judgment in varied situations, his knowledge of highway regulations, the mechanical aspects of a car's operation and even how to fill out an accident report.

"You'd be surprised at how many people don't know what information to get from the other drivers involved in an accident," Mr. Leboeuf said.

Besides testing and instructing drivers for the Montreal post office, Bell Canada and several insurance firms, the league provides training for high school teachers who wish to offer similar courses to students after school.

Members of the public are also invited to take the league course, the only one recognized by the Canadian Underwriters Association. Rates for teen-agers are reduced to $22 for the 27-hour course. An eight-hour defensive driving class is available for $5.

The league uses only permanent instructors, and recommends that drivers undergo stringent tests every five years—more often after the age of 40.

Meanwhile, there is little chance to determine whether a commercial driving school is ethical before signing up for a course, he said, adding that he could not think of even one he would recommend.

"We get many complaints about them, as does the Better Business Bureau. One woman phoned us to say she has spent over $100 on lessons and still can't pass the driving test.

"There is nothing we can do. It's up to the transport department."

Educational Program for UNICEF Organized

Hallowe'en for UNICEF is already a familiar operation in towns and cities across Canada including Belleville. But not usually realized, however is its size. In three hours over 600,000 children collect about $700,000, mostly in pennies and nickels. But this is just not a fund raising program.

In preparing for Hallowe'en the children learn about the countries and children they will help; and gain an understanding of the world's problems.

Planning for this educational program locally began under the direction of E. G. Runacres, Director of Education, Hastings Board of Education, C. G. Mersereau, acting superintendent of Separate Schools, and J. Cousins. This year all the students in Hastings County will have the opportunity of learning about the work of the United Nations and the United Nations' Children's Fund, and sharing their fun at Hallowe'en.

Chairman for the new Hastings UNICEF committee will be Bernard Wright, principal of Parkdale School.

Lost on School Job

Contractor Asks Compensation

Hastings county board of education staged its own unheralded mini rock festival over the last two years.

But it was hardly a quiet event, for it involved the blasting out of part of the pre-Cambrian shield in the backyard of Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc.

It did share one similarity with the musical events — it operated at a loss, and the contractor, Ball Brothers Construction Company of Kingston, wants to recover some of the expenses.

L. J. Eskritt, an engineer with the construction company, appeared before the school board Monday night to detail his company's woes during the construction of the $2.5 million addition at the Madoc school.

The construction was beset by more than the rock problems. A record number of subcontractors went broke during the course of the job, leaving Ball Brothers to pick up the extra cost incurred.

Although four sub-contractors had to pull out due to insolvency, it was the electrical sub-contractor who put the construction company behind the eight ball, Mr. Eskritt told the board.

When the electrical company went broke, Ball Brothers could have retendered, delaying the project by three to five months. Instead, to get the addition finished and opened by this September, the company picked up the contract itself, for a loss of about $50,000.

Mr. Eskritt came to the board to ask for some compensation for the extra rock removal and the loss on the electrical work.

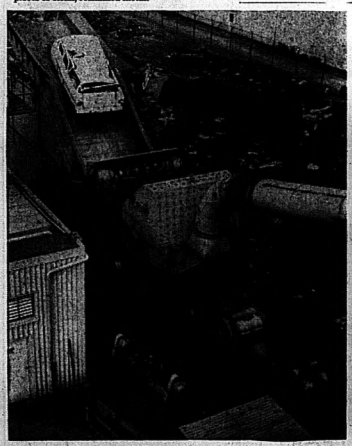
"If we had made a reasonable profit on the job, I wouldn't be here tonight," the engineer told the board.

His company's original estimate for rock removal costs was $5,000, a sum that seemed "impractically low" to architect Irving Boigon. Other companies had asked as much as $33,000 for the job, with the tender average coming in $11,322.

Ball Brothers found unexpected soil - surface conditions on the site that pushed the actual cost to $13,700, and his spokesman asked for some compensation for the extra expense.

Trustee Carl D. Brant remarked that granting compensation for the rock and electrical work might set a dangerous precedent.

"The next contractor we hire might get his costs low with the idea of picking up the difference at the end of the job," he said.



The board heard its architect say that in his opinion Ball Brothers claims were correct and the board had some moral responsibility to make good some part of the loss.

But trustees decided to seek the advice of the board's solicitor before assigning any more public funds to the company.

An old wreck is dropped onto a tilt-table on a huge car-eating machine at the International Iron and Metal Co., in Hamilton, Ont. When the table tilts, the old car slides down into the machine's jaws where it is chewed up into small pieces of clean, reclaimed metal.

The Auto Eater

This is an over-all view of a huge car-eating machine at Intermetco Limited's International Iron and Metal Co., operation at Hamilton, Ont. A car slides down into the machine's jaws where it is reduced to flat-sized chunks of reclaimed metal for use by steel manufacturers. The machine is equipped with anti-pollution devices to prevent emission of smoke and fumes.

Fire Prevention Can Be Effective

Every year Canada celebrates Fire Prevention Week in that week in October that contains the three dates of Oct. 8, 9 and 10.

This year will be no exception as Fire Prevention Week in Canada and in Belleville begins Oct. 4 and runs to Oct. 10.

This year is the 99th anniversary of a specific fire that Fire Prevention Week commemorates — the great Chicago fire that began Oct. 8, 1871 and lasted for three days.

It was this fire, blamed on the traditional Mrs. O'Leary's cow, that became the be-all and end-all of fires.

In 1871, Chicago and the entire midwest was subjected to a prolonged heat wave and there were several fires in the city.

The granddaddy of them all began supposedly with a cow kicking over a lantern and the result was the loss of 250 lives and 17,430 Chicago buildings. Estimated loss then was evaluated at $175 million.

It is the fire of Mrs. O'Leary's cow that serves as inspiration for today's fire prevention and the loss that it can avert.

Belleville Fire Inspector Paul Stephenson explained the reason for the huge blaze when he recounted the tale to The Intelligencer.

"It could have been averted if there had been a proper building code, a proper fire prevention inspection program and a fire department with adequate manpower and equipment," he explained

Mr. Stephenson explained that codes, inspections and the fire department go hand-in-hand to prevent fires.

"You just can't have one without the other or fire protection becomes about as effective as a two - legged stool," he said.

Fire prevention itself, he explained, has paid off through inspections and education of the public. Loss of life has remained almost constant in the past 10 years despite population increases. The ratio of loss to property value has steadily declined.

In 1968 there were $4,657 fires in Canada. In 1969 that figure dropped to 94,369 thus maintaining the downward trend that has characterized the past decade. In 1969 there were 84,341 fires.

Deaths by fire have also dropped steadily. Deaths in 1967 amounted to 681. In 1968 654 people died and in 1969 633.

Of that 633 people, the toll was 316 men, 126 women and 181 children.

Property destroyed in 1969 was estimated at $191 million.

Engineer to Direct Steel Beam Job

City council will hire a consulting engineer to prepare plans and supervise the installation of a steel beam recommended as a safety measure for Belleville's old city hall.

Installation of the steel beams was recommended several years ago by a Trenton engineer who was hired to do a check of the city hall and list any safety measures thought required.

For financial reasons council had delayed installation but has now decided to go ahead with the work.

Look Ma, No Claws

Mother is always right and Henry Doorly Zoo's five-week-old jaguar is proof of it. The baby jaguar was injured when its mother bit down on the little animal's front legs. After putting splints on both broken front legs, zoo officials decided to keep the baby away from its mother until the legs have healed.

Rezoning Application Sent Back to Board

Belleville Alderman Arthur Keegan is critical of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board which has recommended against a rezoning application to permit construction of more than 100 town housing units in the city's Sidney Street area.

The alderman says the recommendation which was up for council approval Monday denies much needed housing for low income families.

On motion of the alderman the recommendation was referred back to the planning board for reconsideration.

Ald. Keegan told council that no one had opposed the application by Almo Developments for rezoning to allow construction of 11 apartment buildings comprising 10 units each.

He said there were many houses in the $25,000 and up class remaining unsold in the city, while there was a definite need for lower cost housing.

The average family could not afford the high down-payments and heavy monthly payments involved in purchasing the higher priced homes, he said.

Belleville, like certain other Ontario municipalities was in danger of becoming "over-planned and underdeveloped," he said.

Ald. Gerald Joyce endorsed Al. Keegan's remarks.

He agreed that many new single family residences were remaining unsold.

"There is a market for housing for low income families," he said.

At the same time, however, council yesterday gave approval to another suggested resolution by the planning board which okayed the request of Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. for rezoning in the College-Moira Street area to allow construction of proposed multiple attached housing.

Mr. Rollins proposes construction of approximately 60 town house apartment units in the Prince of Wales and College Street area.

This Was A Car

Corporal Is Killed In Crash

TRENTON (Staff) — A 46-year-old serviceman based at CFB Trenton, died this morning on Highway 401 two miles east of here.

Cpl. John Charles Lanning of 112 Mobile Village, RR 2, Trenton was alone in his car at 5:30 a.m. when the single car accident occurred.

The Lanning vehicle left the pavement and crashed into the concrete support pillars of the county road 28 overpass as it proceeded down the westbound lane of the freeway.

Dr. Brian O'Flannigan pronounced the man dead at the scene.

New Plant For Tweed

TWEED (Staff) — A new electronics firm which opened recently here has been the subject of controversy with Belleville union officials.

The firm, Avenger Electronics, was thought to be located plant of Amplifone of Canada Ltd. which shut down in Belleville operations a month ago.

The new plant, operated by E. A. Mundorff is reported by the owner to be completely disassociated with Amplifone, the company for which Mr. Mundorff was production manager until plant operations ceased.

In a telephone interview yesterday, Mr. Mundorff explained that the new plant manufactures electronic components such as transformers for radios and televisions. These products are for sale throughout the country.

Employing between 25 and 30 workers, the plant began production with two men in two buildings at 319 Victoria St. North on Sept. 2.

Plans to open the new firm were put into motion following the cessation of duties at Mr. Mundorff's old job.

Production manager of Amplifone since 1955 when he helped establish the Belleville plant, he has already established contacts for his electronic components and the new firm is settling into increased production.

Canada Geese On Way South

The arrival of bad weather conditions in the James Bay area of Northern Ontario has again started the fall migration of the Canada geese.

A few geese have been bagged by district hunters since the opening of the hunting season, and last evening a large flock of Canada geese was seen winging its way south over the city.

The geese were flying high in their familiar V-shaped formation and apparently had little intention of stopping in the Bay of Quinte district.

But William Bittle with the fish and wildlife section of the Tweed branch of Lands and Forests says the Sept. 29 date for geese flying south is not too unusual.

"There has been snow and bad weather conditions in the north and Canada geese like to take advantage of the prevailing winds to start their migration south," the Tweed officer said.

However, Mr. Bittle noted that if the weather turns mild, these early geese will halt their southward migration and remain in this area for a while.

"Some of them might stop over in the Quinte area and others around the Finger Lakes District in New York State," he said.

High flying geese seen passing over Belleville in all probability would be headed for the Finger Lakes district south of Lake Ontario Mr. Bittle said.

Rookie Milt May Pitches Pirates to Fifth Straight Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie Milt May kept the newly-crowned National League's east champion Pittsburgh Pirates sizzling while newcomer Mike McQueen cooled Cincinnati Reds, the runaway west winners, gaining his first major league triumph.

May hyped Pittsburgh's 7-2 victory over Bob Gibson and St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night, striking a two-run pinch double that snapped a 1-1 tie in a four-run Pirates' eighth inning. The Pirates, who clinched the east title Sunday, ran their winning streak to five in a row.

McQueen, a rookie left-hander, stopped the Reds on seven hits for his first complete game in the majors. He's 1-3, ending Cincinnati's two-game winning string.

In other National League games, New York Mets stopped Chicago Cubs 3-1, Montreal Expos routed Philadelphia Phillies 10-3, Houston Astros trimmed San Francisco Giants 3-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers whipped San Diego Padres 8-2.

May, Pittsburgh catcher recently recalled from the Pirates' Columbus farm club, helped send Gibson to his seventh loss with his double to right. Gibson has won 23 games this season and is a leading contender for the Cy Young Award.

The veteran, right-hander, however, snapped a club strikeout mark. He has 274 for the season, erasing his own record of 270. Richie Hebner slammed a two-run homer for the Pirates in the ninth.

Lake Walker, Pittsburgh's curveballing lefty, went the first six innings, allowing one run in his final tune-up before the best-of-five playoff opens in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Since the All-Star break the Pirates have won 29 and lost 32 games while the Reds, who ran away with the west title early, have a 38-32 mark in the same span.

McQueen also blooped a hit, driving in the Braves' first run in a two-run seventh before Felix Millan knocked in another with a single. John Bench rapped a sacrifice fly in the eighth for the Reds' run.

Jerry Koosman tossed a seven-hitter and Donn Clendenon drove in a pair of runs with a double as the Mets moved past the Cubs by one game into the second spot in the east. Both clubs have two games remaining with each other.

John Bateman drove in four runs with a double and homer and winning pitcher Dave Roske knocked in two runs with a double in the Expos rout. Bob Bailey added his 20th homer for Montreal while Deron Johnson had two RBI for the Phils.

Denis Menke ripped three hits, including a triple, and drove in two runs as the Astros moved to their fifth straight triumph. The loss dropped the Giants one-half game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers in their second-place west battle.

Maury Wills keyed a four-run Dodger sixth inning with a two-run single as Sandy Vance, with relief from Pete Mikkelsen, won his seventh game.

On Top of Things

Montreal Expo catcher John Bateman, shown here on top of St. Louis Cardinal Tom Simmons, was on top of Philadelphia Phillies' pitching Tuesday night. Twins Waste 27-man Effort

Bill Rigney got more punch in the Minnesota Twins' offense by platooning his platooners, but the Twins still came up short—by an extra point.

Rigney's Twins wasted a 27-man effort Tuesday when they bowed to Kansas City Royals 14-13 on a run-scoring single in the 12th inning by relief pitcher Ted Abernathy.

The Royals pressed 22 players into action as the two clubs set an all-time manpower mark of 49. The previous record of 48 was set by New York Giants and Chicago Cubs in a 1963 game.

"It seems like quite a while since we've gotten a lot of runs," Rigney complained Monday night after the Twins nipped the Royals 1-0 on a squeeze bunt.

The Minnesota attack promptly came alive with a barrage of 20 hits—five of them by shortstop Leo Cardenas. But the Royals matched the Twins' total and topped them in the scoring column when Abernathy connected against rookie Pete Hamm, Rigney's sixth pitcher.

"I had a game plan," said the Twins' pilot. "Jim Perry was going to pitch five innings, Stan Williams three and Ron Perranoski one.

Baltimore Orioles, who take on the Twins Saturday in the opener of the American League pennant playoffs, swept a doubleheader from previous Washington Senators 3-2 in 10 innings and 13-1 in 11. Boston Red Sox overcame New York Yankees 5-4; Cleveland Indians trimmed Detroit Tigers 5-2; California Angels pounded Chicago White Sox 9-2, and Oakland Athletics edged Milwaukee Brewers 4-3.

The Twins took a 9-5 lead into the ninth inning, but the Royals exploded for six runs—Ed Kirpatrick sending them ahead with a two-run double.

Cardenas' run-scoring single keyed a tying Minnesota rally in the bottom of the ninth and he drove in two more with a single in the 11th after the Royals had taken a 13-11 lead in the top half.

The visitors then pushed over the winner on a walk and singles by Bill Sorrell and Abernathy, their seventh pitcher.

Mark Belanger's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning of the opener and Frank Robinson's pinch double in the 11th of the nightcap delivered the winning runs for the Orioles, who have won nine consecutive games five of them in overtime.

The Senators have lost 12 in a row.

Mike Cuellar worked eight innings in the opener in a final tuneup for the Orioles' starting assignment against Perry and the Twins at Minnesota Saturday.

Carl Yastrzemski's third hit, a run-scoring single in the ninth, capped a three-run Boston comeback and lifted his average to a league-high .325.

Steve Hargan ran his pitching mark to 11-3 as the Indians handed Mickey Lolich a 19-game winner last season, his 19th setback.

Clyde Wright hurled a five-hitter for his 22nd victory as the Angels blweaned past Chicago and rookie Bobby Brooks crashed a homer and RBI double in Oakland's victory over the Brewers.

Yastrzemski Back on Top

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski winds up his dramatic bid for a fourth American League batting championship tonight, and win or lose the Boston Red Sox slugger is putting on a show a cause in the waning days of the season.

Yaz has banged out 11 hits in his last 16 at bats, climaxing the surge with a three-for-four night Tuesday in leading the Red Sox to a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

Even this late in the season, such a display was good enough to boost his average 10 points to .325 and into the league lead. Alex Johnson of California had clung to a slim advantage for the last week despite Yastrzemski's hot streak, but the Angels' outfielder couldn't match Yaz Tuesday night, going two for five in a victory over Chicago, and now trails with a .327 mark.

Yastrzemski gets his last chance to pad his lead tonight as the Red Sox finish their season against the Yankees in Fenway Park. Then, because of the vagaries of the schedule plus the time difference between East and West, Yaz will have to sit by helplessly while Johnson plays twice more against the White Sox—tonight in a game which probably won't start until the Red Sox game is over, and then Thursday when the Angels end their season.

Sports on All Fronts

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian lightweight champion Al Ford of Edmonton extended his unbeaten streak to 22 bouts with a unanimous decision Tuesday night over Percy Hales, British Commonwealth champion.

Hales, from Kingston, Jamaica, fought Ford in a possible 10-round match before 2,500 fans.

Weighing in at 133 pounds, the 20-year-old Canadian defended the 132-pound Jamaican with scores of 48-44, 48-45 and 48-45.

Hales, 28, has fought four former world champions and has won 29 bouts. This was his ninth loss and he had promised Ford a title match if the Canadian won. No title match has yet been negotiated.

* * *

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Heavyweight Mac Foster, 224½, Fresno, was knocked down veteran Zora Folley, 228, Chandler, Ariz., six times Tuesday night for a first-round knockout.

Folley failed to get up after the sixth knockdown.

Under California boxing rules the three knockdown rule does not apply as it does in most states, and the referee can continue the bout as long as he feels both fighters are safe.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Tuesday traded Jerry Andreatta, a second-year right winger, to St. Catharines Black Hawks for winger-defenceman Brian Shortreed. The Petes also traded goaltender Rick Simms to Niagara Falls Flyers on the condition that he makes the team.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals announced Tuesday the rehiring of manager Red Schoendienst of a seventh year and the firing of Cardinal coaches Billy Muffett and Dick Sisler. Schoendienst has been field boss of the National League baseball club since the resignation of the late Johnny Keane in October, 1964.

Rookie Quarterbacks Easy Meat for Wydareny

EDMONTON (CP) — What does a defensive halfback who is closing in on the Canadian Football League record for pass interceptions wish for?

"Rookie quarterbacks," says John Wydareny of Edmonton Eskimos.

"You can read them . . . they look for the receiver."

A case in point was John Eckman of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who substituted for injured veteran Joe Zuger in a game against the Eskimos Sept. 26.

Eckman had six passes intercepted. Wydareny got one, his 10th of the season, and moved to within one interception of the CFL season record he now shares with Don Sutherin of Toronto Argonauts.

The inexperienced quarterback, says Wydareny, will throw to the primary receiver 90 per cent of the time and "will seldom find a secondary receiver."

It's a different story with the veterans, such as Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders. "Lancaster keeps going like this," Wydareny said, moving his head rapidly from side to side.

"You need to be able to read Keeling (Jerry Keeling of Calgary Stampeders) but now he's looking off."

Quarterbacks also help defensive backs by tipping in favor a certain receiver. "You can usually tell from the pattern who the potential receiver will be.

On broken plays, where the defensive line forces the quarterback to scramble, "you pick up a man within your area and stay with him."

There have been a flock of interceptions this season, Wydareny says pass defenders are "doing nothing really new."

"I guess it's because there are so many new quarterbacks, and all the teams are emphasizing the pass."

Wydareny, 29, who was born in Hearst, Ont., and played college football at the University of Western Ontario, says it took four professional seasons for him to learn his craft.

JOHN WYDARENY

Wydareny was drafted by Toronto Argonauts in 1963. He spent three years with the Argonauts, then was traded to Edmonton.

The Eskimos appear to have developed a defensive punch—they whipped Hamilton 24-13—and things are easier for Wydareny, who plays the safety position.

"We (the defence) used to be on the field 60 to 70 per cent of the time, but the offence has carried more of the load in the last five games."

As the safety—the last line of defence—Wydareny always plays to the strong side of the opposing formation. In a man-to-man formation he decides with the halfback, Dick Dupuis or Jim Hendrill, which receiver he will cover, then goes straight back with his man.

In a zone defence, Wydareny backs up—always watching the receivers on the strong side.

On running plays, Wydareny holds back, waiting for the wide sweep.

"If the runner cuts in I'll come up to fill up the inside, but if he keeps going to the outside I'll hold off until he penetrates the first wave of tacklers."

He picks Herm Harrison of Calgary as the toughest man to defend against.

"When you hit him it's like hitting a tank, and he still holds on to the ball 99 per cent of the time anyway."

Wydareny is also chasing another CFL record, most yards on interception returns in a career. He has 666 yards, she behind Garney Henley of Hamilton.

Trenton fullback Dan Dow follows the blocking of Steve Keech in a Bay of Quinte senior football contest Tuesday. Dow carried the ball 40 times for 250 yards rushing and two touchdowns in the Tigers' 20-0 win over Moira. The junior Trojans took another step towards the defence of their COSSA title by downing Trenton 32-6 in the opening game of the high school doubleheader at Moira.

Senior Tigers Blank Moira; Junior Trojans Salvage Split

By ALAN TEEWORTH

"Both teams played well," said Trenton senior coach Tom Nigro. However, his Tigers played just a little better than the Moira Senior Trojans, taking a 20-0 Bay of Quinte football decision over the Trojans last night at the losers' home field.

The score was not entirely indicative of the play, as the Moira defence held down the explosive Trenton offence which racked up 77 points in a game last week with Centre Hastings. The two teams held each other at bay in the first quarter, without a point being scored.

Late in the second quarter, Trenton inserter 11 t e shacker Jack Hilton recovered a Moira fumble to set up the first score of the game. Dan Dow then completed an option pass to move the ball to the Moira 5-yard line. Then after a 15 yard penalty and another loss of four yards, quarterback Don Farrell threw to Lee Nicholson for the major. The convert attempt of Gary Keech was wide. The teams went to a well deserved half-time rest with Trenton leading 6-0.

Early in the third quarter, the Trojans were forced to punt on a third down situation. Trenton fielded the ball on the 34-yard line, but penalties put the ball back to the Tigers' 14.

This proved to be more incentive for the yellow and black squad, as they moved the ball 86 yards in 10 offensive plays, with fullback Dan Dow carrying nine of them.

Dow capped the charge with a short five-yard sprint for the second touchdown of the game. Keech booted the convert to make the score stand at 13-0 for the Tigers.

The final scoring of the game took place when Doug Grady intercepted a Robbie Matthews' pass to pave the way for Dan Dow's second score. Dow carried the ball three times until it reached the goal-line. Gary Keech provided his second point of the game to end the scoring at 20-0.

Losing coach Dan Listner, naturally disappointed with the loss, did seem pleased with his defence, especially the linebackers, and, in particular, end Dick Spenser. The bounding pants of Dean Gonsilus also helped in balling out the offense at times.

Trenton's Tom Nigro supported the outstanding defence of the Trojans' and he recognized inserter linebacker Bob Raycroft to be the big gun for the Moira defence.

The offensive standout for Trenton was without a doubt, Dan Dow. He carried no less than 40 times for 250 yards, as well as scoring two of the three Trenton touchdowns.

Fullback Pete Hart backed up Dow for the Trojans, carrying 15 times for 126 yards, with Jim Lemon next in line with 12 for 93 yards.

The Moira junior Trojans dropped the senior contest with a 32 - 6 drubbing of the Trenton juniors. Halfbacks Peter Stadlowski and Dave Rutherford each ran for 2 TD's, with Steve Kirby adding the other major.

Stadlowski was the running star of the game, running back a Trenton kickoff 100 yards for one of his touchdowns. Rutherford added two more points on a conversion. Larry Kirby looked extremely good on the defence for Moira.

Dow Goes Good for Trenton To Tune of Two Touchdowns

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Reporter

When Trenton High School quarterbacks ask, "Wouldn't a Dow go good now?" that means workhorse fullback Dan Dow is going to get the ball again.

Yesterday, the Moira Trojans were left wishing that Prohibition would hit the Tigers', attack as Dow jarred, plowed and twisted his way through the Moira defence for 250 yards and two touchdowns in his team's 20-0 win.

The 17-year-old grade '13 student was more than willing to credit his offensive line and backfield mates as the main reason for his success. "Our linemen played really well," he claimed, "they were opening holes all over the place. You can't go anywhere without help from that offensive line."

Halfback Jim Ransom was still another factor in turning Dow loose for his outstanding performance against Moira. "Jim's a good runner himself", claims Dow, "but the position he plays in our. I - formation means that he comes in for a lot of blocking work. Whenever a play went for good yardage it's because he was able to take out the linebacker, and Moira's linebackers were pretty good."

While the line and Ransom did provide blocking help it was still the six foot, 190 - pound fullback who was mainly responsible for making the Tiger offence click as the Trojans took away Trenton's outside running and quarterback Don Farrell seldom went to the pass.

Dow lugged the ball 40 times altogether, most of the time on tough up-the-gut runs through the heart of the Moira defence. The off - tackle running was right up Dow's alley.

"I'd much rather run inside than outside," he says. "You get some pretty good shots along the sidelines, but up the middle you can get your head down and protect yourself."

One thing that endears Dow to Trenton coach Tom Nigro is his particular ability to gain yardage in the tough games. "I don't know what it is", says the Tiger fullback, "unless maybe it's because I get the ball more in some games. You're tired at first, but once you get used to it you can establish a running pattern."

Dow, who hopes to attend university next year, is able to do more than just pick up the tough inside yardage. Showing excellent speed for a fullback (4.9 seconds in the 40 - yard dash) he can go outside, and also uses his open field running as a punt returner.

In addition to his running, Dan shoulders much of the Trenton aerial attack with his option passes. The threat of a pass also helps his running game. "If you throw a few times it keeps the defensive backs from coming up too quickly", he notes, "and you can sometimes pick up a couple of extra yards by faking a pass."

He has also been forced to fill in at defensive back when injuries have cut down the strength of the Tiger personnel. Despite the fact that he turns in a highly creditable defensive showing, (including a pass interception against Moira Tuesday), Dow still stresses a marked preference for offence.

Both Nigro and Dow himself recognize his greatest weakness as not driving until he has been hit. As the player puts it, "I just don't get my legs moving enough until someone makes contact."

Wearing number 13 on his sweater, Dan has so far managed to shove all the bad luck to the opposition in his club's opening wins over Centre Hastings and Moira. The toughest test for the fullback and his Trenton teammates will undoubtedly come next Wednesday in their battle with the defending Bay of Quinte champion Quinte Saints.

Hull Joins Junior Loop

In that first game, Hull Volants will take on defending champion Ottawa Rangers. The Volants are the replacement in the five-team league for Hull Nationals, and will be going with one of the three new coaches.

Lally Lalonde, coach of the Beavers for the last two years, has given over to Marc Rouet. Denny Labine now is coach of Pembroke Kings, replacing Bill Higginson, and Stanley Hall is the new coach of Brockville Braves.

Only Ottawa and Smiths Falls Bears will be under the same leadership.

Even the league president has changed, with Alf Taylor replacing John Ahearn, and Norm Saunders of Brockville being named to the new post of league secretary-treasurer.

The Rangers are smart as the team to beat again this year under coach Jacques Plante, despite having to fill eight spots behind graduating players.

Only consolation for the club is the expected return of goalie Joe Stuppel, last year named as the first all-star team and winner of the league's goaltending championship.

Top replacements appear to be defencemen Norm Martelle, Jim Quinn and Bob Woods and forwards Bill Fitz and John Harper.

Brunet had more than 80 candidates in the Hull training camp, including most of last year's Beavers.

What he expects to be a key move is switching rugged John Cobarg to centre from defence to put some muscle in the Volants' attack.

With 15-year-old Rick Bourgeois back in goal and Serge Prud'homme, Richard Le Cuyer, Guy Legault and Michel Cayer on the forward line, Hull will have lots of speed. But only Guy Roy and Brian Hook, back after an eye injury, have shown well on the blueline and that's where Brunet has his problems.

The most set club for the 40-game schedule may be that years from 40 games last season—appears to be Brockville, with only four players having graduated and defenceman Larry Robinson drafted by Kitchener-Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Second-team all-star Rick Droppo is back in goal and Hunt has 18 contenders to back him up in camp.

Only Steve Bajenduki has a depth of experience on defence, but Hunt appears to have five prospects for the other spots.

And with Gerry Temple and Al Duncan returning as forwards and rookies Kent Bugdon and Gerry Barbee setting right in, he appears to have few problems there.

Coach Al Rockburn of Smiths Falls is looking hard for some defencemen to go with holdover Dave McFadzel and rookie Steve Mantle, but the club appears set for forwards with Ken Richardson, Steve Hull, Bob Grier and Shawn Howard returning.

The most complete rebuilding job has been undertaken by Labine at Pembroke with only Rick Sampson and Murray Drew back from last year.

Wayne Maki Earns Canucks Tie In NHL Debut Against Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks came from behind twice Tuesday night and tied Chicago Black Hawks 2-2 in a hard-fought National Hockey League exhibition game in Vancouver.

The Canucks, making their NHL debut this season, scored late in the final period when Wayne Maki blasted a slapshot past Chicago goalie Tony Esposito.

In other games Tuesday, Oakland Seals scored four powerplay goals, defeating Philadelphia Flyers 6-2 at Oshawa, Ont., and New York Rangers edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3 at Kitchener, Ont.

Lou Angotti put the Hawks into the lead early in the second period when he fired a shot over Vancouver netminder George Gardner during a goal-mouth scramble.

Maki and Keith Magnussen to the dressing room for seven stitches to the head after a first-period brawl. Pat Quinn, Canuck defenceman, was ejected from the game for controlling his fight with Cliff Koroll.

The tie was Vancouver's second in seven exhibition games. They have four losses and one win. Chicago has three losses, one victory and one tie.

Defenceman Ron Stackhouse scored two Oakland goals and Tony Featherstone and Randy Rota added others.

Jean Guy Gendron scored the Flyers' goals.

Both teams now have won four and lost two exhibition games.

Rookie Syl Apps Jr. scored two goals as New York posted its fourth victory to go with two losses and two ties. Vic Hadfield and defenceman Larry Brown also notched New York goals.

Frank Mahovlich tallied twice for the Wings with Gordie Howe getting the other.

Centre Ron Ellis Tkaczuk and Jean Ratelle, all-star defenceman Brad Park and Hadfield returned to the Rangers' lineup after a two-week suspension for refusing to play New York's pre-season games.

Emile Francis, Ranger's general manager-coach, will meet with the players' representatives at Toronto today in an effort to settle contract disputes.

Elsewhere in the NHL, defenceman Serge Savard of Montreal Canadiens Tuesday received permission from club officials to speed up his rehabilitation program.

Savard suffered a broken right leg in a game against New York last March. He had been skating once a day for the last two weeks.

On Peterborough, Ont., Punch Imlach, general manager-coach of Buffalo Sabres, said defencemen Al Hamilton and forwards Skip Krake and Cliff Schmautz would miss the Sabres' NHL opener against Pittsburgh Penguins Oct. 10 because of injuries.

Hamilton is recovering from a broken foot suffered in a training camp scrimmage, Krake broke a finger in an exhibition game with Detroit and Schmautz is recovering from his second groin injury since camp opened Sept. 9.

Four Form Color Party

MONTREAL (CP) — Four National Hockey League clubs will start the 1970-71 season wearing colored skates, while a fifth likely will swing to the innovation by Christmas.

Los Angeles Kings, Oakland Seals, Pittsburgh Penguins and St. Louis Blues will pioneer the color scheme for skates in the NHL, with Detroit Red Wings slated to swing to color this season.

Hamilton Red Wings, London Knights, Kitchener Rangers and Ottawa 67s, all of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series, are expected to follow suit.

The swing to color was announced at a news conference Tuesday as the NHL and the Bauer Division of Greb Shoe Ltd. of Kitchener signed an agreement to make the Ontario skate manufacturer's product the official NHL skate.

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — Ron Laitar, 20, of Brantford's North Ridge golf club, won the windup event of the season for Ontario professional assistants Tuesday with a one-over par 73 at windswept Aurora Highlands.

The 1968 Ontario Junior golf champion took home $300 for his first tournament victory as a pro in the $1,800 event that saw most scores in the field of 69 register in the 80s.

The tournament was the last of five scheduled this year by the assistants section of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association Ontario branch.

Plante Wants No Part of New Rule

TORONTO (CP) — Goaltender Jacques Plante of Toronto Maple Leafs says he'll step aside if the new free face-off rule is called against his team while he's on the ice tonight in a National Hockey League exhibition game with Montreal Canadiens.

The rule, effective only in NHL exhibition games this year, can be called when a player shoots the puck into the stands or freezes it against the boards.

When the infraction occurs, the opposing team's centre lines up at the nearest faceoff point and makes any play he wants to — except for a direct shot on net — without an opposing centre to impede his efforts.

However, NHL president Clarence Campbell said there is no need for panic.

"I heard a lot of screams about it initially," he said, "but there were 21 exhibition games allocated in which the rule has been in effect."

"About half have been played and the deterrent effect has been achieved in these games. Players have stopped freezing along the fence, and goaltenders generally have stopped shooting the puck into the crowd."

The rule may be introduced into the NHL regular games next season.

Campbell Wary of Hockey Pools

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League, alarmed by last week's seizure of 60,000 hockey pool tickets by city police, announced Tuesday plans to take any possible pressure by pool operators off the league's local timekeepers.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, described the lotteries, prevalent here, as "rigged and fraudulent" and a means to separate the public from its money.

One man was arrested and goes on trial here Nov. 3 as the result of the latest seizure—with the police swoop engineered two weeks before the league's season-opener Oct. 10.

Four Montreal men were recently convicted in connection with an alleged plot to fix the Montreal Forum time clock as an aid to pool operators. They are to be sentenced Nov. 16.

During that incident the Forum's official time clock "was manipulated so as to ensure an odd or an even numbered second."

"This did not in any way influence the playing or the result of any game," Campbell said. "But we want to keep as clear as possible from any connection with these illegal lotteries."

Anti-hijacking Plan Meets with Criticism

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States received sharp criticism of its controversial anti-hijacking proposal Tuesday by delaying until Thursday a vote on the measure by the 22-member council of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Sharpest criticism came from Tunisia whose delegation was headed by A. K. Bickerl. He said the ICAO was not the place to discuss the U.S. proposal.

The proposal, first presented Sept. 18, calls for multilateral agreements in which ICAO member countries could suspend air service to any country that held an aircraft or its passengers for "international blackmail."

Mr. Bickerl said the ICAO "must not get into this business of sanctions."

"They are unrealistic and not legal for this council to discuss."

Mr. El Mejaty added: "I cannot accept any resolution calling for sanctions nor will suspension of services deter such acts. ICAO is a technical organization and only the United Nations should be discussing sanctions."

Jack Greenald, a member of the U.S. delegation, said he was disappointed that "real heroics" were being dragged across the path of the U.S. proposal.

"Mr. El Mejaty added: 'I cannot accept any resolution calling for sanctions'

When Parliamentary Session Ends, Few Measures Will Remain

OTTAWA (CP) — When the current parliamentary session ends, probably within a few days of its Oct. 7 resumption, the legislative mass laid out in the throne speech nearly a year ago will have seemed remarkably close to being dewoured.

While few major items will have to be carried over into the new session, an exception could be the bill to establish marketing boards for farm products. The Conservative Opposition appears ready for a long battle over this bill, and government sources say it may be reintroduced again in the new session, thus making its second appearance at a throne speech.

However, it still has a long way to go to match the present Canada Development Corporation, whose establishment was predicted in four throne speeches between 1963 and 1969.

Since the government has indicated its intention to go ahead with the CDC, it could make a fifth throne speech appearance in the new session.

Meanwhile, there will be few important carry-overs from the throne speech delivered to the opening of the current parliamentary session last Oct. 23.

After this speech was read by Governor-General Roland Michener, giving a rough outline of the government's legislative plans, Prime Minister Trudeau immediately presented a list of 71 bills covering all the areas mentioned in the speech.

Even parliamentary experts have trouble deciding specifically how many of these measures were passed, since some titles were subsequently changed slightly, some were superseded because of events, and others were incorporated in related bills.

But most of the projected legislation had been through the Commons by the time the summer recess began on June 26. By then, the Commons had given approval to 61 government bills—including four bills covering routine spending authority—along with 17 private members' bills, nine of which dealt with electoral boundaries.

There are still 10 government bills at various stages before the Commons. And 16 subject matters now are under study by Commons committees, ranging from Indian mortality to the government's proposed tax reform.

Not all the legislation going through the Commons first appears in the throne speech. Some bills, such as the one providing Prairie farmers with financial incentives to switch from wheat acreage to other crops, were announced later because of current events. Another bill in this category was the Arctic Waters Pollution Prevention Act, establishing a 100-mile-wide anti-pollution control zone in the north.

Some of the other important legislation, forecast in the throne speech and later approved, also dealt with water. One of these bills extended Canada's territorial waters to 12 miles from three, along with giving the government authority to draw exclusive Canadian shipping routes in areas requiring conservation protection.

Another water bill was the Canada Water Act to "restore, preserve and enhance water quality."

Among other major legislation approved during the session so far was a bill to establish an international development research centre—now in operation —several bills giving consumers greater information and protection in purchasing goods, and a new Canada Elections Act.

This act lowers the voting age in federal elections to 18 from 21.

Some of the other measures forecast in the throne speech and later approved: an increase in the federal minimum wage to $1.65 from $1.25; an increase of cabinet control over the Company of Young Canadians; outlawing of hate literature; establishment of a new federal law reform commission; establishment of a Canadian Saltfish Corporation; new safety standards for motor vehicles; and erasure of the records of rehabilitated criminals.

MacDonald Says NDP on Threshhold of Power

TORONTO (CP) — Seventeen years as leader of a democratic socialist party in Ontario is a dozen paper-filled boxes on the floor of Donald MacDonald's Queen's Park office, and a dozen more waiting at his home to be filled.

It is also the supreme optimism of a man who believes the building during 17 years in the political wilderness has brought the New Democratic Party to the eve of its election as the government of Ontario.

If that happens under the new leader to be chosen at a convention this weekend, 56-year-old Mr. MacDonald will have completed the mission he undertook when he entered provincial politics in 1951. He gave up his job as national Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation organizer and took over leadership of a demoralized, battered provincial party to establish the central Canada base he says is essential to a federal victory.

He said in an interview he now believes national acceptance of a viable socialist party is as inevitable as the provincial government he is certain the NDP will form in Ontario.

"It's almost like watching a clock; it's a hardly noticeable but inevitable process," he said of the trends he believes have been in favor of the NDP since 1963.

He does not believe it will matter in the long run whether Stephen Lewis or Walter Pitman succeeds him as provincial leader because "either man will advance the fortunes of the party where it counts, out on the hustings."

Mr. MacDonald believes the 1963 provincial election was a turning point in Ontario politics. It set in motion the trends he believes favor the NDP, confirmed John Robarts as premier for the first time and soon started what Mr. MacDonald believes is the continuing break-up of hard-core support for the Liberal party in Ontario.

Beginning with that election, Mr. MacDonald said, popular vote support for the NDP shows a steady increase in a trend that appears on a graph as an almost straight line upward. The graph shows that the NDP by-election victory in Middlesex South in 1969 was inevitable, he said.

Mr. MacDonald refused to predict the legislature standings after the next election, but said the NDP "will take two or three seats from the Conservatives for every one we take from the Liberals."

Mr. MacDonald said he has no other plans than to remain the legislature member for York South and his party's critic for two or three departments he will not name until a new leader has approved them. Some day there will be a book of reminiscences but "that is a long time in the future."

His paper-filled boxes will be sent to the archives of Queen's University in Kingston.

Mr. MacDonald smiled and waved a pipe at the boxes and stacks of Hansards in his office.

"The Hansards are utterly embarrassing," he said, "especially those from the days when I was critic for 18 government departments and filled positively hundreds of pages with my speeches."

That was after the 1953 provincial election, which left Mr. MacDonald as one of three CCF members of the legislature. Newspaper headlines of the time picture him as concentrating day after day on government scandals, a picture he insists is false.

Throughout the 1950s Mr. MacDonald prepared and delivered daily speeches, writing the attack on one government department the night after completion of debate on another. Then, in 1959, the NDP won two more seats and the election of Toronto's Ken Boyden "gave us our one-two punch."

"Once Ken joined me in debate there was no longer any doubt that we were the effective opposition, despite the larger number of Liberals, We held the stage."

Bourassa Will Reveal His Stand on Medicare

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government's stand in its dispute with medical specialists over medical care in the province is expected to be made known today at Premier Robert Bourassa's weekly news conference.

Observers say Mr. Bourassa will announce the timetable of the plan's implementation, and may reveal special cabinet meetings held this week.

Dr. Raymond Rebillard, president of the 4,000-member Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists and the strongest opponent of the medical care insurance legislation expected to go into effect by Nov. 1, met with Premier Bourassa Tuesday night to discuss the tense situation.

He told reporters after the 15-minute meeting that he handed over three documents to the premier's chief aide, but would not comment on the meeting.

The specialists want changes in the legislation to allow them higher fees for their services, a special opting-out clause for doctors and non-government control of medical standards.

Tuesday's cabinet meeting was the second in two days in connection with the dispute. The cabinet met for five hours in Montreal Monday.

"Today's meeting has been conclusive," Premier Bourassa said after Tuesday's two-hour session.

In Montreal, one hospital has placed some restrictions on admissions in anticipation of a possible strike by the specialists. The specialists have warned they are prepared to strike and have set up a financial pool in that eventuality.

However, they said Sunday they will give an advance warning of a strike to give hospitals a chance to set up emergency measures. They had issued no such warning by Tuesday night and indications are that a strike will not occur at least until the early part of next week if there is no progress.

Dr. Gilles Lepage, a surgeon at the Montreal Heart Institute, said Tuesday patients with non-urgent problems have been advised "to wait until this mess is straightened out."

Dr. J. S. Charters, executive director of Montreal's Children Hospital, said the institution has adopted a "wait-and-see attitude" in the dispute.

Premier Bourassa, also finance minister, has said since medical care legislation was passed last July this government has no intention of changing the substance of the legislation.

Dr. Raymond Desrosiers, executive secretary of the Quebec Federation of General Practioners, said Monday he will continue working even if the specialists strike.

The general practioners, also not satisfied with the medical care legislation, are still negotiating with the government.

Union Advocates Pay for Strikers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons labor committee responded with frank scepticism Tuesday to a union proposal that unemployment insurance benefits be paid to workers on strike or locked out by employers.

The measure was described by Rom Russell, organization director of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, as one which would serve to reduce strike action in Canada.

Employers, he told the committee, would "think twice before trying to starve their workers out if they knew the people qualified for unemployment insurance."

A touch of indignation was added to committee disbelief when the UEW representation also suggested that sole responsibility for unemployment rests with employers. The union's brief on the government's white paper for revision of the unemployment insurance scheme maintained the cost should be borne entirely by employers and government.

New Democrat, Ed Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby), a candidate to succeed party leader T.C. Douglas, cautiously asked if the idea was politically unlikely.

"Are you serious about this?" he asked.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

The Ontario Motor League has released a special study on school child pedestrian accidents. The study was undertaken by the Canadian Automobile Association as part of the annual planned pedestrian program appraisal. The facts and statistics were compiled from returns submitted by 151 cities and towns across Canada.

Summary of the findings of the survey were:

— Each year more than 40 children (aged 5 to 14) are killed and a further 1,500 of this age group injured as they walk to or from school.

— One out of every five child pedestrians killed in traffic was struck while enroute to or from school.

— 94 percent of all children injured enroute to or from school were struck at locations where no type of special type of school crossing protections, such as school safety patrols, adult guards or police officers, were in use.

— Youngsters 5 to 8 are involved in two out of every three child pedestrian accidents, particularly badly in traffic. particularly badly in traffic. There are more 5 and 6 year olds killed in pedestrian accidents than five 7 to 15 year-olds combined.

— Pedestrian accident patterns vary for individual age levels. Younger children for example, are more involved in noon-hour accidents, on weekends, summer months, late afternoon hours, and at non-intersection locations.

— For children aged 5 to 14, boys are involved in nearly 60 percent of pedestrian accidents. Among older children, however, girls are involved in an increasingly larger proportion of the accidents.

— One out of every three child pedestrians injured in traffic was struck while enroute to or from school.

— Over 75 percent of all school child accidents occur during daylight hours. However, the older the child, the greater the increase in night accidents. For some reason 5-year-olds experience a higher than might be expected night accident rate (17.6 per cent).

— Accident patterns vary comparing larger and smaller cities. In small cities, younger children suffer proportionately more accidents enroute to school. In larger cities, older children are represented in higher school travel accidents.

— Playing in the roadway is the most serious action leading to pedestrian accidents.

A good tip for every motorist comes packaged with his new car. This is the owner's manual or guide, a fascinating document filled with a seemingly endless flow of information.

Whether it's a flooded engine or chewing gum on the upholstery, the manual tells you how to solve the problem.

Many car owners do not read their owner's manual thoroughly and consequently have trouble that could have been easily avoided.

One of the most valuable pieces of information in these manuals are the tables recommending specific maintenance steps to be taken at certain time and mileage intervals. Industry engineers have carefully worked out these steps and if they are followed the vehicle will normally remain in top running order and in peak safety condition.

The maintenance section is perhaps most important from the safety and economy point of view. Here are explained the requirements of the cooling system, care of the battery and proper inflation pressures for tires under varying conditions.

The Library Corner

By O D.

THE GUARDIANS by John Christopher.

This story is set in England in the year 2032, when that country is divided into two societies—Conurb and County. Thirteen year old Rob Randall a County dweller, decides to flee to the County. Knowing this is treason, he is quite prepared for trouble.

A HORSE CAME RUNNING by Meindert DeJong

When Mark was caught alone in a tornado, all he could think about was his old horse, Colonel. This is an interesting story of the aftermath of a tornado, and the part played by human nature.

THE SINGING STONES by Winifred Finlay

An eerie story of a Scottish girl who finds two green stones with Pictish beasts engraved on them. Christie suddenly realized she has travelled in time to the early days of Scotland's history.

FARM BENEATH THE SEA by Mary Patchett

An Australian gives us this intriguing story of life beneath the sea. Scientists have developed a method of living underwater, and for the first time a family settles 65 feet below the surface in order to become fish farmers.

CHARLEY by Joan G. Robinson

DANGER ON SHADOW MOUNTAIN by Marion Rumsey

The mountainous inside passage to Alaska is the setting for this outdoor story. Twelve-years-old Pete is visiting his brother Dave, on Pine Island, when he is suddenly plunged into adventure.

MOONCOIN CASTLE by Brinton Turkle

A delightful satire of an old Irish castle about to be torn down to make way for a supermarket. The story is told by a jackdaw and one of its most interesting characters is a gallant ghost named Patrick.

THE TRUMPET OF THE SWAN by E. B. White

Children who have read Stuart Little and Charlotte's Web will enjoy the author's latest animal fantasy. Louis has no voice, a dreadful state of affairs for a trumpeter swan. How this difficulty is overcome makes enjoyable reading.

THE WOLFLING by Sterling North

This fine nature story is set in Wisconsin of 100 years ago. There are many interesting characters in various pioneering activities — one is an actual nature scientist of that era. One boy's determination to have a wolfling as a pet shows us the true nature of the wolf and its place in animal society.

Consultants to Suggest Traffic Solutions

Belleville city council will invite detailed proposals from consulting engineers for a functional study of arterial routes with the view of eliminating some of the city's northsouth traffic problems.

The study would include arterial routes in the city's east end and the Canniffon Road grade separation.

Council this week voted to accept the offer of consultants Dumas and Smith to submit a detailed proposal for the study, while two other firms have also been approached.

Alderman Jack Ireland said that in view of the concern of Front Street merchants over traffic congestion in the downtown area, this part of the city should also be included.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the downtown urban renewal study would take traffic problems in this part of the city into consideration.

The engineer didn't feel that the wording of the recommendation mattered greatly.

"What we want is the consultants' expert opinion on how to solve our traffic problems," the engineer said. "If more than one proposal is received it would be up to council to choose the best one."

Mr. Purcell said the new Dundas Street bridge, when it is opened later this fall would do much to alleviate the east-west traffic congestion.

Education Costs Could Double In Five Years

Predictions made two years ago by provincial ministers that education could bankrupt Ontario within 10 years may be truer than they appeared at first.

Monday Hastings county board of education's financial department head, said that the county education budget could double by 1976.

But the gloss is based upon several uncertain, unpredictable factors — effect of industrialization of the county and consequent increased population, natural birth rate, and the extent of the inflationary trend in the western world's economy.

The board's present $15 million budget could increase to $41,400,000 if direct prediction come true. This figure is based on an annual 15 per cent increase in education costs — about the amount of annual increases in recent years.

Accounting for the 15 per cent increase in teachers' salaries, going up about 8 to 9 per cent every year; cost of materials, increasing in cost by about 5 per cent a year, and increased enrolment.

Although education minister William Davis has predicted a lowering of the annual increase in the future, he admitted in Belleville two weeks ago that this was based on an over-all provincial view.

Some counties, such as Hastings, he added, are experiencing growth that will place them outside the over-all provincial picture.

An educated guess obtained by county administrators this year education cost increases could be expected at a minimum of 10 per cent a year, which puts the 1976 budget at $31,721,000.

But, stress educational administrators, little crystal ball gazing is clouded by lack of vital information on annual growth patterns in the county due to immigration — the general unpredictability of human beings.

The figures provided last night were required to calculate the percentage of the budget going for capital works. The board was presented with an estimated capital works budget of about $2 million a year for the next five years.

If the total budget increases as predicted, the percentage going for new school construction will decrease from 7.35 this year to 5.82 by 1976.

This year, the board's total outstanding debt is $10,728,-000. By 1976, if the proposed capital works plan is put into effect, the total debt will also have more than doubled — to $22,630,000.

Merger Deferred

Real Estate board boundary area and part time salesmen were among the items discussed at the annual business meeting of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, Region 7, held at Peterborough last week.

Attending the meeting from Belleville were board president Frank Follwell and secretary Kenneth Burkett. Region 7 takes in the area from Oshawa to Belleville and north to Peterborough.

Other items on the caucus agenda presided over by Bill Coles of Bowmanville and the effect which the white paper on taxation could have on real estate.

There will be no immediate action on the proposed amalgamation of the Belleville and Trenton boards.

Police After Battery Burglars

Belleville City Police are investigating a series of car battery thefts that began Friday night.

Deputy police chief Harold Reid said this morning that six batteries had been taken from cars at random in various parts of the city.

Inquiry Praises Alert Observer

A Windsor man was praised yesterday for his actions in reporting his sighting of a CNR freight car in trouble to CNR authorities, during a Canadian Transport Commission inquiry into three railway accidents during the summer.

Elmer J. Rose, 74, of Windsor, was visiting his son Eric Rose in Port Hope Aug. 6, the day of the derailment of 14 CNR freight cars at Port Hope.

Mr. Rose, a self - proclaimed railroad buff, testified in the inquiry yesterday that he was outside on that date playing with his grandchildren when he stopped to watch the freight train go by.

As he did so he noticed a slow from a journal box on a freight car as the train passed by. He immediately phoned the summer resort - ticket seller, John Rogers, 18, of Cobourg in Cobourg who alerted the dispatcher.

Also praised in yesterday's session of the inquiry was the Eldorado Chemical Company in Port Hope which successfully and quickly acted to prevent a car of acid from causing damage to the town's water supply after the derailment.

Several railroad officials were also questioned about their responsibilities in pre-journey safety precautions for freight trains leaving Toronto.

Witnesses testified that the 14 car freight in question was checked satisfactorily in Toronto before its fateful journey through Port Hope.

The inquiry is examining three railway accidents — a collision between a CNR passenger train and a track motor car near Brockville Aug. 7; the Port Hope derailment and a CPR freight derailment July 30 at Coboconk.

The Port Hope incident is expected to be completed by the end of next week.

The inquiry opened in Ottawa last Thursday and ran for four days before opening in Belleville Monday. Today's session will likely close investigation into the Port Hope incident leaving only the CPR derailment left for discussion.

It is designed to investigate maintenance and operating procedures of railways to determine if any improvements might be made to further safeguard the environment and accidents.

Recommendations from the inquiry are expected two or three months after its completion.

Jews Begin Holy Days

Jews around the world celebrate Rosh Hashanah, the arrival of the Hebrew year 5731, tonight. The holy day begins at sundown.

A service at Sons of Jacob Synagogue in Belleville will mark the beginning of high holy days felt the local congregation.

Services will be conducted by Rabbi Walter Rosenberg assisted by Toronto cantor Morris Maiman, at 9 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Oct. 1 and at 9 a.m. Oct. 2.

The 10 holy days of reflection and self-analysis end with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

A service in the synagogue at sundown Oct. 9 will mark the beginning of the fast that will continue until the first three stars appear in the sky the following evening.

Ireland Queries City Water Policy

Belleville alderman Jack Ireland would like to know the capabilities of the city's water filtration plant and whether it is in a position to meet increased demands.

Under inquiries at yesterday's council meeting, the alderman noted that a few years ago council voted not to supply water to outside municipalities.

"Now," he said, "we hear that the city will supply water to shopping plazas and so on.

"I have also heard that we don't have any water (to sell)."

City manager J. R. Reynolds said he would have a report prepared for the next meeting.

Houlden Inquest Opens Tomorrow

TRENTON (Staff) — Inquest proceedings open here tomorrow into the death of 19-year-old constable Mark Houlden, who died on July 29 after investigating a College Street disturbance complaint.

Presiding at the inquest will be Dr. David Linton of Brighton, the coroner who judged the cause of Houlden's death to be — on the result of pressure on an ulcer.

Five laymen will sit on the coroner's jury and at least 22 individuals have been subpoenaed to give evidence.

Dennis Latten, president of the Ontario Police Association, will be among them. Mr. Latten has been a critic of the handling of the constable's death by various authorities, charging at the OPA Kitchener convention this summer that the matter was clouded in "a veil of secrecy."

Mr. Latten had indicated earlier that the Ontario Police Association would conduct it's own investigation into Houlden's death but yesterday said that the association had decided against this.

The OPA president had indicated that he was "satisfied" that the inquest would serve as a suitable investigation and that association plans for an inquiry for its own were determined largely by the fact that an inquest was not originally slated.

John Pringle, Crown Attorney for Hastings County, indicated Monday that he would not be involved in tomorrow's proceedings, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. in the court room above the police station here.

However, Bruce Affleck, Crown Attorney for Oshawa, will be present to assist the coroner and jury in following the format for such sessions as laid down in the Coroners' Act.

New Fee Schedule For Non-residents

A new schedule of individual fees for non - resident pupils in Hastings county schools has been set by the county board of education.

These are the fees that must be paid by non - resident parents in areas bordering the county, who send their children to Hastings schools because of shorter transportation routes and availability of special programs.

Separate school supporters who wish to send their children to the public system must switch their taxes from the separate schools to the county board. The public board can accept separate school elementary pupils only if the program they seek is not available in the separate school system.

Because legislation does not empower the separate school system to operate secondary schools, separate school ratepayers' secondary school tax levies go to the public secondary schools. Separate school supporters are free to send their children to secondary schools without paying fees.

A half - day's attendance at kindergarten costs individuals $7 a month. Attendance in grades 1 to 8 costs $14 a month. The fee for grades 9 through 13 is $37 a month.

Fees for special education are higher, with full-day attendance at schools for retarded children costing $46 a month.

Opportunity classes cost from $21 to $35 a month in tuition fees.

The number of children paying individual fees were about eight or 10 last year.

Other boards buy education from Hastings County for more than 1,000 pupils, but the fee schedule is higher for these pupils and is charged back to the board buying the

Small-size Comet

A new, small car named Comet went on sale September 11 at Mercury dealers of Ford Motor Company of Canada. Available in 2-door and 4-door models, Comet has optional 302-2V V-8 engine and is designed to fill the demand for an economical family car with a high level of styling, performance and convenience. Comet will compete in Canada's growing small car market. The name Comet previously had been used on intermediate and compact car lines.

Antique Collections To Be Appraised

City council has directed that an itemized appraisal be made of the Cooldery collection and the Paul antique lamp collection to determine their actual value for insurance purposes.

The Paul antique lamp collection, believed to be the only collection of its kind in Ontario, now has a blanket coverage of $5,000, while the Cooldery collection is insured for $10,000.

But Ald. Robin Jeffrey says some of the items in the Paul collection are "priceless" and recommended that they be appraised.

consisting of period household effects and paintings, came to the city some years ago from the Salaman estate in England. Mrs. Salaman was at one time a resident of this city.

The Paul collection of antique lamps was purchased by the city from the estate of a Napanee collector.

Both collections are on display at the Hastings county museum on Church Street.

Superintendent Is Honored

PICTON (Staff) — William McWilliam, superintendent of Prince Edward County Home, will retire this year following 17 years of association with senior citizens in this area.

He was honored last week during a meeting of the county auxiliary attended by County Warden Gordon Lloyd; chairman of the County Home and Welfare Committee, David Thompson and committee member Fred Stafford.

The executive of the county home presented Mr. McWilliam with a ... ce marking his years of ... vice. The retiring superintendent expressed thanks for this moments and added that he considered himself one of the sparkplugs" initiating conventions for those working with the senior citizens in administrative capacities. He referred to the recent invention at Thunder Bay, attended by Mr. Thompson.

A piece of amethyst taken from the mines at Thunder Bay was presented to Mrs. McWilliam in recognition of her work with Prince Edward's senior citizens at the County Home.

1,000 Clowns Opens Tonight

The play, written by Herb Gardner, stars Michael Barrett Sr. and Nick Barrett, his 13 - year - old son, in the leading roles of a television writer eccentric and his precocious nephew and their war against the New York Children's Aid.

Escapers Sentenced

KINGSTON — A Bloomfield man was among three prisoners of Joyceville Institution who received sentences ranging from nine months to two years when they appeared in provincial court Tuesday to face charges of escaping custody on Sept. 7.

Russell A. Weldon, 42, of Bloomfield, serving eight years for manslaughter, received an additional sentence of six months, Douglas E. Scott, 27, of Hyde, serving three years for theft, also received an additional nine months.

Scott and Weldon turned themselves over to prison officials on Sept. 2.

Sentenced with two years additional was Douglas Clayton Whitney, 30, of Agincourt. Serving an indeterminate sentence as an habitual criminal, Whitney was recaptured following a high - speed police chase near Frankford on Sept. 9.

Sailboat Hijacker Held Over

SEATTLE—A United States attorney will seek a grand jury indictment against Berhard Diebold, 39, on a charge of kidnapping, laid after a hijacked sailboat with three hostages and a gunman drifted in to American waters from Canada early Friday.

At a court hearing Tuesday, Bateman, a German immigrant believed from Belleville but known in custody to a federal grand jury Oct. 6.

Bateman is actually a native of Hamburg, Germany, and resided in Ontario for nine years, living in Moorefield.

He surrendered to United States Coast Guard officials early Friday morning in American waters.

In Canada, Bateman faces two charges of attempted murder and one charge of robbing a downtown Victoria bank of $6,000.

TORONTO STOCKS

On index, industrials gained .25 to 165.76, golds .58 to 157.21, base metals .64 to 97.32 and western oils 1.57 to 152.57.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 783,000 shares. A comparative figure for the same time Tuesday was not available because of computer problems at the Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday morning.

Gains outnumbered losses 146 to 61 with 168 issues unchanged.

Pipelines and steels led advancing sectors. Ten of the exchange's 17 sub-indexes were higher.

TransCanada PipeLines climbed ¼ to 23½ and Westcoast Transmission 1¼ to 22¼.

The National Energy Board granted licences to the companies to export additional natural gas to the United States.

Not as Expensive As Indicated

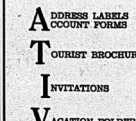
Take the case of the recent increase in street parking meter rates, the difference is 10 per cent.

In a city council report appearing in yesterday's Intelligencer it was stated the meter parking rate in "prime" areas had been increased from five to ten cents per half hour.

What should have been stated that the rate increase was from five to ten cents per hour — not for each half hour as was indicated.

Defensive Driving Course Endorsed



PICTON (Staff) — A defensive driving course sponsored next month by Loyalist College is being discussed by the Prince Edward Farm Safety Council.

Four two-hour sessions will be conducted October 6, 8, 13 and 15. The farm safety council reminds farmers that each year 1,700 persons die in traffic accidents while 67,000 motorists and their passengers suffer disabling injuries. Losses in terms of property damage exceed $60 million and $100 million is lost by industrial production caused by absenteeism occasioned by traffic accidents.

The course, offered by Loyalist College has been developed by the Ontario Safety League in a drive to cut down on loss of life, crippling injuries and loss of money.

Persons interested in this course have been urged to apply to the administration or personnel office at Loyalist College where the defensive driving programme is being offered for a $5 charge.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Fat Is Handicap During Operation

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am terribly disturbed. I have a goiter as large as my thumb. My doctor says I need an operation but he will not operate until I take off at least 75 pounds.

He lost me off fried foods; no chocolates or egg yolks. I am on skim milk, lean meats and vegetables. He keeps saying, "You lose the weight, then you go to surgery."

How long should I have to wait before I have this operation? Is it dangerous to put if off? I am up in the air. I don't know what to do. — Mrs. A.

Comment: You haven't told me how much you weigh. Probably quite a bit, otherwise your doctor wouldn't have asked for a 75 - pound reduction. Usually there is no added danger in waiting when one has a large solitary stone. This is so because there is little chance of the stone obstructing one of the bile ducts and causing complications. It's only when numerous small stones fill the gall bladder that postponement may result in a duct being blocked off with such complications as jaundice, infection, etc.

You may wonder why he wants the weight off before he accepts you as a patient for the operating table. Well, excess layers of fat make the actual surgery more difficult. Too much fat to cut through and too many layers interfere with good technique.) There is greater chance for wound infection, and fat raises obstacles to normal healing. Besides, the fat patient usually doesn't take an anesthetic as well as the thinner one.

There's really nothing to be "all up in the air about," Mrs. A. Just stick to your diet, take your time, and at a weekly loss of about two and one-half pounds, in about six months or so you will be in better shape (if you'll excuse the pun) to withstand surgery.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am what is called a pigeon fancier and breeder. I've recently taken it up. But I was scared the other day when I heard that we are liable to get lung infection in this business. Is this true? Is there a danger? — Mr. T.

Comment: It is true that pigeon and other bird breeders may contract a lung disease called histoplasmosis. It is due to the inhalation of the birds' excreta.

Patients may complain of fever, shivering, loss of weight, cough, shortness of breath. The diagnosis is made by x-ray, serologic, skin and inhalation tests.

Recovery usually comes after avoidance of the birds. Sometimes cortisone is used in treatment. For precaution, using masks when around the birds sometimes helps.

The point I want to make is that anyone in contact with birds, with similar symptoms, should become suspicious of the source of the infection.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: The doctor examined me all over and found that I am healthy except for what he calls a secondary anemia. My diet hasn't been right, he says.

Now the question is what will get me back to normal faster? I need iron. I'd like iron injections. But my doctor says that pills will work as well and about as fast. What do you suggest? — Mrs. O.

Comment: I go along with your doctor. Expensive injections do not work any faster than plain iron pills. He will prescribe the proper dosage. And neither will taking injections of liver, B12, vitamin C or folic acid rush things along.

Just take the iron and a well balanced diet. These simple measures should be sufficient for an uncomplicated secondary anemia.

CLC to Oppose Moves To Alter Union Form

SEATTLE, Wash. (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress will oppose any attempts to alter the international structure of North American unions with all the strength it can command, executive vice-president Joseph Morris said Tuesday.

Mr. Morris addressed a convention of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

"Management and their friends," he said, "would naturally like to see the movement in Canada sectionalized and broken down into the smallest possible units."

They would also like to see the Canadian labor movement divorced from all contacts with other national labor movements to cut out benefits such as mutual assistance in times of strikes, he said.

Meanwhile the industrial trend toward world-wide conglomerates and conglomerates was enabling management to play the workers of one country off against the workers of another.

"We will oppose with all the strength we can command any efforts to impose changes on the present structure" of North American unions, Mr. Morris said.

Mr. Morris claimed that Canadian governments, both federal and provincial, are "on the verge of bringing in new labor legislation which will make it increasingly difficult to organize and bargain successfully."

Asked by a reporter to elaborate, the CLC official said:

"We think there will be moves to make it harder to obtain recognition for labor unions. There are also indications of compulsory arbitration as a means to settle strikes."

Sydney J. Harris Says

Phone Conversations Dull

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everybody knows that the telephone is not only a comfort, but a blessing, bringing friends closer together, and making communication a warm and personal matter.

Some weeks ago, I phoned a friend who was traveling in Europe. Our three-minute Chicago - to - Venice conversation went something like this:

"Is that you?"

"Yes. — it's good to hear your voice."

"What did you say?"

"I said it's good to hear your voice."

"It's good to hear your voice, too — but it doesn't sound like you at all."

"Can you hear me clearly?"

"Yes, I can hear you fine."

"Are you enjoying yourself?"

"What did you say?"

"I said are you enjoying yourself?"

"Very much. How is the weather back home?"

"Pretty bleak. How's your weather?"

"There seems to be a humming on the line."

"I hear it, too. Do you suppose it's at your end?"

"Don't know. This certainly is remarkable, though, our talking to each other across half the world."

"Yes, I can hardly believe it."

"The humming seems to be better now."

"Not on this end. I suppose in time they'll perfect it."

"Oh, sure, transatlantic telephone service keeps getting better every year."

"Did you have trouble reaching me?"

"Not at all — just took a little time."

"Well . . . this is pretty expensive for you. I guess we'd better hang up."

"Yes, I think my three minutes are about over . . . Well, don't fall into a canal."

"It was nice to hear your voice."

"Same here. Good-by."

As I was saying, there's nothing like the telephone to bridge the gap between continents, and bring friends closer together. So warm. So personal.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For October 1

Your Birthday today: Your main interest in the year ahead should be the development of what you have started. There is enough variety to satisfy the urge for experimentation without making drastic changes. Health care becomes important. Emotional ties remain strong. Today's natives tend to be very loose, fond of speculative questions and ventures.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Minor coincidences cause temporary fluctuations in your finances, otherwise it's a very satisfying day with quite a bit achieved, some new contacts to cultivate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Tackle those chores you have been putting off, as there is less likely to be any excuse for dropping them half-done. Pace yourself to avoid fatigue.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Overcome a streak of inertia, laziness; get a creative project going. Make the rounds, find out what is happening. The evening seems too hide-bound to waste it alone.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your month begins smoothly enough with midweek chores on top. There are many little things you can do with good results. Your home life inevitably improves.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You were on the right track, so keep on it and expand your activities. There is no lack of co-operation where your goals are clear. Make it a sociable evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): It should be easier for you to concentrate today. Information comes from unusual sources, can be readily checked. There's much to be done.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Take advantage of relative quiet now to bring your activities into balance. Some things are lacking, but also some favors are there for the gracious asking. Speak up!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): With your knack for discovering hidden facts, a review of seemingly hopeless old problems reveals an untried approach. Renew influential contacts, acquaintances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Now when things are not so pressing in general, cultivate your friendships. Let people know your true feelings, something of your plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This seems to be a day of unconscious preparation for tomorrow's changes. Leave no loose ends. Big changes, major decisions should wait for more information.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Filling in details comes naturally today. Offer explanations, devise announcements, bring correspondence up to date. The evening offers pleasant social incidents.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Be yourself, in an improved work situation. Compare notes, look into side issues, forage for edits. You have the chance of preventing future nuisance in your home.
